James Madden, chairman of the Save Our Bay group has stated "As users of the bay and residents of the area directly concerned with the proposed construction of a hydro line from Lennox Generating Station across Hayward Long Reach, we consider this route unjustified, pollution and interferes with citizens' enjoyment of the bay."

He was discussing the proposed hydro line that would entail construction of two 220-foot towers and a 32,000 foot span of eight cables. Red and white balloons would mark from the span in communication with federal regulations.

The petition to halt plans for the power line will be circulated primarily in Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington and Hastings counties and among persons enjoying the bay for water sports.

Copies will be sent to Premier William Davis, George Gathercole, chairman of Ontario Hydro and to other officials involved in the project.

May 22 Significant For Albert College

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Albert College, shaded by sprawling trees, surrounded by velvet lawns and clad in the grey brick of a gone-forever age, celebrated its 50th birthday this week.

Common to its seemingly sedate personality, little fanfare hailed May 22, precisely one half century after the school's corner stone was laid, marking the school's resurrection following a fire which gutted the first Albert College located on the east hill.

Albert College first came to Belleville in 1857 as a co-educational school. A fire caused extensive damage to the administration portion of the building in 1917 causing Methodist founders to search for a new location.

Six years later the new school was on its way, though for young men only. It wasn't until the 1936 acquisition of Albert Manor on Highland Avenue that women were invited to attend.

A reporter wrote on May 22, 1923, "With a beautiful spring sun smiling down, the large crowd stood, heads bared during the silent hush which prevailed while the ceremony was being performed."

Rev. Dr. Graham, who at that time was the secretary of the educational board of the Methodist Church in Canada, (founders of the school) was then handed the trowel and moments later announced, "In the name of the board of Albert College, and appointed by them, I declare this stone well and truly laid in the name of God, the Father, Son and Holy Ghost."

Behind the stone (engraved Christ the Chief Corner Stone) were sealed an Albert College Calendar, copies of the Albert College Times, student lists of 1922-23, list of 55 missionaries who had gone out of the college, list of all those associated with the college, lists of city officials, members of the Chamber of Commerce, members of the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs, copies of a number of newspapers, program of laying of the corner stone, copy of the ritual used, names of the architects, names of construction companies, names of members of the Belleville Board of Education and the names of members of the Township of Thurlow School Board.

Founded as a residential Christian school, the college was nurtured by the Methodist Episcopal communion as a place for their sons to be educated, surrounded by their own faith.

Since that time some 7,000 students of all faiths have walked through the stately arches of the college's main entrance coming from points around the globe to be steeped in the traditions of Albert College.

In the forefront is the school's continually high standards of scholastic achievement and the bonus of residential living.

The headmaster, always speaking as if the college were more a person than an institution, said "besides everything else we offer, there's a lot of affection around this old dump . . . it'll be around another 50 years if I can help it."

While the school has grown physically since the laying of the cornerstone, with the addition of residences, a headmaster's house, staff apartments and playing fields, Mr. Shewfelt's only criticism of the school would be the lack of forward planning.

The school receives no monies from either of Canada's senior governments and relies completely on the student fees and donations.

"There was very little foresight used . . . the college didn't tend to move out," he said.

Now we are trying to forecast tomorrow's needs and begin preparations today."

Because of the financial burden on the school, the board of directors has latched onto what they hope will turn into a source of revenue, that is the purchase of the rights to the Tom O'Shanter Hockey School.

Asked what the school would look forward to in the next 50 years, if there would be problems, Mr. Shewfelt replied "I would think so."

They don't appear to be great problems though.

"I want to be here in 50 years. Here you don't grow old. The place has me hooked," says Mr. Shewfelt, who confided one of his dreams for the future is a year-round arena. "It would seem a natural for the hockey school."

Watergate Probes

The evidence in the Watergate hearing is pouring out thick and fast. However, we have to ask ourselves, evidence of what?

Already some sections of the media are suggesting there is evidence linking President Nixon directly with the Watergate bugging and subsequent cover-up of this burglary of the U.S. Democratic party headquarters.

However there are so many voices, and they are speaking with so many tongues, that any such conclusion must be regarded as dangerous, not to say premature. Much of what is coming out moreover is hearsay which in a court of law has no validity.

Today's cartoon seems to reflect President Nixon's dilemma as accurately as any. That is, guilt or innocence, in the eyes of the public, is a matter of opinion which also must remain suspect while courts of law and the current Senate hearing attempt to get at the full facts.

Senator Sam Ervin, who is chairman of the Senate probe, has said meanwhile that it is highly improbable his committee will question or seek a written statement from Mr. Nixon about any involvement in the scandal.

He said the testimony by convicted Watergate burglar James McCord that offers of executive clemency were made to buy his silence "is not evidence against the President."

What we are witnessing is a welter of talk — a veritable Tower of Babel — the conclusions to which are matters for the future, when all the evidence is in. Only then can the guilt or innocence of individuals be fairly determined.

Increasingly Popular

Well tennis is still very much in the news these days, both locally and abroad. It is a game which tends to be one of the most sporting, in the sense of fair play and behavior on the part of competitors, but there are nevertheless exceptions to this premise.

Nastaze, the Romanian, is one of the current crop of professionals whose temperament runs away with him on occasions, like the occasion recently when he constantly questioned line calls.

On the other hand witness the gentlemanly posture of Arthur Ashe after losing to Stan Smith in the world pro championship recently. Ashe, a Negro who has made the big time in pro tennis, had a service call go against him at a vital juncture of the fourth set and this was followed by Smith just getting to a drop shot which some believed had bounced more than once. Ashe said if Smith said it was "up," in tennis parlance, he believed him. It seems also that the TV cameras confirmed this.

Still, there is many a temperamental player around, even among the top competitors and including both men and women. Billy Jean King, well-known for her constant self-criticism on the court, has been known to receive a caution or two from referees. We should mention at this point that Mrs. King, stung by Margaret Court's lamentable performance against male challenger Bobby Riggs, has decided to accept the challenge to meet him in while ago and which she initially turned down.

Over in Picton meanwhile we see that the tennis club there has held its second meeting of the season. The club has three courts available and rules made public include a note on the bulletin board concerning the use of profane language on the courts. "If one warning is not enough," the note says, "the player will be relegated to the executive." The report in the local newspaper also said that the importance of common courtesy between players and court-etiquette was stressed. Which rather goes to show that the game is still very much in its infancy here. Even allowing for the instances we have cited, sporting behavior on the tennis court is the rule rather than the exception, in countries where it is much more of a tradition than it is in Canada.

Britain in Miniature

Yorkshire—'Pud,' Pubs, Moors and Proud Outspoken Folk

By RICHARD JACKSON

YORK — The largest county in Britain, Yorkshire covers one-eighth of all England in area and 10 percent of the English in numbers, but by the 1971 reckoning, 100 people in quality.

It is a royal dukedom, haunt of king-makers, breeder of cricketers and soccer stars, coarse, the choosy, — but do not talk about it.

Convinced that anything north, south or west of his borders is inferior, the Yorkshireman, treasuring the privacy of silence, seems to count his words, plain and to the point.

Axe when he finds speech necessary. His clipped accent broad with full play to the vowels as in the voices of such Yorkshiremen as the late Charles Laughton, James Mason and Eric Sykes.

He scorns the efforts of lesser breeds in the other counties to conceal regional origins beneath the so-clipped-and-precise BBC way of talking.

But Yorkshire folk are fond of people and hospitality is almost a religious duty towards those visitors who have had the good sense to come to the Northeast and see the best part of BOAC's Britain.

In the pubs of the West riding industrial centres, like Leeds, they sing along to Beatle-style British music hall, and the pot-throwing, name-calling and dancers entertaining while you drink your beer.

Sit of them came to London as "The Comedians" in their own show at The Palladium, and were it smash with the theatrics with such corny jokes as "If you fall through the mattress I'll see you in the spring" which reads awful, but sounds funny.

Yorkshire is a miniature Britain with mountains and a rocky shore, moor and marsh, farm and factory, forest and plain, all laced together by a web of six rivers flowing down from the Pennine hills, the rocky backbone of England.

If you see nothing else in England, you must see the Yorkshire dales; over 2,000 square miles and much of it a national park; the loveliest unspoiled country in all the land, folk tell you.

In most places it would read "No smoking — penalty five pounds."

In Harrogate it asks "Smokers are requested to extinguish all matches, cigars and cigarettes before throwing them away as the moor frequently has been fired from neglect of this precaution."

In the luxurious fringe of the dales, where the moors run down to the industrial towns like the village of Haworth in the Bronte Country, the parsonage in which Rev. Patrick Bronte brought his wife and six children is now a museum to the genius of Anne, Emily and Charlotte. Inside the stone - built Georgian house is the dining table at which the sisters wrote their books, the lamp that lit their nightly compositions and the rosewood desk where Emily secreted her poems.

Yorkshire folk are very fond of their food and there is fine eating to be enjoyed all over the dales. The traditional dish is fried ham and eggs, the ham in steaks a half an inch thick.

But of course the dish that has carried the county's name afar is the cookbook of the world is Yorkshire pudding, and there its making is a ritual.

Besides the food being good, Yorkshire is the best pub area in the country. There is no bad beer, they say, just badly-kept beer — and in Yorkshire they know how best to keep it.

The Yorkshireman gets food drink and service in his shops because he expects it and does not tolerate the pretiney English-men's congenital fear of showing his feelings and making a scene.

Give Yorkshireman a pint fractionally short of full measure and he will push it back across the bar asking, "Can tha get a double whiskey in that, lad?"

Then fill t'bloody glass wit beer."

There is so much in Yorkshire, the dales, the north moors, blue - collar industrial Leeds; York of the Cathedral, Roman history, famous relics, Norman ruins, guildhalls of the Middle Ages and narrow streets that whisper of antiquity like Whip-ma-whop-ma-gate where before Agincourt archers bent the bow to encourage piety in the populace.

And the North Sea coast, resort towns of Bridlington and beaches instead of those stones that rattle and roll with the tide and waves at Brighton and Eastbourne on the South coast.

Try Yorkshire and live a little longer in the county where there is no "live".

If you have not been to Yorkshire, you have not been to England. Nay, if tha's not seen Yorkshire, lad tha's not seen nowt.

PC's Take A Hard Line on Tragedy in Zambia

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Alfred Hales, Tory M.P. for Wellington reacted to the killing of two Canadian girls on the Rhodesian border, apparently by Zambian guerrillas, with the silly suggestion that, "... we should consider cutting off aid to Zambia" in reprisal.

This kind of instant response to a tragic event affecting Canada (and many activities in foreign affairs are potentially tragic for us), is all too typical of the style these days of the Tory party which wants to rule Canada.

I suspect Mr. Hales hasn't done his homework at all on our lengthy and important relations with Zambia. For example, Canadians were largely responsible for setting up the University of Zambia, creating that country's first major modern national adult education program employing it with many kinds of needed technology.

Does he know that Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda is a practicing Presbyterian and undoubtedly would be concerned about this tragic act by Zambians?

This kind of instant reaction to events is one of the many troubles with Tories in disarray in Parliament and outside of it. They are not doing their homework, rather they are sounding off with emotional blasts, as though the world beyond Canada, were like their ridings at home uncomplicated and familiar, which I doubt they are.

Maybe this brand of revisionism began when Claude Wagner, the foreign policy critic for the Tories and in another bout of silliness, turned down External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp's invitation to join his fact-finding flight to those South East Asian nations involved in our tricky role as a member-state of the ICCS.

Such ridiculous stands in several directions, probably a delayed reaction from not winning the October 30 federal election, will do the Tories no good where their public foreign policy statements are concerned.

Given the pressures on the opposition parties to be on their toes with domestic crises of inflation, unemployment, rising food costs, one wonders if the Tories will really care about foreign policy until and if they come to power again.

Looking at the foreign policy record of the Diefenbaker government in power between 1957 and 1963, it was desultory, to say the least.

Remember the fiasco of the fall of 1957 when a new and untried Tory government tried to persuade the then British Conservative Government to support a 15 per cent switch in our foreign trade from the U.S.A. to Britain?

Then there was the disastrous division between the pacifist Howard Green as Tory External Affairs Minister and the realistic Colonel Harkness Tory Minister of National Defence, over nuclear-equipped weapons on Canadian soil.

Remember also the lamentable Canadian at feet-dragging for three days at the time of the Cuban missile crisis and finally the fall of the Diefenbaker Tories in 1963 largely over the issue of nuclear weapons on Canadian soil.

There is a positive legacy at all from which to formulate new Tory foreign policy objectives for the 1970s. But I ask you, if the Stanfield Tories are forming it, who has seen the results?

Raise your hand for the teacher anyone who knows where the Conservatives stand on foreign aid, NATO commitments, relations with Communist states, Arctic sovereignty, Canadian membership in the Organization of American States, even U.S. relations?

Public and the Insurance Business

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

There's an axiom in the life insurance business: Nobody wants to buy insurance. Somebody has to sell it.

Small wonder that most people don't clamour to buy it. It is a forced purchase to face the unpleasant fact that death is inevitable and must be provided for. Second place, all that you get in return for often substantial premium payments is an intangible—protection—which provides none of the sensory gratification that most big spenders seem to be seeking.

Without the dogged salesman or agent, then, most of us would have little protection beyond the group policies that may come with our jobs. But that is certainly not to say that the salesman and his selling methods are above criticism.

In fact, the agents and their associations have been seeking solutions to some of the industry's problems for a number of years. And the public, which sees other problems—or the same problems but in a different light—has been complaining more.

So, at least says Ontario's minister of consumer and commercial relations, John Clement announced recently that the increase in the number of complaints from the public had moved him to launch a wide-ranging re-appraisal of the ways that insurance policies are sold.

Mr. Clement has found that in some cases there is "outright conflict" between the interests of the insurance salesman and his customer.

"It is difficult not to be cynical about a man who claims he is there to advise you," the minister said, when the only way he can make a dime is to sell you insurance."

The insurance salesman is rewarded with higher commissions on some policies or "products," as insurance men say) than on others. Perhaps your individual circumstances are such that you should have a low-premium, high-premium policy— but it's hard to know whether the agent is giving priority to your interests or his own.

The evidence that too many people buy insurance unwisely is to be found in the lapse rate. This figure shows how many policies are not kept up but allowed to lapse after a policyholder has made the first few payments.

Mr. Clement is concerned about the high lapse rate. "Information from my ministry indicates that there is a genuine concern over the average length of time the average policy remains in force."

No one knows what Mr. Clement's study will produce. But one distinct possibility would be the establishment of a uniform sales commission, set or regulated by the provincial government.

A single-commission structure could remove whatever impulsion the agent may now feel to sell his customer a more expensive policy than the customer needs or can afford—and that would go far toward reducing the wasteful lapses of policies.

Until that day comes, however, anyone considering the purchase of life insurance should learn to be as aggressive and persistent in questioning the agent about his "product" as the agent is in his efforts to make a sale.

The prospective purchaser has a right to know the full range of coverage available to him—and not merely the one or two types about which the agent may volunteer information.

Cabinet Use of Planes

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau

When is a cabinet minister a politician and when is he on official business?

It would seem this will be a matter of concern over the next while.

The public accounts committee has finally secured the logs of government aircraft.

And they show that some ministers, particularly Rene Brunelle and Darcy McKeough, have had an extraordinary number of flights on weekends to their constituencies.

The men concerned can, and do, say that these flights involved business.

But the question is when is government business not government business.

Riding meetings, other public meetings, or attending to their constituencies.

Recognizing this should they have the use of government aircraft to get home?

In the case of Rene Brunelle one argument why he should would be that there is very limited public transportation to his home at Moonbeam, north of Timmins.

But then there are private citizens who suffer from the same short-coming.

NDP member Jack Stokes of Thunder Bay, for example, has to spend many hours to get home to Toronto.

And Pat Reid of Rainy River has to fly to Winnipeg and then take a long drive to get to Fort Frances.

And because the other men happen to be in the cabinet should they have a preference?

A good case can be made that they shouldn't.

Stokes and Reid and other private members put in a full week in Toronto when the session is on.

Ministers as the political burden is concerned there is little difference between them and the cabinet ministers.

Now that the number and nature of the actual flights have been uncovered there should be some resolution on just what is right and what is wrong in the use of government aircraft.

The largest docket of cases ever to be presented in a county police court here, 49 cases, were listed for trial before Magistrate A. J. Lloyd. The fact no police court was held last week owing to the death of Magistrate E. J. Butler, accounted for the large accumulation.

Although there was fairly good attendance at BCIVS Auditorium to view the series of war pictures shown through the auspices of the local salvage committee, the amount of the admission keys collected as admission was rather disappointing. Total price keys were taken as admission at the door of the college in Spring Contest sponsored by the Belleville Council of the Knights of Columbus. ## Plane Use Explained

Davis Threatened On Day of Budget

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis said Tuesday his life was threatened the day the budget came down last month and extra security officers were called into the legislature's public gallery when the treasurer read the budget.

In a voice cracking with apparent emotion, the premier responded to a series of questions from Liberal Leader Robert Nixon about the premier's security and the use of government aircraft by the premier.

Last week, while the premier was out of the country, Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier said the premier's life had been threatened on a number of occasions.

Mr. Davis told the legislature Tuesday that the less said about the threats the better it would be.

He said on April 12—budget day—Metro Toronto police received an anonymous threat about 15 minutes before the treasurer was to start speaking.

The threat, he said, involved the death of the premier and "damage" to other members of the house.

Referring to the caller as a crank, he said it was still uncomfortable to sit in the legislature while the treasurer was reading the budget and look into the public gallery while wondering who was up there.

The premier indicated that it was not the threat which had his own life that concerned him as much as threats against his family.

He asked the opposition members to take this into consideration during their questioning.

Mr. Nixon said the opposition did take the threats seriously but it was pointed out that it was cabinet ministers who first broached the subject.

"It does make the solution more difficult," said the premier.

The issue of security has been mentioned on several occasions by two separate cabinet ministers during discussions in the legislature and committees on the use of government aircraft by cabinet ministers and the premier.

House Leader Eric Winkler first mentioned the matter and was involved and then later Mr. Bernier said there had been a number of threats against the premier.

Tuesday, the premier reiterated his earlier statements that he would continue to use government airplanes for personal use.

It was disclosed last week that the premier used government planes to fly his family to Florida numerous times.

Mr. Davis repeated published statements that the was setting aside money to pay for the flights on the basis of first-class fares for himself and his wife and economy fares for the children.

He indicated that a mechanism for paying the money to the provincial consolidated fund was yet to be found.

Raise Fines

TORONTO (CP) — A new construction safety act will be introduced in the legislature to establish maximum fines of $10,000 for firms who don't adhere to safety regulations, Labor Minister Fern Guindon said Tuesday.

Ontario Won't Act Like Spoiled Brat

OTTAWA (CP) — Ontario won't act like spoiled brats and "take our basketball and go home" if its demands aren't met at the federal-provincial conference today, Premier William Davis said Tuesday.

But both Mr. Davis and his treasurer, John White, expect some concessions by Ottawa on the perennial problem of larger fiscal transfers to the provinces and cost-sharing programs they claim abrogate provincial priorities.

Mr. Davis said any new agreements are liable to be "a principle only, with "the crossing of the Ts' and dotting of the 'Is' to come later."

Mr. White was more optimistic when both were interviewed on the eve of the three-day conference which opens here today with ongoing statements by most of the 19 premiers and by Prime Minister Trudeau.

"I am very hopeful about the next two days," Mr. White said. "I am hopeful the premiers can come together and work out an agreement on some of the principals already accepted by Ottawa and the provinces."

He was referring to recent statements by Mr. Trudeau and federal Finance Minister John Turner that indicate—to the provinces at least—that Ottawa is prepared to work out a formula for unconditional grant funding to the provinces.

Mr. Davis and the other premiers met privately with Mr. Trudeau Tuesday night at what was described as a working dinner at 24 Sussex Drive.

Ontario's opening statement at the closed-door session will be brief, but will contain a reference to Alberta's proposal to increase the price of western gas to eastern consumers. Mr. Davis will argue that this is an issue of national importance as it affects energy resources, although it is not scheduled for formal discussion by the first ministers.

Ontario's delegation, which includes Robert Welch, provincial secretary of social development, and a large group from Mr. White's ministers, including deputy minister Ian MacDonald, are encouraged by the large increases in federal revenue in their demands for more points on the personal income tax scale.

Ontario seeks a near 50-50 split in tax points with Ottawa in exchange for taking over both the fiscal and administrative responsibility for cost-sharing programs, such as medical care and post-secondary education.

Mr. Davis said Ottawa now understands the concept of more provincial autonomy and the only problem is one of determining "what control they want to maintain."

The premier said his main thrust at the conference will be to try to "clean up the clutter" of myriad cost-sharing programs so the public will know which level of government is responsible for which programs, such as in medical services and education.

Gathercole Defends Hydro Headquarters

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Hydro Commission was aware last July that embarrassment could arise from friendship between Premier William Davis and the developer given a contract for a $44-million Hydro headquarters here, commission chairman George Gathercole said Tuesday, testifying before a special into the lease-purchase deal.

Mr. Gathercole told the committee that plans drawn up at a cost of about $1.4 million had been scrapped by Hydro in favor of the Canada Square contract—mainly because the commission did not want to go into the money market.

He said savings of about $2 million a year over Hydro's present system.

'We Must Care Enough'

"People in power have their values twisted and the rest of us don't seem to care enough to straighten them out."

Muriel Duckworth, a founding member of the peace organization Voice of Women, last night addressed Bridge Street United Church Women, challenging them to "know and care" about war-related world crisis.

She told about 125 women of the founding of Voice of Women in 1960 in Canada as a response to the crisis situation between the United States and the U.S.S.R.

"There was danger of nuclear war," she said, recalling the "U-2 incident".

The Voice of Women's aims, then and now, she said, were to protest against war and the threat of war, to work for the economic and social betterment of mankind and to provide opportunities for women to exercise responsibility for the family of mankind.

"People are no longer so afraid because there isn't a crisis close to home now," Mrs. Duckworth said.

"Wars of today are not likely to be fought across Canada — this is still a possibility though remote. But there are a lot of steps to be taken between this point and that point," she said.

"It's a very frightening thought — but in the meantime people are dying in wars."

"We talk disarmament," she said, "but arms spending goes up every year."

Values today are "topsy-turvy", she said and noisiest look for security behind "terrible" weapons.

To counteract this, she said, there must be a world wide peace organization.

"We have to have a network of people we can count on in many countries to save the whole globe," she said.

She told the women they should reorganize their lives so some part of it can go to the peace movement.

"We live or die together," she said.

She told the women the money involved in armament is "beyond my comprehension" yet "there are more people starving than ever".

"She challenged the women to ask themselves "why we must kill each other to achieve our ends".

Political Prisoners 'Saved' By Canadian Women

Active Christians, students, including young children, Buddhists and professionals in Vietnam are living in incredible conditions because they dared to speak out against the war, Muriel Duckworth of the Voice of Women, told Bridge Street United Church Women Tuesday night.

"The conditions are so bad you can hardly bear to read about them," she said.

The political prisoners are in very grave danger because the charges against them — so vague to begin with — are now being made criminal and the prisoners being "disposed of", Mrs. Duckworth said.

The prisoners are anti-Thieu (Thieu is president of South Vietnam) and Mrs. Duckworth said, "Thieu would be brought down if they were released.

"For some reason violence in the world has resulted in political prisoners being treated abominably," she said.

To help save some of the prisoners, several groups in Canada have "adopted" prisoners, she said. Knowing only their name and age in many cases, individuals write to the President of the Vietnamese Embassy in Ottawa, to U Thant the general secretary of the United Nations to inquire about the fate of their "prisoner."

"Their health has been invited for life for no reason except that they wanted the war to end."

Muriel Duckworth, a founder of the Voice of Women, with niece Kay Summers at Bridge Street United Church Women. Mrs. Duckworth addressed the group Tuesday night, describing the peace organization and its aims.

East Hastings W.I. Meets

Eastminster United Church students were treated to an air tour of the region Sunday by the Belleville Flying Club. Later they were entertained at a barbecue by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lloyd.

Mabel Peacock won the draw prize at Ontario Women's Institute Euchre May 18. Ladies winners were Edyth Thomson, Margaret Allen, Berniece Reid, Men's winners were James MacKay, Maxine Lazier, F. Langabeer.

Queensboro Women's Institute entertained 25 senior citizens at supper in recognition of its 25th anniversary. The branch was organized in May, 1948 by Mr. Ernie Moore and Mrs. S. R. Beatty of Madoc.

"Sound of Music's" Maria Not A Millionaire-But Happy

NEW YORK (AP) — Maria von Trapp, 68, says she has not "become a millionaire as everybody thinks" because the movie Sound of Music earned the third-largest gross in film history.

But she has something "better than gold"—the movie brought many people nearer to God.

The movie she inspired has brought tons of fan mail since its release in 1965 and with its re-issue even more is expected.

She still gets about 20 letters a day, many people claiming the movie was therapy, mental and spiritual. But she was sad, having just learned of the death of an English woman who may have been her most devoted fan—she had seen the movie 246 times.

"When I was told about her I thought she must be some kind of nut,' says the kindly, motherly Maria. "Then I heard the story—she had been incenssitable after her husband's death, a potential suicide, who was taken to the movie at her nurse's insistence and had received such comfort from it that she had continued to see it. I had hoped someday to visit her."

Her capacious figure and jolly countenance are recognized by people everywhere. They visit, her, too, at Stowe, Vt., at the Trapp Family Lodge. The chalet-like structure with 200 window boxes can accommodate 140 people and now is run by her son Johannes.

It was a hard decision for Maria to give up the reins to Johannes, she admits. But it was the only thing to do. She was for too generous, they told her, the lodge needed someone to put it on a business basis.

Now she is content to wander through the inn greeting guests and to shop abroad for the handicrafts sold in their gift shop.

She is fond of recounting the story of how the lodge began —everybody working with their hands, and then how relatives of the people who were studying at their music camp were accommodated at their home. And how the house grew too small and they built wing after wing.

"For a long while there was no business," she remarked. "We always had to wait until all the hotels were sold out below before we could get ski business.

"But then God was good. . . . Cross-country skiing caught on and we were ideally prepared for it. It had become too expensive for families to outfit children for downhill skiing. Cross-country equipment and gear is less costly."

Even in spring there is skiing with picnics under trees in the warm sunshine. It has become popular with youthful ecologists who like to follow animal footprints through the early morning snow.

The 60 miles of trails were cleared by Johannes, who studied forestry at Yale. Maria broke her back one day while skiing downhill. She then took up cross-country skiing and she makes an hour-long ski-tour each morning.

Salter — Kempster

Rev. A. L. Sutherland married Georgina Grace Kempster and William Norman Salter, Saturday, May 12, at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Russell H. Kempster, Belleville. Mr. and Mrs. William C. Salter, of Belleville are the bridegroom's parents.

The bride, given in marriage by her mother and father, chose a long white georgette over satin gown with a French lace bodice, wedding ring collar and long sheer sleeves. A tiered tulle veil fell from a white lace Juliette cap. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses surrounded by yellow daisies, baby's breath and blue cornflower.

Mrs. Virginia Reddit of Toronto, matron of honor, wore short puffed sleeves. She carried a bouquet of yellow carnations with yellow and lilac daisies.

Bridesmaids, Heather Cunningham, Barrie, Ont., cousin of the bride and Marilyn Salter, Belleville, sister of the bridegroom wore long lilac flocked batiste gowns similar to the matron of honor's and carried similar bouquets.

Douglas McPherson, of Ottawa was best man. Wayne Vanborne, and Kaye McQuaid, both of Belleville, ushered the guests.

The couple will reside at 9 Crescent Place, Apt. 1814, Toronto.

Take A Pound of Ground.....

A pound of ground, often with tomatoes and a vegetable or two can combine for a tasty supper dish. And even at "these" prices, hamburger or ground beef is a best buy. Serve with fresh salad for good nutrition.

Here are some unusual ground beef recipes for one-dish meals. Each recipe serves four.

STOVE TOP CASSEROLE
1 cup diced celery
1 clove garlic
2 large onions quartered
1 lb. ground beef
tomato juice (small can)
3 cups cooked rice

Saute celery, finely minced garlic and onions in a large heavy skillet. Add beef, cooking until browned. Drain excess fat. Add small can tomato juice and water to cover. Simmer about 20 min. Add cooked rice. Serve.

MEATBALL STEW
1 lb. ground beef
2/3 cup fine dry bread crumbs
1 egg large can tomato juice
¼ cup minced onion
1 tsp. oregano, basil, salt
½ tsp. pepper
Potatoes, onions, carrots, peas, celery

In a large bowl, combine beef, bread crumbs, eggs, about ¼ cup of tomato juice mixture, spices. Mix very well and shape into uniform meatballs the size your family prefers.

It's Back to the 20s

TORONTO (CP) —Fashions spanning the '20s to 40s era will enjoy a revival across Canada this spring and summer.

Some of the styling ideas may stretch the memory, but a careful look will show that designers have introduced their own updated touches, says buyer Lisa Dalholt of Creeds, the fashionable Toronto retailer.

The pant craze stays, too. Leg flatterers are baggy, straight, or rolled up and come in cotton, crepe and denim.

"It's unbelievable," said Miss Dalholt. "Women with married children are grabbing jeans and jackets."

Ann Apologizes to Parents With Large Families

Dear Ann Landers: I was not only surprised but disappointed when I read your statement that people in this day and age who have extremely large families are "trying to prove something."

What do you consider an "extremely large family"? Ten children? Eight? Six? Since you had only one child, maybe you think two is "extremely large."

And how nice of you to have offered an explanation for those of us who have "extremely large" families. My husband and I appreciated that very much. You see, we didn't know why we had all these kids. Actually, we thought we loved children, but according to you, that wasn't the reason at all.

I feel you owe an apology to the countless readers who look to you for moral support and guidance and good common sense. You let us down badly with that one.—Wichita Parents Who Love Them All

Dear Parents: You are right. My typewriter got ahead of my brain when I pounded out that statement and I am sorry. My apologies to all parents of large families who "love them all."

Dear Ann Landers: What do you think of the following situation? Alice was married to Bob for 16 years. They had three children. Bob became involved with a young girl in his office. He divorced Alice in Mexico and married the girl. That marriage lasted two years. The girl divorced Bob for another man, (Younger.) The following year Bob married another young bird. He died three months later of a heart attack.

Alice now refers to herself as "a widow." I'd like your comment.—Watching From The Sidelines

Dear Watching: I'd say Alice has probably had plenty of heartache in her life and she doesn't need more. If she wants to call herself a widow, I can't see that it's any of my business. Or yours, either. What's your problem, honey?

Dear Ann Landers: I got married at 19, which was a big mistake. Six months later I was divorced and moved back home.

I'm now 23, have a responsible job and consider myself reasonably mature. All through high school and college my mother telephoned friends and relatives looking for me if I was 15 minutes late getting home. It was very embarrassing but there was nothing I could do to stop it. Once she called the Field Museum (I was there with a date) and had me paged. (She wanted to tell me about the storm warnings she had heard on the radio and to be careful.)

Last night I said I'd be home at 11:30. It so happened I met some people and didn't get home until 1:30. She yelled for 30 minutes. I feel that a 23-year-old girl shouldn't need to report to her mother if she decides to change her schedule. If you agree with me please print this letter.—Distressed In Chicago

Dear Chic: A 23-year-old girl should not have to report to her mother. But she should know how to use a telephone. What I am suggesting is that you should have been considerate enough to let your mother know when you changed your plans—especially since she is obviously a worrier from way back. Some young adults (both male and female) want the comforts of mama's home and the freedom of living in a hotel, and it just won't work.

Beatitudes Have Rhythm and Rhyme

• By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I always enjoy reading your good advice which is so well and tactfully expressed.

But what I am writing about is the "Beatitudes for Friends of the Aged" in an April issue. While I was visiting a relative we found this same item was in a United Church bulletin, but with some differences which made it rhyme very nicely.

So with my apologies to "Gladys" I would like to send this version. — A Friend of the Aged.

Dear Friend: I can see what you mean about the rhythm and rhyme which makes this thoughtful bit of philosophy pleasing to the ear. All of the lines are written in such a way as to link up, in rhyme, with the final word of each specific idea.

For instance, Instead of "Blessed are they who look away when my coffee cup shakes and the coffee spills", this version has it that "Blessed are they who looked away when coffee was spilled at table today." The other changes are similar.

If Gladys or any other readers would like to have it we would be glad to make copies, on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 20 cents, sent to me in care of this newspaper.

* * *

Dear Doris: A reader requested a recipe for rose petal beads. I have copied the attached recipe from a fascinating book called "Pioneer Gardens at Black Creek Pioneer Village", by Eunietta Langden.

I hope this information will be useful to the lady who asked for it. Personally I prefer to enjoy roses in the garden — or in a nice glass vase! — M. P.

Dear M. P.: Thank you. This is the second recipe we have received for rose petal beads and she can take her pick.

I like my roses in the garden or in a pretty arrangement in the house, too! But persons with creative hands can find a good deal of self-expression out of various kinds of crafts.

* * *

Dear Doris: We have five children, three girls and a boy. I have sacrificed my life for them, and they have a real good father, too. Going out, for them, is necking in dark corners, or going to bed with their dates.

If I correct them, we are old-fashioned; or they say if they don't do it they won't have friends.

Dear Worried: I think your doctor has the answer for you - if they will go.

Professional social workers whose job is to take an interest in our young people can help your boys and girls to think out what is right for them.

Giving away one's body should not be done thoughtlessly. It involves responsibilities far beyond the thrill - if any - of the moment. But when you are growing up it is hard not to go along with the crowd.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: We will be vacationing in Miami, Fla., and wonder if the Everglades can be explored by car.

ANSWER: The Everglades National Park represents the southernmost point on the U.S. mainland — a vast "river of grass" that affords shelter to an incalculable number of waterfowl, fish and animals — including some that can't be found anywhere else. You can picnic by a brooding lake, in the shade of mahogany trees, or see the story of the Everglades on film.

Go south from Miami on U.S. 1 to Florida City, and turn right on State 27 to the Park Headquarters Building, just beyond the Everglades National Park Entrance. Admission is charged per car or person for a one-day stay. There's ample parking at the entrance to all the trails that lead into the glades and all of them may be traversed on foot in 20 minutes or less.

After passing the entrance, proceed to the turn-off to Royal Palm Area. Here, two miles off the main road to the left, is a visitors' centre with exhibits of Everglades life. Park rangers give nature walks at frequent intervals and naturalists are on duty daily to answer questions. Two trails lead from the visitors' centre here. The Gumbo Limbo Trail is a 1.3 mile surface loop, where you first sense the atmosphere of a tropical hammock (a group of trees in the vast saw-grass region). Ferns and orchids may be seen hanging from the trees. Th Anhinga Trail, a plank walk above the swamp, affords a fine view of the endless varieties of wildlife. Alligators, fish, and clouds of birds are found here. The anhinga, known here as "water turkey" may be seen drying his wings. These birds swim with their bodies underwater. Only their long, snakelike necks and heads protrude above the surface.

Return to the main road and proceed left through the sea of saw-grass to Pineland Trail, traversing a typical sparse forest of Caribbean pine. Plants include the cactus, whose roots form the staple diet of the Seminole Indians in the Everglades.

Continue to Pa-Hay-Okee Overlook turn-off. Here is a trail, which begins at a parking area 1.3 miles from the Main Park Road, forms a wooded loop over the swamp to the observation tower. The tower supplies a far-distant view of the whole Shark River Basin and gives some idea of the vastness of the Everglades. This is the place for sunset photographs.

Continue to Mahogany Hammock turn-off. Go right for 1.7 miles to an elevated boardwalk trail leading to the largest stand of mahogany in the country. Orchids are plentiful in this forest but you're not allowed to pick them.

Continue to West Lake Area. Turn left a few hundred yards to an exhibition building. Mangrove Trail starts here. It was once overhung with mangroves, covered with orchids, forming a tunnel. Hurricane Donna changed all that and now the mangrove forest stands stark and bare.

Continue to the next stop at Flamingo. On the extreme southern tip of the continental United States, this was once a quaint fishing village. It was then one of the most isolated spots in the country. Now it hums with activity. A fine visitors' centre has been built at the edge of Florida Bay. Exhibits are on display and rangers conduct free morning walks and evening lectures.

There are 238 camp-sites—50 designed for trailer use, (Charge for hook-ups.) There are boats of varying lengths and prices (children under 12 at reduced prices) charter fishing craft and U-drive-it skiffs. At the centre, there is a coffee shop, cocktail lounge, and a dining room overlooking the Bay. Groceries and general supplies for campers, yachtsmen and fishermen are available at the marine service centre nearby. A modern motor inn with air-conditioned rooms and air-conditioned family cottages is at Flamingo.

NAME ORIGIN

The name tundra, referring to the flat or rolling, treeless plains in the Arctic regions, is of Lapp origin.

Dispute Grows

The running dispute between Rhodesia and Zambia has been aggravated by the shooting of two Canadian girls, Marjan Dreijer and Christine Sinclair. The trouble really goes back to 1963 when Rhodesia, a self-governing colony within the British Commonwealth, declared itself independend under a white minority government. The situation has been aggravated by Rhodesia's refusal to recognize the 20 to 1 superiority of blacks in Rhodesia. After an attack on a farm in Rhodesia in Dedember, the Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith retaliated by ordering the closing of the Rhodesian - Zambian frontier. The move cut off access across the Rhodesian territory to vital seaports. In February, Smith rescinded the order and the Zambians responded by closing the border on their side.

Pub Names And Brew His Hobby

HUDDERSFIELD, England (CP) — Where other men collect stamps, coins or rare books, Gilbert Lawton collects pub names and, naturally, a drop of the local brew. His especially boosted by an Easter excursion to Shropshire and Wales, has reached 12,415 in 17 years of thirst-quaing research.

He calculates he has drunk at least a half-pint of beer in each of the 12,415. But Lawton, a Yorkshire newspaper man, is no mere elbow-bender. He has worked out all kinds of precise statistics on his hobby and says his busiest year was 1964 when he gathered 1,523 pub names in 113 days, an average of 13.477 pubs on each collecting day.

Memorable names in his collection include the Gravedigger's Arms and the Jolly Taxpayer at Portsmouth, the naval town; the Bumbay Crab in London's East End; the Doctor Syntax in Oldham, Lancashire, and the Help Thyself at Barry.

In Nottingham he encountered two pubs facing each other across a street—one called The Old Dog and Partridge and the other The Original Dog and Partridge.

The curiousest pub name, he says, is the New Inn, followed by the Crown, the Rose and Crown and the Royal Oak.

When Britain still had capital punishment, hangman Albert Pierrepoint used to run a pub in Oldham called Help The Poor Struggler.

Operation Deep-drill

Workman operates part of the equipment used in a scientific project designed to establish the age of the Bermuda Islands. The team from Dalhousie University in Halifax, headed by Dr. Fab Aumento, drilled down to a depth of just over 2,600 feet. Examination of material has led the scientist to determine that the age of Bermuda is some 38-million years. (CP Photo)

Mounties Ride Computer To Hunt Down Criminals

OTTAWA (CP) — A gut feeling by a cop plus a little help from a friendly Ottawa-based data bank can spell instant trouble for a criminal in Canada.

It has happened and presumably it will continue to happen as the RCMP goes electronic.

Since last July the RCMP has been operating the Canadian Police Information Centre—simply put, a data bank of wanted cars and criminals.

The idea is for police forces across the country to have, virtually at their fingertips, information needed to help them at their work. At present there are 80 "terminals" between here and Vancouver where police can plug into the central computer network.

The system is being extended into the Maritimes in May and by 1974 there will be some 800 of these terminals across the country.

Take the case of an Ontario Provincial Police man who saw a car with a California licence plate parked in a motel last November.

He called his office on his car radio. The office put the licence number into the data system. The data centre passed it on to the FBI.

The FBI said the car was stolen and the driver probably was wanted for murder in California. An arrest was made.

Or take the gut feeling of an RCMP constable in British Columbia who saw a car driving past with five persons.

Checks were made through the system and it turned out that the car and all five persons were wanted by police.

The centre is part of a broad information system available from the centennial-celebrating RCMP on a national basis. The information covers criminal records, records of arrests, fingerprints and scientific services.

The services are available to police forces and are part of the overall national responsibility of the RCMP. Other areas of national concern of the police force are narcotics, fraud and national security.

These concerns are above the contracted-for provincial and sometimes municipal police work in all provinces but Ontario and Quebec.

The RCMP, or its predecessor as a national police force, the Dominion Police, has been in the information business since 1911. Some years earlier a Dominion Police inspector got chatting with a Scotland Yard official when both were attending a fair at St. Louis, Mo.

The Canadian became impressed with what he heard from the Scotland Yard man at the relatively new idea of using fingerprints for identification.

By 1911 the Dominion Police had persuaded police in Canada to use the system and had established a central fingerprint bureau with the prints of sundry penitentiary prisoners as a starter.

Since that time the centre has expanded until now there are about one million prints and some three million names on file here.

Several hundred sets of prints arrive daily for checks and filing from police forces across the country, says Chief Superintendent William Harrison, in charge of the section.

With some of the 115 persons under him working manually—electronics hasn't yet found a way to compare fingerprints—the owner of a fingerprint can be identified in as short a time as an hour.

Conversely a name, even if it is an alias, may result in fingerprints being forwarded, by wirephoto if somebody is in a hurry.

Meanwhile, more information is pouring out of the RCMP laboratories spread across the country.

Forensic scientists, half of them graduates from RCMP ranks, can turn such sophisticated gadgetry as the "atomic absorption equipment" loose on tests of about 80 categories for substances. These range from bullets to fabrics to blood to plant and botanical examination.

Last year the scientists did 12,562 tests and appeared in court 2,261 times to testify about the results.

But if information can be glamorous, the glamor boy of the whole group has to be civilian George Thompson, 44, director of the centre.

At the drop of a reporter's question, Mr. Thompson will go to a test terminal and seek information on licence plate number 745 432 or a man whose name he doesn't want disclosed for fear of embarrassment to an innocent person.

In seconds the computer feeds back information on a stolen car or a fraud artist with a couple of aliases.

At present the centre provides only—information on wanted criminals and stolen cars. But Mr. Thompson says the day is coming when there will be pan-Canadian information on criminal records, stolen securities and perhaps such things as firearms registration.

He says the fact that the information is electronically available need not concern citizens afraid of Big Brother.

"All we've done is speeded up the system," he said. "It is just another tool for the policeman."

Under present legislation, it is possible to erase information in some cases.

If after five years a former criminal has a clean record, he can apply to the parole board to have his slate wiped clean.

Then his criminal and arrest record is sealed in RCMP files, available for opening only on the order of the solicitor-general.

ANAF News

By HOWARD KOKESH

Two new trophies adorn the decor of the Duke of Edinburgh Unit 201 ANAF clubroom as a result of the Unit Pipe Band's entry in the Brockville Closed Competition held recently in Kingston.

Pipe Major Dougal McCamley led the band to first place in the Mini-Maxi Band, quartet, trio and duet competitions, while the bass and tenors placed second.

Pipe Sgt. Fred Carmichael placed first in the individual novice march with Donald Anderson placing second. Patrick Burke placed third in the juvenile march competition.

The band did an excellent job sweeping most of the events and congratulations must go to Patrick Burke and Martha Schultz, new members of the band who put forth a great effort in their categories.

The pipe band will visit Alexandria Bay, New York on Saturday May 26 for the annual International Goodwill Day and hope to bring home further honors, not only to Unit 201, but also to the city of Belleville.

The first of many planned golf events for the members of Duke of Edinburgh Unit ANAF will take place on Sunday May 27 with the men's initial invitational tournament to be held at Barcovan Golf Club, tee-off time 7:30 to 8 a.m.

The sports committee has three dates confirmed for the Ladies' Cinderella Golf Tournament to be played on the par 3 course at Barcovan Golf Club, tee-off time 10 a.m. The dates are June 3, July 8 and August 12 and the ladies are asked to make note of them.

Entertainment this Saturday night in the Tartan Lounge features the music of Anita and Co., dancing from 9 to 1 with admission $2 per couple.

Sick comrades in Belleville General Hospital are: J. R. Boyle, room 701; Sandy Blackburn, room 630 and Roy Foran room 606.

Sam's Sermon: Mothers-in-law are like seeds — you don't need 'em, but they come with the tomato.

French District Honors Colonist

AUTHEUIL, France (CP) — In 1633, the year of the death of Samuel de Champlain, there were 132 French colonists in New France, about 50 of whom had emigrated from Perche, a region 75 miles west of the Parisian basin.

Today there are 6,000 Canadian families who trace their origins to this hilly and forested region.

Robert Giffard, the navy doctor who was largely responsible for early emigration to Canada from Perche was commemorated at a gathering held here recently by the Perche-Canada Association.

Jean-Louis Gagnon, Canada's ambassador to UNESCO in Paris whose ancestors come from the area, led the gathering: "This country is so picturesque I have difficulty understanding why my ancestors left it."

Giffard first saw New France in 1620 when, as a 31-year-old doctor and apothecary, he joined the French navy as a surgeon on a ship sailing to the New World.

He stayed for six years and built a small house near the Beaiport River a few miles from Quebec.

He returned to his native Perche to practise medicine and in 1628 married Marie Regnouard. A few months later the couple set out for New France but the ship was captured by the English and they returned to France.

Six years later, Giffard's dream came true when he returned to New France, taking with him a group of Percherons to work toward colonization of the New World.

La Compagnie de la Nouvelle-France, which was engaged in the fur trade, granted him a seigniory near the Beauport River where he had built his house 14 years earlier.

Giffard and some of his colleagues returned several times to Perche to persuade their fellow Frenchmen to follow them to New France. Some of the families he brought to Canada were named Chastier, Guyon (now called Dion), Guimont, Mercier, Tremblay, Chauvin, Rivard, Gagnon, Crete, Trudel, Giroux and Vachon.

Giffard died in 1663 after spending more than half his life in New France working among the colonists from Perche and others, including the Hurons.

Holy Moscow Changed Since Napoleon's Day

MOSCOW (AP) — "That Asiatic city of innumerable churches, Holy Moscow!"

According to Tolstoy's War and Peace, Napoleon uttered these words as he stood before Moscow and directed his army's invasion in September, 1812.

But there are still some splendid remnants of this Communist city's former ecclesiastical glory to excite an architecture enthusiast or student of history.

As the seat of the Russian Orthodox faith, Moscow was known in Napoleon's time as the new Jerusalem. And on the eve of the Bolshevik revolution in 1917 there were 657 churches. Today, according to the Moscow patriarchate, only 67 orthodox churches still have services.

Many churches, some of them priceless monuments of Russian architecture, were destroyed in orgies of atheism under Joseph Stalin and Nikita Khrushchev.

Others were turned into museums, aquariums, movie theaters, clubs, furniture factories, laboratories, offices or apartments. And still others dotting the landscape are abandoned.

The green of Moscow's surviving churches is the 16th-century cornucopia of multicolored domes and spires, crosses and arches called St. Basil's Cathedral. The cathedral, now a museum, has become for foreigners a symbol of Moscow.

Tsar Ivan the Terrible ordered construction of St. Basil's in 1554 to commemorate his conquest of Kazan, the citadel of Tartar invaders who kept Russia in servitude for three centuries. The church was consecrated in 1557, but not really completed until 1679.

A Soviet newspaper, Komsomolskaya Pravda, revealed in 1965 that St. Basil's was marked for demolition during the Stalin era. Journalist V. Peskov quoted a prominent Soviet expert in restoring antiquities, Igor Baranovsky, as saying he threatened to kill himself if the scheme was carried out. Baranovsky was arrested for opposing the demolition but was later released. He said wiser heads eventually prevailed in the Kremlin.

Christ the Saviour "was the tallest and most majestic building in Moscow, visible from any part of the city," recalled writer Vladimir Soloukhin, who, in an essay published last summer, made an appeal to save Russia's architectural treasures.

"It was not an ancient building," Soloukhin wrote of Christ the Saviour's destruction. "But it composed, along with the Kremlin, an architectural focus for our capital.

"A swimming pool was constructed in its place. I think there must be 50 such swimming pools in Budapest alone. And not a single architectural monument was destroyed there."

Soloukhin's essay was one manifestation of nostalgia which gripped many Russians starting about the middle 1960s. Another was the restoration of many crumbling churches and monasteries as Russians sought to recover a cultural heritage.

There was also an element of pragmatism in the decision to restore Russia's neglected treasures. The stately old churches attract Western tourists who bring dollars, marks and yen to spend in a country badly in need of convertible currency.

...And many Russians, though they may be atheists, derive from the churches a sense of continuity and the pride of unique artistic achievement.

Almost all the well-preserved churches are museums or in some sort and signs say: "This building is preserved by the state as an architectural monument."

The guides show off the frescos or religious scenes which cover the walls and ceilings. But they seldom give credit to the Christian faith which inspired the work.

Nevertheless, many Russians who visit these once-sacred precincts make no effort to hide their respect for the churches and the Orthodox faith.

One chilly autumn afternoon, two elderly women in woollen shawls paused silently in the Kremlin's opulent Archangel Cathedral and crossed themselves.

"This is a museum," a young woman guide was telling a group of foreign visitors at the same moment. "Only a few old people from another generation come here for religious purposes."

Throughway Rings Paris

PARIS (Reuter) — After 17 years of upkeep, Paris has finally been surrounded by 22 miles of express ring road designed to ease the city's chronic traffic problems.

The last few miles of fourlane dual carriageway have been laid, the last complicated junction has been built and Parisian motorists now can drive right around the edge of their capital without seeing a red light.

First mooted in 1950, the initial section of the Boulevard Peripherique or ring road was opened to traffic in 1960 to link up with the new Southern Motorway, now part of a continuous motorway link between Holland, West Germany, Belgium and the south of France.

But even before the $450 million highway was finished, city officials admitted it was not enough to solve the traffic congestion.

Theoretically, a motorist keeping to the 50-mile-an-hour limit could cover the 22-mile circle in under 30 minutes.

In fact, every Parisian motorist knows that he would have to reckon on at least four times that to do the complete circle, except at night when the ring road comes into its own as a fast way to get from one side of Paris to the other.

The main problem is that the very first section in the south, built with only three lanes in each direction, is a continual bottleneck.

But other major junctions like the Porte de la Chapelle, which leads to the Northern Motorway, take their share of the blame. The slightest incident, and a long line of cars and heavy trucks builds up. The record was set earlier this year when part of the road cracked and the jam stretched half-way around Paris.

Now officials are thinking in terms of a new Super Peripherique. One proposal already under study is to build a monster overpass directly above the southern section, adding another four fast lanes.

This could be built in 18 months without interrupting the present flow of traffic, planners say. But it would be built by private capital and Parisians would have to pay a toll to use it.

On the present roadway there are 83 junctions, some of them so complicated a driver almost needs a separate map to find his way around them.

Bridges make up a total of four miles and nine miles go through tunnels.

The motorway also passes underneath a hole in the Bois de Boulogne where planners have worked miracles to avoid axing a thriving forest wooded area in Paris.

It was impossible to build such a road without some damage to the surroundings and almost 6,000 trees had to be ripped up. But nearly 16,000 have been planted in their place along with 128,000 shrubs.

It can already be a nerve-wracking experience to drive on the ring road, particularly for the foreigner.

Driving nose to tail at 50 mph is a common experience, and the result is an endless

Quebec Unknown In Paris

PARIS (CP) — There is a "lack of information about Quebec" in Paris and the French government should do something to fill this lack, says the France-Quebec Association.

A working group made up of representatives of the association and the Quebec education department recently recommended that the French and Quebec governments combine to set up university-level information and documentations centres in Paris and Quebec City or Montreal.

It appears fundamental to us that the people who are interested in Quebec find a university-level documentation centre," said Robert Cornevin, chairman of the association's cultural committee.

Cornevin said the first such centre should be set up in Paris.

At present the only such reference area is at the Canadian embassy, he said, adding that the embassy's reference facility is excellent but is not sufficient.

He thinks such centres are indispensable to the development of relations between France and Quebec and "should be in the secretary priorities of the French and Quebec governments."

The proposed centre, including meeting rooms and study halls, should be located in the university quarter of Paris and be staffed with personnel capable of giving expert advice and information, the association recommended.

Students at 65

Political science teacher Andrew Quarry talks with some of his students, all at least 65-years-old. The University of Manitoba decided to offer courses to older people in consultation with the Age and Opportunity Centre and the Manitoba department of health and welfare. Prof. Quarry says he is surprised to find the value system of a 70-year-old is just as flexible as that of an 18-year-old. (CP Photo)

Classical Music Seen Cure for Drug-taker

VICTORIA (CP) — Music is supposed to sooth the savage breast, but what effect would it have on a savage ravaged by the effects of drugs?

Laszlo Gati, Victoria Symphony conductor, thinks it would soothe him too. He advocates a heavier diet of classical music to maintain a young person's emotional balance and keep him away from the drug scene.

"Millions of dollars are being made out of destructive music or 300 years from now when and peanuts are provided for they try to analyze why the rest music that is constructive, that of civilization has demised, the would help maintain the emo- reason will not be the atomtional balance of our children in bomb but the kind of music we this difficult world," he com- have been exposed to," said the plained.

Mr. Gati not only saw a link between the drug scene and the rock scene, he also saw a link between society's listening habits and its ability to survive.

He noted how the music of the Internationale was the effective force in the Russian revolution and how the Marseillaise helped rally the troops during the French Revolution.

In the Western world, he charged, music has been taken over by people who are shrewd manipulators, using music to appeal to the emotions in advertisements and for other commercial purposes.

"I am really worried, that one conductor.

Argentine Dilemma

Delivering Ransom Often Difficult

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — In Argentina a card in a dozen roses may be from guerrilla kidnappers instead of an admirer. More than 200 persons are estimated to have been abducted here since 1968.

The kidnappers frequently get a high return. Last month, two United States companies and a British firm paid a total of $4.2 million in ransom to free kidnapped executives.

On Saturday, April 7, two Eastman Kodak Co. employees spent hours lugging heavy suitcases through Buenos Aires. Riding subways and buses from one section of the city to another, they looked like travelers in search of a hotel.

But their three suitcases contained $1½ million in pesos and dollar bills—ransom money for Antony Da Cruz, a 43-year-old Kodak executive kidnapped by Marxist guerrillas.

The employees followed directions on notes left in plazas, public bathrooms and restaurants. Each note directed them to the next, and the sixth led them to a little-traveled street.

Suddenly, a voice behind them gave a previously agreed-upon password, and then said: "Don't turn around. Put the suitcases down on the sidewalk. Keep walking. Turn left at the corner and never come back."

A few hours later, Da Cruz, kidnapped six days previously, was pushed from a car to freedom in a Buenos Aires suburb near Kodak's Argentine factory.

His captors were members of the Liberation Armed Forces. They said Da Cruz the ransom would finance their fight against Argentina's "reactionary" armed forces. The military has ruled here seven years, but an elected civilian government will take office May 25.

Da Cruz was the first American citizen seized, but three kidnaps involved U.S. companies.

Th efirst hit was Standard Electric Argentina, owned by International Telephone and Telegraph (ITT). Guerrillas grabbed Italian executive Vincente Russo last December, and ITT paid a $1 million ransom.

The First National Bank of Boston paid the same amount to free an Argentine branch manager, Gerardo Scalmanzi.

Da Cruz's $1½ million dollar ransom was a record at the time. But it fell the following week to a British firm, the Bunzes Tobacco Co., owned by the British American Tobacco Co.

The Trotskyite People's Revolutionary Army seized Francis Brimcombre, 37, president of Noblesa, on April 8 and released him a week later for $1.7 million.

Guerrillas started the kidnap trend and still specialize in the foreign companies, which pay the highest ransoms. But common criminals are crowding in and recent victims included wives and children of wealthy Argentines. Police report an average of three kidnappings weekly. Off-duty policemen were caught in one case.

Rival gangs frequently try to intercept the ransom. This happened to ITT executives as they completed negotiations to free Russo. A telephone caller said Russo would be killed if $250,000 wasn't put aboard a train leaving in an hour for another city.

But the caller said he had forgotten the password and ITT took a chance he was a fake. The real kidnappers called several hours later. Abductors generally identify themselves by sending a victim's driver's licence and other personal items with notes which give ransom instructions and set passwords for phone calls.

"It's just like in Hollywood," a foreign executive said. "A dozen roses arrived from a florist and the card turned out to be a note from guerrillas. Later, a drugstore delivery boy came to the office with what looked like a prescription sealed in an envelope. But it was more instructions from the kidnappers."

College - trained professionals and young people from wealthy families have joined Argentina's half-dozen leftist guerrilla groups.

"They are tough and efficient," said a U.S. businessman. "There is no negotiating the ransom amount. But a working relationship, almost of mutual respect, develops. We had the common problem of preventing others from intercepting the ransom and we had to work out the details of delivering the money without police interference."

The police tap company telephones, but otherwise don't interfere. No one forgets that one year ago an Italian industrialist, Oberdan Sallustro, was killed by his guerrilla kidnappers when police closed in on their hangout.

The maximum punishment for kidnapping is life imprisonment. The death penalty was abolished earlier this year.

Pakistan Took 25 Years To Draft Constitution

TEHRAN (CP) — Pakistanis celebrated for a whole week following the adoption of a constitution by the national assembly April 10. They had reason to rejoice. It took the country more than 25 years to draw up a constitution in a democratic manner, and in the interim the nation saw two military dictatorships and the loss of its largest province, East Pakistan (now Bangladesh), over a constitutional issue—provincial autonomy.

Until the day before parliament passed the bill, an air of crisis hung over the assembly, on some fundamental points. For about two weeks it looked as though the representatives of an entire province, Baluchistan—all in the opposition —would stay out of the assembly with other dissenters while the constitution was being adopted. This gave rise to fears of a Bangladesh-like revolt intensifying in the province, already simmering with tribal unrest.

After several rounds of hard bargaining, however, President Zulfiqar Ali Bhutto managed to win the entire opposition over, coaxing them back into the assembly en bloc. But to do so he had to concede to them almost all the points over which their parliamentary boycott had begun 16 days before. The points of dissent, the opposition insisted, were essential to ensure that the constitution passed was democratic, federal and Islamic—in a country where the predominant religion is Islam.

Bhutto had hoped that the constitution would be passed by a unanimous vote. He almost got it. Ironically, of the three assembly members who abstained, two were rebels from his own Pakistan People's Party, including former law minister Mahmud Ali Kasuri.

Kasuri quit the government late last year when Bhutto and his party were still drafting the constitution. He strongly objected to a provision that the prime minister, who was to be the chief executive (rather than the president), might be toppled in parliament only by a two-thirds majority of votes. Kasuri insisted on a simple majority.

As it turned out, this also became the chief sticking point with eight opposition parties in the assembly when the constitution bill was being piloted through the house by Bhutto's new law minister, Abdul Hafeez Pirzada.

Debate on this point became acrimonious, and the eight parties got together to form a United Democratic Front, headed by Ali Mardan Shah, the Pir of Pagaro and descendant of a Sindhi desert guerrilla executed by the British during the Second World War. The front strongly suggested they would take their politics into the streets if Bhutto buldozed the constitution, as it stood, through the assembly.

He might well have done so. In a house of 146 members, Bhutto's PPP predominates with 86. Coalition allies from the Qaiyum Muslim League and other members would have given him more than a two-thirds majority of the votes. The opposition's strength was only 31.

But the Pakistani president, shrewdly enough, wished to avoid leaving the constitution controversial even after it was passed.

During the period of bargaining with the opposition, Bhutto at first pleaded that the two-thirds vote for ousting the premier had been drafted into the constitution in the interest of stability. This was an allusion to the period between 1951 and 1958, when Pakistan had six premiers in a period of seven years. This era of confusion had followed the assassination of the first premier, Liaquat Ali Khan. His successors were unable to hold their majorities in the house after the party which Liaquat had led, the Muslim League, began to split up following his death.

Bhutto first asked that the two-thirds majority provision should be in force for 15 years. When opposition to this hardened, he asked for 10 years. The opposition was adamant. If the premier was to be elected by a simple majority in parliament, as provided for in the constitution, he should also be ousted by a simple majority if he lost the confidence of the house. The opposition complained that the provision Bhutto sought would make the prime minister a dictator.

In a final last-ditch bid at compromise, Bhutto dropped the two-thirds majority provision and asked instead that a no-confidence motion would not be brought against the premier for 10 years after the constitution came into force.

Since he had given in to all their other demands, the opposition allowed him this

ART FLICK'S MASTER FLY - TYING GUIDE — Art Flick

Fly fishing is fast becoming a popular sport everywhere. This is a book for the beginner — and for the expert; the freshwater and salt-water fisherman; the salmon fisherman and many others. The contributions by various tyers are short, readable, well illustrated and are a guide to several different proven methods of fly-tying.

THE BLUE DANUBE — Tudor Edwards

The central theme of this book is Vienna during the long reign of Franz Josef and its aftermath. Franz Josef was a tragic figure on a classical scale. His brother, Archduke Maximilian, was executed; his only son died by suicide; his Empress was slain by an assassin's knife' and his nephew and next heir was murdered at Sarajevo. This was a period of political instability, and the story of Vienna from the 1848 revolution is very much the history of central Europe.

The book contains 600 brand new recipes and day-by-day menu plans, with full details of approved cooking methods.

SPEAK TO ME, DANCE WITH ME — Agnes de Mille

Speak to Me, Dance with Me is the very moving story of Agnes de Mille's efforts to break into the ballet and theatrical worlds of London. At the Mercury theatre, nearly penniless, she worked and studied and performed with young dancers and choreographers who would become world famous — Hugh Laing, Antony Tudor and Frederick Aston. In her book Miss de Mille conveys the essence of the driving need to dance. It is also rather a sad love story.

Plan Industrial Development

China Now Buying on Cuff

China's accelerated economic drive may have profound impact on her foreign relations. Self-sufficiency is giving way to buying on the cuff. And that means a bigger Chinese market for Canadian and other exporters.

By CARL MOLLINS

PEKING (CP) — China is moving quietly but swiftly into a program of imported industrial development that reverses long-standing policies of economic self-reliance and debt-free trade.

The program of importing on credit entire factory systems from non-Communist countries may lend to dictate the pattern of China's foreign relations and internal politics for years to come.

Within a few months, Chinese authorities completed a series of deals to purchase complete factory systems to produce such materials as synthetic textiles, chemical fertilizers, highly refined fuels and petroleum feedstocks. The purchases, mainly from Japan, include unprecedented payment arrangements, with credit terms of five years.

Hitherto, especially since the Chinese felt weakened by depending on imported Russian technology in the 1950s, Peking's policy stressed do-it-yourself industrial development and cash terms in trade.

To help feed the new petrochemical plants, Chinese authorities are also engaged in talks about importing equipment and technology to speed development of petroleum resources, notably in the north-east and offshore near Tientsin in the Po Hai Gulf.

Canadian petroleum-industry interests, who completed a two-week, high-level visit to China earlier this month, expect orders for oil extraction and transport equipment.

The program is clearly an effort to make a quick leap in expansion of home production and eventually reduce dependence on imported foods and the necessity of cloth rationing.

When petrochemical plants are fully operational five or six years from now, synthetic textiles will be available both to augment and perhaps replace natural sources and imports. Simultaneously some cotton lands will be freed for food production.

In another direction, the new plants will produce fuels for an expanding air-transport system and for a greater use of farm machinery.

The cost of plant purchases already negotiated and others expected soon has prompted Chinese commercial authorities to relax the past policy of paying cash on the barrelhead for imports. Western authorities would not be surprised if repayment plans stretching beyond five years are arranged in future purchases.

The venture into longer-term credit arrangements will lead to reinforce China's recent drive on the diplomatic front to develop smooth relations with foreign governments of all ideological persuasions.

Just as important, it suggests that China will be intent on maintaining a placid political atmosphere at home. That means avoiding economically disruptive developments such as the 1966-69 cultural revolution, which stalled productive advance.

Western Premiers

The West has been complaining since 1884 of living under the economic colonialism of Eastern Canada. The West's primary weapon for change is a new type of unity for Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia. The western premiers met in April and are scheduled to meet again in July. Premiers are from left: Ed Schreyer, Manitoba; Dave Barrett, British Columbia; Peter Lougheed, Alberta; and Alan Blakeney, Saskatchewan. (CP Photo)

Drugged Drivers Menace

OTTAWA (CP) — Drugged drivers are an increasing menace on the roads, says Dr. Arthur Peart, head of the Traffic Injury Research Foundation.

But prescribed and sheir drugs, not illicit ones, are the greatest problem, he said in an interview.

"Most of the drugs that are being abused (by drivers) are prescribed drugs—the usual mood-changing drugs like barbiturates (sleeping pills) and tranquillizers of different kinds, antihistamines (cold tablets) and that kind of thing."

For the most part, he said, drugs are taken by people who want to calm their nerves or keep themselves pepped up.

Relatively few street drugs are used by persons involved in traffic accidents, Dr. Peart said.

"Street drugs such as marijuana, cannabis or other illicit drugs are a small problem in relation to drugs such as barbiturates and tranquillizers."

Long-service Officers Recognized

Former Hastings county court Judge J. C. Anderson last night presented Staff Sergeant Gordon Steenburg of the Trenton Police Force with a 25-year service bar. Judge Anderson was honored for his more than 25 years' service on the Trenton board of police commissioners. Other officers whose service was recognized last night were Chief David Saunders, 20½ accumulative years of police service, Sergeant Jack Graham, 21 years of service and Sergeant Russell King, 21½ years.

Dinner Honors Judge Anderson

TRENTON — Former Hastings County court Judge J. C. Anderson was sworn into office in 1947 by Picton Judge Wilfrid S. Lane.

Not only did these two distinguished members of the bench serve in courts in the same region, and graduate from the same law college, they have another common bond that last night drew them together at special ceremonies at the Redwood Motel here.

Members of the Trenton Police Department joined the Trenton Board of Police Commissioners in a testimonial and ceremony of today' Judge Anderson, who resigned his bench last year to become provincial government civil service arbitrator. Judge Lane has appointed his successor to the board.

That brief swearing in ceremony while it was sitting in Harrison County in 1947 is vastly different from the pomp and ceremony of today," Judge Lane recalled.

"It's interesting to look back on the contributions Judge Anderson has made to the area, the County of Hastings, but in fact, the whole district," he said. The district Judge Anderson served stretched west to east from York to Leeds county and north to Peterborough and Lindsay.

Judge Lane paid particular tribute to his colleague's success in arbitration matters; "He has had more settlements than we had," he said.

"It was his effective work in labor negotiation that led the provincial government to request he retire and take over work as arbitrator for the civil service.

"The court lost a very important member of the bench" the Picton judge said, "but the government has gained a very able arbitrator."

Judge Anderson was presented with a plaque-clock on behalf of the Trenton Police Association by vice - president Constable Wally Hopkins, with an engraved silver tray by H. J. Campbell, president of the police commission and town crest cufflinks from May or Duncan McDonald. Mrs. Campbell presented Mrs. Anderson with a bouquet of roses as a memento of the "hours spent waiting for the Judge to return from duty . . . much like a policeman's wife."

A 25-year service bar was awarded Staff Sergeant Gordon J. Steenburg, and 20-year medals to Sergeants Russell A. King and John A. Graham and to Chief Saunders for accumulative police work in the province. These medals are presented by the town as approved by the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police.

Also awarded were special training course certificates. Constables Wayne Dobson, Lynn Begbie, Harry Barry and Robert Galloway received recruit training certificates; Constables George French and David Camp, general police training "A" course certificates; Constable Wally Hopditch the identification training course certificate and Sergeants Herb Chatson and John Graham supervision course certificates.

The testimonial dinner was originally scheduled for early February but was postponed Last night, several letters of regret were read from invited dignitaries who were unable to attend.

One special guest was attended was former Trenton police Chief Jack Taylor, now serving with the Ontario Police Commission.

Paddy Wagon Cost Higher

"The increasing costs of using the County Detention Centre in Napanee were briefly questioned during Tuesday's budget approval session.

An increased allocation of $42,458 was approved for the service, $10,000 more than in 1973.

Belleville City Treasurer Frank Morrell explained the main source of the cost was renting "the paddy wagon."

"We always figured it would be cheaper to have it in Napanee," he said. "Perhaps we're saving by not having to keep it in Belleville."

"All in all we lose about $5.7 daily" said Mr. Morrell. He explained that most of the $42,458, perhaps $40,000 would be retrieved from two sources: a grant from the province of about $29,000 and a similar amount from Trenton and other municipalities using the vehicle and its staff.

Council Okays Added Housing

The Ontario Housing Corporation has recommended an additional 80 senior citizen units and 150 family housing units for Belleville for rent-geared-to-income occupation.

"This, when it's done, should take care of all the applications that have backed up over the past few years," said Mayor Robin Jeffrey. "I assume this would be on Bridge St. East."

A letter from Kathy Kinnear, research analyst, surveys, for OHC, said development could go ahead as soon as the OHC received a resolution from the Belleville City Council favoring the move.

The resolution, as passed by council, requests the additional rental housing for 80 senior citizens units and 150 families. The family units would be built over a two-year period — 100 the first year and 50 the next.

The first 100 units should have the following bedroom breakdown: 55 two-bedroom units, 25 three-bedroom units, 15 four-bedroom units and five five-bedroom units," said the resolution.

The City of Belleville is liable for seven per cent of any annual operation deficit.

Communication To Be Studied

Canadian Motorola Electronics will have the co-operation of City Manager J. R. Reynolds in their survey of Belleville's City Hall communications systems.

The company has asked to appear before council to discuss the possible use here of a communications control centre. "Motorola has supplied many municipalities in cities the size of Belleville," says a letter from account executive N. J. McInerney.

"A possible form of control centre could include dispatching for works, engineering, PUC, dial-a-bus system, parks and recreation and other municipal services," he said. Council Tuesday asked Mr. Reynolds to co-operate with Mr. McInerney.

Subsidy Coming

Belleville City Council Tuesday received a letter from Gordon Carton, Ontario Minister of Transportation and Communications, confirming advance payment of a $105,000 subsidy to the city.

"The amount is 30 per cent of your normal subsidy allocation rounded to the nearest $50," he said. "A cheque in this amount will be mailed to the Treasurer of your Municipality in due course."

Downtowners Ask Help with Lights

Because it was felt it does not directly put "monies into the downtown businessmen's pocket" the Belleville Downtown Association Tuesday asked City Council to accept responsibility for co-operating in a five-year program of strategic Christmas lights on Front St.

A letter from Al Trotter, association president, said it was unanimously agreed at the last meeting of the association that the downtown area had a "very great need" for Christmas lights.

"It is generally felt by our association the city should at this time, in co-operation with the downtown association, enter into a five - year program that would provide adequate Christmas lighting that would prevent our main street properly to the general public," said the letter.

Mr. Trotter added association funds were very limited, and, as the downtown businessmen would not see profit as a result of the lighting, the city should allot "proper funds to carry out such a project."

Alderman Roger Porter told council the sum involved was about $500. His bid to include the allocation in the 1973 budget received failed to find a seconder and it was later decided to submit the association approach the Belleville Utilities with their request.

Former Commissioner Commends Policemen

TRENTON — Police duties and careers have greatly changed over the last 25 years, former Hastings County Judge J. C. Anderson said at a testimonial banquet held in his honor here last night.

"When you look at the police of 1947 and compare them with those of today you'd hardly recognize them as being in the same profession," he said.

"You see things on the TV these days like the Watergate case . . . you read the papers . . . and one knows the problems of police officers are quite different."

Judge Anderson said one of the worst problems facing the men in blue today is the lack of respect shown for law and order "you took for granted years ago."

"Sometimes the police become quite discouraged by the laws they have to enforce," he said. "But don't lose your faith. It's a common nature."

He told the large number of Trenton policemen and their wives, gathered in honor of his 25 years' service to the board of police commissioners, in one of his last public response "go beyond the call of duty" is an at-

Budget Passes Council
City Taxes Reduced For All Categories

Higher than expected revenues in 1972, the fact that few departments used all their allocations and an over-all surplus in the City of Belleville budget for year of $391,- 918 mean a reduction in taxes in 1973.

With last night's approval of the 1973 budget by council, a drop of three dollars in taxes on every thousand dollars assessed against homeowners became official. The rate has been dropped from $48.10 to $45.10. The general rate was dropped six dollars but increases in public and high school rates that pushed a $2.40 drop in the general rate up to a $2.10 over-all decrease.

With the same change in the general rate, separate school rates dropped from $37.50 to $32.40 for commercial assessment and from $52.10 to $46.30 on residential assessments.

This year's budget anticipates general-tax revenues of $3,534,092. Other income, including more than $1.3 million in grants and subsidies, $2.6 million in taxation from school boards and last year's surplus gives the city a total of $10,375,675 in revenue for the year.

A total of $972,866 is added to the city's revenue by new provincial grants: a resource equalization grant of $775,816 and a general support grant of $197,256. The two grants accounted for the near million-dollar increase in income from the province.

An increase in city land sales of nearly $60,000 is budgeted over last year's actual budget which at $29,630 itself doubled the 1972 projection.

Largest allocations for 1973 are, as in the past, in the areas of education and police protection. The education allocation in 1973 is $2,505,590, over $200,000 more than last year's allocation.

At the same time, nearly $20,- 000 was added to low rental and senior citizens' housing, ped from allocations to Hastings Manor because of subsidization now by the Ontario Health Insurance Plan. A further $5,000 was trimmed from family and children's services.

The $2,600 contingency fund, the Belleville City Police Department is budgeted to $1,197,111 expenditures this year, nearly $180,000 more than in 1972.

Public Works allocations were $1,664,578 and sanitation and waste removal $1,058,240. The Belleville Fire Department allocation jumped more than $80,000 to $783,656.

The only area showing a cutback in 1973 was in the field of social and welfare services. Nearly $20,000 was dropped from allocations to Hastings Manor because of subsidization now by the Ontario Health Insurance Plan. A further $5,000 was trimmed from family and children's services.

At the same time, nearly $20,- 000 was added to low rental and senior citizens' housing.

Ontario Housing Corporation, allocations.

Priorities were little changed since the previous year, but money from provincial sources together with last year's surpluses gave many departments and agencies significant advantages.

Roadwork Bypassed

There will be no major road construction in 1973, according to the budget approved by Belleville City Council Tuesday.

In response to a question from Alderman Arnold Tye, Mayor Robin Jeffrey added the $272,815 Public Works Department allocation "had a maintenance allocation."

"There is no plan to start reconstruction of our side streets," he said. "This work has in the past been done under debentured local improvements.

"It is possible to put perhaps $100,000 into next year," she said. "The only way to do it now would be under the general rate and the taxpayers would cover it all, and we've never done it that way."

Students, Teachers Only Blood Donors

Teachers and students at the school gave 118 pints, with 30 per cent of the eligible students and 35 per cent of the eligible teachers contributing.

The Marmora and District Lions Club offered free transportation to anyone wishing to travel to Madoc to the clinic, but received no calls.

Queen Will Slow Down

A letter from the Royal Visit Co-ordinator, P. E. Campbell Bradley Belleville City Council hopes Tuesday that the Royal train would make a brief stop in Belleville.

The letter said it was impossible to schedule a stop in Belleville.

"I do understand though that the train will slow down and the Queen will be on the back platform of the train," said Mayor Robin Jeffrey.

Tree Planting Budget Doubled

A $3,000 allocation for tree planting was approved before the Belleville City Council gave approval to the 1973 budget Tuesday.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey said she would like to see the original allotment doubled as there had been very little done to replace trees "on some of the older city streets. She referred specifically to Bridge St. East.

"Some of those old maples are 90 and 100 years old," she said. "I'm recommending we double that allocation to start a tree-planting program — replacing the older trees where they are starting to be cut down."

Alderman John Stock commented, "It's ridiculous to be paying twice as much for tree removal than tree planting."

Allocation for tree removal in 1973 is $7,500. Another $8,000 has been set aside for tree trimming.

Three Awards Go To Moira Student

Entered in the engineering category, Dodge's multi-plexing of communication changes over a laser earned him the following: Youth Science Foundation of Canada award for being first in his division, $75; Bell Northern Electric award for scientific excellence, $500 plus plaque and two-day trip to Northern research laboratory in Ottawa; Engineering Institute of Canada award worth $50, plus plaque.

Ross Alexander of Trenton, who with Robb Berland of Marmora were other winners from this area at Thunder Bay, won an honorable mention from the Youth Science Foundation of Canada.

Man Jailed

Alan Aubrey Brooks, 26, who had received suspended sentences for such offences as car theft and false pretences, was out of gaol Tuesday as Judge J. L. Clendenning sentenced him to 13 months in prison for two counts of theft and one of failing to appear in court.

Mr. Brooks, of RR2 Ameliasburgh, had earlier pleaded guilty to the theft charges. He was found guilty Thursday of failing to appear April 16 by the Provincial Court Judge.

Father of one, Mr. Brooks admitted stealing from two cars last Dec. 31. From one, he took the battery and from the other he raided a tape deck, 17 tapes, two speakers, a pair of gloves, cigarettes, a radio, three decalcomes and a bottle of gin. The goods were all recovered.

His record, which dates back to 1968, includes four theft convictions, two for breech of enter, two for false pretences and one for possession of stolen goods.

Dump Sites To Be Optioned

PICTON — Two potential solid waste disposal sites in Prince Edward will be optioned soon if possible.

Wellington reeve Robert Boyce, chairman of the county's governmental committee, has stated that three sites were recommended and money for options on two of these is available through funds allotted to carry out consultants' findings.

A public announcement in relation to the study for disposal sites is being withheld for a short time.

Old Car for Old Times

Perreault Wins Lady Byng Trophy

MONTREAL (CP)—Gilbert Perreault, Buffalo Sabres' centre, collected his second trophy in three NHL Professional League seasons Tuesday, as he was named winner of the Lady Byng Trophy for 1972-73.

The Lady Byng award goes annually to the player best combining sportsmanship and a high standard of playing ability.

By winning the trophy Perreault also became the first player of a post-1967 NHL club to win individual awards.

He previously won the Calder Trophy as the league's rookie of the-year in 1970-71.

Perreault, 22, collected 168 points in the voting among members of the Professional Hockey Writers' Association (PHWA) in 16 NHL cities.

Ratelle had 94 points and Bucyk 53.

The points were awarded on the basis of five for a first-place choice, three for a second and one for a third.

Perreault, who will receive $1,500 as the winner of the award, had his best season in the NHL in 1973-73.

The smooth-skating native of Victoriaville, Que., had 2 goals and 80 assists and only had 10 minutes in penalties during the season. He combined with left winger Rick Martin and right winger Rene Robert to form The French Connection and it was the forward line that was a key cog in Buffalo's drive to a fourth-place finish in the NHL's East Division.

Perreault's selection continues a trend of recent years whereby seven of the last eight winners of the Lady Byng have been centres. Only Bucyk, who won the trophy in 1970-71, played a position other than centre.

Perreault is also only the second native player to win both the Calder and Byng trophies. The other is Dave Keon of Toronto Maple Leafs who won the Calder Trophy in 1960-61 and the Byng twice—in 1962-63 and 1967-68.

Ratelle will get $750 for his second-place finish in the voting, which saw a record total of 26 players receive votes.

Following is a complete list of the voting:

Perreault, Buffalo 118; Ratelle, Rangers 94; Bucyk, Boston 53; Jacques Lemaire, Montreal Canadiens 27; Dave Keon, Toronto Maple Leafs 21; Lowell MacDonald Pittsburgh Penguins 12; Red Wings 11; Butch Goring, Los Angeles Kings 9; Alex Delvecchio, Detroit 5; Pat Stapleton, Chicago 8; Stan Mikita, Chicago 7; Ralph Backstrom, Los Angeles - Chicago 6; Marcel Dionne, Detroit 5; Dean Prentice, Minnesota North Stars 5; Walt Tkaczuk, Rangers 3; Simon Nolet, Philadelphia Flyers 3; Pit Martin, Chicago 3; Rick Dryden, Montreal 3; Norm Ullman, Toronto 1; Syl Apps, Pittsburgh 1; Craig Patrick, California Golden Seals 1; Garry Unger, Minnesota 1; Tim Horton, Buffalo 1; Yvan Cournoyer, Montreal 1.

Brinkman Is Happy Twitchell Is Not

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The baseball was enshrined in a plastic case, sitting on a little gold stand in front of Chuck Brinkman's locker. The printing on the ball read: "First major league home run vs. the California Angels' Rudy May."

Brinkman's two-run shot helped the White Sox defeat the Angels 6-2 Tuesday night.

"This is a great feeling," said Brinkman, talking about only the third home run of his professional career. He hit one in spring training in 1972 and one in the minor leagues several years ago.

In the other American League games, Cleveland Indians defeated Baltimore Orioles 5-3, Milwaukee Brewers topped Boston Red Sox 4-3, New York Yankees turned back Detroit Tigers 7-2, Minnesota Twins outslugged Kansas City Royals 8-7 and Oakland Athletics' whipped Texas Rangers 6-1.

"I thought I was a pretty good hitter," Wayne Twitchell of Philadelphia Phillies said Tuesday night after doing what such renowned sluggers as Willie Stargell, Reggie Jackson, Frank Howard and Pat Seerey didn't. Of course, they didn't really want to.

Neither did Twitchell, a towering right-handed pitcher, who stepped to the plate four times and struck out four times, repeating his performance of May 16. That equalled the major league mark for most strikeouts by a batter in two consecutive games held by several players. Stargell, Jackson, Howard and Seerey all "stopped at seven whiffs."

"I really don't want that record, but I'm willing to strike out 50 times a game if I win," said the 6-foot-6, 25-year-old pitcher who scattered 11 hits in beating Pittsburgh Pirates for the second time in a week, this one by a 7-4 score.

Elsewhere, St. Louis Cardinals defeated New York Mets 5-3, Montreal Expos edged Chicago Cubs 4-3 in 11 innings, San Francisco Giants beat Atlanta Braves 7-3, Cincinnati Reds shaded Houston Astros 6-4 and Los Angeles Dodgers turned back San Diego Padres 5-1.

Leafs Get Johnston
Stanfield for Gilbert

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League obtained goalie Gilles Gilbert in a trade with Minnesota North Stars for centre Fred Stanfield, the club announced Tuesday.

At a news conference at Boston Garden, the club also announced that veteran goalie Ed Johnston has been sent to Toronto Maple Leafs to complete a trade last March that brought goalie Jacques Plante to the Bruins.

Plante, shortly after the end of the NHL season, signed with Quebec Nordiques of the World Hockey Associaton as coach and general manager.

Gilbert, 24, appeared in 22 games last season and had a 3.05 goals-against average, 2 shutouts, 20 had 29 goals and 58 assists for 78 points in 78 games last season.

Managing director Harry Sinden of the Bruins said that Gilbert "will be our No. 1 goalie."

Stanfield, 29, a veteran centre who also played the left point on the power play, had a no-trade clause in his Boston contract.

However, his lawyer, Arnold Weiner of Boston, was reported to be negotiating a big settlement plus a new contract with the North Stars.

In Toronto, a Leafs spokesman said Johnston was selected from "about three or four players" offered by the Bruins.

The Leafs spokesman said club management had not yet been in contact with Johnston about the possibility of renegotiating his contract which has one year remaining.

"I have been told I am a Toronto Maple Leaf," said Johnston in a telephone interview from his home.

However, I will have to think it over. I will discuss a long-term contract with the Maple Leafs."

General manager Wren Blair of the North Stars appeared with Sinden at the news conference and said the trade was worked out because Gilbert was set to sign with Los Angeles Sharks of the rival World Hockey Association. The young goalie rankled behind Gump Worsley and Cesar Maniago at Minnesota.

Sinden said that Gilbert had signed a multi-year contract for an undisclosed sum.

Gilbert, who attended the news conference, said he had signed for six years and indicated his contract contained a no-trade clause.

Hawks Sign No. 1 Choice

Rota, 20, the 13th player selected last week in the NHL's amateur draft, played last season with Edmonton Oil Kings of the Western Canada Hockey League.

CATCHER TRADED

HOUSTON (AP) — Catcher Larry Howard of Houston Astros was traded Tuesday to Atlanta Braves for a minor league player to be named later. Howard, batting .167, was placed on waivers Monday and was not claimed by any team.

SENTENCE DELAYED

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Wide receiver Lance Rentzel of the Los Angeles rams was sentenced to 90 days in jail, fined $2,000 and placed on three years' probation Tuesday for possessing marijuana. Superior Court Judge William Caldecott delayed the sentence pending appeal by the National Football League player's attorney. Rentzel, 29, pleaded guilty April 24 to possessing marijuana.

Lacrosse Title Match

'Just Another Game'

Neither Nicholson nor BCI is making any special preparations for their Bay of Quinte field lacrosse title match tomorrow according to the respective team coaches.

"It's just one more game to us," said Nicholson's Gary Duggan. "The outcome of it depends on quite a few factors." Primarily, Duggan felt that the difference between beating the defending Bay of Quinte Champions or losing to them would be a matter of psychological preparedness.

After a shamefully short eight game per box lacrosse season, BCI's coach Ted Perlberg said the title matchup "should be a good game, but we're just going to go out there and play them man to man."

"There's no doubt about it," said the coach, "he's going to get a goal, but we'll get two or four in return, I hope."

But BCI won't be re-runchit short manpowerwise. John Green, who scored two goals in BCI's 11-3 win over Moira Secondary Tuesday, has a 14 goals to his credit this season while Rick Bell (with 11 regular season goals) poses another threat to the Nicholson hopes for the win.

Duggan admitted that BCI is a strong team offensively as team with some heavy-skilled defencemen. "They are better shooters than we are."

Belleville Bobcats

Defenceman Blasts Fellow Bobcats

By AL ZABAS
(Fangtesnik of Series)

"I can't see the point of the other players cutting down Mac Hunter and the management of the Bobcats," said defenceman Tim Yohn. "Mac brought the team to where it was — into the playoffs.

"Mac and the management deserve a lot of credit for the team that they produced. I think he was a good coach."

Though "nobody's perfect to use an old cliche, those players never took a look at themselves" before criticizing the capabilities of either Mac Hunter or Snipe Matthews.

"That's what got to me," said the 19-year-old defenceman. "They weren't assessing their own play. If they weren't being played right then they weren't measuring up."

Though some players did have bevels with the management, as all hockey players must do, the team's play in the playoff series backs up Yohn's contention that the Bobcats, as a whole, were a "well balanced, well rounded club".

Yohn, who himself finished off what likely is his final year of play with the Cats with a 15 goal, 34 assist record, said he didn't feel that the Belleville Metro Jr. B. League entry was playing over their heads against the Peterborough Lions.

Speaking of his own job as defenceman, Yohn said "it didn't matter to me who I played with, because I didn't mind playing with any of the other defencemen.

TIM YOHN
"... satisfied

"Besides, you can't get used to one guy. Then you won't be ready when they put you out with someone else. You have to watch all the other defencemen and remember how they play..."

One goalie guard Yohn had to play with was Neil Turner but the circumstances under which the two saw action, though ripe with hors..., ed dismally. Yohn and Turner teamed as the one of the defensive pairs for the East in the East-West All-star game.

"I'll never forget that game," said Yohn of the East's 6-3 loss. "I'd never played in an all-star game before, and I was nervous. It was a new experience and a bad one.

"It taught me a lesson. Go out and play your regular ircular game and not get uptight thinking about the scouts watching."

The scouts who did see the East's 6-3 loss saw the Belleville twosome on the ice for five of the West's goals.

Juniors Win

In the final exhibition game before the under - 21 - year - old Belleville Selects take on the Peterborough soccer team Sunday, Joe Iasenza's team defeated Belleville United 4-0 Tuesday.

Ellis Juniors Even Record

Devolin Team Finds A Tough Way to Lose

For the second night in a row, Rollins Construction blanked the opposition in Commercial Softball League play at Kemble Park Tuesday, hanging on for a 1-0 decision over Devolin Motors. And in the second game of the twin bill, Ellis Juniors evened their season record at 1-1 by defeating Bardon Supplies 7-2.

The first man to the plate for Rollins carried home the only run of the game. Carl Boomhower reached first on an error and while Doug Adams went down on strikes and Ralph Plane grounded out, the runner had moved to third.

Wayne McTaggart drew a walk with two out and was hung up between first and second. He was finally nailed for the third out but not before Boomhower had crossed the plate with the winning run.

Winning pitcher Ken DeMille was in mid-season form, firing a one-hit shutout while claiming 11 batters on strikes and walking none. He faced only 32 batters, more than the minimum for the seven inning game and received excellent support afield.

Devolin's Jim Hollywood was the losers' lone baserunner. He singled in the fourth with one out and moved to second on a passed ball. But that's as far as he got as DeMille remained mowing down the opposition.

It was a tough loss for Devolin's Don Holway. Touched for just four hits, he kept Rollins in check, putting third strikes past seven and walking one walk that turned out to be a costly one.

Plane led the game's hitters, beating out a bunt in the fourth and punching a single in the sixth. Paul Goodfellow and Ralph Boomhower shared the other Rollins' singles.

The Juniors staged a five-run ninth inning to hand Bardon Supplies the loss. Trailing 3-1 after four innings, Ellis got one back in the fifth and put together consecutive base hits by Terry Meagher, Terry Pope and Brian Garlepy during the big rally that was aided by a pair of miscues and a walk.

Gary McMurray started for Ellis with Ron Hill taking over in the fifth to get the win. McMurray allowed all three Bardon runs while fanning three, walking five and allowing four base hits. In relief, Hill held the losers to one hit while striking out four and walking none.

Bill Harrison and Jamie Hunter shared the pitching for Bardon. Between them they gave up nine hits while striking out seven and walking two. Their mates committed four errors while the Juniors were backing their pitches with a faultless fielding display.

Meagher, Pope and Garlepy, the first three men in the Juniors' batting order supplied two base hits each. Peter Stalikovich, Dale Akey and Hill had the others.

League play resumes Thursday night with Howard and Robert meeting Bardon Supplies in the early game while Trenton Auger's hook up with Devolin Motors in the second contest.

Minor Baseball

The home runs of Mike Loucks, Murray Lupenette, and Mike Lawson were not enough to give the Belleville Conductettes a win over the Cablevue tadpoles Monday.

Cablevue edged the Conductettes 7-6 in Senior Belleville Minor Baseball Association season opener as pitcher Tim Marshall provided the hitting clout with a homer and a double.

Marshall, along with Chris Cassidy and Brian Bird, combined their work on the mound for two walks and 18 strikeouts.

The pitching team of Leslie Bradley and Trevor Powell did equally as well against the Mulroney's Sunoco tadpoles with a 10-4 win, one walk and one run record to throw the Kinsmen to a 3-1 win.

The tyke Kinsmen Club entry in the BMBA also came out with a win Monday as they drubbed Bay Shore Club 17-11 with Terry Calder and Lyle Kelleher providing the pitching.

BYBF Girls Win 10-7

An eight run fourth inning powered the Belleville Yardmen Beneficial team to a 10-7 Belleville and District Ladies Softball League win over Cosy Grill at the Cheese Producers diamond Tuesday.

Mari Reid had four base hits for the BYBF team while Donna Preston checked in with three. Sheila Smith and Joyce McFarlane each supplied two hits.

Tops for Cosy Grill were Verna Hill and Dorothy Caverley with three safeties apiece with two apiece by Hazel Valyear, Judy Pulis and Sandra Claus.

Minor Players To See Arsenal

Approximately 130 minor soccer players of the Trenton and District Minor Soccer Association will be boarding four buses this afternoon for a visit to an exhibition in Toronto between the Canada Selects and England's Arsenal.

The Selects comprise the basis for the Canadian national soccer team while Arsenal is one of the most renowned teams in the world. The London soccer club, playing in England's First division, is perhaps comparable to the NHL powerful Montreal Canadiens, the winners of this year's Stanley Cup.

UIC Records 7-3 Win

Coming up with five runs in their last two trips to the plate, UIC scored a 7-3 Canadian Softball League win over Mead Johnson at the CNRA diamond Tuesday. Meads entered a 3-2 lead after five innings but couldn't hold off the UIC rally.

Rick Sullivan went all the hitter. The UIC pitcher held Meads off the scoresheet after the first inning. The losers used pitchers Harold Wilkinson and Sonny Hellewell. Between them, they allowed eight base hits.

In the other Industrial League game played Tuesday, Post Office found the winning formula, downing Constellation 10-7.

Those who submit these game reports are reminded that first and last names must be included.

HAVE YOU WRITTEN A BOOK?

The executive editor of a well-known New York subsidy publishing firm will be in Peterborough in July. He will be interviewing local authors in a quest for finished manuscripts suitable for book publication. All subjects will be considered, including fiction and non-fiction, poetry, juveniles, religious books, etc.

If you have completed a book-length manuscript (or nearly so) on any subject, and would like a professional appraisal (without cost or obligation), please write immediately describing your work and stating which part of the day (a.m. or p.m.) you would prefer for an appointment. Please mention your phone number. You will promptly receive confirmation for a definite time and place.

Authors with completed manuscripts unable to appear may send them directly to us for a free reading and evaluation. We will also be glad to hear from those whose literary works are still in progress. Please address:

Final Skate-a-thon Report Is Released

The final report of the Belleville Rotary Club's Skate-a-thon 1972 has been released. A total of $18,143.28 was raised by the 17 groups participating. Sixty-five per cent of that figure was returned to these organizations, in the amount of $11,793.17.

Rotary's share is $6,350.11 plus $800.83 raised by club members. When the expenses of the event ($2,218.39) are deducted, the service club winds up with net proceeds of $5,034.56 for use in other projects.

Boys' minor hockey led the list of organizations taking part with a total of $5,959.25 in pledges for a share amounting to $4,523.58. Next in line, Girl Guides, $3,992.98, good for a return of $2,909.86.

Scouts and Cubs checked in with pledges of $2,762.82 and received $1,797.78. Also topping the $1,000 mark in pledges were Minor Softball, $1,233.61 ($801.85) and Thurlow Recreation, $1,108.04 ($715.65).

Remaining organizations taking part, money raised through pledges, and the total, in brackets, returned to them, were: Quinte Figure Skaters, $630.98 ($409.94); Highlands of Hastings, Pop Association, $568.20 ($238.03); Air Cadets, $233 ($164.45); CGIT, $225.75 ($146.72); Junior Oddfellows, $193.20 ($125.58).

Apollo Barbell Club, $130.50 ($84.83); Girls' Minor Hockey, $103.50 ($67.28); track and field, $97.90 ($63.57); Thurlow Soccer, $76.20 ($49.53); Eastminster Hi-C, $69.30 ($45.00) and Cadet, Parent and Friends Assoc., $58.71 ($38.16).

Brunswick Bowlers Shine

Brunswick Belleville Bowl minor league five - pinners showed the way in a recent junior all-star tournament staged in London, Ont. When the final results were on the board, the Belleville youngsters had captured 18 of 24 individual trophies and three of four tournament division trophies.

In the sixth annual event, the Belleville bowlers competed against teams from Toronto and London. Each centre had six teams (one tyke, two bantam, two junior and one senior) taking part.

Plane's Shades Latta

John Masterson pitched two-thirds of an inning, but that short time was enough for Cornifton Plane's Concrete Gary Tweedy to get a base hit and drive a single runner home for a 1-0 win Sunday.

Latta's John Pepper of the South Hastings Baseball League provided the mound services for the first six and a third innings.

Plane's pitcher, Bernie Coughlin, Bill Clapp and Kenny Abrams each scored hits during the game which was called in the seventh due to darkness. Latta's Dale Tunmon and Wayne Harrison each took two hits from the arm of Coughlin.

Future Undecided for Mark and Marty

MONTREAL (CP) — The hockey futures of Mark and Marty Howe, sons of Gordie Howe, the former Detroit Red Wings right winger, remain undecided following weekend meetings in Detroit.

Gerry Patterson of Montreal, hired by the Howe family to handle the business interests of the two boys, said he will travel to their Michigan summer home next weekend for further discussion.

Mark Howe, who will be 18 next Monday, and his older brother Marty, 19, were both picked by Houston Aeros in the World Hockey Association's draft of professional players in Toronto last week.

Left winger Mark and defenseman Marty both performed for Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series last season and have two years and one year of junior eligibility remaining, respectively.

Patterson said that while the Howe brothers are considered amateurs by the Amateur Hockey Association, they are not considered amateurs in the United States because they receive a $60 weekly living allowance while playing for the Memorial Cup champion Marlboros.

Patterson said the Howe family had met with him Sunday night and again Monday and had agreed to listen to offers from Houston general manager Jim Smith and coach Bill Dineen next weekend.

Meeker Insists Habs Meet Soviets

HALIFAX (CP) — Howie Meeker called on Canadian citizens Tuesday to insist that the National Hockey League champion Montreal Canadiens play one of the two top Soviet hockey teams which will visit North America to play NHL teams in November and December.

The Canadiens, along with Toronto Maple Leafs and Vancouver Canucks, have indicated that they are not interested in meeting the Russians.

The sports broadcaster and former NHL star was speaking at a banquet during a meeting of the Canadian Jewellers Association.

He said Canadian citizens have a right to see a match between the Russians and the Stanley Cup champions.

In an interview later, he said he hates to think of the Red Army playing some of the "humpty-dumpty" NHL expansion teams.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Thursday, May 24

Aries (March 21-April 19): Continue yesterday's routine without bringing in more revision or supervisory attention than is necessary. Home life offers diversions.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Be aware and serene despite criticism—you are not the target. This will come to notice quickly if you calm down your response.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): The good question is more in vogue than ever today. Ask, and keep asking, until you get sensible answers.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): You'll be glad you've been persistent, as unplanned disclosures surface. Do something to improve living conditions.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Emphasis falls on your capacity for working out laborious details in close collaboration. Promises, are vague.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Concentrate on routines which you normally do alone. Never mind that what you have or have not done lately sets off gossip.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You must inspire others to make better use of their resources and you must conserve yours.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Every minute spent pursuing knowledge pays benefits as well as immediate improvements in your daily living.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Bold initiative is yours to take today. You may find something more than bargains.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 Feb. 18): Temptations to drift and take things as cats are to be resisted. Be thorough in putting group projects into reality.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): This promises to be an easy day for you when it comes to favorable energy, more leeway than usual. Concentrate on social relationships.

Epsom Salt Bath Helps Poison Ivy

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is the best thing to do for poison oak or poison ivy?—G.A.Y.

By far the best thing is to avoid contact with either one.

If the plants are growing on your property, get rid of them. I've had extensive success with weed-killer sprays, but other garden chemicals also work well.

The skin irritation from poison ivy or oak is the resinous sap or juices of the plant which are released when there is bruising of leaves or stems.

So don't try to pull the plants with the bare hands. You can do it with gloves, washing the gloves immediately with soap.

If you get into a patch of ivy accidentally, wash yourself off as soon as you possibly can with a good lather. Hexachlene soap is usually recommended, but I would say that speed in washing is more important than spending time looking for any special kind of soap.

When skin eruptions occur, cold compresses of epsom salts (one tablespoon of epsom salts to a quart of water) help. Or, sometimes a solution of bicarbonate of soda is used. I've found that swabbing with a household bleach helps irritation down.

If the eruption is severe, you may need steroids, such as prednisone, from your doctor, given by mouth in gradually diminishing doses.

For very sensitive people (sensitivity varies immensely from one to another) extracts of ivy oil sometimes are given by mouth, starting six weeks before anticipated risk of exposure. (Injections of the extract have been tried but can cause severe reactions, and effectiveness is doubtful).

For less sensitive to ivy, remember that direct contact with the plant is not necessary. The oil from the plant is carried on a dog's fur, on boots or clothing, can be carried on dust or smoke particles from bonfires.

Contaminated dust probably is the explanation as to why some people insist that they can get poison ivy "just by walking past it."

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I'm going to try you again, but my poison ivy never seems to get answered.

My nephew is 20 and bites his fingernails. What can be done for this? He wants to overcome it, and he does not smoke, but seems to get back in the habit again.—A.L.

No answer because there isn't any way anybody else can stop fingernail biting for him. He's got to do it himself. He just doesn't want to quit badly enough. It's an unpleasant sign of tension and can become a habit.

Note to Mrs. B.W.B.: I agree that Dr. Theodore Rosebury's book, "Microbes and Morals," is a splendid exposition of the history and nature of venereal disease. And fascinating reading, but I don't expect it to have any great impact on the V.D. epidemic simply because the young people among whom the epidemic is spreading so terribly, are seldom ready to invest the money and the time required to read it. A splendid book, though, and most entertainingly written.

Contract Bridge

By B. Jay Becker

(Top Record-Holder in Masters' Individual Championship Play)

Probabilities

East dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

| East | South | West | Nor. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Pass | 2 NT. | Pass | 3 NT. |

Opening lead—jack of hearts.

The subject of probabilities presents a giant mental lay and to many players, bu, despite that, let's consider how declarer weighs his chances in this hand.

Assume you're in three notrump and West leads a heart. To make the contract you must score at least four club tricks, so you naturally win the heart with the ace to preserve dummy's king as a later entry.

...If you now cash the A-Q of clubs and come to the king of hearts, hoping to win five club tricks, you'll finish one down when you score only three club tricks.

This is unlucky — but not astonishing — for the probability of finding the clubs divided satisfactorily on this method of play is only 34 per cent. There was a 36 per cent chance of a 3-3 division plus an 18 per cent chance of finding either defender with the singleton or doubleton jack.

But if, instead, you cash the ace and overtake the queen with the king (planning to play a third round of the suit), your chances of making the contract rise to 67 per cent.

This is largely because you retain not only the 36 per cent chance of a 3-3 break, but also because you make the hand whenever either opponent was dealt the J-x, 9-x or singleton jack, which is another 31 per cent.

In the actual case, when East's nine falls on the king, you continue with the ten to force out the jack. In the process, dummy's 8-6 become established and you wind up with nine tricks.

It is true that if East had the doubleton jack or the clubs were divided 3-2, the unsuccessful method of play would cost you an overtrick. However, you should be more than willing to risk a 3-point loss for the sake of elevating your chances from 34 per cent to 67 per cent.

Tomorrow: Sacrifice.

Spring on the Farm

Just about anything can happen on the farm and often does. A baby goat and a cat seem to have a little spring fever on the farm of Bill Hauser near London, Ont. The kid is just one of 21 goats born in the Hauser farm this spring. (CP Photo)

X-rays Ordered of Inco Workers

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — The environmental health branch of the Ontario government has called for x-rays next week of everyone who worked in a sintering plant at the International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. from 1948 until it closed in 1962.

The plant molded raw powdered ore into pellets and created a fine nickel dust and various gases. It employed about 500 men over the 14 years.

John Gagnon of the United Steelworkers of America, Local 6500, says at least 20 persons who worked in the sintering unit died of lung cancer.

He said the Ontario Workmen's Compensation Board has agreed to pay compensation to workers who were in the plant for a year or more and are suffering lung disorders.

Mr. Gagnon said the percentage of disability among sintering plant workers was higher than normal for the area. It was on this basis that the compensation board allowed benefits.

Ontario Shown Getting Gas Far Below Price Paid in '61

EDMONTON (CP) — Ontario's opposition to Alberta's plans to raise the price of natural gas "can't be supported by the figures," says Mines and Minerals Minister Bill Dickie.

The minister has released an "Alberta analysis" of Ontario gas prices in response to that province's views on Alberta's plans to virtually double the field price of natural gas.

If Alberta is successful in its plan, the average industrial user in southern Ontario still will be paying nine per cent less for his gas than he did in 1961, said Mr. Dickie.

In 1961, the average industrial user paid 81 cents per thousand cubic feet (MCF) of gas and it 1970 this was down to 58 cents per MCF.

If the average field price of the gas in Alberta is doubled to 22 cents from 16 cents per MCF, by the time this increase is passed down the line, Ontario industrial users in southern Ontario will pay 74 cents per MCF.

"This will still be almost nine per cent under what they paid for natural gas 10 years previously."

During the same period, from 1961 to 1970, the total value of goods manufactured in Canada increased to $46 billion from $23 billion, he added.

Included in this, the cost of materials and supplies rose 104 per cent, salaries and wages increased 90 per cent, but the cost of all types of fuel—including electricity—rose only 75 per cent.

Mr. Dickie said if the field price of gas in Alberta is doubled, Alberta figures indicate it would add only $1.77 to the monthly heating bill of an Ontario homeowner.

The figures counter consolaints Alberta has been hearing from Ontario, opposing the gas price policy announced by Premier Peter Lougheed in November. The announcement indicated Alberta wants to see the average 16 cents per MCF paid for natural gas here increased by 10 to 20 cents.

"The case for the East can't be supported by the figures," said Mr. Dickie, adding that while politicians in Eastern Canada have been trying to make their case "they've been getting cheap gas for years."

Trudeau and Hees Trade Statistics

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau and former Conservative trade minister George Hees threw varying sets of trade statistics at one another Tuesday during a Commons argument over whether the prime minister should do more travelling.

Mr. Trudeau, often criticized for travelling too much, said he seriously was considering an opposition suggestion that he journey to Europe to promote trade with the European common market.

The suggestion was repeated Tuesday by Mr. Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings), who has just returned from a visit to Brussels.

He said Mr. Trudeau should meet European heads of state and cited figures to indicate there has been a $200-million decline in exports to the common market and Britain in the last three years.

Mr. Trudeau said he would consider the proposal "most seriously", but added that recent and proposed visits among European heads of state and the United States were just signs that those countries were catching up with his European trips of last year.

Later, Mr. Hees objected to Mr. Trudeau's reply, terming it "sneering and wisecracking. . . . an insult in the House."

Mr. Trudeau retorted with a set of figures that indicated that in the first four months of 1973 trade with Britain was up 26 per cent, the largest increase in 20 years.

NDP MP Fails in Bid To Probe Chrysler Tax

OTTAWA (CP) — A New Democrat member of Parliament was unsuccessful Tuesday in an attempt to have the Commons finance committee scrutinize the income tax returns of Chrysler Corp.

Ed Broadbent (NDP—Oshawa-Whitby) told the Committee he has information indicating Chrysler may have created a parts distribution system primarily to escape taxes. He said reports are that the corporation avoided $24 million in taxes over 1967 and 1968.

Revenue Minister Robert Stanbury said he has looked into the case but tax law prevents him commenting or giving information on any particular tax returns.

Mr. Broadbent suggested that the finance committee could look into the tax returns in a closed session. Mr. Stanbury, however, said that even then he is not permitted by law to discuss the case.

He assured Mr. Broadbent that "my department is taking all proper steps in connection with this taxpayer as with any taxpayer."

Mr. Broadbent said Chrysler saved money by setting up regional companies for parts distribution and getting the lower tax rates for small businesses.

But the tax laws gave the minister power to tax such subsidiaries together when it was determined that the companies were set up for tax savings and not for operational efficiency.

"Operational efficiency was not the main purpose of establishing those regional companies," Mr. Broadbent said.

He gave committee members what he said was a copy of a 1965 Chrysler memorandum to its Ontario dealers telling the dealers that Chrysler Parts (Vancouver) Ltd. will send invoices for parts but parts will continue to be ordered from Chrysler Parts (Eastern) Ltd.

Mr. Broadbent suggested that this arrangement was made to exploit losses incurred by the Vancouver firm.

Hees Says Europeans Still Irked by Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — George Hees, Conservative defence critic, said Tuesday there still is ill will and irritation in Europe over Canada reducing its forces in Europe.

Speaking in the Commons defence committee, Mr. Hees (Prince Edward-Hastings) called on the government to reform Canadian forces in Europe to 10,000 men from the present 5,000.

Defence Minister James Richardson rejected Mr. Hees arguments. He also said without amplification he will be making a recommendation to cabinet on the role that Canadian troops are and will be playing as part of NATO troops in Europe.

Mr. Hees, recently returned from a meeting of North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) parliamentarians in Brussels, said it was made clear to him in private conversations and at meetings that there still is resentment over the 1960 Canadian reduction.

If the Canadian force was returned to its pre-cut figure of 10,000 men it would "reverse very serious ill will" against Canada in NATO.

The NATO force was of tremendous importance to Europeans who saw the Russians and Warsaw pact countries improving in men and material all the time.

At the same time Mr. Hees pointed out that NATO members are also members of the European Common Market (EEC) which was getting stronger. He said he asked some persons what chances Canada had of joining about 65 countries being considered for EEC membership and was told there was no chance.

"Why should we do something for you when you are not willing to do anything for us,' they say."

These persons felt that Canada had kept 5,000 men in Europe because it is afraid of what the United States would say if it stepped out.

Canada Has Not Accepted Zambian Version on Deaths

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has not accepted the Zambian explanation of circumstances of the deaths of two Canadian girls shot last week at Victoria Falls on the Zambezi River, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp told the Commons Tuesday.

Changes Being Drafted

OTTAWA (CP) — Legislation Increasing family allowances "as nearly as ft might appear" and probably will not be ready before the first part of June, Health Minister Marc Lalonde said Tuesday.

He told the Commons committee on health and welfare that about 16 separate items in existing legislation have to be redrafted and the procedures have to be consulted about the wording.

The new legislation, which would be implemented Jan. 1, 1974, will make the average monthly federal family allowance $29 for each child.

But the government has not yet sent a formal protest to the African country about the incident, he added in reply to questions from Alfred Hales (PC—Wellington).

The two Ontario tourists, Christine Sinclair, 19, and Marian Dribjer, 19, were killed by gunfire as they visited the falls on the Zambia-Rhodesia border.

Mr. Sharp told the House that a Canadian official in Rhodesia was examining the circumstances of the incident.

Exports, Imports Peak

OTTAWA (CP) — Exports and imports rose to record levels in the first three months of this year as sales to the United States outstripped a decline in exports overseas, Statistics Canada reported Tuesday.

Exports to all countries in the first quarter stood at $5,845 million, five per cent higher than in the last quarter of 1972. Imports rose about 10 per cent, to $5,513 million.

That left a trade surplus, adjusted to account for seasonal factors, of $332 million. The surplus in the last quarter of 1972 was $369 million.

Top Men Shuffled In CDC

TORONTO (CP) — The board of the Canadian Development Corp. (CDC) shuffled top management titles Tuesday to make a former businessman the chief operating officer and a former civil servant the top policy executive.

In other policy developments at a board meeting of the government-owned corporation, there was discussion about possible locations for a head office and H. Anthony Hampson, the new president and chief executive officer, said the board believes it must consider all major Canadian cities as a possible site.

Mr. Hampson's title of chairman of the board has been taken by Marshall A. Crowe.

Death Penalty Debate Seems No Nearer End

OTTAWA (CP) — Refreshed and eager after the Victoria Day weekend, MPs resumed Commons debate Tuesday on capital punishment and prison escapes.

More than a dozen members spoke on the death penalty, most of them favoring a government bill to extend a partial ban until 1977.

In the death penalty debate, Cyril Symes (NDP—Sault Ste. Marie) said that although 73 per cent of more than 4,000 constituents replied in a questionnaire they were in favor of the death penalty, his conscience would not let him vote this way.

Doug Roche (PC—Edmonton Centre) said all his constituents wanted security, not vengeance. He called for a minimum sentence of 25 years without parole for murderers.

Sean O'Sullivan (NDP—Assiniboia), at 21 the youngest MP, said he favors hanging for persons convicted of premeditated murder.

Derek Blackburn (NDP—Brant) said he favored total abolition of the death penalty but would vote for the bill.

Of the 151 persons whose death sentences were commuted between 1920 and 1967—when the first five-year partial ban on the death penalty began—82 per cent never returned to prison, Mr. Blackburn said.

In other business, the Commons was told by Energy Minister Donald MacDonald the government expects to determine by the end of the year whether Arctic natural gas can be shipped by railway instead of pipeline.

The statement was prompted by a flood of opposition questions about a draft report on a proposed Mackenzie River Valley pipeline. The report was leaked to news outlets Monday night.

Mr. MacDonald told Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield the decision on a pipeline will be made by cabinet after public hearings by the National Energy Board in the fall.

In what may herald a major confrontation, both Conservative speakers indicated they would not be prepared to make the decisions on the pipeline.

Mr. Stanfield said consideration of pipeline proposals should be by a Commons committee, not the energy board; and Max Saltsman (NDP—Waterloo-Cambridge) said he may introduce a resolution calling on the government to entrust Parliament with the final pipeline decisions.

Mr. Macdonald said Parliament decided the pipeline issue 10 years ago when it handed the responsibility to the energy board.

Prisoner Leaves Restricted

OTTAWA (CP) — Penitentiary guards will be suspended if a prisoner escapes while in their custody during temporary leave, Solicitor-General Warren Allmand said Tuesday.

"I have issued instructions that there be no more . . . temporary absences with escort unless the escort understands the prisoner is not to be out of sight during any time he is under escort," he told Eldon Williams (PC—Calgary North) in a Commons exchange.

The penitentiaries service, embarrassed recently by an epidemic of escapes, has curtailed up on temporary absences for prisoners, a spokesman for Mr. Allmand's office confirmed later.

In the Commons, the solicitor-general mentioned that several escapes occurred when prisoners visiting parents and hospitals were allowed out of sight of their guards.

The spokesman in the minister's office, replying to a reporter's question, said it would be true to say that leaves have been tightened. But he couldn't give figures to show how this was being done.

The service is still continuing its policy of allowing prisoners unescorted leave after one or more trips with an escort had shown they apparently would be trusted.

Mr. Allmand's spokesman said up to now it has been discretionary whether a man, say, visiting his family, was to be under the eyes of an escort at all times.

Now that was changed and a guard who let a prisoner out of his sight could face suspension.

Mr. Woolliams said what he really wants to know is what steps the solicitor-general is taking to prevent further prison escapes, not just those of prisoners on leave.

Mr. Allmand referred to improved fencing and brush-clearing at Cowansville, Que., scene of numerous recent escapes. He said a breakout at St. Vincent de Paul prison near Montreal was due to a human failure. Steps were being taken to see that it did not happen again.

Meanwhile, Mr. Allmand is expected to make a statement in the Commons in about two weeks on plans to involve the parole board in granting leaves.

At present the service can grant leaves of three-days each at the discretion of the prison director. The commissioner of penitentiaries can grant leaves of up to 15 days.

The parole board has complained that if often gets the blame when prisoners on leave go wrong, although it has nothing to do with granting them.

The board has the right to grand day parole, under which a prisoner can leave an institution on a daily basis under supervision of a parole officer.

George Street, chairman of the national parole board said in a weekend television interview the government should [illegible] system over to the parole board.

Students to Be Used to Teach Second Language

QUEBEC (CP) — University students will be used to teach a second language in high schools under a federal-provincial program announced Tuesday by Secretary of State Hugh Faulkner.

Mr. Faulkner told the Canadian School Trustees' Association that the program, entitled Linguistic Volunteer Corps, will allow exchange of about 200 university students to teach in high schools beginning this fall.

University students from a French-speaking area will be invited to apply for positions in English-speaking area, and vice-versa, he said.

"Those students will attend university in the host region and will spend six or seven hours a week with language classes in high schools associated with the plan, helping the students with comprehension and pronunciation of the second language."

Mr. Faulkner said the program, federally funded but to be administered by the province, has the "potential both of improvement of language instruction and for real deepening of cross-Canada understanding."

Religious Teaching May Go

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — A Kent County board of education trustee expressed concern Tuesday that religious instruction in public board schools might be discontinued.

Charles Mifflin of Merlin said the ministry of education is considering removal of clauses pertaining to religious education from the school acts and that the United Church of Canada is petitioning the ministry to refrain from doing so.

Mr. Mifflin said if the province intends to remove it from the acts, there is no point in the board's curriculum committee proceeding with plans to bring a widespread program on religion into county schools.

The board will forward other minor recommendations to the Ontario Public School Trustee's association which has proposed consolidation of the school acts.

Bridges Out

PORT COLBORNE, Ont. (CP) — West German ships knocked bridges out of commission at each end of the Welland canal Tuesday.

Officials of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority said both bridges would have to remain in the raised position until repairs could be made.

They estimate it will take up to two weeks to put the units back into operation.

No Grads

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Gary Crowley, a man with a university degree in political science and English, wants to be a cop.

But the best he has been able to do in the last 17 months, is land a job as an auxiliary constable with the Ontario Provincial Police.

The Thorold, Ont., resident said in a brief to an Ontario government study team assessing policing in the province that he has been told by police departments that:

And even:

"I'm sorry, we cannot accept you at this time because your thighs are too thick."

Shift Asked

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario government study team assessing policing in the province heard repeated requests today to shift the financial burden of police costs away from property owners.

The pleas came from municipalities in the Niagara regional district where municipal forces were joined in 1971, a year after the district was created by the provincial government.

Knew Call Girl

LONDON (Reuter) — Lord Lambton, who resigned his post in the British government Tuesday citing personal and health reasons, admitted today he had had a casual acquaintance with a call girl.

He said in a statement he has been told her husband took some secret photographs which have been sold to newspapers.

"I have no excuses whatever to make," said Lord Lambton in his statement.

Terms Added

KINGSTON Ont. (CP) — Two Collins Bay penitentiary prisoners had days on the outside stretched to months on the inside Tuesday.

Richard Dupre, 48, who was given a one-day pass March 19 to attend a prayer meeting and was picked up four days later in Montreal, was convicted of being unlawfully at large.

Dupre received an additional eight months as did Ralph W. Phillips, 27, convicted of escaping custody.

Study Plan

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Premier William Davis has agreed to study a suggestion for compulsory annual inspection of motor vehicles in Ontario, a group of Brampton automobile dealers announced Tuesday.

Norm Gelid, spokesman for the group, said in a press release that the dealers favor the compulsory annual inspection as a means of improving road safety.

Open Island

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (A.) — Luna Island, a popular tourist viewing spot above Bridal Veil Falls, will reopen Thursday. The spot was closed to tourists in 1970.

MEMO FROM HELEN GAGEN

Consumer Advisor for Miracle Food Mart

NUTRITIONAL SUBSTITUTIONS

An important help in cutting down food bills is an understanding of what foods can be substituted for each other, while still serving the same nutritional role in the family's diet.

Take orange juice as an example. It's valuable chiefley for its vitamin C content, and both adults and children need 30 milligrams (mg.) vitamin C each day.

You may like the flavor of fresh-squeezed orange juice best. But it's important to your budget to realize that reconstituted frozen concentrated orange juice is almost identical in vitamin C value to fresh-squeezed. Canned orange juice provides somewhat less, but ½ cup canned orange juice still contains 30 mg. of vitamin C – almost twice the recommended daily allowance.

Other thrifty vitamin-C alternatives for orange juice include unsweetened grapefruit juice (42 mg. vitamin C per ½ cup), tomato juice (39 mg. of vitamin C per cup), and vitaminized apple juice (44 mg. per ½ cup).

In season, half a 5-inch cantaloupe provides double your day's need of vitamin C, and a cup of strawberries almost three times your requirement. For further information on such subjects, ask to see the red-covered Nutrition Information book at your Miracle Food Mart information desk.

Slain Grafton Girl Is Found by Father

Margaret Haylock

COBOURG, Ont. (CP) — A father searching for his 11-year-old daughter when she didn't return from school Wednesday found her body a few hours later on a bush trail near her home about 12 miles east of here.

Provincial police say Michelle Keogh, a Grade 6 student at St. Mary's separate school in nearby Grafton, Ont., had been murdered.

A post mortem was to be held in Toronto today to determine cause of death and whether the girl was sexually assaulted.

Michael Keogh, supervisor of staff development at the Ontario Hospital in Cobourg, 25 miles southeast of Peterborough, said in an interview he and his wife started looking for their daughter when she didn't come home after leaving a school bus.

He said he found the body, apparently thrown into underbrush, after following tire tracks along a wooded footpath.

The man was described as being between the ages of 30 and 40.

No further details have been released at this time.

Michelle is survived by her father, Michael Keogh, mother, Colette and a two - year - old brother, Martin, whose second birthday was celebrated by the family Tuesday.

Mr. Keogh said the girl left school at 3:40 p.m. and should have arrived at the corner of Highway 2 and Thomas Road at 3:55. She had a walk of about half a mile to her Thomas Road home.

He said he followed the fresh tracks of bicycle footprints in his own car and found the body about 100 yards from Thomas Road about 6 p.m.

"I still can't believe it," he said.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: For the third day cloud from a system south of the lower lakes extends into southern Ontario as far as the south shore of Lake Ontario. The cloud should clear eastward with considerable sunshine expected by afternoon. Maximum temperatures will again reach well into the 60s. Friday promises more sunshine for most areas.

Truce Body Paralysed

SAIGON (CP) — The International Commission for Control and Supervision has reached the lowest ebb in its crisis-ridden, four-month existence. In fact, says commission officials, it is paralysed.

There is a growing feeling among observers here that it would be folly for Canada to extend its membership beyond the end of June although Canadian officials publicly express willingness to continue their frustrating role to the government decides to stay.

After the release today of a sharply-divided report on the April 7 peacekeeping helicopter crash, Canadian and Indonesian delegates at the highest level said they were "shocked and appalled" at what they see as a major intensification of the obstructionist tactics of Poles and Hungarians on ICCS.

Hungarian Ambassador Ferenc Esztergalyos told reporters later he believed the helicopter, which crashed taking nine lives, may have been pilfered by an American spy who deliberately veered from his pre-determined course to check on Viet Cong installations.

Canada's Sales to U.S. Decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States recorded its first trade surplus in 18 months during April, much of the favorable shift resulting from a decline in imports from Canada, Commerce Secretary Frederick Dent reported today.

Lawyer Rebuts McCord On CIA

By Brooks Jackson

WASHINGTON (AP) — James McCord's former lawyer, who delivered the first major attack on the convicted Watergate conspirator's story to the Senate hearings into the affair, was summoned for further testimony today.

Gerald Alch, a law partner of F. Lee Bailey, denied in testimony Wednesday that he ever suggested McCord should blame the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) for the Watergate wiretap operation.

McCord's story of White House pressure to keep silent already has been backed up by two witnesses, John Caulfield and Anthony Ulasewicz. They both transmitting offers of presidential clemency to McCord.

But Alch and Caulfield dispute McCord's self-portrayal of a man interested only in seeing justice done. They paint him instead as a man who tried desperately to stay out of jail, and who spread blame to his superiors only after a jury convicted him of wiretapping, burglary and conspiracy. The length of McCord's sentence now depends in part on how well he co-operates with investigators.

Alch specifically denied Wednesday that he told McCord his CIA personnel records could be falsified.

He also said McCord passed up three opportunities to co-operate with federal prosecutors during the trial in return for leniency.

Earlier in Wednesday's session, Caulfield, who had been a White House aide to presidential counsel John Dean and presidential adviser John Ehrlichman, said he believed he had been carrying a message from President Nixon when he offered clemency to McCord last January.

But Caulfield also repeated that he acted only on Dean's orders and didn't know whether anyone higher knew of the offer. Nixon has denied that he authorized or knew of clemency offers to any Watergate defendants.

Ulasewicz, a retired New York police detective who worked for three years as a secret investigator for Ehrlichman and Dean, also admitted his role in passing clemency offers to McCord.

Caulfield and Ulasegicz said they knew their actions were illegal attempts to obstruct justice, Caulfield said he acted out of loyalty to Nixon. Ulasewicz said he acted out of friendship for Caulfield.

Apple Queen Aspirants

Trudeau Still Hopeful Health Plan to Get OK

OTTAWA (CP) — A battered federal proposal to turn over health-care financing to the provinces received more blows from provincial governments Wednesday, but Prime Minister Trudeau remained optimistic that the proposal will be accepted by premiers today.

If not, the proposal would die. Speaking to reporters after the first session of the closed conference of first ministers, he suggested that at least some provincial criticism Wednesday was an attempt to get more federal money and that today the premiers may well accept the federal proposal as the best they can get.

"I think many came to test us to see if we would modify it very drastically. I told them that is out of the question."

Provincial reactions to the complex federal proposal varied from demands for more fiscal resources to full acceptance of those provinces which rejected the proposal and sought more fiscal resources.

The focus of opposition to the federal proposal is a Quebec call for the provinces to take over 28 per cent of federal personal income tax. Federal Finance Minister John Turner says federal proposals together would be equivalent to 29.5 per cent of personal income tax.

Ontario, Newfoundland and Alberta supported the Quebec proposal, while other provinces questioned it with varying degrees of concern.

But Mr. Davis said later in an interview he sensed that Ottawa "was not opposed to our position."

Their problem is to try to reconcile the various points of view.

"Some of the provinces expressed concern that if there was a transfer of tax points, they would lose some level of support. I had some sympathy with their position."

Ontario and Ottawa Battle to Stand-off

OTTAWA (CP) — Ontario fought a stand-off battle with Ottawa over taxing powers Wednesday at the opening of the federal-provincial conference but Premier William Davis said he was ready to accept "a little bit of progress at a time."

Ontario has rejected federal proposals for conditional opting out of such major programs as medical care, welfare and post-secondary education. The province, with the tacit support of Quebec, Alberta and Newfoundland, wants Ottawa to give the premiers more points of federal personal income tax to enable them to take over and pay for these programs. Ottawa now pays half the costs of the programs under a complicated formula that the provinces claim has no relation to provincial spending priorities.

Ottawa has already indicated a willingness to give up certain excise and custom tax revenues, and six more income tax points, to the provinces in exchange for an agreement on grant funding.

Mr. Davis told the conference that unless the government leaders can agree on a national concensus on the equal sharing of powers between the provinces and Ottawa, there would be a strain on Confederation that would effect the "well being of our nation."

Skylab Repair Ship Packed With Sunshades and Tools

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Skylab salvage ship is packed with specially-designed sunshades and tools to repair the crippled U.S. orbiting laboratory, and the countdown continued today in a tight, scheduled for a Friday launching.

Crews began early today stowing the gear aboard the Apollo spacecraft which is to be launched into an 11-day rendezvous with the Skylab station 272 miles above the earth.

Scheduled launch time for the Saturn IB rocket is 9 a.m. EDT Friday.

Space agency officials said they are optimistic that if a sun shield can be raised to shadow the overheated Skylab lab from the searing rays of the sun, astronauts Charles Conrad Jr. Joseph Kerwin and Paul Weitz can complete a 28-day mission aboard the lab.

If the space mechanic can unjam a power-producing solar panel, they should be able to conduct more experiments than planned at present because they'd have more electrical energy. However, officials said chances of freeing the stuck arm are slim.

P. F. Bolt director William Schneider announced Wednesday night that several proposed sun shields had been thoroughly studied and tested and that there had been selected to make the trip.

Forced to Dig Grave

TORONTO (CP) — Two armed men forced a Toronto man, Lloyd Allison, 23, to dig his own grave in a cemetery early Wednesday, after he refused to buy a television set from them. Two men, one with a shotgun and the other with a knife, entered Lloyd Allison's apartment and demanded $300 for the television set. When Mr. Allison refused, the two took him to a cemetery in Maple and ordered him to dig his own grave. Mr. Allison began digging and pleading for his life. The two men left.

Earl Jellicoe, Leader in Lords, Quits Over 'Casual Affairs'

New Sex Scandals Spread

LONDON (Reuter) — Earl Jellicoe, leader of the House of Lords, resigned today after admitting he had "some casual affairs which if publicised would be the subject of criticism."

Lord Jellicoe's resignation, submitted in a letter to Prime Minister Heath, followed Tuesday's resignation of Lord Lambton, a junior defence minister, who later admitted associating with a prostitute, and was later charged with drug offences.

His resignation follows widespread reports that other British ministers were involved in a sex-and-security scandal that broke Wednesday after Lambton left the government.

In his letter to Heath, Jellicoe said:

"When you told me yesterday that my name was being linked with allegations about a ring of call girls, I thought it right to tell you that unhappily there was justification for this because I had had some casual affairs which if publicised would be the subject of criticism."

"I also said that because this must be a matter of deep embarrassment to you and to my colleagues I felt I must resign."

He said he had "taken great pride in serving my country as a member of your administration and I deeply regret my own conduct makes it impossible for me to continue to do so."

At the same time, Jellicoe's lawyer issued a statement saying there was no question of a breach of the law.

He had "not been subject to pressure or blackmail of any kind" and "no danger to national security arises out of these matters," the statement by Lawyer Lord Goodman said.

The resignation was announced as Heath met with his cabinet to discuss the Lambton affair. Heath said he would make a statement on the issue in Parliament today.

Heath replied to Jellicoe's resignation letter in warm terms and with regret, saying: "Your decision arises from the best traditions of British public life."

"I accept it only with great regret and with my warmest gratitude to you for all the work you have done both as a minister and as leader of the House of Lords."

Britain was plunged into its second such scandal in 10 years Wednesday when Lord Lambton, undersecretary of defence in charge of the Royal Air Force, confessed that his resignation - and earlier had stemmed from his association with a prostitute.

News reports hinted then that Lord Lambton, 50, with five daughters and a son, was also named in two summonses for drug possession Wednesday night. He declared his innocence on both counts, saying he had confined his use of cannabis several months ago from a friend, and amphetamines had been prescribed by a doctor.

Not Religious War

GENEVA (Reuter) — Irish Protestant and Roman Catholic church leaders jointly declared today that the conflict in Ireland is not a religious war. In a letter to the Vatican and the World Council of Churches, released here, the four church leaders expressed concern at the harm done to Christianity by oversimplifying the nature of the "terrible conflict" in Ireland.

Iran Takes Over

TEHRAN (AP) — After two months of hard bargaining Iran and the Western oil consortium signed an agreement today which gives Iran the world's largest oil field, largest refinery, largest export terminal and "full and real" control of the oil industry.

Africa Backs Arabs

ADDIS ABABA (AP) — Black Africa declared early today that it will "effectively and actively" support Egypt, other Arab states and the Palestinians in efforts to regain the territory occupied by Israel in the 1967 war.

Airmen's Wives Protest

LIMESTONE, Me. (AP) — Wives at Loring Air Force Base have joined wives at other Strategic Air Command bases in protest over the Cambodia bombing missions. They say their husbands are assigned to carry out the B-52 missions. In a letter released Tuesday night, the women said there is no justification for the bombing.

Security Leak Denied

Lord Lambton is pictured in London, where he resigned as a junior minister in the British government. He admitted to "a casual acquaintance with a call girl" but denied reports that Britain's national security is imperiled. "There has been high-life vice ring, no security leak, no blackmail . . . " he said.

Humane Society Helped

Tuesday's budget approval gave the Ontario Humane Society in Belleville a doubled budget boost to their research.

An increase of $3,500 dollars in the city's allocation for the society's animal control service is matched by a likely $3,000 reimbursement from the sale of dog licenses.

At the same time, the agreement between the city and the Humane Society for increasing their services was again established last night until clarification was made on whether or not a second service vehicle would be made available and the type of "emergency service" the society would be providing.

A letter to council from the society's general manager, T. Hughes, said the society was "prepared to increase its services in Belleville by increasing the hours of regular patrols from the present hours of 8 a.m. – 6 p.m. and 7 p.m. – 11 p.m. seven days a week, to 24 hours a day service during the remaining hours.

"In order to provide this service, the society will have to engage another warden," said Mr. Hughes. "We propose that after 14 months we review the situation again to see whether or not the society is operating on a break-even basis."

Signing In

One of the most recent job applicants at the 72 Front Street, Trenton Canada Manpower student placement office is Robert Morels, of 42 North Murray Street, here with placement assistant Sue O'Donnell, who will be entering her third year at Ryerson in a Home Economics course this fall. File cards, like the ones being arranged by Sheri Dingle, a third-year psychology student at Queen's University, are kept on all student job applicants.

Student Job-hunting Can Be Frustrating

In fact, as Queen's University graduate Bob Snowden admits "we're approximately 75 per cent down" in the number of job placements compared with last year.

As head of the four-member student placement office, he puts much of this down to the students' own initiative. "I think a lot of students this year have found their own work," he said.

Since the offices in the 72 Front Street federal building opened on May 7, 916 have registered. Of these, 431 are either post-secondary students or grade 12 or 13 graduates anticipating further education in the fall. Of these, 211 are boys, 200 are girls.

This breakdown plays a major role, the youthful director says. "It's harder for girls to get jobs in the summer time than boys. We've been trying to get people to hire girls for jobs where before they normally wouldn't have considered it. Last year we were successful in some cases but even now it all depends on the type of job and the people doing the hiring," he said.

Mr. Snowden admits the present situation has proved frustrating for him and his assistants.

"There are many frustrations. Even though we have a large number of people registered, it's hard to get hold of the kids," he said.

"As an example, he said if a company called requesting a youth physically able to do heavy lifting, they might have 15 listed on their records. "By the time you go through your list and keep finding none of them home, it can take all day to reach someone for that particular job."

Another frustration seems to lie with the attitudes of many of the student job-seekers. They come in and register, and then rarely put in an appearance at room 213, expecting the placement assistants to do all the work looking for jobs for them.

"They should come in quite regularly just to show their interest," Mr. Snowden says.

Students are also a bit choosy about the kind of job they take.

Construction in this area pays much better than other jobs. But most of the hiring is done on the job by the contractor. "If you show up on the site, wearing a hard hat and boots, looking like a workman and he's got a job, you have a good chance of landing a job."

Prestige jobs don't enter into the picture to any great extent, he said. "Some students will work just as long as they are getting paid.

"Others may wait awhile or go on looking for themselves in the hopes of getting better pay."

In the Trenton region, the average jobs, ranging from strawberry picking and receiving jobs to clerking, can differ in pay from the minimum wage of $1.80 an hour as high as $3 an hour.

The remainder of the 916 registered students are those at present enrolled in high schools in the area and not yet emerging for jobs. In order to prepare for this, additional desks for applicants to prepare file cards will be installed in the federal building.

As well, a branch office will be opened at the East Northumberland Secondary School guidance office in Brighton, once a week.

Apple Blossom Queen Contestants Now Three

BLOOMFIELD — Three semi - finalists last night were chosen in the Ontario Apple Blossom Queen festival pageant at Pinecrest school. The contest is held in conjunction with the annual Quinte apple blossom festival.

Winners in the preliminary competition were Penny Barber, 18, of RR 7, Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilet Barber; Lola Cockburn, 19, of RR 1, Picton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Cockburn and Debbie Rowe, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russ Rowe, RR 7, Belleville.

Seven contestants participated in the pageant involving brief speeches on assigned topics. The Ontario apple blossom queen will be crowned Friday night at the festival ball at Kente school, Amelia sburgh. Runners up will become apple princesses for 1973-74.

Other entrants in the pageant included Linda Beare, 18 of RR 1, Belleville; Julie Hinton, RR 1 Carrying Place; Heather Munday, 16, Wellington and Brenda Russell, 17, of RR 2 Consecon.

Judges for this year's pageant are former Picton mayor Margaret Ackerman, Leo Jourard of radio station CJBQ and Mrs. F. Clack a public relations worker with the Ontario Apple Marketing Board.

Cigar Store Broken Into

Thieves who broke into T and J Cigar Store on Front Street Wednesday night apparently decided to leave things the way they found them.

Missing were cigarettes, watches and lighters. The value of the goods has not yet been determined.

New Cement Plant By September

The Canada Cement Lafarge plant at Bath, 13 miles southeast of Napanee, will be completed by September, officials have announced.

The $32 million plant will produce one million tons of cement a year and will replace the obsolete plant at Point Anne.

The new plant is located on Highway 33, a scenic lakefront drive between Adolphustown and Kingston. About 100 people will be employed at the plant, 90 of them to be hired locally.

Company officials say an electrostatic precipitator costing about $2 million will eliminate 99 per cent of air pollution.

The plant is located on a 10 - acre site, and the company owns about 1,700 more acres in the immediate area. More than 5,000 trees have been planted at the front of the building to screen the operation from Highway 33.

Gates Approved

Belleville City Council Tuesday approved the installation of short arm gates as a safety measure in addition to flashing signal lights at the Foster Ave. rail crossing.

The Canadian Transport Commission and the railways will be notified of the approval, dependent upon the cost being in accordance with the current pricing formula of the CTC.

Stage for Powerhouse

Quinte Kiwanians Dudley Huckle, Clinton Vader (club president), Cy Coulson and Dick Hurst move stage parts from behind the Ben Bleecker Auditorium to assemble at the Belleville armory for the Kiwanis Spring Stomp Friday. The stage will be used by the Ottawa group, Powerhouse, whose basa - player Brian Rading formerly played with the popular 3 - Man Electrical Band. Another Ottawa group, Tarsun, is also to play Friday. Admission to the dance, sponsored and supervised by the Quinte Kiwanis Club, is $1.50 on advance tickets or with student council cards at the door and $2 without student council cards at the door. Proceeds will be used toward the service club's swim program.

Sergeant John Haggis, at last night's inspection of 608 Duke of Edinburgh Squadron, was presented with the most coveted award, Youth and Citizenship. Congratulations for his work on top day and involvement in the corps were given by Hank Ford, president of ANAF Duke of Edinburgh Unit 201.

Air Cadets Earn Praise From Air Commodore

Belleville air cadets were praised last night as one of the better corps in the province following their 11th annual inspection in the armory.

Air Commodore A. D. Ross (Retired), vice - chairman of the provincial committee of the Air Cadet League, called the inspection "a damn good show," and later said they were "one of our better squadrons."

He regarded 608 Duke of Edinburgh Squadron of 50 boys as an almost ideal size. Despite the right amount of individual training can be given when the corps is not too large.

The air commodore said there was no end to the air cadet movement with its already expanding program using imaginative means to interest young people.

Without command the team marched about the parade square breaking off into files, criss-crossing and reforming into the squad.

For trophies and awards, Brad Soldier was presented as best first year cadet, Flight Sergeant Ken Welch was awarded the Flight-Lt. Bill Brown Memorial Trophy, Sgt. John Haggis received the Youth and Citizenship Trophy.

Progress Citizen-Style

We were in a downtown cleaning establishment and as happens there was a cluster of waiting customers. And there was this husky looking fellow who looked as if he were accustomed to hard work with his hands and, as likely as not, in various parts of the country. As he left, with his cleaning, he said, apropos it would seem of nothing in particular, "Belleville is improving . . . not much, but it is improving."

The remark, though plainly audible, bombed somewhat among the others, but then they were doubtless in no mood for philosophic ramblings and anxious only to get their own cleaning and away.

The remark stuck with us though, and anyone else who happened to latch onto it might well have reflected upon the fellow man's words and mused about this community we call "The Friendly City."

Each of us could make our own lists of the pros and cons of living in Belleville but some of the common denominators would indeed be its pleasant atmosphere, its proximity to vacation resorts with the open countryside and lakeshore predominant. In recent years too there has been the sharp impetus in new business and commercial growth, influx of people from outside, new housing and so on.

Not all of these trends have been harmonious, and the recent change in city governments is, in part, a reflection of their movement. But by and large Belleville is heading in the right direction. There is concern of course at several levels — the universal one regarding spiralling ceilings and the quality of education — a crime rate which may be less troublesome than some communities but nevertheless cannot be shrugged off. After all, nothing is perfect.

Our squelchy spring has at least brought the foliage to full maturity so that now, with the sun making hesitant overtures, the general scene is one of verdant beauty. Our downtown and suburban shopping offers a pleasant stroll along Front Street those selfsame leafy trees show through the shady entrances to riverfront parking lots. Noticeable too — and this is as pleasing as any — the other day at least as we passed along, a comparative absence of litter. Let's keep things that way, as well as resolving to stay on the track of improvement generally. One way to do it: support the Kiwanis Club's marathon for development of Bayshore Park. A sign in a window at the Four Corners puts it this way: "Your steps will make a greener tomorrow."

U.S. Problems

Possibly nowhere are the extremes of good and evil more in evidence than in the United States — from the very best in terms of man's creativeness and humanity on the one hand, to the depths of evil and bizarre behavior on the other.

Watergate is but one manifestation of the worst, at the political level. Where law and order are concerned, the breakdown at the individual level is often total, with overtones of sadism and moral and mental instability.

In Georgia recently five male members of a farm family and the wife of one of them were found shot to death; the woman had been raped. Taken into custody in West Virginia were three men, described as escaped convicts.

And from West Palm Beach, Florida, comes word that the murders of two teenage girls may be connected to the deaths of a dozen or so fewer than 26 South Florida women.

"State Attorney Robert Stone is quoted as saying it may be the greatest crime in the history of the United States." In a country where crime makes an inordinate impact on the population, where it is aggravated, almost encouraged, by lurid coverage both in crime magazines and on television, and where (in California) recently a man was convicted in the slayings of a large number of migrant farm workers, where the memory of the Manson clan murders still haunts citizens, Stone's statement has brutal significance..

Such events are among the less salubrious in the affairs of a country whose undoubted greatness is under pressures no less eroding than those which toppled the Roman Empire long ago. If our own society is to survive, let us avoid these selfsame problems and pressures.

Population and Use of Resources Must be Curtailed

Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce Commercial Letter

It is the paradox of our time that the very progress achieved by man in the technological and social fields which was originally intended to improve his way of living now poses' challenges to present and future generations. Until recently it has been attuned to what was considered an infinite indestructible world and has assumed that his ultimate has simply been a matter of his own ingenuity and drive. It has now become clear that the earth's gross and resources are limited, and therein lies the great crisis of our time. As a result, public opinion is questioning many of the values, attitudes, and institutions on which the successes of the Western industrial society rest. Individuals, corporations, civic groups, and governments are mobilizing to conserve resources, to control pollution, to anticipate and prevent environmental problems, to manage the land more wisely and to preserve the wilderness. We are in the midst of a revaluation of a more profound and fundamental nature than the social and political revaluations of the nineteenth century.

The world-wide ecological crisis has three main components: the population explosion, urbanization and the damaging encroachment of an exploding and unregulated technology upon man's physical and socio-cultural environment. Until recently, each have been hailed as indications of growth and standards of the success of public policy. More people with more money anyway more modern and more leisure and producing and consuming more per person each year represented both our individual and collective aspirations. Yet these have in recent years increasing quantities of land, water and raw materials. They result in heavier pressures on the environment, causing more pollution, more crowding in our cities, more traffic congestion, more land and water being destroyed, and more species threatened with extinction.

The colossal growth in population is of particular significance for the quality of man's environment. For most of the time that man has existed his numbers have been small. Damage to his environment has been local and well within the assimilative capacity of his surroundings. Coupled with the more rapid growth in population the trend toward increasing urbanization has also continued. The effects of the environmental pressures are thus magnified and reinforced by the people and economic activity in ever-larger urban centres. Traffic congestion, noise, air and water pollution increase with density size: Recreation areas become overtaxed and less accessible, and privacy diminishes. Facilities for solid waste disposal become overburdened and expenditures increase. In short the amenities which life may afford are harder to come by and more costly.

As world population grows, there is increasing apprehension over the dwindling supply of land and natural resources needed to satisfy the demands of this burgeoning people. The earth's finite resources include also the finiteness of the biosphere to absorb waste products. Until recently, our technological systems were hardly considered as an organic part of the environment; hence little attention was given to this aspect of their function. Now they are consuming scarce resources at an unsustainable rate and are polluting the air, land and waters with their by-products and their materials and by-products.

A number of recent events have served to give focus to our growing concern about man and his environment, his culture, and his values. They include the publication of The Limits to Growth, and A Blueprint for Survival, and the United Nations Conference on the Human Environment. These events have drawn our attention to the inherent weaknesses in our social systems that could lead to greater difficulties if left unchecked. We also see in them the beginning of a kind of synthesis of various disciplines and the concern of different nations of the world who, although their hopes and anxieties may differ, all face the common experience of being in environmental deteriorating under numerous strains and stresses.

The Limits to Growth was a study under - taken at the request of the Club of Rome, an informal group of individuals from many countries, who are concerned with the present and future predicament of man and who are trying to persuade governments, industrial leaders and others throughout the world to face the facts of environmental problems and to take appropriate action while there is still time. The study used a computer model of the world developed by researchers at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology to measure the interacting forces "that might determine and therefore ultimately limit growth on this planet."

The study warns that, if present trends continue, the limits to growth on this planet will be reached some time in the next hundred years. World population, which took 100 years to rise from one billion to two billion and just 40 years to rise to two billion to three billion will now, unless present trends are reversed, take only 33 years to double from the 1970 total of about 3.6 billion. Natural resources are being depleted at an even faster rate. According to the calculations in the study, within 100 years, nearly all the important reserves will either be exhausted, or in such short supply as to be prohibitively expensive.

Some of the most interesting findings relate to arable land. The world has 7.9 billion acres of arable land. The most fertile and accessible are already cultivated. Most of the rest would need to be won from marsh, clear, irrigate and fertilize, however urgent the need. Even if all possible land were so reclaimed, it would not be sufficient to feed a population growing at the present rate and, the planet would run out of land for the people trying to live on it, before the end of the present century. While conceding that available data make it difficult to estimate the breaking point on pollution, the authors warn that practically all pollutants are growing at a faster rate than world population and that growth cannot go on unchecked forever. Rather, in their opinion, can pollution be completely eliminated by technological means, except at a high cost.

The study concludes that in order to avoid such a disaster it must be made to a state of equilibrium from the present course of population and economic growth. The authors do not offer solutions to the problems but they put forward an assortment of options which would help in a deliberate move to a state of equilibrium before natural forces do it in the relatively unpalatable ways. They also suggest that the decision is not simply between growth and zero economic growth but the choice must be made between those aspects which contribute to a better quality of life and therefore must grow in our society — and those things that should be reduced. The following are their most important recommendations. "Population must be stabilized with a birth rate equalling the death rate by 1975. Industrial capital must be stabilized by an investment rate equalling the depreciation rate by 1990. Industry's use of resources must be cut to a fourth of 1970 levels by 2100 to curb pollution. Society must shift its economic preferences from factory-made material goods to education, health facilities and similar services. Attention must be diverted to food production, even at a loss, to help equalize world social conditions. Industrial goods must be designed to last longer and be more easily repaired.

If all this were done, says the report, the world population would stabilize at a level not appreciably higher than it is now. Everyone would have more than twice as much to eat than at present. People would live longer. Industrial output would be much higher and per capita services would triple.

Individual world-wide income would be three times the present average. Though natural resources would continue to be depleted, it would happen so slowly that there would be time for technology and industry to adjust.

Progress Citizen's Encounter with Pollution and Litter

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The desecration of the environment continues at a rapid pace. Many people seem to think the little bit of littering and pollution they cause will do no harm. But each and every one of us should realize that a small amount by each of us soon adds up to a large amount.

Our water, land and air are being contaminated a little more each day. If people would take the time to look and see what is happening, they would demand that our elected representatives take the necessary action now to stop the polluters regardless of who they are.

The evening of May 7, I was at the West end of the Dundas Street bridge. A large area of water in the Moira river was covered with a dirty, greasy scum. It looked like suds and oil, mixed together. I walked along the banks of the Moira river, where quite a few people were fishing in this contaminated water. There was litter wherever you looked.

I walked up a gangway onto Front Street and the first thing I saw was plastic garbage bags broken open and garbage strewn on the sidewalk. There were piles of boxes and other containers with garbage waiting to be picked up the next day. It makes a very unsightly mess and a very poor impression on anybody walking or driving along Front Street at this time.

The litter on many of the streets in Belleville is almost unbelievable. Cans, bottles, plastic containers and almost anything can be mentioned. It comes from construction sites, industry and people who will not take the time to dispose of it in a proper manner.

Alberta, Alberta has launched a determined anti-litter and re-cycling program. In four months time they have collected over 38 million bottles and cans. Refillable bottles are reused, non-refillable can be used in concrete and stucco mixes, cans can be used with old automobiles into a low grade steel.

If Ontario had a similar plan we would collect more than this in one month. We have been promised an anti-litter and recycling program by the Ontario Government for a long time. But they seem to be long on talk but refuse to take the necessary action to solve the problems that are destroying the environment.

We are told that Ontario has some of the best legislation in Canada to protect the environment but such legislation is useless, unless it is enforced against those who would continue polluting for their own selfish interest and regardless of the consequences to present and future generations.

Tax Implementation Creates Ill-Will

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Through its high-handed approach to the sales tax increase; our provincial government has placed itself in the position where it is invalidating legal business documents merely to collect a few extra dollars of tax money.

Our government announced the sales tax increase for the April 12 budget to be effective May 1. Then it made the arbitrary decision that the law should also apply to all items purchased, but not delivered to the customer before May 1.

Now this was an ill-advised ruling, to put it mildly! Any purchase order or bill of sale signed by a customer and vendor, agreeing on a specific total price prior to April 12, is now worthless even if a cash deposit was made. That car, 'frig, or carpet ordered on April 1, but not delivered prior to May 1, now includes a 2 percent penalty to the customer (approximately $100 on a new car) because the manufacturer could not deliver immediately.

This ruling, making the tax increase retroactive to pre-budget days, affects only a small segment of the Ontario taxpayer and thus has caused no audible outcry as did the tax on fuel and electricity. In spite of this, it remains an unacceptable method of imposing a tax and an unsettling example of poor decisionmaking at the government level.

Wiretapping Concerns Canadians

Quebec L'Actio: Otto Lang, Canada's justice minister, has proposed . . . a law to forbid wiretapping except for law enforcement officers in specific cases on authorization of a judge. All provinces are in agreement on the basic principle of this proposed law . . . but Quebec and Ontario would prefer that the right to authorize law officers to use such inquiry techniques be in the hands of attorneys-general and provincial justice ministers.

No current law protects citizens against the threat to the right of privacy which secret wiretapping of listening devices of electronic devices represents.

The present justice minister strikes home when he says there is grave concern because of the Watergate affair. No one would be surprised to learn one day or another that political parties spy on each other on the basis of such devices. But how can this practice be stopped if no law forbids it?

The question has been under examination for years. . . .

How can one explain, other than by the incidence of the Watergate affair, the sudden urgency to adopt a law? Everyone seems to be using or selling electronic methods of wiretapping and spying but this law must correct such abuses without creating new-ones.

Auditor-general Fires Final Critical Salvo

OTTAWA (CP) — Maxwell Henderson has retired as auditor-general but his memory stays on as politicians, the press and the public study his annual report for 1971-72 tabled in the Commons Wednesday.

The report, covering the fiscal year ended March 31, 1972, notes "continual weakening of Parliamentary control." It describes several cases where the government apparently spent public money without parliamentary approval.

MAXWELL HENDERSON

Mr. Henderson retired March 31 at 65 after 13 years as auditor-general. His term was marked by charges of government attempts to curtail his activities and his latest report renews the complaints.

It notes a $81.5-million post office deficit, a possible $4.5-million loss for the CBC by 1975 unless it increases profits at a Windsor television station and the unauthorized use of funds by the defence department to keep open the air base at Summerside, P.E.I.

The auditor-general refused to express an opinion on the accounts of the National Harbors Board because its accounts were in such bad shape.

Other report highlights include frauds in the old-age security program, the failure of the agriculture department to collect several hundred thousand dollars paid out under a wheat inventory reduction program and a destroyer recruitment program that didn't list costs amounting to $53.5 million in its budget.

The auditor-general repeated his complaint that the government has hampered his efforts to hire staff and pursue his audits.

He said the treasury board, the government's own spending authority, has been "unfair and discriminated against the auditor-general" by insisting on diminishing the positions of his 23 top accountants.

The auditor-general's staff in 1971-72 was 288. The requirement for 1973-74 was 353.

The report urges Parliament to set up a management study of government organization to check wasteful spending.

CRTC Would License Master TV Antennae

TORONTO (CP) — Pierre Juneau, chairman of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission (CRTC), said Wednesday the proliferating master-antenna television (MATV) systems installed on many large apartment buildings will have to be licensed to force improvements on the systems.

He confirmed at a news conference statements made earlier Wednesday by Gerard Pelletier, federal minister of communications, who indicated in a speech the possibility of steps being taken to regulate MATV and pay-television systems.

Mr. Juneau said the point would come where MATV would have to be licensed either by joining cable television systems operating in the same areas, or as separate systems.

He said the main shortcoming of MATV is that "there comes a point where important investments have to be made in order to improve the technical quality . . . and those investments are not going to be made unless they are forced to. . . ."

Asked if the CRTC was going to "move in on" the MATV system, Mr. Juneau replied: "Oh, I think so."

Both Mr. Juneau and Mr. Pelletier were in Toronto for the opening day of the three-day annual convention of the Canadian Cable Television Association (CCTA).

No Cut Rate

OTTAWA (CP) — A couple of Conservatives got nowhere in the Commons Wednesday when they urged the government to reduce postal rates for some newspapers and periodicals.

Walter Dinsdale (Brandon-Souris) sought lower rates for the ethnic press. He said the government's announced policy is to support the ethnic press and he asked Postmaster-general Andre Ouellet if he will reduce postal rates raised last year. The increases had forced some ethnic publications out of business.

Mr. Ouellet replied that there are other ways of helping the ethnic press.

Alkenbrack Wants Zambia To Apologize

OTTAWA (CP) — The government should demand a national apology from Zambia for the deaths last week of two Ontario girls, the Commons was told Wednesday.

Douglas Alkenbrack (PC — Frontenac-Lennox and Addington) also said Zambia should pay restitution to the parents of Christine Sinclair and Marjan Dribjer, both 19.

The girls were shot to death by Zambian gunfire as they visited Victoria Falls on the Zambia-Rhodesia border in southern Africa.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said earlier this week that Canada has not accepted Zambian explanations of the incident nor has it sent a formal protest.

Mr. Alkenbrack made the demand during Commons debate on limiting the death penalty to murderers of policemen and prison guards. He said he opposes such a limit.

DOUGLAS ALKENBRACK

Stephen Roman Spent Record $92,103

OTTAWA (CP) — Toronto businessman Stephen Roman spent a record $92,103 in an attempt to win York North riding for the Conservatives in the last general election, the Commons learned Wednesday.

In a written reply to questions from Barnett Danson, the Liberal who won the riding, the Commons was told that this was the largest sum reported to the chief electoral officer by a candidate since 1949, when such records began to be kept.

John Reid, parliamentary secretary to Allan MacEachen, Privy Council president, said three other candidates reported spending more than $50,000 in the 1972 campaign.

They were Conservative James Gillies, who spent $64,278 winning Toronto's Don Valley riding, while Robert Kaplan, the losing Liberal candidate, spent $32,306.

Claude Bernard spent $37,921 contesting the Quebec riding of Portneuf, won by Roland Godin of the Social Credit party.

In written replies to Randolph Harding (NDP—Kootenay West), Mr. Reid said the total cost to the federal treasury of the 1972 election was $20,435,277. Th $9618 election cost $13,841,- 864 while 1965 election costs were $12,974,456.

Pickersgill Wants Voting Funds Abolished

OTTAWA (CP) — J. W. Pickersgill, former Liberal cabinet minister, said Wednesday that party campaign funds should be abolished and all campaign expenses should be paid from the government treasury.

He also proposed that all paid political advertising be outlawed and replaced by limited government-paid advertising time.

Mr. Pickersgill, who resigned as president of the Canadian transport commission last August, proposed his plan for electoral reform in a speech to the National Press Club.

In a program which he said he first offered in 1935, he called for a reduction in the length of campaigns to four or five weeks from the present two-month span.

He said each political party could receive a government campaign grant geared to the number of candidates it nominates.

Chinese Information System Thing of Wonder

PEKING (CP) — China's communications system is no less a source of wonder to foreigners today than it was seven centuries ago when Marco Polo wrote that it was "a thing on a scale so wonderful and costly that it is hard to bring oneself to describe it."

How to explain, for example, that an accidental overpayment of seven fen—3½ cents—in a little Shanghai shop on a Wednesday turns up 800 air-miles away at a Canton hotel Thursday in an envelope addressed to the meagrely overcharged customer? The Canadian customer had been alone and no names were exchanged in the shop.

Or, when a visiting Canadian remarks privately to colleagues one night about minor administrative difficulties in sending cables, how is it that a government official next morning expresses the hope that cabling difficulties have been cleared up?

Foreign visitors, of course, are accorded walking-on-eggs courtesy. It often is only with a sneaky sense of rebellion that one breaks away for a lone stroll, poker into shops other than stores designated for foreigners only or dissuades a solicitous restaurant-teur from ousting customers from a table to make way for the foreign guest.

The communications system clearly works at peak efficiency—telephone, telegraph, transport or word of mouth—to anticipate the needs of the visitor.

But there also is evidence that it works as effectively to spread unifying information and ideas throughout an enormous land that in pre-Communist days was divided by language and dialect, divergent cultures and warring landlords.

How else to explain the fact that farmhands or factory workers, chauffeurs or bureaucrats will offer similar phrases or word-for-word explanations of details raised in questions posed thousands of miles apart?

The system seen by Marco Polo was a paltry scheme compared to the present. The Venetian adventurer was impressed by the fact that a system of imperial highways, radiating from Peking for thousands of miles, was dotted every 25 to 30 miles with luxurious post-houses stabling between 200 and 400 horses.

The animals could speed messages or personages to and from the capital and remote provinces in days instead of weeks.

But communication then was limited largely to messages between the elite mandarin class of governors. Nowadays, the message reaches the remotest peasant commune instantaneously, if the state so decides.

The telephone is prominent, at least in the cities, with little yellow telephone signs jutting out from stores only a few doors apart. There are telegraph, news services, radio, and, lately, television.

In farm fields, there are poles with loudspeakers that blare music, inspiration and news to working peasants.

Movies are inexpensive, with admission to Peking cinemas just 12 cents for adults, five cents for children. The screen is dominated by revolutionary drama.

The New China news agency is probably the most potent force for the dissemination of information and ideas. Although the Cantonese dialect may be Greek to the Pekinese and vice-versa, the written language is understood by all Chinese.

No Decision Made Yet on Truce Team

OTTAWA (CP) — No final decision has been made yet to withdraw or leave Canadian troops in the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS), in Vietnam, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp told the Commons Mr. Sharp said he is "puzzled" to hear that a weekly newspaper in Nova Scotia, the Dartmouth Free Press, had reported that the Canadian contingent with the ICCS would be withdrawn early in July.

Replying to Michael Forrestall (PC—Dartmouth-Halifax East), Mr. Sharp said that the government is anxious to see political prisoners now held in Vietnam released but added that the ICCS had limited responsibilities in this area.

Commission responsibilities had been limited to checks that prisoners on release lists actually were being freed.

Gathercole Alters Claim Moog-Davis Tie Discussed

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hydro chairman George Gathercole Wednesday withdrew a statement that the hydro commission had discussed a friendship between Premier William Davis and developer Gerhard Moog before it awarded the Moog firm a contract for a $44-million commission headquarters building last year.

Mr. Gathercole told a special legislature committee inquiring into the deal that he must have been mistaken when he testified Tuesday that a commissioner had mentioned at a meeting that the Davis-Moog friendship could cause "embarrassment."

In his earlier evidence, Mr. Gathercole had stated he thought commissioner Roger Seguin, an Ottawa lawyer, brought up the subject when the deal was being discussed.

But he said Wednesday Mr. Seguin had since denied mentioning it and other commission members and personnel had no recollection of it.

"Perhaps it was just a reflection in my mind of what has ensued in recent months," he said in reference to criticisms of the contract that led to the setting up of the selectcommittee to explore it in detail.

Much of the Hydro chairman's evidence Wednesday was directed toward assuring the committee that there was nothing cut and dried in advance about the selection of Mr. Moog's firm, Canada Square Corp., to undertake the commission's first venture into the field of lease-purchase construction for the building to house staff and facilities now scattered over a half-dozen Toronto buildings.

While a sequence of study analyses by commission officials apparently veered toward Canada Square as 1971 wore on, Mr. Gathercole insisted that at all times during this period the field was "wide open."

During this time he had met Mr. Moog once but there had been no reference at their brief meeting—held at Mr. Gathercole's request—about any relationship between the premier and developer.

"I had no knowledge of anything like that," he said.

Under persistent questioning by James Renwick (NDP—Toronto-Riverdale) and James Bullbrook (L—Sarnia) as to what they talked about, Mr. Gathercole said that they "just said hello and talked of general things."

"Why were you interested in meeting Mr. Moog?" asked Commission Counsel R. E. Shibley.

Mr. Gathercole pointed to previous evidence that commission experts had become interested in a lease-purchase deal the Moog firm had made with the government's Ontario Institute for Studies in Education.

"I looked on the OISE building as a possibility and I wanted to sense a little who these people were, without getting entrenched," the chairman replied.

He added that at about the same time he was meeting Mr. Moog for "five or 10 minutes," he also was seeing other developers interested in the Hydro project.

Capital Punishment Debate Nears End

OTTAWA (CP) — MPs have agreed to get their views on capital punishment on the record in the Commons Wednesday as an end to second-reading debate on the death-penalty bill approached.

Debate on the government bill, which would continue for five years a trial suspension of the death penalty for most murders, enters its 10th day today.

But after this evening the Commons is expected to devote only one more day to the measure at its present stage. That will be Tuesday, when a vote is planned.

Should the bill pass, and there are indications it will, it goes to the Commons justice committee for study before returning to the House for final approval.

The Senate then has a chance to debate it.

Allan MacEachen, government House leader, says the government hopes for approval of the bill before the summer adjournment.

Thirteen MPs took part in debate Wednesday on the bill, which would eliminate hanging as the penalty for all murders except the killing of on-duty police officers and prison guards.

Winemaking---No Better Time

Taxes on imported wines are going up and the dandelions are out. These seemingly unrelated factors make it a good time for novices to begin winemaking.

Gordon Davies, of the Belleville Winemaking Guild says "There's no doubt about it. More people will start making their own wine. A good bottle of homemade wine costs from about 49 to 50 cents a bottle."

The scope for wine ingredients is endless. Most commercial wines are made from grapes. Grapes contain all the ingredients in the right proportions, for making perfect wines. But wines can also be made from cultivated fruits like apples, pears, peaches, apricots, plums, oranges, lemons, pomegranates, quinces, cranberries, blueberries or bananas.

Any of the wines made from the above may be made sweet or dry, still or sparkling.

You can make wine all year, though fresh fruits are only available in the summer. Concentrates for wine may be purchased with other wine ingredients.

1. It satisfies their creative interest and they have a sense of accomplishment when they make their own wine.

2. If properly made, homemade wine can taste every bit as good as commercial wines.

3. Wine also gives pleasure to the creator who selects his own flavor and carefully watches his wine during the processing.

For winemakers, his shop provides all ingredients. In fact, there's a mixture available that has already gone through the first fermenting stage in wine making.

The beginner misses "Getting the feel of making his own wine" if he uses the pre-fermented mix.

Basic materials required for wine making are a plastic vat or pail for making the ingredients. Plastic only, not metal as the metal causes acidity in the mixture; an air lock or fermentation lock, either rubber or cork that may be used again; a gallon jug or carboy which holds five gallons; a plastic sheet to cover the mixture to keep out bacteria and unwanted yeast germs; siphon tubing used for "racking" the wine from one vessel to another; sugar, yeast and campden tablets for sterilizing and aging. Sterilization and temperature are important in making wine. The average temperature required for wines is 70 to 75 degrees fahrenheit.

Wine is required to sit for at least six months. But that doesn't mean it goes unattended. "Racking" or siphoning the juice from one vessel to another is necessary. Gordon Davies' classes at the Belleville Recreation Centre use a hydrometer to check the wine's sugar content. When wine is completed, it has two-thirds of its sweetness gone. The wine solution also needs stirring during the primary fermenting stage with a wooden spoon.

A "settling" forms in the bottom of the bottle during the "secondary" stage of wine fermentation.

For dandelion wine enthusiasts, Gordon Davies has several suggestions. Dandelions should be picked during the middle of the day. Some recipes require the heads or flower-part of a dandelion while other recipes ask for only the petals.

(Dried dandelion petals may be purchased.)

DANDELION WINE

8 cups dandelion petals
3 lbs. white granulated sugar
1 lb. light raisins or 10 oz. white grape concentrate
4 level tsps. acid blend
2 Campden tablets

½ tsp. yeast energizer
1 gal. (160 oz.) hot water
¼ tsp. grape tannin
wine yeast

Use only dandelion petals. Cut up raisins and put all ingredients except wine yeast in primary fermentor. Pour gallon of HOT water over ingredients and stir to dissolve sugar. Cover with plastic sheet. Add yeast when mush is cool (70-75 degrees F.) Ferment for 3 days, strain, siphon into gallon jugs or carboy and attach fermentation lock. Rack in 3 weeks. Make sure all containers are topped up. Rack again in 3 months. When wine is clear and stable, bottle. To prevent oxidation add 1 antioxidant tablet per gallon, or 1 level teaspoon ascorbic acid per 5 gallon. Age 6 months.

Other dandelion wines include: raisins, oranges and lemons. If made now your dandelion wine will be ready for your Christmas poultry.

Happy Wife Answers 'Very Afraid' Needn't Be

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I should like to tell "Very Afraid" it is not necessary to be so. I was a virgin until I was 25, and found it a perfectly natural thing to be. Now, at 33, I have a loving husband and a beautiful baby, and would not have anything different about them. My husband was the first and only man to make love to me, in the physical sense, and we are happy that this was so, although I believe he would not have held a past affair against me.

And although, as you say, there is really no connection between frigidity and premarital sex, I think it quite possible that this frightened girl, if she is determined to lose her virginity, could give herself such an unpleasant experience that she might enter marriage (if she ever does) in a state of something very like frigidity, which it would take a very understanding husband to help her out of.

I would say this, "Very Afraid": Don't do anything rash, or act out of fear. There is no reason on earth why you should experience the sexual act if you don't want to: indeed, that would take away the main point of it. You will find, I hope, that when you have a man whom you love and who loves you, with whom you have some basis of friendship and understanding and shared experience, and to whom you want to commit yourself, the act of love becomes exactly that. And if it is "technique" about which you are worried, just remember when you marry that you will have the rest of your marriage in which to practise and improve it — together — In Love — For Life.

Dear In Love For Life: Your message may be just what "Very Afraid" needs to restore her natural common sense. Are you reading us today, "Very Afraid"?

Dear Doris: My mother is constantly going to Bingo and spending her last cent. She will go in the afternoon and again at night.

She will even borrow money to go. What can I do? Is there any help for her? — Desperate Daughter.

Dear Daughter: For some people gambling — of any kind — becomes an addiction; and this is what has happened to her. Could be a response to some deep lack in her life, not necessarily financial.

She needs adult help to get back her sense of responsibility and to be rid of her obsession. Perhaps even professional help. She may have to lose a good deal more of this world's goods before she comes to her senses.

Your father might be able to reach her. Is he aware of all this? And have you the nerve to talk to him?

Dear Doris: I have had similar symptoms to "Boy Eighteen and Waning To Fall Through the Floor". Although I am very intelligent and talented these symptoms ruined my life in every respect up till now.

Many psychiatrists said there was nothing wrong with me, but now I find I have a mild form of schizophrenia.

I am now taking the Abram Hoffer multiple vitamin therapy and it is helping.

Anyone that has similar symptoms to Boy Eighteen should go to their library and read extensively about schizophrenia. No two schizophrenics have the same symptoms nor personalities. — A Cure At Last.

Dear Cure: You will be interested that in the case of "Boy Eighteen" the psychiatrist to whom I referred him has been able to rid him of the phobias which left him so completely frightened of people. Apparently his trouble was not the same as yours.

I was very glad that you have at last had your own mental illness diagnosed and are getting treatment. Mild schizophrenia is not easily recognize, as you point out."

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT RUNDLE

Rundle — Griffin

Sharon Marie Griffin and Robert Edwin Rundle were united in marriage in April at Carnilton United Church by Rev. John Morrison.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Griffin, Cloverleaf Drive, Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Muriel Rundle, of Rexdale.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a peau de soie gown and carried a bouquet of mums. They were mauve headdresses.

A reception was held at Gilead Hall.

Women Tour

The annual meeting of the Canadian Federation of University Women (Belleville and District) took place at Bayside Secondary School where Linton Reid, principal, outlined the open school concept to the members and conducted a tour of the building.

Three scholarships to local women will be awarded next year with proceeds of the recent book fair.

Ann Landers 'Still Praying' Going Nuts Husband's 'Inadequate'

Dear Ann Landers: Please help me. I am going nuts. Here I am—35 years old, married ten years, one miscarriage, no children. My husband and I both have had all the tests—nothing wrong with either of us, the doctor says, but the reason we don't have a family is that my husband has a low sperm count (not sterile, just low) and a very weak sex drive.

Can you imagine after ten years of what I thought was a great marriage and a well-adjusted sex life to be told that I will probably never be able to have a child because my husband is sexually inadequate? And what do you think this has done to him?

Whenever I read in the papers that someone has beat a child to death I cry my eyes out. How I'd love to have had that little one. And then I keep reading about abortions, vasectomies, The Pill, and girls who throw babies in garbage cans and leave them in churches. (A few weeks ago someone left a newborn baby on a plane!) I'm so depressed I could die. It just isn't fair. Sign me—Still Praying In Kentwood, Michigan

Dear Praying: Who ever said life was fair? Every word of what you have written is true. I suggest that you consider adoption or a foster child. I also suggest counselling for both you and your husband. The notion that he is "inadequate" because he has a low sperm count is absurd. All it takes is one, honey.

Dear Ann Landers: I would like to know if our ten-year-old son is normal. He keeps his room straight, makes his bed, dresses and feeds his dog without being reminded. However, he don't think he would ever take a bath, change his underwear, get to school on time or do his homework if I didn't prod him.

I know mothers who leave for work at 8 a.m. and return long after their children have returned from school. Their kids make their own breakfast, straighten their rooms and handle all their responsibilities without being policed.

Am I expecting too much from a fourth grader? If I am I wish you'd tell me.—Checking In Colorado

Dear Checking: Your child sounds normal to me. Those other youngsters are out of the ordinary, which is often what happens when children are given responsibilities and made to understand they must perform certain tasks—no ifs, ands, or buts. They do it because it is expected of them and nobody gives them any medals.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm married to some kind of a nut who thinks every physical problem is caused by something emotional. This goes for headache, backaches, fallen arches, and even a head cold.

Last week my face broke out. I'm sure it was something I ate but my husband says no—it's emotional. I had acne when I was a teen-ager and this eruption looks a lot like the old stuff but I can't believe a 38-year-old woman would break out with a fresh case of acne.

I'm not asking for a diagnosis through the mail. What I want to know is this: is there any connection between acne and emotional problems? I say no. What do your dermatologists say?—Philadelphia Reader

Dear Phil: They say yes. In fact, it is not uncommon for a person who has a history of acne to get reoccurrences during times of stress all through his adult years. The skin is often a true reflector of one's emotional state.

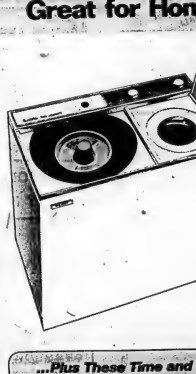
Moffat Twin Tubs and Dryers

Great for Home, Cottage or Apartment



MOFFAT TWIN TUB WASHER

It's just 30" wide and keeps out of sight under a counter, in a closet, any little corner. It handles a 7 lb. laundry load and on washdays it rolls up to the kitchen sink, bathroom basin — wherever there's hot water, and gets turned on. Everything moves according to the program you preset for specific fabrics. In the wash tub, the spiralator agitator, recirculating lint filter, detergent dispenser all go into action. Then the high speed spin + rinse tub takes over and in the end, everything comes out white, bright and iron-ready.

Classy Classics

Israeli fashions flown to Canada for the occasion were presented to Belleville audiences Wednesday at Sons of Jacob Synagogue.

The Belleville chapter of Hadassah-Wizo presented the show.

"In honor of Israel's 25th anniversary as a state, the Synagogue is celebrating by showing Israel's "haute couture" from prominent designers," Flo Yanover commented to more than 350 afternoon and evening guests.

"Classics with elegance are here to stay and that describes our fashions," she said.

Amid an elegant and ultra-modern silver setting — complete with sculptures contributed by local artists — suedes and leathers opened the show.

Only Israeli suedes and leathers have such "butter-like softness."

Beach-wear this summer from Israel will be bolder and more colorful than ever, she said, adding that the designers have a unique approach to color and texture.

"These fashions could be wall-hangings," Mrs. Yanover said.

Silks made an appearance in evening wear, too, including a purple silk evening gown with bare back and criss-crossed front straps.

Models were Mrs. Jo Gist, Mrs. Joy Wannacott, Mrs. Norma Fahlstrom, Mrs. Vivian White, Mrs. Joan Horne, Mrs. Marilyn Robins and Mrs. Alice Miller, Joseph Basch, and Charles Lear.

"Israel Originals" will continue tonight at 8:15 p.m.

Prisoner Gets Bill For Return

QUEBEC (CP) — Marc Cayer, a prisoner of the North Vietnamese for five years, says he received a bill for $1,279 from the federal government for expenses incurred following his release, but was not asked directly to pay it.

"I received the bill in April when I applied to the agriculture department for a job," he said in an interview Wednesday.

"A letter with the bill asked who was going to pay it. I said 'Not me'."

Another letter from the external affairs department dated May 1 suggested that Mr. Cayer "take up the matter" of his expenses with the Washington-based International Voluntary Services (IVS). Mr. Cayer was working with the IVS as an agronomist when he was captured.

"The bill has been sent to the organization (IVS) in Washington and they are to discuss arrangements with the Canadian ambassador in Washington," Mr. Cayer said.

Mitchell Sharp, external affairs minister, said in the Commons earlier Wednesday that at no time had Mr. Cayer been asked to pay any expenses but merely to list them.

Mr. Sharp, replying to a question from Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, told the Commons there has been no change in the government's position on pay expenses for Mr. Cayer and Lloyd Oppel, another Canadian who had been held in Indochina.

HENRY KISSINGER

Returns Home

PARIS (Reuter) — Vietnam peace negotiators Henry Kissinger and Le Duc Tho will meet again in two weeks to conclude their discussions on shoring up the precarious accord they worked out here early this year.

Kissinger, President Nixon's national security adviser, flew back to Washington Wednesday night to report to the president after telling reporters "significant progress" had been made in his 20 hours of talks over the last week with Hanoi politburo member Tho.

Welcome PoWs

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — President Nixon arranged the biggest and most spectacular White House gala in history to day to welcome home 600 prisoners of the Vietnam war.

Morale Low

ST CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — The morale of the Niagara Regional Police force has gone "right down to the boot straps", as a result of amalgamation of police forces in the Niagara Peninsula, an Ontario government study group assessing police in the province was told Wednesday.

Honor RCMP

OTTAWA (CP) — The Government House ballroom became a sea of red Wednesday night at a ball honoring the 100th anniversary of the founding of Canada's national police force.

Now known as the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, the force was created as the Northwest Mounted Police and later was called the Royal Northwest Mounted Police.

Commissioner W. L. Higgitt and Gov.-Gen. Roland Michener were at the head of the receiving line through which passed Prime Minister and Mrs. Trudeau and seven of the 10 premiers attending a federal-provincial conference.

Raise Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — With Watergate on their minds and "watergbups" on their tables, Democrats raised $1 million for 1974 congressional races at a banquet Wednesday night.

Protest Death

LONDONDERRY (Reuter) — Quiet returned to Ulster's second-largest city early today after another full day of protests by residents over the death of a young man apparently hit by a rubber bullet.

Residents of the city's former "no-go" areas of Bogside and Creggan hijacked vehicles and erected barricades for the second consecutive day Wednesday and fired occasionally at troops who moved in to clear the roads. No casualties were reported.

20 Hostages

LUCKNOW (Reuter) — Police mutineers still held 20 of their officers hostage today as troop reinforcements rushed to the troubled Indian state of Uttar Pradesh. A rebellion by state police has left at least 40 dead in three days.

Plan Increase

TORONTO (CP) — Organizations representing trucking operations in Ontario and Quebec and the United States have established a tentative proposal for rate increases for international traffic of up to five per cent beginning in July.

A report to the 300 members of the Canadian Industrial Traffic League says the proposed new rates are scheduled to go into effect July 2 for two-way truck traffic between Ontario and U.S. points and on July 9 for traffic between Quebec and the U.S.

Eleven Lynched

CALCUTTA (Reuter) — At least 11 persons have been lynched or beaten to death in West Bengal in the last few days on suspicion of being headhunters, child kidnappers or dockers of blood from human carcasses, said a statement issued here by the West Bengal government. The government said rumors such people exist were completely unfounded.

Recycle Papers

TORONTO (CP) — The ministry of the environment announced Wednesday that it and the nearby town of Brampton will conduct an experimental program this summer on the separation and collection of old newspapers for recycling.

Two Assaulted

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Two London women, one a former stripper, were assaulted sexually by at least seven men Sunday at a campsite in nearby Exeter as part of the initiation rites of a Windsor group, police said Wednesday.

Insp. Dennis Alson of the provincial police said about 17 men attended the rites, but about half were merely spectators.

He said one of the women in in hospital here suffering from an overdose of drugs. The other was treated and released.

CF-5 Target Of Henderson

OTTAWA (CP) — Maxwell Henderson who has uncovered major scandals in the armed forces over the years, manages a couple of pokes at one of his favorite targets Wednesday in his last report as auditor-general of Canada.

The now-retired watchdog over federal spending castigated the government for the way it bought and sold CF-5 aircraft. He also took some parting shots at the trouble-plagued destroyer Restigouche.

He complained that the forces are providing transportation for everybody from the Governor-General to MPs and reporters without payment.

And he talked of such things as an armed-forces bridge demolition that started a forest fire, of the fact that it cost the department $78,000 to fire one man and of interns training to be armed forces doctors who received double pay.

Mr. Henderson said the ridiculous manner in which CF-5 aircraft were bought and sold in 1971 was "clearly devised to circumvent parliamentary control" over the spending of money that rightfully should have been in the public treasury.

He was referring to the sale of 16 single-seat and four dual-seat CF-5 interceptors to Venezuela for $33,200,000 and the purchase of 20 dual-seat models from Canadair in Montreal for $48,200,000.

It says the final result is that the Canadian Commercial Corp. received $34,113,200 in cash, most of which should have gone into consolidated revenue, where Parliament would have a say about its spending.

It gives some examples of transportation being provided without fee or full recovery of the cost. These include:

—Flights to London, Amsterdam, Brussels, Luxemburg, Istanbul and Iran by the Governor-General in 1971. A total of 36,000 miles of transportation was provided on 15 occasions during the year for the Governor-General.

—Provision of 967,000 passenger miles for the health department in flying Canadian athletes to various national and international events.

Navy Mutiny Foiled

ATHENS (Reuter) — Greece's army-backed government foiled a mutiny on three ships of the Greek Navy early Wednesday, a government spokesman said here today.

The undersecretary of press and information, Byron Stamatopoulos, said two retired rear-admirals and a few active navy officers were arrested after the mutiny attempt.

Stamatopoulos said an attempt had been made recently by Greeks living abroad to penetrate the armed forces and create an underground organization among them.

The two rear-admirals, Constantine Engolfopoulos and Ioannis Mineos, had convinced a number of active officers to stage a mutiny in the three ships.

Chief Brings Band Prosperity

CHIPPAWA HILL, Ont. (CP) — James Mason, chief of the Seugeen Indian reserve, has seen his goal of five years ago accomplished and feels it is time to step down as leader of about 700 Chippewa band members.

During the last five years he has battled municipal and provincial authorities and saw his band clinch from economic doldrums to near complete self-sufficiency.

His struggle involved taxing of cottagers on the 17,000-acre reserve, nestled along Lake Huron, about 25 miles west of Owen Sound, Amabel Township, in which the reserve is located, had been taxing about 1,500 non-Indian cottagers who lease property from the band.

Mr. Mason says the Indian land is not Crown property but land held in trust by the Crown and not subject to taxation.

The issue was resolved May 15 when the Ontario government passed legislation setting up a fund to compensate municipalities for loss of revenue formerly generated from taxing property on Indian lands.

When Mr. Mason was elected chief five years ago, the cottagers were paying rents as low as $30 a year but township taxes cost them up to $250 a year.

Through a new leasing agreement reached with the band, cottagers now pay annual rents based on 7% per cent of the market value of their properties. The rents range from a low of about $148 to $250 for lakefront property.

In addition, cottagers pay an annual service fee of $75 which covers police and fire protection, garbage collection and road maintenance. The band provides the services.

Mr. Mason has seen the annual operating budget of the band grow to about $82,000 this year from $17,000 five years ago.

At present, he has lawyers studying the possibility of recovering 23 years of back taxes paid to the township. Last year, the township levied $125,000 against property on the reserve.

With the withdrawal of municipal taxation, Indian bands may be in a new competitive position to attract development.

Mr. Levert says the band should be solvent in about four years and be able to take on total responsibility. "I am nearly out of a job here."

House Burned

PICTON — Fire early today destroyed a 1½-storey frame home on Lake St. near the outskirts of Picton.

The alarm, turned in by a neighbor who spotted the flames, was answered by the Bloomfield - Hallowell Fire Department. Mr. Scanlon, at home alone when the fire broke out, escaped injury.

Fire Chief Ralph Risdon said the burning house already was a glow in the sky when firefighters reached Wellington Street.

While firemen extinguished flames in the main part of the house it was impossible to douse the blaze on the roof and it was necessary to allow the roof sheeting to burn out.

Total damages have not yet been estimated. A provincial police spokesman said the house was insured for $8,000.

Marlbank Road Claims Two

TWEED (Special) — A Marlbank area girl escaped injury Tuesday when her car went out of control about 7 miles east of Highway 37 on the Marlbank Road and rolled over. The car, driven by Dianne Patricia Kauffman, 16, of RR2, Marlbank, received $200 damage.

Rodger Lynn Kimmett, 19, of Marlbank suffered a fractured leg and bad lacerations when his car went out of control on County Road 7A, six miles west of Marlbank and struck a tree. Mr. Kimmett was not found until 5 a.m. Wednesday, when he was taken to Lennox and Addington Memorial Hospital. Damage to the car was $500.

Dundas Sewer Gets Funds

A $20,000 allocation in the 1973 Belleville budget toward a public works maintenance management study in the city was transferred to an account for new storm sewer construction before the new budget was approved Tuesday.

The halving of a provincial subsidy for the study ruled out its possibility in 1973 and the previously earmarked $20,000 was diverted to meet a commitment made several years ago.

It will be used to build sewers for geared - to - income and senior citizens' housing on Farley Avenue, a road yet to be completed off Dundas Street East. City Engineer Wilbur Purcell, said the new work was a reconstruction of a storm sewer on the north side of Dundas East at Farley running from Loyalist Drive to Farley Avenue, just east of the Unemployment Insurance Commission offices.

"It was a commitment made several years ago," he said. "The present sewer is too shallow and too small."

Demorestville Man Injured

PENWOOD GARDENS — A Demorestville man is a patient in the intensive care unit of Belleville General Hospital today following a one-car collision on Highway 14 at Penwood Gardens early last night.

Injured was 26-year-old Richard Adams, driver and sole occupant of the car. He sustained multiple injuries in the accident that caused an estimated $2,000 damage to his vehicle.

Volunteer Firefighters' Course Will Go Ahead at Loyalist

Beginning next October, the first of what is hoped to be a series of courses will be launched at Loyalist College covering basic techniques and preventive measures.

The course, lasting 12 weeks and including 30 hours of classroom and field instruction, was outlined to senior officers from 16 volunteer departments at the college Wednesday night.

The first session, designed for chiefs, deputy chiefs and other supervisory personnel, contains such vital aspects of fire control as sizing up a fire situation, learning to use basic equipment, rescue methods, household inspection and identifying special hazards.

"It's basically the same course as you would get in a fire college, though not in as much depth," said Clive Pope, district representative of the Ontario Fire Marshal's office, who is acting as an advisee to the project.

The volunteers, members of the Hastings-Prince Edward Mutual Fire Aid Association, have been striving to launch their own course for more than two years. Recently, they sought the help of county councils to pressure the Fire Marshal's office into organizing a course, but were turned down because of budget limitations.

However, an appeal to Harold Butterill, director of extension services at Loyalist, met with more positive response and together with a committee from the Mutual Aid Association, they organized the course.

The initial session for senior officers will, it is hoped, be followed by another 30 hours of instruction for regular force members next spring. If all goes well, the two groups will alternate courses annually until the firemen are satisfied their supervisors have accumulated as much special training as necessary, at which time the program will take a different direction.

"We are hoping seminars for everyone in the community will evolve out of this," Mr. Butterill told the volunteers. "This could lead to complete public fire knowledge."

Class size will be restricted to 25 students, with another night set aside if more expressed interest. Cost to each participant is $15, although letters are being sent to municipal councils asking that the fee be reimbursed if the student successfully completes the course.

"Each person will cost the government between $150 and $200," said Mr. Butterill. "We will also be supplying $203 worth of visual aid equipment and at least $1,000 in books."

He said volunteer courses have been established at other Ontario Community Colleges but all were abandoned for lack of participation. However, he added this was the first course to divide senior personnel and remaining partitimers into separate sessions.

Instructor will be Ray Reid, a 26-year veteran of the Belleville Fire Department, who also serves as instructor for the force's captains. He said equipment would be borrowed from various volunteer outfits, with the college making its laboratories available for in-school demonstrations.

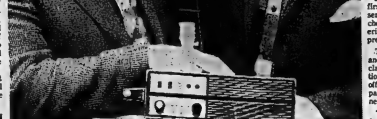
One man who has been instrumental in launching the program is Bob Pearce, a volunteer from Thurlow township and chairman of the Mutual Aid Association's educational committee. He said there are many new developments making the need for up-to-date information.

"The manufacturing industry, for example, has really come along," he warned. "Building materials, new chemicals — firefighters have to be prepared.

Another supporter is Belleville Fire Chief Leo Culhane. Comparing the curriculum to material his own professionals study, he commented:

"They will get the same as what Ray teaches our men."

First of the two-hour Tuesday classes is scheduled for Oct. 2 with the final lesson to be given Dec. 18. Highlight is a six-hour exercise one Saturday in October — possibly in Aikens Road quarry — that will include instruction in hydraulics, ladders and extinguishers.



Volunteer firemen in Hastings and Prince Edward Counties are being urged to attend a basic course in firefighting that starts next fall at Loyalist College. Two figures in the 20-hour program are organizer Bob Pearce, (left) a volunteer from Thurlow Township, and instructor Ray Reid of the Belleville Fire Department.

Dock Plans Requested Before $3,000 Grant

A request by Alderman Stu Meeks on behalf of the Harbor Improvement Committee for $6,000 to build docks was trimmed Tuesday to $3,000 and granted, provided a plan is submitted to City Council.

"We feel that by getting the dock building under way a revenue of $2,400 a year would result through improving the esthetics of the inner harbor area," said Ald. Meeks. "There are a great number of people with no where to dock — visitors will have nowhere to tie up and we will lose a lot of tourist dollars."

He said funds were needed to get dock construction under way. "The $6,000 I'm asking for would not be for wages," said Ald. Meeks. He added the labor would be provided voluntarily and that several companies were making donations of materials.

But the committee has to have funds to get this under way," he said. "If a boat came in, now, it'd turn around and go away — there would be no place for it to dock."

Alderman Dr. John Sucst said he sympathized but would not support devoting funds until it was seen what was going to be done.

"Would you reconsider and go to $3,000?" asked Ald. Meeks.

An amended motion by Alderman Art Keegan was carried giving the Harbor Improvement Committee $3,000 funds the $41,000 contingency fund after plans had been submitted to council.

Ald. Meeks voted against the motion, protesting the requirement for plans before the money was made available. "This will only hold us up for another two weeks," he said.

Mother's Sentence Reduced in Appeal

TORONTO — Mrs. Eleanor Faye Davis of 6 Janlyn Cr., a mother of seven, whose only financial security over a five-month period came from $1,-550 in mother's allowance payments she fraudulently obtained, will serve 28 days in jail.

The Ontario Court of Appeal Wednesday reduced a 90-day sentence against her. She pleaded guilty last December to defrauding the public by failing to notify the Ontario ministry of community and social services that her husband of 14 years had returned.

In their majority judgment, appeal court judges Mr. Justice W. F. Schroeder and Mr. Justice C. L. Dubin also deleted a two-year probation term and an order to make restitution imposed by Provincial Judge J. L. Clendenning.

"I don't see how a mother of seven could go out and get a job and pay this back," Mr. Justice Schroeder said. It was an empty gesture."

The third judge, Mr. Justice J. N. Brooke, said in his minority report he felt there was an error in principle in imposing a jail term because of the circumstances of the case.

At her trial, Mrs. Davis, 38, admitted she had received five monthly cheques of $200 between December, 1971, and April, 1972, after her unemployed husband had returned. She said he did not contribute any money and she feared that by notifying the authorities, she would lose the first financial security she had known in her marriage.

Mrs. Davis' lawyer, Mrs. Sidney Murray of Belleville, appealed the sentence as being "unduly harsh considering the age, character and personality of the accused whose sole purpose in life was to provide for and protect her seven dependents."

She added the money had been used in support of the family and not spent "on high living". Included in the mother's purchases were a refrigerator, living room furniture, bunk beds, a clothes dryer and a television set.

Mrs. Murray told the hearing her client was appealing the jail sentence because it would probably result in her children, ranging in age from three to 14, becoming wards of the Children's Aid Society.

Mrs. Davis had already served two days in jail prior to the appeal.

Doug Finlay ACLD Speaker

Doug Finlay, senior coordinator of children's services for the mental health division of the Ontario ministry of health comes to Belleville Thursday night with an impressive history of working with disturbed children behind him.

He will address the Quinte Chapter of the Association for Children with Learning Disabilities at Quinte Secondary School at 8 p.m.

Mr. Finlay, a social worker received his degree at Brothers in Toronto before joining the staff of a hospital for music and treatment centre for disturbed children. He was director of the Assistant Children's Village in Ottawa and United Nations advisor on child and family welfare" in Bankok, Thailand from 1961 to 1964.

Before joining the Ontario health ministry he was director of a residential treatment centre in Vancouver.

Mr. Finlay's address Thursday is Oliver Ontwisted, living and learning with children and their problems. The public is invited to attend.

Convocation Coverup

Lorrie Pound of Loyalist College pauses while adjusting draping over the school's lectern. Students and staff will "make good use of the stand Saturday during the annual convocation ceremony. Conferring of diplomas and certificates begins at 2 p.m., followed by a reception.

Half City Grant Requests Are Cut Back by Council

Recreation grants were also made in; Minor Sports $12,000- Kinsmen Pool $2,000;

Of the 24 grant requests received by Belleville Board for 1973, half of the organizations got the amounts they sought. Six many faced reductions.

The United Community Services asked for $15,000 and received $12,000. Belleville Chamber of Commerce asked for $10,000 and was granted $9,000. The Quinte Kiwanas Club appealed for $2,000 to ward their swim program and were allocated $1,000.

Belleville Family YMCA fell $1,500 short of their $10,000 request and the Victorian Order of Nurses fell short by the same amount from their $2,500 request.

The Central Volunteer Bureau received $1,500 of their $2,000 request. The Highlands of Hastings Tourist Association was granted half of its $1,000 request, the Quinte-Hastings Recreational Trail Association has not received any allocation in response to its $500 request. Down $300 from their requests were the Canadian National Institute for the Blind seeking $1,500 and the Quinte Santa Claus Parade Committee seeking $1,000.

The Central Ontario Chamber Masters Association asking $300 was granted $150. A grant of $500 was made to the Salvation Army Summer Camp though they had not stated their deficit, which in the previous year was $1,075.

Other grants made were: Essex Flood Relief, $200; Hastings County Museum, $6,-750 (representing one half of the Museum's operating costs) Canadian Mental Health Association, $100; Ontario Secondary Schools Athletic Association, $300; Chamber of Commerce Convention Bureau, $500; Horticultural Society (Garden Club), $500; Rotary Club, $200; and the Belleville District Employment Committee, $250.

Ballerinas Successful in Exams

Ten students of Quinte Dance Centre in Belleville were successful in passing the examinations this month at the National Ballet School in Toronto. An eleventh was successful in auditions at Ryerson and York University. Working out at the barre, the youthful grade 2 and 3 students demonstrate the form they learned in the first year the ballet school has operated in Belleville. A two-week summer course in July will follow the closing of the winter session of the dance centre June 16.

Ameliasburg Museum Opens

Karen Hamelink, just starting her new job as assistant attendant of the Ameliasburg museum slops during her duties to leaf through an old family Bible. The museum, housed in a converted church, operated for summer business last Sunday. The building itself is billed as the largest attraction this year, being dated at more than 100 years old.

Designated Hitters Have Bang Up Time

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Three-run homers by Carlos May and Sal Bando featured a bang-up night for designated hitters in the American League Wednesday night.

May's blast helped Chicago White Sox defeat California Angels 5-3 and Bando's homer led Oakland Athletics to an 8-6 victory over Texas Rangers.

Designated hitters totalled 11 hits in 31 at-bats in the five league games, an average of .355.

In other games, New York Yankees beat Detroit Tigers 6-5 as designated hitter Jim Ray Hart collected one hit in three appearances; Boston Red Sox tripped Milwaukee Brewers 5-3 as DH Orlando Cepeda had one hit in two at-bats, and Minnesota's designated hitter, Tony Oliva, had two hits in four times at bat to help the Twins defeat Kansas City Royals 8-6.

Five games are set for today, including two afternoon encounters—Milwaukee at Boston and California at Chicago. Night games have Cleveland at Baltimore, New York in Detroit and Minnesota at home to Kansas City.

May's three-run homer capped a four-run seventh inning for the White Sox.

"Bill Singer's tough enough but they allow him to use vaseline, or whatever it is he puts on the ball," said Tanner. "Everybody knows he throws the spitter."

Bando slammed a three-run homer in a four-run second inning in Oakland's triumph over Texas. Reliever Horacio Pina gave up only one run in five innings of relief to gain the victory.

Matty Alou delivered a two-out double in the inning, driving home the tie-breaking run in New York's victory.

Rico Petrocelli knocked in two runs and had a hand in two others, leading Boston over Milwaukee. The damaging blow by the Red Sox' third baseman was a two-run single in a four-run fourth.

Inside Park Homers Come 2 at A Time

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

An inside-the-park home run is not common and two in one game is almost unheard of. Dick Parker accomplished the feat Wednesday night to pace Woodstock Warriors to a 6-5 victory over London Dukes in Ontario Fastball League action.

In the only other game, Toronto overcame an early 7-0 deficit to post a 5-2 win over Kitchener.

Parker's two home runs highlighted a 13-hit Woodstock attack. Bill Fidlin went the route in gaining the victory, allowing only six hits while striking out 10. Three of those came in the seventh inning when London counted its only run.

Joe Adam was tagged with the loss.

At Kitchener, Toronto laced losing pitcher Keith Wagler for 10 of their 11 hits including three singles by Marty Tweyman. Winning pitcher Dwight Vanderveer allowed only five hits and contributed a two-run double at the plate. Frank Haylow drilled a run-scoring triple for Toronto.

Ron Bumstead was Kitchener's top hitter with a triple and double.

Following Wednesday's action, Woodstock moves into a second - place tie with Newmarket—and Welland in the league's eastern division. Toronto takes over second place in the western division, Kitchener is third and London fourth.

Expos Lose to Cubs

Reds Are Economical

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If it today's world, credit Cincinnati Reds with a sense of economy. A five-ish offence is about as economical as an attack can be.

The Reds used only one wasted single Wednesday en route to a 4-3 victory over Houston Astros.

In other National League games, Chicago Cubs edged Montreal Expos 4-2 in 10 innings and San Diego Padres nipped Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3. Three games—St. Louis Cardinals at New York Mets, Pittsburgh Pirates at Philadelphia Phillies and San Francisco Giants at Atlanta Braves—were rained out.

Only two games are scheduled today—Atlanta entertains San Francisco and New York is at Los Angeles.

Cincinnati's first hit was a third-inning home run by Denis Menke.

The Astros had tied it in the fourth, but in the bottom of the fourth, Joe Morgan walked, stole second, went to third on a sacrifice and scored on a wild pitch.

In the fifth, Concepcion singled and Menke walked. An attempted sacrifice forced Concepcion but Menke made it third on a throwing error, scored a moment later on Rose's bunt single. That gave the Reds three runs on three hits.

It looked good until the next two out in the Astros' half. Then Jesus Alou doubled and Tommie Agee and Roger Metzger followed with triples, tying the score. In the bottom of the ninth, Johnny Bench singled, moved up on a sacrifice and scored on Concepcion's hit.

The victory moved the Reds into second place in the National League West, Chicago's East Division leaders picked up some ground by beating Montreal in 10 innings.

Chicago had tied the game 2-2 in the seventh with a bases loaded walk to Glenn Beckert driving home one run and Rick Sawyer's single delivering another.

Fred Kendall's bloop single delivered San Diego's winning run in the eighth inning after homers by Willie Crawford and Bill Russell tied the game for the Dodgers in the seventh.

Pitcher Mik Corkins honored for the Padres.

Plenty of Hits, Runs

Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund and Bob Blaind-Red Barn picked up Belleville and District Ladies' Softball League wins in games played at Alemike Park Wednesday.

Sue Morton got the win for BYBF going the full seven innings. And she got plenty of hitting support from her mates who solved the slants of T. Bailey Roofing pitchers Nora Barberstock and Donna Brant. Final score was 15-8.

Donna Preston led the hit parade for the winners with four base hits while Sheila Smith, Marj Reid and Sue Morton checked in with three each. Trudi Hudgins added two safeties to the BYBF production.

T. Bailey Roofing catcher Evelina Hill sparked the losers with three hits. Irma Cook blasted a home run and Debby Weese cracked a triple.

Red Barn-Blaind—Red Barn league, game with Belleville Brushmen produced a total of 37 runs, Broadloom came out on the short end of a 31-26 score.

Pitchers Suzanne Fobert for the winners and Marianne Sills each tolled the full seven innings. The lengthy stint on the mound did not seem to bother the girls as they each had very good nights at the plate. Suzanne hammered four doubles and a triple while Marianne helped her cause with two doubles and a single.

Cheryl Kelly pounded out two doubles and a triple for the winners, while Margie Scanlan and Sandy Babair each supplied three safeties. Janice Lucas had a home run and Jackie Fraser two triples. Chris Smith was in the mood for extra base hitting for the losers. She connected for a homer, a triple and a double. Janet Smith also belted a homer to go with a single.

Horwood Finishes Third In Spot Play

By AL ZABAS
Staff Sportswriter
(Fifteenth of Series)

In the last five games of the regular season, Dave Horwood said, "I was being played more. I'd never seen that much ice time all year."

The 19-year-old left winger finishing his third and final year with Belleville's Jr. B team played "more or less spot filling. I figured maybe Moe wanted to get the younger guys into the line-up."

But when he was played more regularly at the tail end of the Bobcats' 36 game schedule, Horwood felt that he was "getting better on my skates".

Since part of the working hockey player's responsibilities rested in night school courses, he was forced to miss the first game of the playoff series against the Peterborough Lions.

DAVE HORWOOD
. . . gets more time

"After that, I couldn't expect Moe to change the line-up."

After scoring three goals and assisting on six over 31 games in the regular season, Horwood played only two games in the three sets of playoffs.

"I wanted to play," said Horwood, "but I understood then, that the Bobcats were winning and really couldn't change the lines to fit me in. You just wouldn't want to be on the team if you didn't think you could do as well as the other guys on the ice."

Despite the winger's desire to play, Horwood sensed those five games at the end of the season could have brought him around to the calibre of play he displayed in earlier years in the Eastern Ontario Jr. B League.

Because he was working and not sitting down at school, the Point Anne resident was "just getting tired faster out on the ice. I didn't feel in shape during most of the regular season."

Bannons Post First Low Net

Doug and Fran Bannon teamed up to post the first low net in the Belleville Golf and Country Club's mixed two-ball open invitational tournament Monday. First low gross was carded by Betty Ingram and Dave Henderson.

Second low net, Jim and Lois Gill; second low gross, Ian and Marge Cowley; third low net, Doug and Lorna Bennett; fourth low net, Jerry and Doreen Carlisle.

The Bay of Quinte Country Club and the Amherstview Golf Club were represented at the event.

June 3, the Belleville Golf and Country Club's mixed four ball club tournament will be held.

Third Straight Win For CTC and French

Canadian Tire rolled to its third straight Industrial Softball League win of the season Wednesday, taking a close one from Stewart Warner by a 7-5 score. CTC pitcher John French logged his third win on a six-hitter, striking out five and walking one.

Fred Davis and Dave Marvin shared the pitching for Stewart Warner, fanning five and walking a pair while being touched for six hits.

The winners came from behind an early 3-0 deficit to take the lead with a four-run burst in the fifth and then outscored the opposition 3-2 in the final inning.

Brooke Bond stopped UIC 7-2 in the only other Industrial League game Wednesday. Tom St. Jules spun a neat three-hitter to get the win. He retired 11 on third strikes and walked only one.

Sharing the mound chores for the losers were Rick Sullivan and Pete Hamilton. He allowed 11 hits while striking out four and walking five.

Ron Jury and Bill Belnap got to St. Jules for a double each and Mike Ferrisi had the only other UIC hit, a single.

...the tire now on 1973 cars

This fine tire is now being factory-installed on many 1973 cars. And that says a lot about riding comfort, performance and all-round dependability. (Because no car maker would ever scrimp on something as important as the tire.) The Firestone Sup-R-Belt has a husky polyester tire body for a cushioned ride. And two strong belts of Fiberglass under the tread to stretch tire mileage . . . improve driving control . . . and protect you from impact damage.
This is one great tire at any price.
But at prices like these . . . it's a marvel!

BMSA Game Results

In Belleville Minor Softball Association t'ke games played to date, Foster and O'Neil Moira Beverages topped Richard Ellis Printing 23-11. Kiersten Hawks outscored Shelter Sheet Metal 21-3 and Sun Luck Gardens edged Tuck Appliances 14-13.

Jeff Platte paced the Fraser and O'Neil squad with three hits including a triple. David Wright, David Mohor, Robert Terry and Todd Doxtater each banged out two safeties. For Lucas Spear, John Blackwell supplied three hits with two for David Hodgins. Robert Vader poked a homer.

In Muire's win, David Phillips, Timmy Harris, Stephen Smith, Billy Curry and John Gibson collected three hits apiece while Dwayne Emery slammed a home run and a team were Terry Wickett, Mark Green and Bruce Harper with three each. Kirk Brown stroked a homer. Pitcher Bruce Harper notched 11 strikeouts in a losing cause.

Sun Luck's Todd Gore slammed a grand slam home run in the first inning during the close win over Tuck Appliances. Second baseman Allan Bunnett turned a fly ball into a double play. R. McGrath had a homer for the losers whose pitcher Paul Clarke recorded 12 strike outs.

Two peewee games were played. Red Shark slapped Shell Combines 7-4 while Richard Ellis Printing overpowered the Mead Johnson squirt all-stars 18-7.

Mixed League Awards Night

Team and individual awards were presented by 1972-73 president Don Allan who was assisted, by president elect Lou Desjardins.

Blackhawk Motor Inn was rewarded for successfully defending the championship the team took during the 1971-72 season. Team awards also went to the Four H's, the Minors and the Blackhawk Motor Inn for winning their sections.

Jessie Hunter, rated one of the top women ten-pinners in the area, held the season high average for the ladies while Howard Kinnear led the men.

Also recognized for individual efforts during the season were Dee Sward, Barb Ward, Pearl Allan, Sandy Pycock, Judy Breman, Jack Hinchey, Ed Gutenie, Howard Workman, Warren Shell and Don Finkle.

BEARS TRADE SMITH

CHICAGO (AP) — Safety Ron Smith, holder of three National Football League career records in kickoff returns, was traded Tuesday by Chicago Bears to San Diego Chargers for an undisclosed future draft choice. Smith, 30, who also played with Los Angeles and Atlanta in an eight-year pro career, has the record in total kickoff returns at 220; most return yardage at 5,535, and most combined kickoff and punt returns at 267.

Gregory Wins Feature

By CECIL S. PAUL

Earl Gregory of Frankford took the super feature event as the Brighton Speedway opened its 1973 season before a large crowd Saturday. Gregory forced to settle for two third place finishes in earlier races, took the lead with four laps to go in the feature and turned the last lap in 21 seconds flat, fastest time of the night.

Sixteen of the top cars on the night's performance lined up for the feature with the eight taking their place behind the aces. In the early going, it appeared as if Picton's Barry Jones might pilot his six cylinder entry to the win but he was overtaken by Ron Bowers of Oshawa in another six with seven laps to go.

Gregory had his eight on Bower's bumper for three laps before opening up No. 22 and taking a lead he never surrendered. Bowers was second and Dave MacAdam of Oshawa third.

The honor of taking the first checkered flag of the new season went to Trenton's Max Firestone who drove Blue Max to an easy win in the first race of the night, a six cylinder qualifier.

In a pre-race feature, the top five cars judged on their looks were selected. Winner of the $25 first prize was Rose O'Hara of Trenton with car No. 6.

The other winners in their order of selection were: Mike Bolton, Trenton, No. 227 ($20); Max Firestone, Trenton, No. 354 ($15); Earl Gregory, Frankford, No. 22 ($10) and Garnet Juby, Rossmore, No. 200 ($5).

Speedway action continues this Saturday night at 7:30.

Consecon Stages Late Rally

Connecting for six runs in the seventh inning, with Steve Tripp's three - run homer highlighting the scoring explosion, Consecon fought back to earn an 8-8 tie with O'Brien's in Monday Prince Edward North Shore Softball League action.

Veteran Pat Maracle lord the rubber for O'Brien's and was touched for 13 hits. Wayne Clarke and Art Kellar shared the pitching for Consecon and between them they all-wed six safeties.

A two-hit pitching performance by Earl Colion sunk at Wannamaker and Bolley Stables to a 4-2 win over Picton Oats in the other league game.

Three Year Contract For Flyers' Shero

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Fred Shero, coach of Philadelphia Flyers of the National Hockey League, received a new three-year contract Wednesday as a reward for the team's improved performance, and to discourage offers from the rivals in World Hockey Association.

The 47-year-old Shero's original three-year contract had one season remaining, and there were reports he had been approached by the WHA. He joined the Flyers in June, 1971, after 10 years in the New York Rangers' organization.

Shero guided the Flyers to second place in the NHL West Division last season. Philadelphia went on to defeat Minnesota North Stars 4-2 in the best-of-seven game quarter-final Stanley Cup series, but lost 4-1 in the finals to eventual champion Montreal Canadiens.

In Shero's first year, the Flyers missed the playoffs when they lost the last game of the season to Buffalo Sabres in the final three seconds. A tie would have given Philadelphia a playoff spot. Since then Shero has brought the Flyers along by developing such talent as Bobby Clarke and Rick MacLeish, both 100-point scorers last season. MacLeish scored 50 goals in his first full season in the league.

Blind Golfers Beat Two Pros

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Those who couldn't see made it look easy, but two professional golfers, each of them blindfolded, had more trouble than they bargained for in an unusual golf match.

Pat Browne Jr., a New Orleans lawyer, and Charlie Boswell of Birmingham, Ala., two of the world's finest blind golfers, easily beat touring pro Freddie Haas of Metairie, La., and Jiminy Self of the Bogus Hertzee Country Club course Tuesday in suburban Belle Chasse.

The four played four holes, primarily to promote the 38th annual national blind golfers tournament at the New Orleans Country Club this weekend. Twenty-one blind golfers from the United States and three from Canada will compete in the 36 holes event over the 6,400-yard course.

The Canadians are Claude Pattimore of Hamilton, who won the American tournament in 1963, Nick Genovese of Dundas, Ont., and Phil Lerdbouse of Prince Albert, Sask.

Pattimore, who started playing golf after he was blinded in a dynamite explosion in 1948, still holds the record low score of 86 for an 18-hole round in North America can blind tournament play. He set that mark in winning the 1963 American title.

Browne, blinded in an automobile accident seven years ago, played the first two holes in Tuesday's exhibition in par fours.

Boswell, commissioner of finance for the state of Alabama, had a double bogey on each of the first two holes.

Haas, who played on the tour for many years, had a six on the 375-yard first hole but took an 11 on the second.

Haas missed his tee shot on the first hole with a mighty whiff and asked, "Do we count that?"

"We count 'em all," replied Boswell, blinded in an explosion during the Battle of the Bulge in the Second World War while rescuing a man trapped in a burning tank.

The foursome played only four holes because, as Browne put it, any longer "would drive the guys who can see right up the wall."

CAHA, IIHF Dispute Over Tour Sanctions

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — A jurisdictional dispute between the International Ice Hockey Federation (IIHF) and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association (CAHA) may end in litigation if the association follows a suggestion made Wednesday by outgoing president Joe Kryczka of Calgary.

Kryczka told delegates to the 57th annual convention that the CAHA may seek a court injunction to prohibit a European team from playing in Canada unless their tours are sanctioned.

Noting that the international scene had become of vital importance, Kryczka said "our interpretation of the IIHF regulation is diametrically opposed to the views held by their president, J. F. (Bunny) Ahearne

"Mr. Ahearne believes European teams can engage in exhibition games with professional clubs in Canada without CAHA permission.

"I strongly suggest that if the IIHF and Mr. Ahearne persist in this attitude, the CAHA should apply to the courts for an injunction restraining the Russians or any other European hockey team from arranging tours in Canada without our consent."

"We have never said that the CAHA disapproved of games between the Soviet Union and National Hockey League teams," Kryczka said, "but we are determined that all such tours must be sanctioned by this association.

"The National Hockey League is not anxious to have a confrontation with the CAHA," Kryczka said, "and that is the reason all games in the upcoming series between the Russians and WHL teams are being played in the United States."

Kryczka's comments followed a report to the plenary session by Gordon F. Jickes of Ottawa, CAHA executive director.

Jickes was reviewing a report of his visit to the World Hockey Congress in Moscow in April.

Jickes said there were three items of primary importance evolving from the congress. One was open competition for the world hockey championship, another was open competition for the world junior championship, and a jurisdictional argument over which association had the right to sanction tournaments between European and Canadian clubs in Canada.

In the evening, Gordon L. Bennett, minister of justice and acting premier of Prince Edward Island, was guest speaker at a dinner sponsored by the province. He acknowledged that the CAHA had an untarnished reputation as leaders of hockey in this country, and asked the association to "forget about professionalism at the minor hockey level.

"The interest of these young players will be best served by supporting a program that provides "sheer enjoyment," he said.

Earlier in the day, T. B. McCormack of Thunder Bay, Ont., vice-president of the minor hockey congress, told delegates his group was "concerned about the effects of pressure on boys under 10 years of age playing in organized groups.

"We hope all aspects of this concern will be thoroughly investigated by the CAHA's technical advisory group's subcommittee on research," under the chairmanship of Dr. George Lariviere of the University of Quebec.

McCormack said he hoped the results of the study would be applicable to all minor sports.

Footing It For Funds

Apps Tempted to Jump 'If'

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Penguins of the National Hockey League have lost their players this year to the World Hockey Association, and star centre Syl Apps is looking over his shoulder.

Apps told the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette by phone from Kingston, Ont., Wednesday that he would be tempted to jump if the new WHA franchise in Toronto had negotiating rights to him.

Cleveland Crusaders of the WHA have been negotiating with Apps, lawyer Al Eagleson, but Apps doesn't seem too interested in making a move there.

"If Toronto owned my rights in the WHA.. he said, "that would be a different matter.

The Ottawa franchise has been shifted to Toronto for the coming season.

Apps' home is in Kingston. The 25-year-old bachelor's father, MHL Hall of Famer, Syl Apps, is Ontario' minister of correctional services.

"If I'm going to jump," Apps said, "it'll be to a city I really like. After you jump, you don't have a chance to go anyplace else."

Apps, however, made it clear that he is not unhappy with Pittsburgh.

"The Penguins have treated me well," he said, "and other than Toronto, Pittsburgh is the best place for me to play."

Apps says the Penguins have offered him both two-year and three-year pacts.

"I'm not opposed to signing for two years," Apps said, "as long as the money's there."

Meanwhile, left wing Steve Cardwell signed Wednesday with Minnesota Fighting Saints of the WHA, the second Penguin to jump to the WHA in a week. Reserve goalie Cam Newton earlier signed with Chicago Cougars.

Johnston Is Ready To Play for Leafs

TORONTO (CP) — Eddie Johnston said in a telephone interview from his Boston-area home Wednesday he intends to join Toronto Maple Leafs for the 1973-74 National Hockey League season.

"I'm definitely going to Toronto," said the 36-year-old goaltender who was traded earlier this week by Boston Bruins to complete the ill-fated Jacques Plante deal.

Plante was acquired by the Bruins in a late-season deal that was expected to bolster Boston's playoff chances. The club was knocked out of the playoff picture in the first round.

Plante indicated after the season ended he would be back in Boston again next season but subsequently signed a 15-year pact as general manager-coach of Quebec Les Nordiques of the rival World Hockey Association.

Earlier this month, WHA President Gary Davidson said the Raiders had been sold to another New York business group, headed by Lee Madigan. During the WHA meetings in Toronto last week word leaked out that the Madison group paid $2 million for the franchise.

Saints Sign 2 From the NHL

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota Fighting Saints of the World Hockey Association signed two players from the National Hockey League Wednesday, taking defenceman Rick Smith from California Golden Seals and left wing Steve Cardwell from Pittsburgh Penguins.

Smith, 24, had nine goals and 24 assists for California in his first full season with the Seals in 1972-73.

Cardwell, 22, had several injury problems in 1972-73 but scored nine goals and eight assists in the last 17 games of the season.

Gaels Topple Legionnaires

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Oshawa Green Gaels downed St. Catharines Legionnaires 17-13 in an Ontario Lacrosse Association Junior A game Wednesday.

Green Gaels scored seven consecutive goals during a 13-minute stretch from late in the second period until early in the third to go from a 9-8 deficit to a 15-9 lead.

Tom Patrick had four goals for St. Catharines. Bruce Richardson, John Howe and Scott Hudson picked up two each, with John Mouradian, Joe Martin and Mike McGrath getting the others.

The Penguins, however, would feel the loss of Apps. He is the spark-plug of the team. Last year he set a club record for assists.

Penguin general manager Jack Riley said Wednesday night that he "doubts very seriously if Apps will leave."

The Coach Remains

New Owners and Name

NEW YORK (CP) — The New York entry in the World Hockey Association will have new owners and a new name but the coach will be the same next season.

The club announced Wednesday that Camille Henry has signed a one-year contract to coach the Golden Blades, formerly the Raiders, in the 1973-74 season. No figures were disclosed.

The Golden Blades also announced they had acquired defenceman Ray Larose from Houston Aeros in return for the paid negotiation rights to goalie Ron Grahame of the University of Denver.

Larose, of Quebec City, played in 68 games for Houston last season and scored one goal and 19 assists.

Last season, the original owners of the New York club, lawyers Dick Wood and Seymour Siegel, had personal problems as well as fiudicial ones and were not able to meet the payroll of the team with the season less than two months old.

The WHA took over the franchise in mid-November and paid the club's operating expenses for the rest of the season.

'Group' Really One-man Band

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — The Blue Ridge Rangers, with two hit records sound like a group, but it's John Fogerty doing it all himself, on drums, organ, electric bass, acoustic bass, saxophone, electric guitar, acoustic guitar, pedal steel guitar, cornet, fiddle, banjo, piano and all the vocal parts.

Fogerty is the rock artist who wrote, arranged and produced hits for Creedence Clearwater Revival, the band that cut eight gold albums and seven gold singles in five years for more than $100 million in record sales.

Fogerty, 28, started his career at age 8 with a mail order guitar. He was the one who told the other three Creedence members how and what to play.

As Creedence climbed up charts around the world, the others wanted more of a voice. Fogerty's brother Tom, a rhythm guitarist, was first to leave, about 18 months ago. The two others left last October.

The group had been together since high school and Fogerty took the breakup hard. Now, after what he calls a depressing winter, he is making his album.

"Starting the Blue Ridge Rangers, well, it was just always more appealing for me to be in a group," Fogerty said. But he didn't want to trade on the Creedence reputation or his own name.

So he named his "group" after the country music song Blue Ridge Mountain Blues, which used to inspire Creedence when it warmed up in hotel rooms before concerts.

"This was the only way I'd know if the music was being accepted for what it was," he said during an interview in a big, dark recording studio at Fantasy Records on the rundown Berkeley waterfront. Around him were the 20 or so instruments he plays.

Fogerty tapes each musical segment, or track, separately, starting with acoustic guitar and drums. He then mixes the tracks into a record. Other rock stars have used the technique, most notably Paul McCartney after he left the Beatles, but Fogerty may hold a record for variety.

Fogerty slips into calling the Rangers "we" or "the group."

"It's because I think that way in my mind . . . once the other tracks are laid down, like the drums, that's another person that's there. . . . I'll say things like 'turn that drummer down.'

"It's always been my goal or dream to make a record I'm totally satisfied with," said Fogerty.

"I realize in here that I can aim at perfection. . . . There's just something so nice when everything works out like it's supposed to, sort of a flash that's over bit as real as a standing ovation at Madison Square Garden.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

FRIDAY, MAY 25

Aries (March 21-April 19): The less you rely on travel, the better. Expect delays and interruptions in your work, have alternatives ready.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Patience and tact become stronger factors in your success. It's a difficult day at best—don't make it more so.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Big question can wait a bit. Small issues take several needs and should be regarded as temporary.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Early diligent action, sound preparation put you over the top today. You'll later see a turning point has been achieved.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You must learn more about letting others work at their own pace and in their own way. Differences of opinion are likely.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): What you can do about today's conflicts may be limited. Near-at-hand details are most amenable to adjustment.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A vigorous expression of your basic drive is easy—try to channel energy into constructive directions.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your tendency to blurt out the truth in abrupt words spreads; others now become blunt and forthright.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Even a small discrepancy can lead to long-term expense. Wild stories abound. Be sure you haven't fallen for one.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Thrift is emphasized. Set aside spare funds. Keeping up with friends becomes impossible. Give yourself out of competition.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Temper is out of place, pugnacutal progress. Take circumspectional care in using mechanical or electrical things.

CROWDED CONTINENT

To Your Good Health

Sex Included In Home Theraphy

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband had a stroke six months ago. He doesn't have the use of his arm and can walk only with a cane.

He has therapy two days a week, an hour each time. We feel that is not enough therapy. What is your opinion?

He will not have sex relations for fear it will set him back in the use of his limbs. Is that correct—Mrs. R.S

As is often the case when I try to answer a letter, I wish I could have been an invisible little molecule, listening to what was said at some of these therapy sessions.

But it also has been my experience that therapists tend to be still in patients the idea that therapy sessions aren't enough by themselves. The patient is supposed to carry on between visits.

The "home therapy" should have to be elaborate. It doesn't have to duplicate the therapy that is given twice a week. What it does require is simply that the patient use his semi-dormant muscles to the greatest extent that he is able.

Since in today's case, the patient can walk, even though he needs a cane, it is clear the paralysis is not complete.

Any exercise that involves use of that leg will be good therapy, whether it is walking or any other movement of the leg. The same holds true of a semi-paralyzed arm or hand. Any activity is therapy. Fingers can be strengthened by holding a rubber ball or some such object and squeezing it repeatedly. Picking up and putting down any sort of objects (toy blocks, magazines, books, anything) helps arms and hands.

The general rule is that if the patient has any motion at all in a limb, it needs to be used to the fullest extent possible.

You don't need some special kind of exercise program. It would be well worth while to ask the therapist for further suggestions as to any sort of activity.

As to the second question, about sex relations, the answer is no. It will not set him back. In fact, it probably will help him.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it true that doing arm circles will build the chest muscles in your breasts? I am quite underdeveloped and have heard this might help.—G.S

No, exercise will not change the size of the breasts, because the relatively little tissue is involved. If exercises improve your posture and thicken the chest muscles under the breast, that can make an apparent difference, though.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have had a pain in my back for five years. My family doctor referred me to an internist, orthopedist and neurologist, and to the University Medical Center. All said I have arthritis.

Now a new doctor who specializes in arthritis says he thinks it is "ankylosing spondylitis." I hope I spelled it right. Do you have a booklet on this, or any information?—M.D.M.

Your spelling is impeccable and your problem is a difficult one. It is arthritis of the spine in which the inflammation has caused fusing of some of the joints. It is discussed in my booklet on arthritis—but you need expert examination, of course. Sleep with your specialist; stooping and exercise in doctor is not likely to help you.

Sacrifice

East dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

The bidding:

| East | South | West | North |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1♦ | 2♣ | Pass | 2♦ |
| 3♠ | 4♣ | Pass | 5♣ |
| Pass | Pass | Pass | |

Opening lead — five of diamonds.

This venture into the unknown apparently intimidated the opponents to such an extent that they failed to arrive at the laydown slam in clubs. Probably South was more at fault than North, who had bid his hand very strongly but lacked the high-card controls in either hearts or spades to justify undertaking a slam all by himself.

In effect, South overcalled with two clubs but did nothing thereafter to identify his controls in the spade suits, which were pearls beyond price. He could have jumped to four clubs over two diamonds or, alternatively, having bid only three clubs, he could have gone on to six after North had jumped to five clubs.

East's enterprise had apparently paid off very well, but, to his great disappointment, he lost points on the hand because, at the second table, the bidding went:

| East | South | West | North |
|---|---|---|---|
| Pass | 1♣ | 1♠ | 3♣ |
| 4♣ | Pass | Pass | 4♠ |
| Pass | Pass | 4♣ | Dble |

North led the A-K of diamonds and West proceeded to play the hand perfectly to go down only two — 300 points — a vagary of luck that rarepercent at the other table who had lost 620 points with the East-West cards.

Declarer ruffed the diamond, drew trumps, ruffed another diamond, establishing the suit, played a trump to the ace, cashed the jack of diamonds, and exited with a heart. The only other trick the defense could now score was the ace of hearts, and West thus went down two for a very worthwhile sacrifice.

Tomorrow: Bidding quiz.

Pilot Finds Desired Solitude At Old Whaling Port in Arctic

HERSCHEL ISLAND, Y.T. (CP) — Bob MacKenzie quit civilization two years ago to watch over an almost forgotten monument to 19th-century whalers.

On this island in the Beaufort Sea, hundreds of miles north of the Arctic Circle, Mr. MacKenzie and his Eskimo wife and daughter are about as far as they can get from urban life.

They live with the ghosts of long-dead whalers. Their nearest neighbors are 150 miles away—two days by dogsled across the barren wasteland.

"We wanted isolation and there is nowhere in the world as isolated as this," said the 32-year-old former sailor, radio broadcaster and bush pilot.

Educated in Saskatchewan and formerly a member of the Royal Canadian Navy, Mr. MacKenzie moved his family here after quitting a career as a flyer with a northern air service.

"It was a question of either continuing to fly or losing my family," he said. "My wife wanted to get away from the city but my job was preventing me from going.

"I never enjoyed city life much anyway, so it wasn't a difficult decision to make."

Mr. MacKenzie, his wife Elizabeth and their three-year-old daughter Mary Margaret live there with Mrs. MacKenzie's father, James Kowani, 79. A frequent visitor is Jonas Meyook, an Eskimo who has lived on the island off and on for 40 years.

Mr. MacKenzie speaks the Eskimo language fluently and at one time was an Eskimo translator for the federal government in Ottawa.

Much of his time now is spent on his traplines, which extend 30 miles over the barren, treeless landscape. He doesn't like to discuss how much money he makes from trapping, but Eskimos who know him will tell you it isn't much.

Why did he choose Herschel Island?

"Because of its remoteness," he said. "Because of the solitary beauty, and because of the intercultural exchange that took place here before the turn of the century."

The exchange occurred in 1889 when San Francisco whalers began using Pauline Cove on the island's southern shore as a year-round base for Arctic whaling operations.

The cove offered protection from the movement of ice and north winds and a permanent settlement soon took form on the harbor's edge. At its peak, the population numbered about 300.

Wives of captains from as many as 14 ships created the first social set in the Arctic. Crew members formed their own theatrical groups to while away the long winter months.

But violent deaths were also a part of the history. Drunkenness and lust led to angry quarrels. Sudden Arctic storms also took their toll.

The island's prosperity was shortlived. By 1906, the whaling industry had declined and the settlement at Pauline Cove was abandoned.

The barracks which Mr. MacKenzie calls home is one of nine wooden buildings remaining from the old whaling days. Among the other structures are the old Pacific Whaling Co. office and a billiard hall.

Warehouses and mission buildings are also scattered along the frozen shoreline.

On a hillside covered in snow are 40 graves, stark reminders of the hostile Arctic. Half of them are Eskimo graves.

Mr. MacKenzie thinks it is important to preserve the historical buildings and grave sites at Pauline Cove.

He and his American physicist friend Nick Cooper, who frequently visits the island to conduct ice studies, want to set up a Herschel Island historical society. The society would aim to preserve the settlement here and research its social and natural history.

But a senior official of Mr. Chretien's department has said all it means is that a plaque will be erected at the site. It does not mean the island has been placed off limits to exploration companies.

"Even if all companies vow to protect the environment as a condition of working here, can you imagine what would become of Pauline Cove if 200 oil workers were to set up a base camp here?" Mr. MacKenzie asked. "In no time, there'd be nothing left."

Patron Named As Member Of Symphony

LONDON (CP) — Sir Jack Lyons, the department store chief who with his Canadian-born wife Roslyn ranks as one of Britain's leading patrons of music, has been made an honorary member of the London Symphony Orchestra—the first non-musician to be thus honored.

Lyons, 56, who was knighted in the New Year's Honors for "public and charitable services to the arts," is noted here for organizing such gala events as the 1971 concert at which Prime Minister Edward Heath conducted the London Symphony Orchestra in Sir Edward Elgar's Cockaigne Overture. The performance became a best-selling record.

3,000 Meet at Toronto For Duplicate Bridge

TORONTO (CP) — "One no trump." . . . "Two diamonds." . . . "Two spades." . . . "Pass."

Variations on this litany were heard for six straight days of up to 18 hours each through the convention halls of a major Toronto hotel.

The chanters were more than a thousand people sitting in fours at hundreds of card tables.

This was a duplicate bridge tournament, one of hundreds held throughout the year in North American under the auspices of the American Contract Bridge League (ACBL).

Approximately 3,000 people played during the six days. An estimated 40 per cent were from the United States. The others were drawn from as far as Halifax and Regina although most were from Ontario.

They were playing not for money or fancy prizes but for Master Points (MPs) with the ultimate ambition of acquiring the 200 needed to be designated a Life Master.

"You become addicted to the game," said Jack Whitehouse of Toronto. He is tournament co-ordinator for ACBL district 7 which covers Ontario west from Kingston.

"If a player wins a fractional Master Point and we can keep him at the game for a year, then we have a confirmed duplicate bridge player."

They have played tournaments all over North America and "when we go to Bermuda —we go to play bridge."

All that is necessary is to be a member of the ACBL (fees: $3 the first year, $5 thereafter).

Tournament fees average $3 for a session of 26 hands, which takes about four hours to play.

At the recent regional tournament, a total of 17 sessions were held during the six days. A few iron-constitutioned competitors managed to enter them all.

"It's a great way to meet and mingle with people," said Mr. Whitehouse. And one doesn't even need to bring a partner.

Douglas Drew of Toronto, president of District 2 and executive director of the Canadian Bridge Federation, estimated five million Canadians play contract bridge at least occasionally.

The game was developed in the 1920s from earlier variations, including English whist, which goes back at least 400 years.

Most people play rubber bridge in which the deck is shuffled and dealt, a game scornfully labelled "kitchen bridge" by the experts.

Duplicate bridge eliminates the luck of the deal. All four hands are pre-arranged. A tournament session consists of 26 pre-arranged hands.

At the end of a session the score of each two-player team is totalled and compared with scores of all the other teams which played the same hands.

Master points are calculated on a formula that considers the rank of the tournament—national, regional, sectional, special or club—and the number of teams taking part. The highest scoring team at a session might receive 50 points. Those with lower scores receive proportionately fewer.

The ACBL, which rules the game in North America, Mexico and Bermuda has approximately 180,000 members. For each it maintains a precise cumulative total of MPs at its Memphis, Tenn., headquarters.

About 14,000 of these members are in Canada, where there are nine regional tournaments every year, plus numerous lower-ranked sectional tournaments. A Canadian member who wishes to travel can take part in any tournament sanctioned by the ACBL.

In 1972 six Canadians were among 229 ACBL members who earned more than 200 Master Points. J. Allan Graves of Vancouver led the Canadians with 741 points. Dr. John Fisher of Dallas, Tex., was the over-all leader with 1,387.

Dr. Fisher and Mr. Graves had to play in about one tournament a week and be among the winners regularly to compile their their totals.

In the rarefied sphere of international team competition, Canada trails only Italy and the United States, principally because of two extraordinary Toronto players, Eric Murray and Stan Kehela, who have been consistently among the big three in annual competition for the Bermuda Cup.

Canada also has scored in the top three among 40 countries in the international bridge Olympiad, held every fourth year.

Cyprus Discussed

Defence Minister James Richardson chats with Cyprus president Archbishop Makarios during his visit there. Mr. Richardson expressed concern about the slow progress toward a political agreement in Cyprus, but was satisfied with the work of the UN peacekeeping force. (CP Photo)

That's All Says Heath

---but Papers Skeptical

LONDON (AP) — The Conservative government appeared today to be in no danger of being forced out of office by the sex scandal rocking Britain.

But most commentators say the scandal, the worst to hit a British government in a decade, has scarred Prime Minister Edward Heath, his government and the party.

Heath assured the House of Commons Thursday that Britain's security has not been compromised because two members of his government had been consorting with prostitutes.

"There are no grounds for supposing that any other ministers or any other member of the public service is involved," said Heath.

A few hours earlier, Lord Jellicoe, the government's Leader in the House of Lords, admitted to having "some casual affairs" with call girls and resigned. Two days before, Lord Lambton, the Parliamentary Force minister and first cousin to Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home, resigned for the same reason.

Despite Heath's assurance that the government's involvement went no further, newspapers were skeptical.

"We shall be very lucky if the people implicated in this case end with those named so far," said The Times.

"The Lambton-Jellicoe scandal is far from being the end of the affair," said the tabloid Sun.

The indiscretion of Lords Lambton and Jellicoe was uncovered by accident in a Scotland Yard investigation of pornography. They were forced into the open by newspaper stories that, without naming any names, said prominent officials were involved with a ring of international call girls and security secrets might have been endangered.

Amid the furore, the Opposition Labor party retained two Commons seats in byelections Thursday by increased margins, but observers were generally cautious about attributing the increase to the Conservatives' troubles with sex.

However, one of the defeated Conservative candidates, David Bell in the industrial town of West Bromwich, commented: "The news of the last 48 hours has had its effect."

Icelanders Wax Hot, Raid British Embassy

REYKJAVIK (Reuter) — Workmen began to clear the debris and repair damage at the British embassy today after a three hour assault Thursday by thousands of young Icelanders hurling stones.

The embassy buildings and grounds looked like a wasteland, with every pane of glass shattered by stones. Damage was estimated at tens of thousands of dollars.

The attack and three hour siege of the embassy followed a mass meeting in Reykjavik's main square to protest the presence of Royal Navy frigates inside Iceland's 50 mile fishing limit.

The three navy vessels moved into the area last weekend to support British trawlers fishing there.

About 100 policemen were on duty at the time of the attack by the 3,000 to 4,000 demonstrators. Police said they did everything possible to avoid the incident and prevented anyone from breaking into the building, where Ambassador John MacKenzie and the embassy staff were trapped. No one was reported hurt.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Southern Ontario's cloud cover was expected to break up enough today to allow temperatures to reach near 70 in most inland localities, with 55 to 60 more common near the lakes. A low pressure system is forecast to move slowly eastward Saturday spreading showers or thunderstorms.

Manitoba Election Is Called

WINNIPEG (CP) — Premier Ed Schreyer, whose NDP forces polled one of Canada's biggest political upsets four years ago in forcing the Conservatives out of office, will seek a renewed mandate from Manitoba voters June 28.

The long-awaited general election call, to cheers from both sides of the house, came early today after the opposition had given speedy passage to remaining items on the legislature's order paper.

Canadian Makes Walkout Threat

SAIGON (CP) — A threatened Canadian boycott of further truce observer operations in South Vietnam remained unresolved today as Hungarians and Poles blocked Canadian efforts to discuss troop infiltration from North Vietnam.

A heated meeting of the four-country International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS), in which Canadian Ambassador Michel Gauvin raised his threat of a walkout and boycott, was finally adjourned in order that the Communist delegations can get further instructions from their governments.

The meeting and the Canadian demand that the subject of troop infiltration be discussed is to be resumed Monday and the Hungarians indicated after today's flare-up that the Communist block will be reinspected.

"We are sick of being intimidated by the Canadians," a Hungarian spokesman said, "We couldn't care less whether they walk out of our meetings or not.

"If they want to withdraw completely from this commission, then let them. There are a lot of people made clear after the adjourned ICCS session that the consequence of his walkout would have been Canada's refusal to participate in further ICCS activities.

The Canadian government is known to be disappointed with the continuing split inside the ICCS and the lack of progress in reporting on ceasefire violations.

External Affairs Minister Sharp is expected to announce next week whether the 290-member Canadian contingent will remain beyond the May 30 deadline set by the government, and the current tend suggests that a pull-out is likely.

Gauvin told reporters that he cannot allow the issue of infiltration to be set aside while the ICCS studied other peacekeeping problems.

"The real problem is whether any member of the ICCS has the right of veto," he said.

Gauvin said he didn't know whether the Canadian government will announce a pullout but he knew what the government was thinking. He declined to elaborate.

The Canadians arrived in South Vietnam Jan. 28 and agreed to remain for 60 days with government later agreeing to another 60-day tour.

Gasoline Scarce

WASHINGTON (AP) — The top Nixon administration spokesman on oil says some United States motorists may find themselves stranded during the Memorial Day weekend because of the gasoline shortage. William E. Simon, deputy treasury secretary and chairman of the oil policy committee, said the situation may be especially serious in resort areas.

Drug Control Costly

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — The per capita costs of policing in Guelph have more than doubled in the last decade and part of the reason is drug enforcement, an Ontario government study group investigating policing in the province was told today.

Advocates Amnesty

WASHINGTON (AP) — A United States Army deserter has been taken into custody after abandoning his underground life to tell congressmen that only unconditional amnesty would soothe domestic conflict left by the Vietnam war. Richard Sowder, 25, of Detroit, surrendered to military police Thursday after testifying before an unofficial House of Representatives hearing.

Peronist in Power

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter) Two trade union buildings were riddled by machine gun bullets as tens of thousands of jubilant people sang and danced in the streets of this Argentine capital to greet the inauguration of Peronist President Hector Campora after nearly seven years of military dictatorship.

Nixon Defends Secrecy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, defending the government's right to keep secrets in the national interest, says it is time "to quit making national heroes out of those who steal secrets and publish them in the newspapers." Nixon brought nearly 600 returned Vietnam POWs to their feet, cheering with emotional enthusiasm.

Davis Takes Licks

OTTAWA (CP) — Ontario Premier William Davis had a few wounds to lick Thursday after two days of bargaining with Ottawa and the other provincial premiers, but he did it with style and grace.

Ontario enters the third and wrap-up day today of the first ministers conference without having achieved a single concession in its basic plea for autonomy in financing medical health and post-secondary education programs. Instead, there was compromise, none to the premier's liking.

Proposals for re-financing health insurance were temporarily shelved awaiting the report by the provinces in the next few weeks to a federal move, made Thursday, to free the restrictions on special aid for insurance health services. And the provinces decided to accept the status quo in the shared-cost arrangements on education, rejecting Ottawa's plan for a new system of unconditional grants based on student population in each province.

Mr. Davis expressed a hope that Ontario could find a way to totally opt out of education cost-sharing in four to five years if the economy continues to grow and university enrolments remain steady or decrease.

Astronauts Orbit Aloft On Skylab Repair Trip

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Three United States astronauts rocketed into orbit today on an unprecedented mission to salvage the crippled Skylab space station and make it their orbital home for a record 28 days.

Riding with the all-navy crew of Charles Conrad, Dr. Joseph Kerwin and Paul Weitz were hopes they can repair the first U.S. orbiting laboratory and save the $2.6-billion project.

A Saturn 1-B rocket blasted away off its launch pedestal at 9 a.m. EDT to start the astronauts on what could be a marathon journey.

Ten minutes later Mission Control reported they were safely in orbit more than 100 miles high.

The 83-ton space station had passed over the Cape Kennedy area minutes before launch and when the astronauts achieved orbit it was about 2,500 miles northeast of them.

With mission commander Conrad at the controls, the Apollo ferry ship was to execute a series of manoeuvres during 1½ hours to track down the target at more than 17,000 miles an hour.

Once there, they will examine damage caused when a heat shield was ripped away during the launch of the laboratory 11 days ago, exposing the lab to the extreme heat of the sun.

They'll determine how best to erect a sunshade to cool the overheated lab and decide whether they can free a jammed solar panel to produce more electrical power.

Agreements Evade Conferring Ministers

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's first ministers seemed to throw everything but the kitchen sink into their discussions Thursday, but the only meaningful agreement achieved was to disagree.

They talked about financing health-care programs, the fight against regional disparity, federal aid to post-secondary education, promoting provincial interests abroad, screening foreign investment, shipping Saskatchewan rapeseed from Nipawin to Vancouver, and co-ordinating the development of engineers.

But they were unable to reach agreement on federal proposals that would have made fundamental changes in the method of financing shared-cost programs like hospital insurance, medical care and post-secondary education.

The first ministers finally decided to toss the health programs back to officials for further study and to continue present education-financing arrangements for lack of any immediately achievable alternative.

Quebec and Ontario had put forward counter - proposals involving transfer of considerable tax power to the provinces, but despite Alberta and Newfoundland support the counter-proposals were not accepted either.

Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa told reporters that although investment tax credit was not adopted, he feels the principle of tax transfers has gained ground.

But Premier Dave Barrett of British Columbia reiterated his opposition to that principle, which he believes he had expressed concern. Thursday he told reporters flatly that the federal proposals for limited tax transfers would be damaging Canadian unity if accepted.

Today the conference moves on to discuss the economy in general, foreign ownership of land and the future of the conference secretariat.

Unnamed Watergate Conspirator Agrees to Turn State Evidence

WASHINGTON (AP) The United States attorney here disclosed that a key member of the Watergate conspiracy has agreed to plead guilty without immunity and to testify as a prosecution witness at trial. He did not identify the individual.

U.S. Attorney Harold Titus said Thursday that after conferring with his three principal prosecutors he has learned that "it is realistic to anticipate a comprehensive indictment within 60 to 90 days."

Government sources quoted in the New York Times identify the conspirator mentioned by Titus as former White House aide Jeb Stuart Magruder. Magruder later served as an assistant to former Attorney General John Mitchell on the Committee for the Re-election of the President.

Titus also said that negotiations currently are under way to get at obtaining guilty pleas and cooperation from others implicated in the wide web of scandals that have come to be known as the Watergate affair.

Addressing himself to speculation that he and his prosecutors would withdraw from the Watergate case, Titus confirmed this had been their intention up to the time of a meeting Wednesday afternoon with Archibald Cox, the newly-named special Watergate prosecutor.

"He urged us, in view of the important work we were doing, that it was in the public interest, that we carry on the development of the case," Titus said. "At this time, I wish to advise you that we will accede to Prof. Cox's request. . . .

In other developments Thursday, the Senate's Watergate hearing recessed until June 5, and former FBI acting director Patrick Gray said that he warned President Nixon last summer that "people on your staff are trying to mortally wound you."

In testimony before a closed session of a Senate appropriations subcommittee—and reported later by the subcommittee's chairman, John McClellan (Dem.-Ark.) — Gray said he spoke to Nixon last July 8.

Gray said he cautioned Nixon after agreeing with Lt.-Gen. Vernon Walters, deputy CIA director, that confusion had arisen about the investigation of Mexican aspects of the Watergate case.

Former CIA director Richard Helms said that last June 23 then-White House Chief of Staff H. R. Haldeman instructed Walters to tell Gray that the FBI should halt its Watergate—connected investigations in Mexico, for fear of uncovering covert CIA activities there.

Gray said Thursday that the message was delivered and the FBI investigation was curtailed for several weeks. But he said he went to Clark MacGregor, the new director of Nixon's re-election committee, and asked him to inform Nixon that Haldeman's orders were causing a lot of confusion.

On July 6, Gray said, Nixon called him and Gray told the president: "Mr. President, there is something I want to speak to you about. Dick Watters and I feel that people on your staff are trying to mortally wound you by using the CIA and the FBI and confusing the question of CIA interest in, or not in, people the FBI wishes to interview."

McClellan said Gray was referring specifically to Haldeman, John Ehrlichman, then Nixon's chief adviser on domestic affairs, and fired White House counsel John Dean.

McClellan also quoted Gray as reporting that after the warning, Nixon paused, then said: "Pat, you just continue to conduct your aggressive and thorough investigation."

Dr. Horne and Mr. Diamantides emphasized that the continuing contribution of the Family YMCA to the community was dependent on volunteers such as those honored.

Trial in Fall

Mrs. Barbara Ann Hinze, of RR2, Plainfield, a former Victoria and Grey Trust Company employee, has been committed for trial in county court in the fall on a charge of theft.

Judge J. L. Clendenning ordered the woman committed for trial for judge and jury following a preliminary hearing this week in provincial court.

Mrs. Hinze was charged with having, last December, stolen money or securities in excess of $200, the property of Miss Margaret Jessie Wright of Madoc.

Defence counsel David Ross made application that a ban be placed on publication of all evidence given at the preliminary hearing.

Four other charges against Mrs. Hinze were dropped.

Dancer Wins College Berth

Paula Vost auditioned this month for both Ryerson and York and was accepted at both institutions. The Centennial College Student chose to continue her education at York.

Dance centre director Brian Scott saw 10 other pupils receive their efforts during the first year the school was in operation. Four passed their grade 2 examinations at the National Ballet School in Toronto and two were successful in the grade 3 examinations. Eight of the 10 passed with distinction.

Those passing grade 2 were Lesa Szczesiul, Mary Lynn Atkinson, Julie Towers and Kimberly Hanlon. Those passing grade 3 were Carolyn Fisher, Laura Bayne, Cheryl Campbell, Kelly Patterson, Pat Baird and Donna Kelly.

Barbers' Case:

City Solicitor Is Determined

By BHAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

City solicitor John Miller said Thursday an appeal launched last week protesting a court decision that rendered a 1968 bylaw invalid was only the first step he was prepared to take in order to keep barber shops closed Mondays and Thursdays.

If necessary, he said, the city would implement a revised bylaw designed to circumvent the court's objection and use it to prosecute errant barbers.

The babysitisl against whom notice of appeal was served is Bill Kuipers. Last month, he was acquitted by Provincial Court Judge J. L. Clendenning of breaking the bylaw. He says he feels like a wanted man.

"I'm only providing a service to the community," he argued. "Why are they fighting progress?"

Mr. Miller said the appeal, to be heard in County Court on an unspecified date, was based on what he believes to be errors in law concerning the definition of a barber shop.

"It is my view that the basis for the court's decision was wrong," he said. "It failed to take cognizance of the general public understanding of what a barber shop is."

He said that for years, people have been visiting Mr. Kuipers' shop in the Quinte Hotel on the assumption it was a barber shop. During the trial before Judge Clenden-

Driver Guilty Of Theft

A former truck driver who admitted pocketing payments while making deliveries was given a suspended sentence and placed on two years probation Thursday in Provincial Court.

Ross Martyn, 23, of 222 Albert St., pleaded guilty to five theft charges last week. He was given one year to repay the money by Judge J. L. Clendenning.

A former Bancroft resident, Mr. Martyn admitted taking $153 between Dec. 4 and 22 last year while employed with Belsey and Trice Automotive Ltd. of Belleville.

He told the court he was planning to move to Toronto, where he has been accepted for a job as a taxi driver.

More Wood Ducks Nesting

PICTON — Wildlife chairman for the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority, Jack Stenning, has reported an increase in wood ducks in the county. Nesting boxes in the Beaver Meadow tract and other conservation areas now are being occupied by this species.

This year, for the first time, several species of Mallard duck have hatched in Beaver Meadow.

Beaver are reported much more active in Beaver Meadow this year and through their industry have raised the water level approximately one foot.

Mr. Stenning said that 8,000 trees and shrubs were planted this year in Beaver Meadow among them cedar, silver maple, pine, poplar and Russian peavine, a shrub eaten by ducks and other wildlife species.

Antique Fly-in Next Month

TRENTON — The third annual antique aircraft fly-in at Canadian Forces Station Mountain View, will be held the weekend of June 22-24.

Sponsored by the Toronto region wings of the Royal Canadian Air Force Association, the fly-in was originally designed to attract old aircraft hulls from across Canada and the U.S.

However, weather proved a problem in both years and crowds expressed displeasure at high entrance rates and the distance required to stay from the old aircraft.

This year, officials of the event have promised better facilities for the public to view the aircraft. Ticket will be $2 per person will cover a two-day pass onto the site.

Mrs. Jean O'Riordan, president of the eastern section of the Association of Business and Commerce Directors is hostess for the eighth annual convention of the organization being held at the Four Seasons Hotel here. Special speaker last night was E. A. Tollefson, legal research and planning section of the federal department of justice.

Law Knowledge Program Is Project of Government

Canada's department of justice has "started down that long road toward making law accessible and comprehensible to the man on the street" one of its spokesmen said last night.

Speaking to teachers at the convention of the eastern section of the Association of Business and Commerce Directors E. A. Tollefson said his department is lifting "the veil of mystery that enfolds law".

Mr. Tollefson, a member of the legal research and planning section of the department, outlined its projects to educate people on their rights in Canadian society.

Chief among its concerns is preparation of a basic civics primer intended for high school students and adults with a corresponding education. It is also preparing booklets on environmental law, the legal system, courts and the law of property. However, Mr. Tollefson cautioned that these aids are still in the preliminary stage and would not be published for some time.

Two other projects receiving federal financial support are assistance to native people through native court workers, and provision of storefront law offices in 18 centres across the country.

"Native people are shy and retiring in the presence of authority," he said. "The native court worker is a way of providing them with education about law."

The federal government is also concerned that "you can count the number of native people who enter law on the fingers of both hands."

(Although Tyendinaga Reserve has many professional people, including doctors, clergymen and teachers among its ranks, only Tyendinaga Mohawk has ever graduated in law.)

The University of Saskatchewan is running a summer prelaw orientation course to encourage native university students to enter law.

Mr. Tollefson said, in his opinion, high school law courses come too late. Teaching of law should start in grades 4 or 5, before youngsters have their first run-ins with the law and learn from their peers to consider police as pigs.

Legal aid will never expand into an all-encompassing taxsupported, free program for everyone, like medicare, he said.

"Before that happens I can see lawyers in group practice receiving a subsidy to practice in poorer areas," said Mr. Tollefson. An Eskimo group has already requested such a subsidy to place a lawyer in a remote district to serve their needs.

"After all, with medicare all you are doing is assuring that doctors don't have any bad debts," he concluded.

Girl Apparently Raped, Strangled

COBOURG — Michelle Keogh, 11, whose body was found here Wednesday, apparently had been raped, strangled and stabbed, police said Thursday.

An autopsy to verify the cause of death was performed in Toronto Thursday but police said results probably would not be known until today.

Michelle, who lived in the Colborne area near this town 25 miles southeast of Peterborough, apparently was slain shortly after getting off a school bus a half mile from her home.

Nothing her lateness in reaching home, her father, Michael P. Keogh, set out along the route the normally took from the bus. He found her body in a woodland roadway nearby.

Police were searching Thursday for a late model compact car, medium green or turquoise in color, that several motorists reported seeing in the area.

24 Students To Work On Project

PICTON — At a meeting of the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority last night it was announced that 24 students have been hired for Project SWEEP as well as one undergraduate. SWEEP is the provincially-funded Student Working to Enhance the Environment Program.

Allocated for the project this year is $24,000 plus a 20 per cent overhead allowance.

Two trucks have been supplied free of charge to the PERCA by the Ford Motor Company for Project SWEEP activities this summer.

A Greek student holding a Master's degree from Guelph agricultural college and an agricultural degree from his homeland was hired through the project to conduct a survey in Prince Edward this year.

Intell Wins Award

The Intelligencer has been selected by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce as recipient of the Progress Award for industrial promotion through the coverage of an electrical equipment display held recently at the Belleville Air Ground.

"Through this coverage and follow-up, The Intelligencer promoted the importance of trade shows and convention business to the community at large . . . ," a chamber of commerce spokesperson read.

The presentation will be made May 27 in the Skyline Hotel, Ottawa.

Driver's Responsibility

Is it our imagination or could it be that drivers up around Tweed are a little more reckless than most? We are forever reading about vehicles being involved in accidents in that neighborhood.

We are not forgetting though that we have our share here, as do other communities round about — all adding up to a thoroughly lamentable toll of death and injury, not to say economic loss and worst of all, the costs in human terms, the grief and sense of deprivation.

In the ultimate, it is the driver who must bear the responsibility; accidents do not happen, they are caused. Sometimes road conditions and bad luck with one we read about recently on a rural road. Here an oil slick and rain evidently sent a car out of control, but in the main it is the driver who is at fault. The only way to reduce the accident toll is by exercising more care.

Alcohol should also be avoided on the road for it is a prime cause of driver impairment. There are so many ways in which an improvement could be effected, and the responsibility rests mainly with the driver.

Last week's Police Week display at The Mall made this point very well, with its pictures and descriptive matter. In brief, the police message is that the price of safety is eternal vigilance.

Immigrants Role

Woven into the very fabric of this country is the saga of immigrant life: the people who came here from many lands, pioneered the country and whose descendants today make Canada today one of the most admired and desired places from an immigrant standpoint in the world today.

Immigration has been a multi-directional movement and a particularly fascinating aspect of it was the adventurous nature of youth and many who left home in earlier times when travel was not so widely indulged as it is today.

The autobiography of the late Helena Rubinstein, who left Poland around 1888, when she was a girl, and Australia, there to lay the foundations of her worldwide cosmetics empire, is eloquent of the courage and strength of character of the forebears of our own generation in many lands.

How strangely appropriate in a sense too was the arrival of this elegant young woman of Jewish background in a settlement with a name — Coloroma — whose origins are another race of people in the immigrant mold, the Irish. It was a far cry though from the place of the same name in County Londonderry, a far cry too from Cracow with its green parks and chestnut trees on the banks of the Vistula, and the highlands reaching across to the Carpathians; a far cry from the large old house that was the family home in Rybnik before she left the university. It is a scene incidentally with which Belleville's Nick Mika is familiar, for he attended that selfsame university.

Miss Rubinstein was not particularly happy on the remote ranch of an uncle and she moved to Melbourne, taking with her the precious creams prepared by a Hungarian born chemist back in Cracow and which were to be the basis of her fledgling business.

After some years in Melbourne, Europe beckoned and Miss Rubinstein went to London. In this as in the original parting from Poland's shores and other problems were frequent companions, but she persevered; there was work to be done and salons were established in Paris and subsequently in New York and other U.S. cities as well as Toronto. In one part of her book she reveals the key to her own and many another immigrant's success: "Already I had learned the invaluable lesson that the greater the goal, the greater the price one must be prepared to pay."

By now Miss Rubinstein had married a U.S. newspaperman, who had known her family in Cracow and was himself of Polish origin. He was Edward William Titus, a name which, curiously enough, is to be found in the Quinte area. Indeed The Picton Gazette in recent days ran a picture of the class of 1903 at Mountain View school, two of the pupils being Hazel and Florence Titus.

• • •

But that is by the way. What we are left with are thoughts of the contributions made to our own and other lands by immigrant personalities and families — some of them, like Helena Rubinstein, achieving fame and fortune along the way, but the majority bringing average, but just as valuable, talents, brawn and integrity in the service of new lands.

Brezhnev Visit to Bonn Could Mean More Trade at Least

By JOHN D. HARRISON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

In the month of such current and unseemly events as Watergate, and a new Atlantic Alliance, why should we recall that this year is the 30th anniversary of the greatest tank battle in history?

That battle, fought in 1943, near and around Kursk in European Russia, between thousands of tanks of the Wehrmacht and Stalin's modernized Red Army, was a turning point in that most bitter of World War Two's battle fronts.

We should remember Kursk this week because Soviet Communist Party chief Leonid Brezhnev has just had vital meetings in Bonn with West German chancellor Willy Brandt.

In the long poll of history, the 30-year span between bitter Russo-German conflict and last week's German-Soviet meeting of national leaders again represented the amount of time needed for Western Europe's two most powerful entities to come together again.

The time-span is identical in its number of years to the equally-devastating Seventeenth Century religious blood bath of the Thirty Years War. The events were different. But in each case, 30 years mean the end of a long time when Germans in Europe were at war or not togetherness with its continent's leading power blocs.

This mid-Twentieth Century rapprochement between Germans and Russians was a result of different ideologies seeing eye to eye at least at the negotiating and treaty-making levels. And ideological differences and wars in the Twentieth Century are similar to religious ones in the Seventeenth Century. Protestant versus Catholic was not too different than is Communist versus capitalist in our own time.

This is a long-term and admittedly philosophical view of German and Soviet leaders coming together. The short term estimate suggests a permanent peace between Germans and Russians in Europe in our time, for very practical reasons.

Party Chief Brezhnev's conciliatory and hopeful speech in Bonn acknowledged that Bonn has proposed many things to the West, the end to Berlin isolation, the hoped-for widening of closer co-operation with Europe and the West.

Nor were these words said in a vacuum, for after many years of cautious negotiations at lesser levels between Germans and Russians — as well as between Germans in the capitalistic West and in the Communist East.

In fact, the ultimate appearance of Brezhnev in Bonn would have been inconceivable without a détente between West and East. Brezhnev, which is the case of the postwar Communist state, meant virtual recognition of its existence by Bonn as a second German nation-in Europe.

Brezhnev in Bonn, the way had been opened with the renewal of Russo-German diplomatic relations for the first time since the German invasion of the U.S.S.R. in June, 1941 and by considerable East-West trade.

Behind it all, rests the necessity of Germans and Russians trading with each other again. And this has been under way not only with Moscow, but with her Eastern European satellites for more than a decade. West Germany's Krupp steel empire, wartime user of Polish slave labor, signed a deal to share technology with Communist Poland's state steel mill, a symbolic gesture no longer, but a fact of international trade.

One cynical newspaperman in Bonn has more trade than anything else in the Brezhnev visit to Europe's most aggressive industrial state. "It was strictly a case of exchanging détente for deutsch marks." To trade again nevertheless, is a better beginning than most.

Just What Did the Taxpayer Gain?

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The young Abraham Lincoln worked in a New Salem grocery when this episode took place:

A customer asked the grocer for a nickel's worth of ginger snaps. Given the ginger snaps he said he'd changed his mind and would rather have a glass of cider instead. After he drank it, he started to leave.

"Wait a minute. Aren't you going to pay me for the cider?" asked the grocer.

"Then pay me for the cookies."

Scratching his head, the grocer said: "I think I lost something."

That's exactly how many Canadian taxpayers must have felt this spring, when completing their income-tax returns. If you've been looking for relief in the much heralded tax "reform" that was supposed to last your income, chances are you felt you lost something—especially after reading the part that required you to report $4 of income for every $3 in dividends you may have received.

The so-called tax reform has been on a host of new concepts and new technical terms—eligible capital property, superficial losses, listed personal property losses, cumulative eligible capital, adjusted cost base and so on.

Not only that. In the two years since the new tax legislation was introduced, there have been about 330 technical amendments to it. We are left with a taxation treaty world that is even more patchen than the old one.

For once, we can't put all the blame on the government. Instead, we must shoulder much of the responsibility ourselves. In our popular wisdom, we shot down the little White Paper on tax reform, which was based on the recommendation of a royal commission headed by the late Kenneth Carter.

John Mc. Carter and his fellow commissioners presented the report, after four years' study in 1966, they emphasized that the twin foundations of their comprehensive tax structure were the full taxation of capital gains, and the full integration of personal and corporate income taxes.

Canadians, as usual, chose instead to compromise. Half of capital gains are taxable, as well as income, and personal and corporate taxes are partially integrated. The result is a system that confuses everybody except the experts.

Confusing? Even a simple expenditure is confusing. Shareholders of Potter Distillers Ltd. of Langley, B.C., for instance, last month received from their company an eight-page circular advising them how to report a stock dividend the company had distributed in December. Of the eight pages, the key sentence of explanation, illustrations and clarifications by the distillers' auditors.

What can the average taxpayer, with no auditor of his own to guide him, do to protect his own interests for 1973 and subsequent years?

Start looking if you haven't already—to keep careful records of every kind of income and allowable deduction, and of the value of any assets that might eventually become a capital gain or loss.

Filling out your 1973 return next spring still won't be a pleasure—but it will probably be easier than it was this year.

Musical Program Enjoyed

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Those of us who were in the audience at the Arena on Thursday night, last, experienced a real treat when we listened to combined choirs and bands from the schools of Hastings County present a program of music under the leadership of Mr. Martin Boundy, Director of Music for Fanshawe College, London, Ont.

The concert was entitled "We Believe in Music". Apart from the excellence of the program and the enthusiasm with which it was presented, it was easy to believe that they really did believe in music. The standing ovation at the close of the evening must have been heart-warming for the young people as well as for those who had given so much time and energy in directing its preparation.

We are grateful to the Ontario Arts Council, since, through their interest and support, it was possible to have such a distinguished conductor as Mr. Boundy.

Mr. C. M. Irwin and the Hastings County Music Educators' Association did a magnificent job of arranging and co-ordinating the entire event. The result was cause for pride in Hastings County.

We are sensitively easy for trained musicians of experience to find employment. For children without experience it is something else again. The way in which Mr. Boundy was able to control the entire ensemble was a credit to those capable and dedicated teachers who prepared their respective choirs and bands. Congratulations to you all.

It is cause for grave concern, to those of us who believe in music, that members of the Board of Education, the Director of Education and members of the staff are not conspicuous by their absence from most of their concerts and presentations. We have, among our teachers in Hastings County some of the best in the Province. They need encouragement and the reward, not only of success, but of the assurance that what they are doing really matters. Trends do not indicate at the moment that it does.

If parents really want a good program of music for their children, they will have to make their wishes known very strongly. It is experience that it is only when a number of young people remember when and how other things are forgotten.

In an experiment conducted in the United States it was proven that in the schools where a strong music program existed, the academic achievements rose considerably. If we are to educate the whole child we must provide food for the spirit. But let us not look to the Arts Council, cry. Our children are worthy of the best.

President's Explanation

Trois-Rivieres Le Nouvelliste: Richard Nixon, president of the United States, is an excellent politician. One cannot doubt this for an instant. The most convincing proof is unquestionably the m i s i n g 18½ minutes — to the America people concerning the Watergate affair.

At first, the White House chief pleaded complete incompetence by saying that when he learned for the first time of the burglary at the Democratic party headquarters in the Watergate building in Washington he was astounded and violently shocked. Second, Mr. Nixon publicly assumed the full responsibility for the sordid affair of political espionage.

Then public confessions by President Nixon appease the fears of Americans who believe that the United States institutions will crumble because of the scandal that has been brought to light? It is unquestionably too soon to measure the impact of Mr. Nixon's confession. Americans. . .

Mr. Nixon will without a doubt, succeed in m o v i n g more than one person to tears at the theatrical aspect of his speech, but we are compelled to believe that he has not completely emptied the Watergate tide.

Mr. Nixon is a past master at the clearly paternalistic method of addressing Americans in s e r i o u s circumstances. Every expression pronounced in succeeded in winning a whole people to his cause with respect to the Vietnamese problem through his attitude, not his speeches.

If Mr. Nixon is an excellent p o l i t i c i a n, one must also admit that as an actor, he is not at all bad. . .

Undoubtedly, the Watergate affair has thrown the stability of our political institutions right in our faces . . . But, we have been given no assurance that everything will be done to avoid repetition of such incidents.

Spraying Operation

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

One morning recently I noticed a crowd in the vicinity of and the Richard Ellis Arena. There was also a large tank sprayer, I presumed. The driver was spraying the grass along the edge of the road. I thought of it for I feet with the use of a weed killer. I have had four power sprigs on it.

Was he spraying to k i l l weeds? Assuredly he was, the next question is, why on this type of day with a good steady weather with scattered showers the forecast for the day?

It is common knowledge that this kind of work should be done under bright sunny days and in at least 60 degree weather to be effective.

Another waste of tax dollars, regardless of who was doing the work — the city or the school board. Who knows, it might have been better to pay part of a teachers salary or school library books, or whatever.

Zambia's Unconvincing Explanation

By DAVE THOMAS

LONDON (CP) — Zambia's explanation for the killing last week of two Canadian girls at Victoria Falls has unusual importance because of the black state's outside dependence for its economic and military defence against Rhodesia.

Having already accused Rhodesia of looking for an excuse to attack across the Zambezi River and now reliant on suicide aid to circumvent the closed frontier, Zambia's unconvincing claim that the tourists looked like enemy commandos is considered in diplomatic quarters here as a surprising risk to international sympathy.

This, endless three-day period before the statement was announced, has led to suspicions of a division within the government of President Kenneth Kaunda, long regarded as one of the more responsible and moderate of African leaders.

Troubled internally by tribal disagreement over plans for elections later this year under a new constitution and by a recent shake-up in the military hierarchy, Kaunda may have been urged by others in the cabinet to blame Rhodesian belligerence for provoking the shooting incident. The alternative would have been a straight apology and admission of error by his border guards.

Kaunda is reported to have personally argued for such an admission, fearing damage to the credibility of Zambia's earlier statements that Rhodesian patrols have planted land mines in the Zambian territory which killed 12 persons.

The apparently-contorted explanation for the deaths of the tourists could stimulate warlike sentiment among Zambia's people of reports that shots were fired on another group of sightseers.

The new shooting reports preceded the arrival in Lusaka Monday of Kurt Waldheim, United Nations Secretary-General, who is examining Zambia's need for UN aid, estimated at about $181 million for the period until the end of 1974. With thousands of factory workers already laid off because of the export stoppage caused by closure of the 400 - mile Rhodesian border in January, Zambia needs bilateral as well as UN aid.

Canada is one of the chief donors, having already committed $2 million to a special Commonwealth fund and loans worth $5 million for railway and dock construction which will allow Zambia to ship its vital copper exports through Tanzania rather than Rhodesia.

Some observers say the military need for world support may be even more important to Zambia than the economic necessity.

Premier Ian Smith of Rhodesia is reported to have said in a radio interview Sunday that plans had been made for lightning raids across the frontier to hit at alleged terrorist bases. They were abandoned, he said, because Rhodesia lacks the international sympathy of the Jewish state.

Lon by Zambia of its still-overwhelming command of world support might mean escalation of the border action into more than isolated sniping.

Payment Is Slow

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

In November I became ill and was hospitalized until early January. I applied for UIC benefits for the first time, and had great difficulty. It took five months and numerous calls by Mr. Jack Hunter, MP, to the Kingston office to complete my claim.

The UIC doesn't seem to realize that you are only asking for benefits that you have paid into and hope to receive when you are ill.

Because of the kindness and generosity of the people we rent from, and my co-workers at Stewart Warner Corp. I was just able to manage.

It seems hypocritical that so much disinterest is shown, and I wonder why, when one is ill and calls for help, one should suffer so much frustration?

Today In History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The last Fenian raid on Canada was defeated 103 years ago today—in 1870—when the invaders, led by Brig. Gen. John O'Neill, returned to the United States after being fired on at Eccles Hill in Quebec's Eastern Townships. The Fenian raids began in 1866, in sympathy with Irish aspirations for independence which had been suppressed by the British. By 1871, the Roman Catholic church had condemned the violence and the movement withered away. An indirect result of the raids on New Brunswick was the province's application to join confederation.

1975—The British battleship Triumph was sunk by a torpedo.

1985—Peterborough, Ont., was incorporated.

HOW BIG A SMALL CAR DO YOU NEED?

COROLLA S/5.
A 5-speed transmission in an economy car? Not only that, the new Corolla S/5 comes with radial tires, tachometer, and a racy console; all included in the price. Which is a lot less than what you'd expect to pay for a 5-speed transmission. (In fact, there isn't a 5-speed that comes within $1,000 of it.)

COROLLA STATION WAGON.
Carry a lot for a little. Swing the Corolla's back door up and out of the way and you've got 18.7 cu. ft. of cargo space. Fold down the rear seat and there's a total of 35.6 cu. ft.

COROLLA 1200.
Front disc brakes, fully reclining bucket seats and a rear window defroster are included in its low price. It's not a lot of money for the car, but it's a lot of car for the money.

CELICA ST.
The sportiest Toyota of them all. (It sports a low-slung design complete with air vents and racing stripes.) Plus, 2 litre OHC engine, radial tires, tachometer, and an AM/FM radio are standard.

CORONA SEDAN, HARDTOP AND WAGON.
Bigger and roomier than our Corolla line, the Coronas are tough, solid, family cars with hefty 2 litre OHC engines. (Something you'll appreciate when you see how big a load the Corona wagon can handle.)

TOYOTA HALF-TON PICKUP.
The Toyota Half-ton comes with the most powerful engine you can get in a light ecoriomy truck. You can also order it with an automatic transmission/bucket seat package.

TOYOTA LAND CRUISER.
The same six cylinder 155 gross h.p. engine that can pull our 4-wheel drive Land Cruiser up a 45° grade with ease, can also push it along the highway at 70 with ease. So you don't have to rough it getting to where you're roughing it.

THE MARK II SERIES.
The biggest, most luxurious Toyotas you can buy. And they all come with some very surprising standard features: like power steering, an AM/FM radio, and a 140 gross hp. six cylinder overhead cam engine.

New Group Forms

Consumers' Association Comes to Belleville

Belleville consumers can now join 35,000 Ontario counterparts as members of the 24th and newest branch of the Consumers Association of Canada.

Grace Ince, who's been an individual member of the group for several years, says she thought there should be a consumers group here.

Another woman, Patricia Atkins, wrote CAC Ontario Development Vice-President Barbara Robinson a "fan letter".

Mrs. Robinson came to Belleville this week to organize the local group. So far there's a core executive.

Called the Quinte Consumer Committee, the group will encompass the Trenton-Belleville-Picton area.

To join the consumers' association, there's a $4.00 fee which includes a subscription to Canadian Consumer, a slick magazine published six times a year. Recent issues included consumer reports on vacuum cleaners, firecrackers, real estate, school bus safety, windshield anti-freeze, nutrition, canned beef stews, and even shoelaces. How to complain about what is often a topic.

Mrs. Robinson says members can be as active or inactive as they like.

"It's a locally organized group - no weekly or monthly meetings. To me it's an information gathering and information disseminating group."

Local branches hold annual meetings - one is planned for September here - and go about the business of taking consumer complaints.

The association wants members as there is "strength in numbers" Mrs. Robinson says. The organization works to persuade government to enact consumer protective legislation, she says.

In its impressive history, the Consumers Association has achieved the removal of federal ban on margarine, introduction of non-deceptive bacon packaging, the stricter inspection of meat, the establishment of a permissive list of food additives, the labelling of packages with net weights, stricter inspection of milk, and other improvements in packaging and safety.

The association also worked for the adoption of Canada Standard Sizes in children's clothing and care labelling for clothing. It achieved passage of the federal Hazardous Products Act and instigated regulations for expiry dates on vitamin preparations.

Its current aims include consumer education in schools, improved credit regulations, better auto safety standards, control of wording in warranties and guaranties, and extension of standard sizing to adult clothes. It also wants pesticides to be prohibited from contact with foods.

Achievers Honored

Cloyne Community Hall was the scene of another Achievement Day as 20 girls from the northern part of Lennox and Addington County completed the 4-H homemaking project "Clothes for Leisure".

The afternoon program commenced with the presentation of badges to club leaders.

Clubs present were: Cloyne No. 1, led by Mrs. Ezra Ball and Mrs. Harold O'Brien; Cloyne No. 2, led by Mrs. Don Salmond and Lorraine Adams; Denbigh, No. 1, led by Pat Burgess and Mrs. Ray Jackson; Denbigh No. 2, led by Helen Beckett and Denbigh No. 3, led by Mrs. William Petzold and Mrs. Verner Stein.

Seams were an important part of this project and also trims.

The girls judged a set of fabrics, seams and trims and their suitability to a particular pattern. Another activity found them evaluating their sleepwear and loungewear with County Home Economist, Mrs. Jacqueline Hart.

With the arrival of the guests the girls began giving their club presentations. These consisted of skits, demonstrations and exhibits. Cloyne 1's exhibit was entitled "Fabrics and Finishes for Leisurewear" and "Trim with Imagination" Denbigh III club's presentation was entitled "Selecting materials and patterns for leisurewear".

Mrs. A. Nowel, Kingston Area Women's Institute president, presented Provincial Honor Certificates and pins to three girls who had completed 12 projects. The girls were Pat Burgess and Debbie Jackson, of the Denbigh 1 Club, and Cheryl Petzold of the Denbigh III club. The afternoon ended with the presentation of certificates of achievement and sterling silver spoons. This was followed by a tea provided by the Women's Institute.

ALL METHODS

Today, tender lean pork may be prepared by all cooking methods including broiling.

Mosquito hats are just part of the gear Leaurie Welch (standing) and Nancy Trendell will need this summer when they join more than 2,000 young men as junior forest rangers. They're part of a 72-girl work force hired by the province this year in a pilot project to hire girls for the $30-a-week jobs.

Workboots -- Size Five

Leaurie Welch and Nancy Trendell, both 17-year-old Moira Secondary School students have spent the last several weeks trying to line up the boots — men's size 5 will fit — coats, leather gloves, work shirts and mosquito helmets.

They'll need all the gear this summer when they become two of Ontario's first female junior forest rangers.

Nancy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Trendell, will spend the summer at North Bay. Leaurie, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Howard Welch, will work at Bracebridge.

As junior forest rangers, the girls will earn $30 a week. They'll plant trees, clear trails, and perform general provincial park maintenance, just as male forest rangers have done.

There are 72 girls in the Ontario pilot project. More than 2,000 boys will be employed this year.

Barbara Trippiet, co-ordinator of the project, said more than 220 girls applied across the province. They were chosen on a point system based on experience in the bush, girl guide work and the like.

Besides working, the girls will spend time learning. Bush survival, fighting forest fires, conservation, water pollution and the like will be subjects in classroom hours.

Both Leaurie and Nancy already have considerable outdoor experience.

Their parents are members of the Moira Cygaans and the girls have spent much of their summers camping.

Leaurie says she became interested when she'd heard boys in her class talking about the junior forest rangers program. Then minister of natural resources Leo Bernier announced the program to include girls.

"We thought we'd have a good time, make money and learn a lot," Leaurie says.

"It's hard to get a summer job in Belleville," she added.

They expect to live in cabins — perhaps often without modern facilities — with all-girl work crews. Each crew will be supervised by two adult couples.

Both Nancy and Leaurie look forward to the summer, but admit to some trepidation.

"It's a long time to be away from home," Nancy says. And Leaurie says it's frightening to face meeting whole new groups of people.

Meanwhile, they're waiting for school to end, for June 29 to arrive — and putting up with just a little bit of teasing from classmates.

"Some kids laugh and call us 'Yogis'," Leaurie says. "They keep asking us if we are going to be lumber jacks when we get out of school," Nancy adds.

Ann Landers

Discovers His Kids Aren't His

Dear Ann Landers: About six years ago I accidentally discovered through blood-typing that I could not be the biological father of one of my children. After confronting my wife with the scientific evidence, she confessed it was true, and named the man who had fathered the child. Two days later she admitted that every one of our four children been different fathers. None is mine. I walked around in a state of shock for a week. Finally I had a long talk with my clergyman and my doctor. They both asked me if I felt any resentment against the children. I said no. They then asked if I could forgive my wife. I said yes. At that point I was advised to keep the reality knowledge to myself and decided I'd do it. I figured she was a good wife and mother with a sex problem.

What I need to know is this, Ann. Do you feel that the children, now that they are teen-agers, should be told who their real fathers are? Every one of these men lives in town and has a family. I ask this question because it might be a bad thing if our teen-age wife and mother should fall in love with his half-sister and not know she was related. What do you say?—Deceived

Dear Deceived: I say—say nothing. The chances of one of your children marrying a half-brother or sister are probably remote. If it appears that such a marriage might occur, consult your physician about the genetic hazards. The emotional impact on your children, should you tell them, might be disastrous.

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the letter from the driver of the school bus who complained that the kids were unruly. He had a hard time driving. He described their lack of discipline as a safety problem. May I say, Ann, this bus driver has a lot to learn and I know someone who could teach him.

I rode the school bus for three years, 50 miles a day, 25 miles to and 25 miles from. Our driver had no problem with kids fighting and screaming. He wouldn't put up with it. When there was any commotion he simply pulled the bus over to the shoulder of the road and stopped. He sat and waited. In fact he didn't even turn around—just looked into his rear-view mirror and the culprits knew they were being watched.

When things calmed down (it usually took less than a minute) he'd get the bus rolling again. This man never had an accident and all the kids had a lot of respect for him.

So, Ann, whenever you get a letter from a bus driver who complains that the kids are running wild on his bus and jeopardizing their lives, toss it right back. Ask what's the matter with HIM!—Wyoming

Dear Wyoming: It is the responsibility of the driver to deliver his cargo safely. The imperous behavior is as much of a safety hazard as faulty brakes or bald tires. The measures you described sounds perfect. I recommend it.

Dear Ann Landers: I can't understand the logic of the young couples who don't want to have children because "there are already too many people fouling up the environment." Yet they have a dog or a cat, or both. Don't animals breathe oxygen and excrete waste? I'm for ecological preservation, but what about this nonsense?—I Like Kids

Dear I.L.K.: Any couple who would rather have a pet than a child should have it. In the right right. I'd hate to be born into a family that would rather have had a dog or a cat. How about you?

MR. AND MRS. OWEN WEBER

Weber—Moorcroft

Donna Rae Moorcroft and Owen Weber were united in marriage at Grace Chapel, Stirling, in May. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Moorcroft of Foxboro. The bridegroom, of Atwood, Ontario, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Weber of Atwood.

Rev. Robert McLaren officiated at the noon ceremony. Mrs. Lorne Lunn played and sang accompanied by Barbara Vardy.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by maid of honor Linda Moorcroft and Miriam Weber and Mrs. Barry Mackey.

After a wedding trip to Northern Ontrio, the couple took up residence in Milverton, Ontario.

Foster Parents Can Help

Shattered Victims of Savage War

SAIGON (CP) — She's just a little wisp of a thing, Kim Linh: Endearing, deep brown eyes, a lively responsive face, no legs and only one arm.

Two years ago, Kim was a fairly normal, healthy baby; as normal as children can be in a country at war. Then American bombers struck her village, north of Saigon, killing most of her family and leaving Kim maimed for life.

The squalid orphanages of Saigon are literally overflowing with children like Kim. Many are in even worse condition, the silent victims of a savage war. Some are fortunate enough to be only physically sound or just blinded or burned by napalm. Others are the abandoned offspring of Vietnamese women and American servicemen.

For some of them, life holds the promise of continued suffering, poverty and, probably, early death.

To ease their difficulties slightly, a handful of Western agencies sponsor modest programs of financial assistance, although the numbers helped fall far short of the total.

One of the most important of these organizations is the Vietnam branch of Foster Parents Plan Inc., headed by Anne Davison, a graduate of Trinity College, Toronto, and a former Ottawa social worker.

The aim of Foster Parents is to encourage Canadians, Americans and Australians to "adopt" children from underdeveloped or war-damaged countries by contributing money and exchanging letters and information.

"We want to keep children with what remains of their families as far as possible," Miss Davison said in an interview, "and we also try to encourage people here to adopt relatives out of the orphanages with the assurance of financial aid."

As she spoke, hundreds of children with battered, poverty-weary adults lined the entrances to her small administrative building, waiting for their monthly grant. A tiny Vietnamese woman, carrying a small child, hummed with delight when she heard she had received an additional cash gift of $14 from sponsoring parents in Hamilton.

"Last year, we had 5,500 children enrolled in our program here and that means that each of them received nearly $200 they wouldn't have had otherwise.

"In Canada, we ask foster parents to donate just over $1 a year. More than two-thirds is spent directly on the children with the remainder going to administrative costs. The children and the donors are asked to exchange letters monthly and sometimes I think this is almost as important as the money," Miss Davison said.

A strong, firm-looking woman now in her late 50's, Miss Davison said the conditions in which most children live are virtually beyond the comprehension of Westerners.

In the centre of Saigon, for example, a legless boy, who can't be more than four years old, sits in his own excrement in the boiling sidewalks almost every day, pathetically holding out an old hat for donations.

Miss Davison, a modest, engaging woman with a competent grip on her quickly-expanding organization, began her career as a social worker with the Children's Aid Society in Ottawa before becoming a United Church missionary in China during the Second World War and, afterwards, in Korea.

She returned to Toronto in 1963 and worked in the national office of the Anglican Church until joining Foster Parents and coming to Vietnam a year ago.

"I'm basically an Anglican. But when they wouldn't send I . . . simply joined the Presbyterians as a missionary United Church," she says.

She now has a total staff of 66 people in Vietnam. including a small number of professional social workers. "But, my God, there are 720 families standing at the door waiting to be taken into the program and we have immense trouble just trying to cope."

Miss Davison was uncertain how many Canadians have "adopted" Vietnamese children but she said more than 11,000 people from Canada were in the program last year, sending donations to needy families in all parts of the world.

Foster Parents itself was founded by two British servicemen during the civil war in Spain in the late 1930s. It is not affiliated with any church or political organization.

"We provide basic medical help, dental care and psychiatric counselling for the children. But there's so much that needs to be done and these children can't, they just can't, wait."

Wives of Canadian external affairs personnel serving with the international peacekeeping mission here have been freely volunteering their assistance to Miss Davison for the last couple of months and she says this has eased the workload enormously for regular staff.

In the suffocating heat of her administrative headquarters, Miss Davison talks of wistful memories of more relaxed days in Toronto or the Ottawa Valley, where many of her relatives and friends live near South March, Ont.

"But my place is here. If I could leave it not because I'm doing too much but because there's still so much I can't do."

Outside, an air-conditioned, North American-built limousine honks impatiently at the dispirited crowds lining up for her attention.

'Old Dogs' Learning New Tricks

WINNIPEG (CP) — There are 107 special students at the University of Winnipeg who would gladly testify that old dogs can indeed learn new tricks.

John Mlinis, director of continuing education and the man in charge of the senior classes, says education has too long been exclusively for the young.

The decision to offer the courses to older people was the result of consultation with the Age and Opportunity Centre and the Manitoba department of education.

Given the first time in 46 years. Prof. Andrew Quarry, who teaches the political science course, says he was surprised to find the value system of a 70-year-old is just as flexible as that of an 18-year-old.

The students are "quick to exercise an opinion" but at the same time "rather apologetic if they don't know certain facts," he said.

"In many ways, they are less prejudiced in their approach to controversial issues than the rest of us," he said.

For others, the university has become a kind of friendship. Land, a retired teacher was re-united with an old high school friend, Mrs. Frank Martin, for dents.

Slick Trick

Paint the drawer fronts of a chest that holds clothing for two children in two colors — a color for each child. The effect is attractive, and the children know where their separate things are.

Successful Living

'Old Goal' None of Her Business

Dear Doris: The old goat down the street is cheating on his wife left, right and centre. As soon as his wife leaves for work, his girl friend shows up.

I think I should tell this woman about her skunk of a husband and his girl friend. My husband told me I'd get out of it. He says she wouldn't believe me and that a wife like her is already deaf from the waist down and the neck up. She also looks old enough to pass for his mother. — M.A.D.

Dear M.A.D.: Keep out of it. How do you know the way things stand between them?

All you will succeed in doing is making bed friends - with her. Be a good neighbor for a change. Give her the love you have to give. Not bad news.

Dear Doris: "Depressed" spoke of a crease on her forehead. Unless it is extremely deep (which is unlikely to be the case) this method will help. I had terrible deep creases on my forehead. I have been giving my hair an oil steam treatment every week before I shampoo it and to my surprise I noticed the creases getting smaller.

What I use is a combination of olive oil and a certain kind of liniament put in a saucer. I warm it with the tips of my fingers and rub it well into the scalp, then let the liquid from the spout of my kettle soften the scalp by wrapping a towel over the spout and over my head.

I will be 71 this year and everyone says I don't look it. After having 13 children I am really happy with my complexion. I am not bragging, but we do have to work at these things; no one can do it for us. In having those 13 children I sometimes felt like giving up but I'm glad I didn't. — A Young 71.

Dear Young: Lack of space forbids my printing your entire letter, but if "Depressed" would like to write in I will send her more details about your instructions.

Anybody who raises 13 children and still looks youthful at 71 deserves to be listened to.

Dear Doris: When a young girl about 13 meets an older man or woman for the first time; does she curtsy or shake hands? Does she wear white gloves and hat? Does she remove them in a car, plane, train, bus or building? Does she carry luggage with gloves on? Is luggage carried during introductions? — Confused.

Dear Confused: Relax when you meet other people! When meeting an older woman, you wait for her to offer her hand for a handshake. A man will wait for you to offer your hand, so it is up to you.

Keep your gloves on to shake hands, but take them down your suitcase. Yes, you can carry luggage with gloves on. If you will be in a building or a vehicle only briefly, keep your hat on - if you are wearing one.

For a longer stay both hat and gloves are likely to come off, especially if the visit is quite informal.

(Leaflets mentioned by Doris are available to readers for 20 cents and a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope. Send your letter in care of this newspaper.)

$4,500 Boost For MPPs Recommended

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario commission on the legislature, considering salaries and benefits of MPPs, has recommended substantial increases in basic indemnity and tax-free expenses.

In a report tabled Thursday, the commission recommended that the private member's salary be increased to $15,000 from $12,000 annually and that tax-free expenses be increased $1,500 to $7,500.

The three members of the commission are Dalton Camp, former national president of the Progressive Conservative party, Farquhar Oliver, former Ontario Liberal leader and Douglas Fisher, a former NDP member of Parliament.

In preparation for this, the first of three reports by the commission since it was set up in June, 1972, the members interviewed all legislature members and travelled extensively throughout Canada.

"It should be clear," the report stated, "that such an increase is neither so large as to be, of itself, an inducement to any to enter politics nor is it so modest as to demand an unreasonable sacrifice from those who have invested yet who are determined to enter public life.

While raising the incomes of members, the commission also proposed extensive changes in the present administration and travel expenses system of the legislature.

Among many recommendations in this area is a proposal that all members be entitled to six return trips by air from the legislature at Queen's Park in Toronto or their own riding to any destination in Ontario every year.

The commission estimates that the cost of providing the six round-trip flights for the 117 members would be $42,120 a year.

Ontario Plans Role In Telecommunication

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government intends to play a much larger role in the development of telecommunications with the needs of the user uppermost in mind, Gordon Carton, minister of transportation and communications, said Thursday.

He said the government is concerned about the availability to all Ontario residents of a realistic share of information resources.

Mr. Carton told the annual convention of the Canadian Cable Television Association (CCTA):

"While we in southern Ontario tend in a few other borderlocales in Canada enjoy outstanding access to information, a great many people do not, and desire to have their choices expanded.

"We wish to work with the cable companies and your association to find a solution to the problem of the low density and northern areas."

The minister said the government's role will be undertaken and expanded through current federal-provincial and inter-provincial discussions on telecommunications.

But the needs of the user cannot be met without a strong, healthy and responsive industry, he said. Therefore the government has taken into consideration the growth, ambitions, financing needs and potential of the cable television industry.

"We consider that any steps which might be taken to broaden our role and which might tie up yours or any other part of the telecommunications industry in jurisdictional fights, would be considered only as a last resort.

"Such entanglements are unproductive and undesirable in so far as the people of Ontario are concerned."

Mr. Carton said regulation of the cable industry must be constructive. It should provide a framework in which the needs of the consumer can be realized while protecting him from exploitation because of the monopoly nature of a franchised industry.

"But regulation should not be constraining," he said. "It should provide for a fair and responsible rate of return on investment and encourage innovation."

Wiretaps Controlled By Seniors

TORONTO (CP) — Police wiretapping in Ontario is controlled solely by senior police officers, Solicitor-General John Yaremko said Thursday.

He came under verbal fire in the legislature from opposition members who said that he or a senior official of his department should bear the responsibility of authorizing wiretaps.

"What you have surrendered is the civil rights of the state," said Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party.

In response to questions from Eddie Sargent, (L—Grey-Bruce), Mr. Yaremko said that the provincial police conducted 54 wiretaps last year, "all related to criminal activity."

Another 30 requests for taps were rejected by an OPP assistant commissioner who is responsible for supervising applications. Mr. Yaremko said.

The solicitor-general said the unnamed assistant commissioner was the OP Fauborthy of police were the authority on municipal forces.

Mr. Yaremko said less than a dozen police departments engaged in wiretapping activities last year.

Mileage Pay

TORONTO (CP) — For the fiscal year 1971-72 members of the Ontario legislature were paid $87,295 in mileage allowance.

The allowance—10 cents a mile—allows 20 trips between members homes and Toronto.

Urge Premiums Pay Third OHIP Costs

TORONTO (CP) — A committee reviewing medical care insurance has suggested that Ontario Health Insurance Plan (OHIP) premiums should pay for at least one-third of the cost of the plan.

The committee was set up in 1972 at the request of the ministry of health.

Almost all members were doctors and they said in the report to Health Minister Richard Potter that the current method of dealing with abuses of the plan by doctors was inadequate.

Abuses of the plan are dealt with by doctors themselves through the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario.

However, the committee suggested that present arrangements be intensified and more effective screening techniques be developed.

The committee also recommended that a mechanism be developed to permit patients to verify the service and costs rendered to them by doctors.

It also was suggested that guidelines be developed to discourage doctors from clustering in urban areas and that doctors, on completion of medical school, be encouraged to work in under-serviced areas.

Indians Urged to Take More Interest in Schools

OTTAWA (CP) — Citing the need for Indian people to become more involved in their children's education and the high dropout rate among Indian students, Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien announced Thursday changes in the government's policy on native education.

As a first step, the department's education section gradually will hand control to Indian organizations, Mr. Chretien told the Commons Indian affairs committee.

"To the extent that band councils and local Indian education committees desire, they can assume control of the Indian education program and we can give it the direction they wish with assistance and support from the department," he said.

Involved in such a change are hundreds of federal schools located on reserves and the federal teachers who work there.

The department's education division would change its role from that of administering school programs to "one of providing professional services under Indian direction."

McKeough Frank

Family, Friends Taken on Trips

TORONTO (CP) — Darcy McKeough, special parliamentary assistant to Premier William Davis, told a legislature committee Thursday that he would make no apologies for his use of government aircraft.

Mr. McKeough, questioned by the public accounts committee, said he had taken members of his family and friends on government aircraft.

Flight records tabled with the committee show that from 1972 to 1973, Mr. McKeough took 93 flights on government aircraft and many were to and from Chatham, where he has his home.

Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier told the committee that in addition to his 46 flights on government aircraft in the fiscal year 1972-73 he spent about $7,000 on commercial airline fares.

Environment Minister James Auld, took about 94 flights on government aircraft between 1971 and 1973 and many originated and ended near Brockville where he lives.

Mr. Auld told the committee that he has taken his wife and daughter on some flights.

"But," he added, "I wouldn't throw staff off to get my wife on."

Mr. McKeough, told the committee:

"I am here today at your request. I have no intention of being defensive or apologetic."

Mr. McKeough, who resigned as treasurer last year over an alleged conflict of interest, said he made extensive use of government aircraft during his time in cabinet.

He also noted that using a government car and driver, he logged 50,000 miles on the ground.

Mr. McKeough said the use of government aircraft made him more effective in public servant and allowed more time for his family in a hectic schedule.

He said he took his wife with him whenever possible and may have used the government aircraft to attend a political function.

Mr. McKeough said he was always under the pressure of time and would use his car or plane as an office when travelling.

As far as I know, my use of government aircraft was in accordance with government policy," said Mr. McKeough.

Committee chairman James Brietbaupt (L—Kitchener) said he would write Premier Davis and ask for an accounting of his flights.

MPs Want No Canada Watergate

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons justice and legal affairs committee yesterday discussed security matters with Solicitor-General Warren Allmand and decided, at least one member sought to ensure there could be no Watergate affair in Canada.

The meeting was the first of two secret, closed door sessions following questions by Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon) that a police force is growing in secret here.

All members undertook not to discuss in public what they were told in the private meetings.

But Mr. Nielsen said in an interview he discovered that some of the substance of questions he put on the Commons order paper before Easter would become security matters if they were answered in public.

Davis at No Time Commented On Moog Firm Qualifications

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis at no time mentioned the qualifications of a development firm that got a $44-million contract from the Ontario Hydro Commission for a new headquarters, Hydro Chairman George Gathercole said Thursday.

Mr. Gathercole also told a special legislature committee that he had never advised any cabinet member that Canada Square Corp. was the successful bidder until he notified them of a forthcoming press announcement to this effect in July, 1972.

The select committee is investigating the deal with particular reference to the question of whether a friendship between the premier and Gerhard Moog, president of Canada Square, had any bearing on his winning the contract.

he chairman also told the committee that Hydro's decision to depart from its traditional method of doing its own construction in favor of a lease-purchase arrangement with a developer was influenced by a conversation early in 1972 with Darcy McKeough, then provincial treasurer.

Mr. Gathercole had mentioned to Premier Davis that Hydro was getting "various proposals" from developers and intended to go ahead with the delayed building, and Mr. Davis had suggested he talk over financing with the treasurer on a trip the two were making to Japan.

"During the trip, Mr. Gathercole said, Mr. McKeough had suggested Hydro should find some way of financing other than by issuing provincial bonds guaranteed by the province.

The commission chief had testified earlier that Hydro already was thinking along these lines since, with annual borrowings running around $500 million a year, it was reluctant to put another bond issue on the market.

From the treasury chief on how not to proceed, Mr. Gathercole said, then Hydro felt lease-purchase was the method "by which we should proceed."

But he emphasized that the decision to launch the project at the time—it had been held up in 1970 at the suggestion of then premier John Robarts because of the state of the borrowing market—was Hydro's own.

"There wasn't any dictation and there wasn't any direction from the government," he said, though he had kept Environment Minister James Auld, who is also minister responsible for autonomous Hydro, informed of developments.

He also had written Mr. Davis of his conversation with Mr. McKeough on returning from Japan but had received no reply.

Nor did he receive a reply to a letter he wrote James Flett of the premier's staff in which he told of the coming announcement of the contract and said he wished to be sure this did not conflict with the premier's judgment.

Hydro went ahead with the announcement anyway.

Under questioning, Mr. Gathercole said that in his brief discussion with Mr. Davis before the Japan trip he did not name any particular develop being considered for the headquarters job.

However, he told James Bullbrook (L—Sarnia) that in the summer of 1971 he mentioned to Mr. Davis that "our people had been up to see the OISE development."

OISE is the Ontario Institute of Studies in Education and its $18-million building here was put up by the Moog firm under a similar lease-purchase arrangement to that entered into with Hydro.

"Was there ever any reaction from the premier as to the qualities and abilities of Canada Square?" Mr. Bullbrook asked.

"No," Mr. Gathercole said.

Mr. Gathercole was questioned about a letter he wrote to a commission official in March, 1972, saying he intended to make a submission to the cabinet in April about the building. The submission was never made.

When asked why this was not done, he replied: "Because it was our responsibility and we had authority."

There had been some debate in the legislature over the building and "we were prepared to go to cabinet if they wished to go ahead."

"If they didn't ask, we were prepared to go ahead."

Extension of Death Penalty Urged by York-Simcoe MP

OTTAWA (CP) — An MP in favor of the death-penalty resolution summarized the pro and anti and abolitionist quoted the views of a slain policeman's widow Thursday as the Commons debate on capital punishment continued through its 10th day.

Sinclair Stevens (PC—York-Simcoe) cited two 1969 killings of policemen in which murderers had their death sentences commuted by the government to life imprisonment as he argued that the death penalty should be extended to murders other than those of policemen and prison guards on duty.

Conservative justice critic Gordon Fairweather (Fundy-Royal) had earlier said MPs should remember the words of Pauline Maitland, wife of a slain Toronto policeman.

"I do not believe in capital punishment," she was quoted as saying. "Taking another life would not bring my husband back."

Mr. Stevens was the 90th of 93 speakers so far in the second-reading debate on a government bill to extend a trial suspension of the death penalty to 1977. The present suspension ended Dec. 29, 1973.

Mr. Stevens said he hopes to amend the bill as it goes to committee stage for detailed study.

He wants the death penalty to apply to murder in the course of rape, kidnapping, skyjacking and in cases of hiring or inciting to kill, whether or not the slaying itself is punishable by death.

The bill has support of Prime Minister Trudeau, Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield and NDP Leader David Lewis.

Mr. Stevens said Canadians should not think they are unjustified to retain the death penalty. Only nine nations now had full abolition.

Mr. Fairweather, who embraced abolition when he saw his father, a judge, agonize over pronouncing death sentences, said capital punishment "makes hangmen of us all."

Social Credit Leader Real Caouette, the only party chief to oppose the bill, said there should be a referendum on the question. People have lost confidence in the judicial system, he said.

For Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West), 55 communications of the death penalty since 1962 were an abuse of the royal prerogative that could be laid directly at the feet of the cabinet.

There have been no hangings since 1962, even in cases that provide for the death penalty.

Earlier Thursday Energy Minister Donald Macdonald told the Commons the government has already acted on some suggestions in a confidential report on energy policy leaked to the press.

The report, published in the Toronto Star, says the United States is being allowed to buy Canadian energy resources too cheaply.

Mr. Macdonald said a ceiling on sales of oil and gas to the United States is evidence that the government has acted on some parts of the 1971 study.

Butterflies Create Intrigue

There was something for everyone at the fun fair at William R. Kirk School Thursday night. While 300 parents circulated through the six-month-old school, Leanne Geleshtorpe hitched a ride with neighbor Helen Hinze to get a closer look at the butterflies made by school pupils. The fun fair raised more than $900 for school trips and the purchase of band uniforms for the Kirk Kombo.

With A Lot of Help

Kirk Kombo Earns Its Uniforms

—Full and eager participation of pupils, staff, families and community has sprinkled reality on a William R. Kirk School dream.

The school, a special one for the teaching of retrainable, mentally retarded young people, held a fun fair Thursday night to raise money for school trips and band uniforms for the Kirk Kombo.

While the school only enrols 70 pupils, the secret behind the night's success was the total family effort. Big brothers and sisters manned the booths and helped out, while a near complete parent turnout jostled through hallways spending money on everything from tea rooms to handicrafts.

One of the evening's highlights was the opportunity for participants to throw soggy wet sponges at school principal Wally Dever, at the minimal cost of 25 cents a throw.

Dorothy Brickman, president of the school's volunteer group, said "terrific" co-operation from the merchants of the city was one of the secrets behind the fair's success.

A large number of door prizes were all donated along with candy and favors for the children as prizes for various games.

"We're going to bog down the mail with letters of thanks," she said.

Mrs. Brickman is already making plans for next year's fair.

"We'll have to start much earlier next year when students will need money for a trip to Winnipeg to participate in the retarded children's Olympics.

Fruits of Labor

The consumer protection bureau has brought all the facts together in 95-page booklet following months of exhaustive interviews and research. The book is available upon request, with its publishing coming six days before the LIP program is due to end May 31. Taking inventory are May Holtshousen and Elaine Struthers, both employed by the Local Initiatives Project.

Space Became White Elephant

TRENTON — This week Auditor - General Maxwell Henderson table a report showing how the federal government blew nearly $9 million of the taxpayers' money on nothing between 1971 and 1972.

Today a defence department spokesman in Ottawa explained the expense.

The spokesman said the federal department of public works leased space in a Kitchener Street building here for DND on a five-year lease basis at $11,200 a year. The lease was to have existed June 30, 1971.

But on June 18, 1969, DND advised the public works department that local district treasury office of the department of supply and service for CFB Trenton was being phased out by the end of July of that year. The operation was being transferred to Toronto.

Attempts to sublet the office space or cancel the lease in the building across from Trenton's market square proved unsuccessful. The $21,500 mentioned in the Auditor-General's report covered the 23-month cost of the unused office since August 1, 1968 to June 30, 1971.

Trenton Hydro Boost Likely

TRENTON — Public Utilities Commissioners here said yesterday that Ontario Hydro will probably approve an average 11.2 per cent increase in electrical costs by August.

And if they do, this will place Trenton's 1972 electric utility cost increase above both that of Belleville by 9.7 and Brighton by 10 per cent.

At a meeting of the PUC yesterday, deputy chairman Charles Hilton read a list of recommended increases in a letter from K. D. Taylor, Ontario Hydro eastern region manufacturing manager.

Residential consumers will pay an increase of 13.3 per cent. Utilities manager Douglas Manlow calculated that at this rate, a ratepayer who pays $20 every two months, would be paying $22.80 or a monthly increase of $1.30.

Industrial rates were not quite as high. Businesses using less than 5,000 kilowatts will have bills increasing by 10 per cent. And apparently only Domtar Packaging Ltd. falls under the higher 10.5 per cent increase category for over 5,000 kilowatt hours monthly.

Mr. Manlow explained this company now pays an average $27,000 a month for electricity and if Ontario Hydro approves the increase at its meeting in Toronto at the end of this month, Domtar will be paying an additional $2,800 per month.

Even though Mr. Manlow reminded commission members the increase is subject to Ontario Hydro approval, Mr. Hilton conceded there "is no chance they'll cut it now."

"This increase is the result of a bell canada increase in power costs from Ontario Hydro," he said.

Mayor Duncan McDonald said the proposed increases come as "the result of a review of the PUC capital budget.

"We can't continue to service the people at the present standards unless we increase the rates," he said.

When Belleville announced its over-all increase April 27, Trenton PUC chairman Jim MacDonald, absent from yesterday's meeting, predicted increases at that time. "We're doing our best to hold the line on hydro and water rates, but it's getting to a point where we can't absorb any more," he said.

Hugh Beach, Ontario Hydro consumer service superintendent in Belleville said three weeks ago Trenton's last rate increase to consumers was made in September of 1971. The unit cost to the customers amounted to an over-all 9.8 per cent hikes.

Mr. Beach said increases in electrical wholesale rates came into effect Jan. 1, 1970, Jan. 1, 1971, July 1, 1972 and Jan. 1, 1973. The latter two averaged eight per cent each, totalling approximately 16 per cent increase in electrical power costs to the Trenton PUC.

It was this 16 per cent figure Mr. MacDonald and the members of the commission said were proving too expensive to absorb when also considering the rising costs of labor and equipment.

Yesterday, Mr. Manlow said of the total annual costs met by the PUC, 72 per cent of these are wholesale payments to Ontario Hydro.

"And Hydro has said they will be going up seven to eight per cent every year," he added.

In his letter to the commission, the Hydro marketing manager said, the percentage average 11.2 per cent increase "will probably remain in effect for one year only.

"In other words," Mr. Taylor wrote, "the forecasts indicate a need for annual rate increases commencing as soon as possible."

The Trenton Public Utilities Commission on April 19 of this year, requested approval to increase revenue by five per cent. "We asked for five and they give us 11," Mr. Hilton grunted.

Indications yesterday were that the May 30 approval from Ontario Hydro in Toronto, would be a sheere formality.

Unions Say President At Fault for Strike

By MIKE PATERSON
Staff Reporter

Striking unions yesterday singled out one man, John C. Lobb, president of Northern Electric Co. Ltd., as responsible for the first general strike in the 70-year history of the company.

At a meeting of 75 delegates from four unions representing about 13,000 striking Northern employees held at the Sun Valley Motel yesterday a joint statement was phrased. The meeting was called to work out maximum co-operation" between the Canadian Union of Communication Workers, United Auto Workers, United Electrical Workers and Communication Workers of Canada. Attending as observers were representatives of the Northern Electric Office Employees Association from Montreal.

"Spokesmen for the unions claimed the cause of the strike could be laid at the doorstep of the new U.S.-imported president of the company, John C. Lobb, and his "profits before people" policies," said the statement. "President Lobb has taken credit for simultaneously slashing the work force over the past two years by some 4,500 employees while raising profits from $4 million to $20 million.

"Retrogressive contract demands" and "completely unrealistic monetary offers" made by the company were said to have precipitated the strike.

"All that our members are requesting is a piece of the Northern Electric profit pie" to "Ma Bell" getting new hands on them," continued the statement, which listed the key issues as wage increases, cost of living allowances, voluntary overtime, a shorter work week (production workers have a 40-hour week, office employees a 37.5-hour week), improved pensions, vacations and fringe benefits.

It was said the four unions pledged to keep each other fully informed of all developments and co-ordinate their efforts. "Each Bargaining agent agreed that should J. C. Lobb, president of Northern Electric, wish to test their members, it could be an endurance test they are prepared to take on," said the statement.

The bargaining agents represent workers in Belleville, Kingston, Toronto, Leaside, Bramalea, Montreal and various installation points across Canada.

Local representatives in Belleville declined to comment beyond the text of the statement on the grounds that "it involves so many different groups."

Tax Evasion Hearing May 31

John Skurka, 45, former owner of Club Cedars, pleaded guilty in Provincial Court Thursday to evasion of $4,578 in taxes.

He will be sentenced next Thursday by Judge J. L. Clendenning.

Mr. Skurka admitted suppressing $41,478 in rental receipts from the Canniton club by placing them in his personal bank account when he opened Club Cedars from 1968 to 1971.

Revenue department investigators originally intended to prosecute him for this amount but instead allowed him to deduct $17,218 in undeclared expenses.

Under the Income Tax Act, Mr. Skurka faces a fine ranging between $1,182 and $11,818. He also pleaded guilty to signing false statements on his tax returns for each year, for which the revenue department requested separate fines of $25.

Defence counsel Peter Girard told the court Mr. Skurka, married with two children, has been forced to sell the club, his house and his car in order to pay back debts. Describing him as "a man of limited means," Mr. Girard said his client now drives a bus during afternoons to supplement his income from part ownership in a motel.

Al Parkhurst, a local bus operator who has known Mr. Skurka for more than 17 years said that during Mr. Skurka's term as president of the Belleville Lion's Club several years ago, he persuaded the club to donate $3,200 for construction of a home for trainable retarded children.

Former Alderman Gerald Joyce said Mr. Skurka is a native of Czechoslovakia, was active in finding homes and employment for immigrants to the Quinte area.

Hastings County Warden Horace Casey told the court he has known Mr. Skurka for more than 12 years. "As Reeve of Thurlow Township said Mr. Skurka was once the building inspector and described him as "very fair, honorable and interested in his community."

Grant Extension Just for Asking

Belleville's Citizens Bureau will not have drawn its last breath May 31, following an announcement today that extended LIP funds are available.

The bureau, acting as an ombudsman for negotiations between business and clients, has drawn boos and cheers from areas in the community and faced extinction May 31 if LIP funds were not extended.

The invitation for re-application today was announced by Hastings MP Jack Ellis, who recently had been urging the extension.

Mr. Ellis said he could see no reason now, following the official invitation, why the money would not be forthcoming, and said he hoped this would give the bureau time to investigate the ways of local, permanent financing.

Bill Hockley, director of the bureau, said this morning following the announcement, "to the individuals here, it means they can continue doing a job they enjoy . . . I think the community got a good break."

It is only a guess how long the LIP money can continue for the $1,000-a-month bureau but local organizers are meeting today to investigate local funding.

GOULD'S TAXI 392-2424 392-4114

The Twain Meet

Two Trenton taxi firm operators have decided two were better than one. Arnold Alexander (left) operator of Gould's Taxi and Doug Ridley of Doug's Taxi have merged to make one company to cut down on the cost of overhead. Both companies will retain their own business numbers. The combined central station will remain in the existing Gould's Taxi location.

Children Are Still Children

Doug Finlay, senior co-ordinator of the children's services branch with the Ontario government, said last night "labels are for cans, not for children." Talking to the local association for children with learning disabilities, he urged those people who work with special children to keep reminding themselves of the basic needs of any child as well as the special needs. With him are Quinte Secondary School student Anne McCullough, teacher Dianne Holt and President of the ACLD, Dorothy Blakeley.

Devine's Message

Co-operation 2-way Street

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — "Internationally, I think our future lies in junior hockey," said Jack Devine, after he was elected Thursday to succeed Joe Krycenka of Calgary as president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association (CAHA).

Devine, a veteran Belleville, Ont., radio sportscaster, said "there are so many professional teams now it is tough to get a complete, but I am confident our junior teams can do so on an equitable basis.

"I am not going to get in a name-calling contest with anybody," Devine said, "but the CAHA is prepared to co-operate with any hockey group if it is also prepared to accept the fact that co-operation is a two-way street," he said.

Other officers elected: Don S. Johnson of St. John's, Nfld., first vice-president; Gordon Renwick of Cambridge, Ont., vice-president of senior and intermediate section; Roland Mercier of Quebec City, vice-president of junior hockey T. B. McCormack of Sudbury, Ont., vice-president of minor hockey; and Walter Clark of Grand Falls, Nfld., senior director.

Delegates attending Thursday's plenary session were told by executive director Gordon Juckes of Ottawa that the association is being deluged with invitations to Canadian teams to participate in tournaments abroad.

Juckes said invitations and requests to play in Canada had been received from Sweden, Poland, Finland, France and Yugoslavia in addition to several from Russia.

Krycska, commenting on a bid from Russia to have a national team compete in its Golden Puck tournament in March, said "this is a significant breakthrough in international relations."

Juckes said the French Ice Hockey Federation hopes to arrange a six-game series with teams of intermediate calibre in the Montreal area in February.

He suggested if Polish and Yugoslavian teams come, to Canada, one should play in the East and the other in the West.

The CAHA's national office is also discussing an exchange of midget teams with Russia in February, McCormack said.

In other business Thursday, a request from the Quebec delegation to have the national body cede Ottawa and Gatineau, Que., districts to the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association was deferred.

CAHA President Roger Pilon, of Trois-Rivieres said, "our branch has tried to reach an agreement but it was not satisfactory, so we agreed to defer the issue until June."

Also deferred to the June meeting of the board of directors was a proposal by the CAHA calling for a halt to all players' transfers from Quebec to Ontario.

"We feel the transfer regulations are being abused," Pilon said.

The CAHA approves transfer of a junior player from Quebec to Ontario only if he moves with his parents.

But there have been cases where the parents moved to an Ontario city for a few weeks, then returned to Quebec soon after a transfer had been obtained.

Pilon said he hopes Quebec can gain jurisdiction over the Ottawa and Gatineau districts to offset complaints from his province's officials and members of the public that some Quebec hockey players are not playing under CAHA jurisdiction.

Krycka announced he will lift the indefinite suspension of Bill Reddick of Rosetown Red Wings of the Saskatchewan Amateur Hockey Association.

Krycka, who took disciplinary action after a stick-swinging incident during the national intermediate A finals, said Reddick had been incorrectly identified in the referee's report.

Humboldt Broncos from the Saskatchewan branch—was suspended indefinitely for defaulting its Centennial Cup playoff series to Portage la Prairie Terriers, who eventually won the championship.

Humboldt officials had accused Portage players of "rough and vicious tactics and deliberate attempts to injure" and refused to continue the series.

Judge Hanson T. Dowell of Middleton, N.S., Lionel Fleury of Quebec City, Fred Page of Vancouver, and Earl Dawson of Medicine Hat, all past presidents, were appointed life members.

The association approved a recommendation from its referee-in-chief, Hugh McLean of London, that all referee and linesmen wear helmets. However, it is not mandatory.

McLean said officials are more vulnerable to injury than players, "especially in this age of the wild slapshot."

The association, at the behest of the junior committee, outlawed aluminum hockey sticks that have recently come on the market.

Burlington Strengthens Hold on First

BURLINGTON, Ont. (CP) — Burlington strengthened its hold on first place in the eastern division of the Ontario Football League Thursday, edging Woodstock Warriors 1-0.

Mike Jeremiah, who pitched for the world-champion Richmond Hill Dynes last season, ran his consecutive scoreless-inning string to 18 1-3 in claiming his second victory of the season.

Wilbur 'Wonderful' Logs His 11th Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS / "He's just Wilbur Wonderful," says Chuck Tanner.

He's really Wilbur Wood, but you can pardon the Chicago White Sox manager for speaking in superlatives.

Chicago's star pitcher has won his 11th game, tops in the majors, with a 4-1 decision over California Angels Thursday.

"His knuckler was real good," said Wood, celebrating with a cigar. "I don't know why, but it wasn't breaking as sharply and was around the plate all the time."

Because of his fabulous start, an 11-3 record and 10 victories in the last 11 games, Wood was naturally asked about a possible 20-victory year; or even 40, for that matter.

"No comment," he said. "My goal now is the next game—No. 12."

In the other American League games, Boston Red Sox walloped Milwaukee Brewers 10-1, Detroit Tigers blanked New York Yankees 4-0 and Minnesota Twins trounced Kansas City Royals 2-0. Rain postponed a doubleheader between Baltimore Orioles and Cleveland Indians.

In the National League, Atlanta Braves turned back San Francisco Giants 2-1 and New York Mets stopped Los Angeles Dodgers 7-3 in 19 innings.

Detroit entertains Oakland tonight in American League action while Texas visits New York. Kansas City is at Minnesota, California in Milwaukee and Cleveland at Chicago.

Six National League games are on tap with Houston Astros at Pittsburgh Pirates, Chicago Cubs at Cincinnati Reds, Atlanta at St. Louis Cardinals, Philadelphia Phillies visiting San Diego Padres, New York at Los Angeles and the Giants entertaining Montreal Expos.

Wood earned his decision over Nolan Ryan, the Angels' hard-throwing right-hander. Ryan struck out 13 batters to raise his major league-leading total to 197.

Rico Petrocelli collected four hits, including a home run, and drove in three runs to pace Boston over Milwaukee.

Boston second baseman Doug Griffin was hit on the left hand by a pitch in the first inning and suffered a broken bone. It was estimated he will be sidelined for four to six weeks.

Dick McAuliffe slugged a three-run homer and Mickey Lolich fired a six-hitter to pace Detroit over the Yankees. Lolich won only his third game in eight decisions. The hard-luck left hander has lost four of his games by close, low-run decisions-two 1-0 defeats and two 2-1 losses.

Rodgers Chooses Montreal

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Johnny Rodgers says he's taking his Heisman Trophy-winning skills to Canada for a rich three-year contract with Montreal Alouettes.

The Nebraska all-American halfback said Thursday that Billy Vessels, Oklahoma winner for Oklahoma years ago, chose Canada and "he's a rich man today."

Rodgers, five-feet-nine and 180 pounds, will have the richest contract ever signed in the Canadian Football League, said Michael Trope, president of World Sports Management, Inc.

Figures were not disclosed. "That's the prerogative of the Montreal club," said Rodgers-but the amount is believed to be worth more than $100,000 a year.

"Money is the basic reason I chose Canada," said Rodgers, a first-round draft choice of San Diego Chargers in the National Football League. "Canada is a beautiful place ... I know I'll be happy there."

Barry Sandberg, the lawyer who negotiated with San Diego and Montreal, said neither team was told what the other offered.

"We told San Diego their offer was somewhat less and we were inclined to take Montreal's. We asked if they cared to make another offer and in this case they had made their highest offer."

Bourassa Honored

OTTAWA (CP) — Jocelyne Bourassa became the first woman professional named as the outstanding French-Canadian athlete Thursday night, winning the Gil-O. Julien award for 1972.

Started in 1949 as an amateur award in honor of the late sports editor of the French-language daily newspaper, Le Droit, it was opened to professionals in 1955.

Miss Bourassa, 25, joined the women's pro golf tour in 1972, won $16,428 and was named LPGA rookie-of-the-year.

Miss Bourassa also received $1,000 with the award.

Honored at the same time as Ottawa-Hull area athlete of 1972 was defenseman Denis Potvin of Ottawa 67s, taken by New York Islanders of the National Hockey League as the No. 1 choice in the junior draft earlier this month.

Last year, his last in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Series, Potvin scored 120 points to eclipse the record for a defenseman of 94 points established in 1964 by Bobby Orr, now with Boston Bruins of the NHL.

Nicklaus Shares The Lead

ATLANTA (AP) — Admitting he played well, Jack Nicklaus shared the lead with two relative unknowns after the first round of the $150,000 Atlanta Golf Classic.

Nicklaus, who has won $146,065 on the PGA tour this year, swept from behind with birdies on the final two holes Thursday for a five-under-par 67 over the 6,985-yard Atlanta Golf Club course.

Also at 67 was second-year pro David Glenz and tour veteran Mac McLendon.

Clarke Takes Hart

MONTREAL (CP) — Bobby Clarke of Philadelphia Flyers has become the first West Division player to win the Hart Memorial Trophy—the National Hockey League's most valuable player award, the league announced today.

Clarke, captain and top centre on his team, polled 158 points in the voting conducted by the Professional Hockey Writers' Association (PHWA) of the NHL's 16 cities. He also broke an eight-year monopoly on the award by players with Chicago Black Hawks and Boston Bruins.

Bruins' centre Phil Esposito, who won the trophy in 1968-69, collected 96 points as runner-up, 33 more than team-mate Bobby Orr, who had won the Hart Trophy in each of the previous three seasons.

Prior to Esposito being named winner, Stan Mikita and Bobby Hull had combined to keep the award in Chicago for four years. Hull won the trophy in 1964-65 and 1965-66 while Mikita captured the prize the next two seasons. The last player other than a Bruin or Black Hawk to win the award was Jean Beliveau of Montreal Canadiens in 1963-64.

Clarke, a 23-year-old native of Flin Flon, Man., became the first West Division player to collect 100 points. He tallied 27 goals and 67 assists for 104 points to finish second in the scoring race behind Esposito's 130 total.

In four seasons in the league, Clarke has scored 116 goals and 190 assists for 294 points in 296 games. In the last three years his ledger is impressive, 242 points—89 goals and 149 assists—better than a point-a-game average.

LOOP-CHARGED CYLINDERS
Evinrude's loop-charged cylinder design develops more horsepower from less fuel. This system allows the engine to run cooler at higher rpm's, generating even more power.
PRESSURE-BACKED PISTON RINGS
Increases engine life and improves fuel economy. The higher the combustion power, the tighter the piston ring seals the combustion chamber. When the pressure reduces, the ring relaxes, minimizing friction.
NEW FIXED IDLE JETS FOR SMOOTHER IDLING AND TROLLING
NEW SUPER-STRONG TRANSOM BRACKET WITH PRE-SET TILT LOCK PULSE-TUNED EXHAUST
Gives you more power on less fuel without additional engine size. Evinrude's sophisticated double-tuned exhaust system uses the exhaust pressure pulse of one cylinder to tune the other. The fuel-air mixture is cleaner, more powerful.
FIREPOWER ELECTRONIC IGNITION
Quickest, surest starting there is. Delivers up to 40,000 volts to the spark plug — 250 times faster at the firing gap. Longer plug life. No points to adjust. Smoother idling for trolling and running.

Carol Checks Target

Carol Armstrong, one of the Belleville Archery Club's top archers, checks her score after an end of six arrows during her three hour practice session with the 120 cm target Thursday morning. Carol is preparing herself for this weekend's two Belleville qualifying shoots for the Canadian World Championship team.

Carol will be making her second and third attempts at qualifying scores at this weekend's tournaments to be held at Centennial Secondary in Belleville.

She will try to overcome that very human error that she succumbed to in last Sunday's qualifier in Ottawa.

"Basically, archery boils down to repetition," said Carol. "If you can get yourself working like a machine, you'll do well.

Carol Perfects Her Style

Carol Armstrong of the Belleville Archery Club, nearly did just that in the 1969 World Archery Championships at Valley Forge as the Canadian team of which she was a member, placed second to the Russians.

Coached by her husband, Floyd, Carol has again begun that long road of tournament shoots to qualify for a place on the Canadian team which will head to Grenoble, France, for this year's World Championships.

But the qualifying process is by no means an easy one. Though 1440 is the perfect score anywhere above 1050 points would give her one of the three scores required to qualify for an appearance in Calgary at the trials for the Canadian World Championship team.

"Archery is basically an individual sport that is made up of a succession of steps. If you get sloppy in one aspect of the way you shoot, it affects the rest and then you get your arrows scattering all around the butt."

Exactly what happened to the archer at the Ottawa shoot? Two-thirds of the way through the tournament, her coach noticed that she was bringing her shoulder up towards her face instead of keeping it down and straight.

"That throws the alignment of the arrow off when you're aiming," said Carol, "essentially it makes the arrow longer because it shortens your reach. It feels as if you're shooting further because you're pulling back that much further. You strain a lot.

"I shot like a relative beginner with a 986, but it's at least less frustrating than the 1048 (one short of the qualifying score) that I shot several years ago."

The Belleville archer has been practising this week in an effort to overcome the shoulder roll. When she does, the calibre of the competition she will face over the weekend may send her into another cease of the quivers.

Ann Chalmers, the 1967 Canadian champion in the women's freestyle may be in attendance while Mary Great, one of the members of the Canadian Olympic team, will definitely be in Belleville.

Gems and Palmers Post PENSSL Wins

Belleville Gems and Bayview Orchards hooked up in a well-played Prince Edward North Shore Softball League contest Wednesday with the outcome in doubt all the way.

Gems squeezed out a 5-4 win.

Al Genereaux went the first six innings for Gems with Bob Boyle taking over in the seventh. They held the Orchards' team to four base hits, three off Genereaux and one off the offerings of Boyle.

For the losers, Don Baxter pitched six innings with Steve Dostator working the seventh. They each surrendered three hits.

The losers' hits were accounted for by Doug Mason, Dwayne Dostator, Bob Harrison and George Daniels.

In the other league game, Plamer Fuels' Bill Kitcham limited Canoeseo to three base hits on the way to an 3 - 4 win. Losing pitcher Gary Eardley gave up six hits.

The winners' Paul Pettitcill was the game's only two-hit man. Palmer's other safeties went to Rob Roblin, Pete Pettingill, Dennis Gale and Hugh Holmes.

Motorcycle Team on Top

Wellman and McIntosh joined Mark Stoughton to share the hitting honors for the winners. Each slammed a home run. Scott Massie belted a homer in a losing cause.

Melrose Wins 9-1

Terry McTaggart held Canniffon Plane's Concrete to six hits in a South Hastings Baseball League win for Melrose Wednesday. McTaggart claimed eight on third strikes and walked two. Final score was 9-1.

Losing pitcher B. Robb also retired eight batters on strikes. He walked four while giving up nine base hits.

Ted Abrams paced Melrose with a home run and two doubles while Gaven McMechan contributed a triple and a double. Robb had two singles for Plane's.

Bardon and Auger's Struggle to Wins

Both Thursday Commercial Softball League games were decided by one run as the teams continue to get supportive pitching and tight fielding in the season's early going. Bardon Supplies nipped Howard and Robert 4-3 in the first game while Trenton Arlene's shaded Deveiin Motors 1-0 in the nightcap at Alemite Park.

Bardon won the game with a three run surge in the bottom of the third which erased a 3-1 Howard and Robert lead. The losers threatened in each inning after that, leaving two men stranded on the bases in each of the fourth, fifth and sixth innings and another in the seventh but couldn't get the key base hit when it was needed.

Losing pitcher Bob Swan, after that disastrous third inning, settled down to limit Bardon to just one base runner over the remaining three frames he worked. But his mates just couldn't cash in on their chances to get the equalizer.

Jamie Hunter got the win, going the distance on an eight hitter. He struck out seven and walked two. Swan, in defeat, matched Hunter's eight hitter while fanning five. He didn't walk a man.

Hunter helped his own cause with a pair of safeties both singles. Right fielder Bill Dewey also helped himself to two singles with one each for Fred Walswork, Sid Davies, Bri-an Hitsman and Bill Gallagher.

First baseman John Campbell was a one man gang for the losers, enjoying a perfect night at the plate with a triple, double and two singles. Moe Hunter checked in with a triple, and the other Howard and Robert hits, all singles, went to Larry Potter, Karl Bagnell and Rusty Garvin.

In the second game of the twin bill, Auger's starting pitcher Scott Reid wasn't around long. After getting the first batter he faced on strikes, Scott was removed by the umpire that he was not following the proper procedure for pitchers and after giving up a walk to Jim Horwood Reid was gone from the game.

George Ferguso.. took over and finished up with a four hitter. He put third strikes past eight and issued two free tickets to first base.

The hard luck loser was a Don Holoway who nonetheless worked himself out of trouble in the only inning he allowed a run. Jimmy Mavety led off the fourth with a triple but Holoway responded to the challenge by fanning Frank Turner and getting Steve Baker to ground out. Dave Henry drew a walk and then pitcher Ferguson was out on a ball game by beating out an infield hit to second baseman Treeton third baseman Joe Theriault was the only player in the game to manage more than one hit. He cracked a pair of singles. Henry supplied one single to go with the safeties by Mavety and Ferguson.

Holoway's two-out second inning triple was the big hit for the losers. Catcher Lyle Thompson and shortstop Wayne Woods had a single each.

BCI's Mike Crawford makes a move to check Emanuel Oliveira and remove the ball from the rushing Nicholson player. Crawford however was not successful just as the Collegians were unable to defend their Bay of Quinte lacrosse title. BCI lost the title match 6 - 5 yesterday at Quinte Secondary.

Nicholson Champion

In what can be considered a major upset, Nicholson Catholic College fans saw their field lacrosse team defeat the defending Bay of Quinte champions, BCI Collegians, 6 - 5, Thursday afternoon.

Both coaches were surprised at the game result as Ted Periberg was fairly certain that BCI would walk away with the title in the second year of lacrosse play in the high schools.

Gary Duggan admitted before yesterday's matchup that the BCI club had better attackers than his own team but the reverse proved to be the case as Jim Wringe with two, Chris Kalbay, Dave Dolan, John Murphy and Andy Forgie scored goals for Nicholson.

Forgie's unassisted goal within two minutes of the fourth quarter broke the 5 5 tie and gave Nicholson its first championship after a 4-3-1 won-loss-tie record over the season.

Minor Baseball

Mike Burke co-ordinated a Kinsmen Club bantam slugfest Thursday with his two home runs and triple to lead his Belleville Minor Baseball Association club to a 33-3 win over the Mel Barrigar bantams.

Pitchers Clyde Routley and Gary Stapley combined to strike out 19 batters while only walking four for Kinsmen. Sluggers for the winners were Ray Skelly and Routley with two triples and Scott Dean with three singles. Barrigar's Bill Whalen hit a triple.

In the other bantam BMBA house league game, CJBQ Expos defeated Ellis Printing all-star peewees 13-6 as Pat McWilliams batted out three singles and Kelly Lucas hit a triple and single.

In peewee action Wednesday, the Kinsmen drubbed Motorland 16-10 as the losing four pitchers gave up 12 hits to four for the winners. Motorland's John Rollins went for a triple while Bob Bowen hit two doubles and Paul O'Brien a single.

Mike Vani didn't do badly for himself in the Alhambra 109 20-4 victory over the Kinmen Club tykes Wednesday. Vani earned six of Alhambra's 20 hits with a homerun, triple, single and three doubles going to his credit. Steve Skanopa and Glen Donavan hit a trio of singles.

Four homeruns were among the nine hits taken from pitchers in the Bay Shore Club - Bob's Sports tyke baseball game Wednesday Bay Shore's Steve Molashie batted two while teammate Jeff Hanna had one and Bob's Sports Brian Weaver another.

CTC and AOCO Still Undefeated

Canadian Tire and AOCO remain undefeated in Industrial Softball League play this season but Thursday both teams were held to ties, leaving Quinte Mall Lenders the only team yet to lose a point. Lenders have three wins in as many starts while CTC and AOCO boast three wins each to go with one tie.

Maud Johnson held CTC to a 5-5 stalemate while AOCO was being checked by Belleville Utilities in a 3-3 draw. In other league games, Independents blanked Constellation 8-0 and Post Office made it two wins in a row by topping The Intelligencer 13-11. It was the third loss in as many starts for the Intell.

Harold Wilkinson and Sonny Holoway of Meads teamed up to hold CTC to six base hits while their mates got to Andy Pruden for eight safeties. Alec Belch led CTC with a double and single. Best for Maud was Mark Reid with two singles.

Utilities, in picking up their first point of the season, got solid pitching from Wilson Bulpit who logged a four-hitter. AOCO's Ron McCoy scattered 11 hits. Bob Bogle and Mandy Bly each stroked two hits for Utilities. McCoy slammed a homer for AOCO.

Independents locked up their win over Constellation with a six-run sixth inning. The winners' pitchers Jim Nordgy and Doug Campbell held Constellation to five hits while their mates were getting to the losers' Jim Thompson for 11 safeties.

Fournier Hunter, Bob Craig and Bob Casselman each supplied two hits for the winners. Tops for Constellation were Steve Gatcum and Ron Mitchell with two safeties apiece.

Gord Campbell and John Rehan were the big guns at the plate for Post Office in the win over the Intell. John helped himself to four singles while Gord connected for a triple and two hits. Ron Post slugged a homer.

Culleton, Joey Edwards and John Edwards shared the pitching for the losers and gave up a total of 13 hits. Gerry Genereaux and George Johnston toiled for the winners and were rocked for 12 safeties.

Gun Club

In a regular Quinte Trap and Gun Club shoot Wednesday, Don Kleinsteuber scored a 25 to show the way. Norris Cunningham and Charles Thorn each scored 22.

Bamber, Barberstock Fail to Decide Issue

The score at the end of seven innings of play in the South Hastings Baseball League game between Latta and Shannonville was 2-2, but that figure does not indicate the runs scored. There were none.

However, it does illustrate the pitching battle between Latta's Dale Bamber and Shannonville's Bill Barberstock, as each hurler gave up a meagre two hits during Wednesday's matchup.

After those seven scoreless innings the game was called for lack of light with the scoreboard still reading 0-0.

Latta's Bamber struck out 10 batters while only walking two, but Barberstock outdid him by a slim margin of 11 strike outs and one man taking the base on balls.

Bob Smith and Wayne Harrison were able to hit singles off Barberstock while Jason Morris and Mike Morris got to Bamber for a double and single respectively.

Read won its first of the season with a 4-1 victory over Reserve as Pat O'Connor and Peter Walsh combined arms to give Bob Read his first loss. Reid struck out 11 batters, while Walsh, in his first appearance in a Read uniform, disarmed three batters.

Low Scorer Says Defending Major Job

By AL ZARAS
Staff Sportswriter
(Sixteenth of Series)

Dave Flesch accounted for his short supply of goals in his first season with the Belleville Bobcats by saying that his job was to keep goals out of the net, not put them in.

The 17 - year - old defenceman, who scored three goals and assisted on 16 through the regular season and the Metro Jr. B playoffs, said that "defence is for the defence, offence is for the forwards".

"I'm not an aggressive defenceman," said Flesch, "though maybe next year I'll start scoring. If there would have been a lot of forwards that couldn't put the puck into the net, then I would have taken more chances."

Tim Yohn was cited as an example of a defenceman much more aggressive than himself, "but he knows when to rush and when not to rush out of our end. His experience helped him to score as well as he did."

Speaking of Yohn and the other defencemen Flesch played alongside during the year, the Blake Kerr Imperial midget graduate did not feel any preference as to the other half of the pair.

"Their styles might have been different, but you have to adjust to that. Basically, there are two different ways of playing defence — defensively and offensively. My style is defensive.

"As a result, if the other defenceman runs around in his own end, then you sit in front of the net, giving the goalie protection. If he rushes, I'd hand back."

Flesch won't be doing much of either until the hockey season gets underway again, but before then, he will likely have to exercise his knee. The defenceman, who remains eligible for the Cats another two years, injured his knee at the beginning of the season, and subsequently re-injured it twice. Doctors will x-ray the knee to check the possibility of a torn cartilage today.

DAVE FLESCH
. . . scoring short

If the job he first planned on a farm comes through, Flesch should be working his way right through the summer to the hockey season after his vacation out West.

Yardmen Midgets Win

Yardmen pitchers Mike McClelland and Craig Empey allowed only nine hits between them to direct the Belleville midgets to a 10-0 win over Ajax in Eastern Ontario Baseball Association play Tuesday.

Scott Dean had a pair of hits and single provided Belleville with part of their batting power while Empey knocked out a double and two singles. Catcher Rick Culkin batted to the tune of two doubles while Bruce McDonnell hit one.

Marmora Personals

MARMORA — Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bingham were guests at the Friday wedding of Frederick Peter Maddocks and Miss Dallas Stark RN, daughter of Mrs. Albert Hurst of Ballehoro, (formerly Mrs. Alfed Stark of Marmora). Miss Susan Draper was maid of honor at the ceremony which took place in Forest Grove United Church, Willowdale. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, David Stark.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ronbough arrived on Saturday from Window Rock, Arizona, to spend the summer months at their cottage on Beaver Creek.

Mrs. Roy Frost visited her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Seely in Montreal on the weekend while Mr. Frost enjoyed a weekend of fishing in the Hawkesbury area.

Miss Elsie Allan, Miss Kay Hornberger, Miss Margaret Whitehead, Mrs. Iris Williams and her daughter Sandra, all of Toronto were guests of Miss Iris Clarke and Miss Rose McGarvey for the holiday weekend.

Mrs. James Casement and her brother Clarence Finnegan spent last week with friends and relatives in Whitby. Saturday, they attended the ordination of their nephew Rev. John Newton in the dignatory of the holy priesthood. They were also present for Rev. Newton's first mass on Sunday at St. John the Evangelist Church in Whitby, and at the dinner which followed.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

SATURDAY, MAY 26

Aries (March 21-April 19): Days like this are rare; be patient, learn to manage emotional stress constructively.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Steady routine effort is the best approach. Assign priorities, disregard comments from acquaintances.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Try a conservative, conventional course—older people watch all you do. There's much to gain if they understand your efforts.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Continued concern over your resources may lead you to change outworn habits and adopt a simpler approach.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Impossible action pays. Get to the point, involve no personalities or side issues. Settle for what you can get.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Let people hear from you briefly, then busy yourself with neglected household chores. Evening may be festive.

Capricorn (Dec. 23-Jan. 19): Where you can be of practical assistance, help without fuss. If you can't, don't get in the way.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Don't worry, no matter how slight the project, or how routine its purpose. Altho not avoidable, worrying about others is not the thing to do.

To Your Good Health

To Stop Blushing Stop Worrying

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a problem with blushing. It occurs at least 20 times a day and happens only when I'm talking to someone.

Does it have anything to do with high blood pressure? If so, is there anything I can take that will lower my pressure and keep me from blushing? I am 16.

The tone of the tiny capillaries (blood vessels) in the skin is controlled by the involuntary nervous system. In some folks this is quite unstable, so dilation of the capillaries (with blushing) occurs very easily.

Usually a psychological factor underlies this—a sense of unsureness, inadequacy or downright—uncertainty. Another you can cope with ordinary, simple situations. So, course, there's more you worry about blushing, the more uncertain you become and the more you blush.

At your age it is doubtful that blood pressure has anything to do with it. Although high blood pressure can occur in young people, it is rare. Next time you see your doctor, have him check your pressure, just you won't have to worry about.

For what consolation there is in it, the situation can be expected to lessen as you mature and gain self-confidence. Make time start saying to yourself, "What harm is there in a little blush?" If you stop caring about it, you will very likely stop blushing so much.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Are the long round worms that children pass the same as dogs have, and can children get them by swimming and playing with dogs?

—A.M.W.

They may be, but are not always the same.

Worms from an infected pet are passed in the stool, and children can get them on their fingers and other things that only a multi-vitamin.

As a regular reader, you doubtless read my comments on vitiligo, but perhaps skipped over them. Vitiligo is by far the principal cause of such white spots—a patchy loss of pigment in the skin.

The cause is not known and such curative treatment as is available is fussy and not necessarily successful, but you can, if you wish, ask a dermatologist about trying it.

Sites vitiligo (pronounced vit-till-EYE-go) is not harmful in any way other than its appearance, the best solution usually is one of the special cosmetics that can be blended to match your skin color.

Bidding Quiz

You are South, both sides vulnerable. The bidding has been:

| West | North | East | South |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1♠ | 1♠ | Pass | ? |

What would you bid with each of the following five hands?

1. ♠ 3 ♥ 5 4 3 ♦ A K Q 7 6 ♣ 9 5 4 3
2. ♠ A K 5 4 3 ♥ K Q 7 6 ♦ Q 8 ♣ 3 2
3. ♠ K Q 7 6 5 ♥ A 3 ♦ 8 ♣ Q 6 4 3
4. ♠ A K 7 6 5 ♥ A K Q 8 3 ♦ 3 ♣ 5 4
5. ♠ A K Q 8 5 ♥ A K Q 8 5 ♦ 7 ♣ 6 5

1. Two spades. It is infinitely better to raise the spades than show the beautiful five hearts would not indicate support for spades, which is false; on the contrary, it would suggest poor support. Thus, two hearts would be proper with some such hand as ♠ 8 ♥ K Q J 9 8 ♦ K 10 6 5 ♣ 4 3 2. Pubermore, two hearts would not be forcing and might result in winding up in the wrong partscore contract.

The simplest way of showing a spade fit is by raising the suit; it is certainly not necessary to particularize the nature of the spade raise at this point.

2. Four spades. It would be straining your imagination too much to expect partner to lose four tricks with this promising hand. The alternative bid, three spades, would be invitational, but not forcing, and the bidding might die then and there. The singleton club is a powerful feature and should serve to catapult you right into game.

3. Pass. This is not a pleasant thing to do, but one must be realistic in such situations. The only other sensible bid, one notrump, is extremely dangerous. Game is unlikely, and trying to improve your position by bidding a suit you may only make matters worse for example, if partner bids two spades.

4. Three spades. It's hard to gauge the game prospects by yourself and it is therefore best to solicit partner's opinion by inviting him to go on to four. The double raise with only three trumps is unusual, but there are compensating features in the form of the high-card values as well as the singleton heart.

With a fourth trump instead of a diamond or a club, you would go directly to four. It would be wrong to merely invite a game in a hand where you'd want to be in game.

5. Four notrump. It is certainly reasonable to assume that partner can make a slam if he has an ace. You therefore use Blackwood to extract that information The intention is to stop in five spades if North responds five aces, showing no aces, and to bid six spades if North shows one ace by responding five diamonds.

Tomorrow: A huge swing.

Eldorado

ELDORADO — Mr. and Mrs. Dave Fisher of Toronto were weekend visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Wannamaker.

Mr. and Mrs. Brian McBride and son of Renfrew were weekend visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Sine.

Melrose

Mr. and Mrs. Ken McMechan, accompanied by Gail and Lorraine McMechan and Edna Locke of Belleville were in Ottawa Friday to attend graduation exercises at Algonquin College. Glen McMechan was graduated from the college.

Cleanup Feature

HULL, Que. (CP) — Hull's annual spring cleanup campaign differs from those in the past. The feature of the traditional drive in Hull is that abandoned car wrecks will be picked up free of charge. City manager Aime Desjardins said: "We hope by providing this service, we'll be able to get rid of all those car wrecks that have been left scattered during the winter time."

CP News Roundup

Liberal Wants PC Senators

OTTAWA (CP) — The prime minister should appoint more senators from the opposition ranks, using lists provided by the leader of the Commons opposition, a Liberal senator said Thursday.

The opposition benches should not fall below one-third of the total Senate membership, Senator John Connolly (Ontario) said during Senate debate on reforming the upper house.

There now are 17 Progressive Conservative senators, two independents, one Independent-Liberal and one Social Credit. In the 103-seat House, plus 71 Liberals and 10 vacancies.

Senator Connolly argued that preservation of the partial statutory system hinges on preserving the Senate.

Senator Connolly said he would favor limiting the Senate's veto to a suspensive veto on money bills, permitting the Senate to delay financial legislation but not destroy it.

Out of Cells

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Eighty prisoners at Millbrook minimum security institution, 25 south of here, refused to return to their cells Thursday and spent the night in the prison court yard.

Pay Freeze

TORONTO (CP)—Teachers at Ryerson Polytechnical Institute voted Thursday to take a partial pay freeze if it helps the provincial government cuts bureaucratic expense.

After three hours of debate, a large majority of the 120 teachers present voted to take the freeze because Ryerson is in debt.

MP III

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Walace Nesbitt, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Oxford, was in fair condition in hospital Thursday night after suffering a brain hemorrhage.

144,000 Probed

OTTAWA (CP) — About 144,000 unemployment insurance recipients were investigated in the first quarter of 1973 and 8,600 of those were disqualified from benefits, Guy Cousineau, Unemployment Insurance Commission chairman, said Thursday.

Egg Control

OTTAWA (CP) — A national egg marketing agency should be in operation by the end of next month, Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan told the Commons Thursday.

Privies Disgraceful

TORONTO (CP) — The condition of portable privies on a construction site was described as utterly disgraceful by acting Medical Officer of Health Dr. H. C. Wade. Wade, who said Inspectors around after receiving complaints about the privies, said "there was no excuse for the facilities we have seen so exist."

Canada and Indonesia May Both Quit ICCS

SAIGON (AP) — The Saigon government said today it has learned from diplomatic sources that Canada and Indonesia are considering withdrawing their ceasefire observers.

"We have not directly contacted the Canadian delegation or the Indonesian delegation in Saigon, but from what we've heard from diplomatic sources, these two governments are considering pulling the teams out of Vietnam if the presence of the Canadian and Indonesian delegation in Vietnam are not justified," government spokesman Bui Bao Truc told a news conference.

But Imrad Idris, deputy head of the Indonesian delegation, said: "We have absolutely no plans to pull out of the ICCS. Our position is unchanged, and at-op time have we ever indicated we were planning to leave."

Truc's statement came amidst mounting speculation that the Canadian government will announce next week that it is pulling out of the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS). The reason is said to be Canada's unhappiness with the commission's impotence due to constant disagreement along East-West lines.

Besides Canada and Indonesia, the other commission members are Poland and Hungary. Canada and Indonesia usually end up on one side of most issues with the two East European countries on the other.

"If the ICCS cannot perform its task, then the presence of the Canadian and Indonesian delegations shall not be justified," Truc said. "We can only hope the Canadian and Indonesians won't pull out the teams from Vietnam."

Truc said the commission "has not been effective in its assigned tasks to supervise the ceasefire because of the blatant efforts of the Polish and Hungarian observers to block the commission's work."

"But now that the Canadians and Indonesians are considering pulling out their truce-keeping teams from Vietnam, we must say that we are very unhappy at the lack of impartiality or co-operation shown by the Polish and Hungarian delegations."

He said every time South Vietnam asks the commission to investigate a ceasefire violation committed by the Communists, "we had the same response—which means either a negative one or sometimes not even a response."

Political Quicksand Mires Body

OTTAWA (CP) — Recent reports from Canadian peace observers in Vietnam indicate the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) is sinking in political quicksand, an external affairs department spokesman said Friday.

He said the 290 Canadians on the ICCS have been frustrated by blatant attempts of Polish and Hungarian observers to halt the commission's work.

Disagreement over a report on the April 7 attack on two helicopters, which resulted in the death of a Canadian officer, has disclosed a deep rift between ICCS members—Poland and Hungary on one side, and Canada and Indonesia on the other.

The department spokesman said there is no sign of improvement in the commission's ability to work effectively.

The cabinet is to decide by May 31 whether to stay on the ICCS or quit.

Vietnamese Helicopter Shot Down

SAIGON (AP)—An unarmed South Vietnamese helicopter was shot down by Communist fire Friday 30 miles north of Saigon and all 12 persons aboard, including a regimental commander, were killed, the Saigon command announced today.

World Business Leaders Told U.S. to Play Tough on Trade

RIO DE JANEIRO (CP) — The prime message left with world business leaders after a week-long conference here is that forthcoming trade negotiations are going to be tough.

The signals dropped by a number of delegations, especially those from the United States, are that major trading partners of the U.S. will be subjected to strong pressure from the Americans.

These talks have a special significance for Canada, largest trading partner of the U.S. With two-thirds of Canadian exports going to the U.S., any resistive trade measures by the U.S. would have an especially heavy impact on the Canadian economy.

Canadians attending the International Chamber of Commerce conference say the U.S has two possible alternatives in its effort to boost trade to help overcome a chronic balance of payments deficit: More exports or restrictive trade measures. None of the world trading powers — especially Canada, would welcome the latter.

Jim MacGregor, head of the American delegation, said in an interview that there are welcome signs other countries now appreciate and understand the U.S. problems.

"Two years ago when we attended the ICC conference in Vienna, we were on the edge of a cliff. We've gone over that since then and we're climbing up the other side."

He noted that the new U.S. trade bill gives President Nixon wide powers to act in trade matters if the U.S trade position doesn't improve.

"But we shouldn't lose sight of the fact that what the U.S really wants is a long-term trade liberalization agreement.

"That's what we're after and we'll be playing a strong hand in the trade talks."

These international trade negotiations are due to start in September under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT).

John Crean of Toronto, head of the Canadian delegation, agreed that the GATT talks are more crucial than any previously.

Interwoven with the trade talks, he said, are the prospects for a new international monetary agreement and talks on strategic arms, including the future of U.S. forces in Europe.

Canadian business leaders, it was learned here, have already started preparations for the GATT bargaining. A number of Canadian business organizations have started gathering information from all sectors of the economy for use when the bargaining begins. These groups include the Canadian Manufacturers Association, the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, export and import associations and the ICC Canadian council.

Hectic Day at Skylab

Astronants Make Spacewalk to Dock

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—Safely docked with their orbiting space station after a day of high drama, the Skylab 1 astronauts were to attempt today what could be another cliffhanger—raising a sun curtain on their cabin in the sky.

Bone-tired after a hectic first day in orbit, Charles Conrad, Dr. Joseph Kerwin and Paul Weitz faced another busy time today, entering the station for the first time to determine how well it survived the effects of 12 days of extreme heat.

During a frustrating space walk, Weitz found he did not have the proper tool to free a jammed solar panel that would have provided their orbital home with more electricity.

The drama centred on the repeated attempts to link with the laboratory after the failure to release the panel. It followed one successful linkup earlier in the day when the astronauts caught Skylab after a 12,000-mile-an-hour pursuit that lasted 7½ hours.

For the second docking, the astronauts finally had to take what amounted to a space walk to make necessary repairs. They donned space suits, evacuated air from the cabin of their Apollo ferry ship and, in the vacuum of space, hooked up an electrical cable to override a short circuit.

They did not step outside but moved into a tunnel area where the Apollo docking mechanism is located.

"Yea! We got a hard dock out of it," Skylab 1 commander Conrad exclaimed just before midnight as the hooked up Apollo and Skylab flew above a tracking station in the South Atlantic.

Rumor Has Third Minister Involved in British Scandal

LONDON — Reuter — British parliamentarians began a spring holiday today as rumors continued to circulate about the sex-and-security scandal which has already cost the government two ministers for association with call girls.

As members left on a recess lasting until June 5 there were reported in some circles of Parliament that another minister was involved. This was despite assurances to the contrary from Prime Minister Heath Wednesday.

But Heath was unable to state it categorically then, saying only that "on the information available to me" there were no grounds for implicating other ministers or public servants.

Lord Jellicoe, a cabinet minister and leader of the House of Lords, and Lord Lambton, a junior defence minister, both resigned this week, admitting associations with call girls but denying that there were any breach of blackmail or of breaches of security.

Meanwhile, a police inquiry into the possible existence of an international vice ring continued and amid suggestions that, in addition to call girls with links with drug pushers, young boys were also being used in a potential blackmail operation.

And there were more revelations in British papers about the background of 26-year-old Norma Levy, the call girl in the Lambton scandal, said to be in Dublin now.

The Daily Mail says that she came from a strongly religious Roman Catholic family in the Irish republic, with an aunt who is mother-general of the Sisters of Mercy convents and an uncle who is a monk working among the destitute people of Limerick.

Norma Levy, meanwhile, at first refused to comment to reporters in Dublin. Then one report said that she claimed her association with Lord Lambton had been set up by the Irish Republican Army.

One of Lord Lambton's five daughters, 18 year-old Lady Anne Lambton, was questioned with a group of her friends when they were stopped in a car in western England last month, it was revealed Friday night.

The car was stopped by a drugs detective for a routine search and two of the people in the car were later charged with possessing drugs.

But, a police statement said: "Lady Lambton has not been and will not be charged with an offence coming out of this incident."

Madcap Start to March

These young people were among the more than 300 who set out sharp at 9 a.m. from Zwick's Island to cover the 20-mile hike from park to park, the Walkathon-route organized by the Belleville Kiwanis Club to raise funds for bayfront park development. Bid farewell by Mayor Jeffrey, the march soon spread out into a long line, those in front setting out at a brisk trot, those at the rear aking it more comfortably.

Gas Drain Feared

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada faces a gasoline shortage unless there is a clamp down on exports to the United States, T. C. Douglas NDP—Nanaimo Cowichan The Islands said in the Commons Friday. Mr. Douglas said National Energy Board figures showed total exports for January and February were 11,500 gallons but climbed to 5,332,000 gallons by the end of March. "Gas is being drained out of this country to feed the demands of the U.S."

Ready to Talk

MONTREAL (CP) — Federal Communications Minister Gerard Pelletier said today he is prepared to discuss government jurisdiction in the field of telecommunications with the provincers. Mr. Pelletier said he does not agree with the Ontario government position, announced Friday, that cable television systems should be under the control and direction of the province. The Quebec government also claims jurisdiction over cable television in the province. Earlier Mr. Pelletier said the federal government would take court action, if necessary, to prevent takeover of the field by the Quebec government.

Belts to Be Changed

OTTAWA (CP) — Separate lap and shoulder safety belts, now used in all cars manufactured in Canada, will be replaced by a single, one piece, three point belt on all cars produced after Jan. 1, 1974.

Eggs to Be Controlled

OTTAWA (CP) — Provincial egg men agreed Friday to set up a national marketing agency that will begin controlling egg production and pricing June 4, a spokesman for the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency said.

Government Won't Sue

TORONTO (CP) — The federal government has rejected a request that it file Combines Act charges of false and misleading advertising against leading retail tan and steel manufacturers over a recent advertising campaign. "I don't understand it" said Marvyn Brechin, president of the Consumers Association of Canada, one of two organizations which filed the complaint. The other was Pollution Probe.

First Ministers End Talks Without Accord

OTTAWA (CP) The three-day conference of first ministers that was to chart the future of federal-provincial cost-sharing programs slowly drew to a close Friday without the landmark agreements federal officials had hoped for.

But, as the premiers walked out of the closed conference hall, several leaving early, they gave one common impression to reporters: The talks had been worthwhile if only because they made government leaders more aware of the views of their counterparts in other provinces.

Ontario Premier William Davis summed up his reaction to the three days of talks: "I am registering neither disappointment nor wild enthusiasm."

The first two days of the conference were dominated by discussion of federal proposals under which the provinces would take over all costs of medicial care and health insurance programs in return for getting more tax room from Ottawa.

At a news conference after the conference ended, Prime Minister Trudeau said the federal proposal will remain "on the table" while the provinces think it over again.

After general talks on the economy Friday, the premiers expressed satisfaction with Finance Minister Turner's review of economic matters. Mr. Turner gave an optimistic forecast of economic growth, although saying the number of jobs created this year might not be as many as expected in February.

Mr. Trudeau told reporters most of the premiers agreed with Ottawa's view that price and income controls would not be effective against inflation. Those that didn't agree did not press for such controls.

A brief discussion of the problem of foreign ownership of land ended with the decision to set up a committee of provincial and federal officials to study the question.

Mr. Trudeau said that not all provinces agreed with the federal view that any restriction on land ownership should apply only to foreigners and not Canadians who live in a province other than the one where they want to buy land.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Mainly cloudy skies cover southern Ontario today, with some clearing expected over extreme southwestern portions. Little change is expected Sunday as a weak low pressure moves slowly across the Great Lakes. The temperatures will remain a little below normal.

Schools Need Leadership Director Tells Teachers

"A road map of the path to leadership was given by Hastings county's director of education to eastern Ontario business and commercial department heads at the wind-up of their eight annual conventions at the Four Seasons Hotel Friday.

"We need leadership in education now as we have never needed it before," said Eric Runacres, speaking to the members of the Association of Business and Commerce Directors.

But he drew a dividing line between administration and leadership and cautioned against confusing the two.

"An administrator facilitates getting acceptable things done; a leader creates ideas. Administration is a science; leadership is an art. Administrators fear change and welcome and dominate change. Administration has all the incandescence of a flashlight; leadership is like a lighthouse beacon."

Teachers have been, in the past, too fast to use what they know of human relations skills to lead, said Mr. Runacres.

"This is one of the buzz gags in education," he said. "Some of my principals have an appalling lack of understanding of human relations."

The first component of leadership is communication, but Mr. Runacres warned against written communication.

The first rule of leadership is to worse than zero because it hurts the communication involves dealing with people and their ideas."

Commonly accepted goals are the next factor and the leader must establish what he expects of the people he leads.

The climate in which the goals are reached must be clearly defined — whether authoritarian, democratic, or laissez faire.

"If you are going to be a dictator, be a good one," the director advised.

Next, the leader must set up an organization to achieve his goals and choose staff to carry out his objectives.

Finally, the leader must set up a systematic way to evaluate his goals, staff and achieving.

Mr. Runacres made clear his preference in educational climates.

The early viable unit in education today is the family of schools, the associate school group, he said.

"Not the county — it is administrative, and too many people serve the schools. It doesn't control and guide them. The teacher must be the active controller of change.

"You will be happier if you opt for the authoritarian mode," he told his listeners. "If you opt for the second mode you will live a little longer. I want my teachers and principals to have the nerve of failure."

Will Mall Plan Be Scuttled?

BY IAN ROBERTSON

Being an old Ottawa boy, I can appreciate the relaxing atmosphere of the famous Quarter Quarter mall with its sidewalk cafes, fountains and people - watching.

Unfortunately for towns the size of Trenton, a similar enterprise would not be feasible for both economic and traffic reasons.

But for the past three years, merchants in the main downtown shopping district have arranged for a three - day shopping mall, complete with closed off street.

This mall has been little more than a glorified sidewalk sale, but with colorful booths and dress plus ground such as the Trenton Sing-Out Group that entertained last year. It's a good idea.

To recreate this carnivalesque atmosphere, Lions Club same merchants and the Chamber of Commerce again approached council and received approval for a 1973 mall this July.

But they've hit a snag. In the name of the Lions Club, Trenton car dealer who operates across the river from the proposed closed off Dundas Street West. He has claimed the mall will affect his business.

Mr. Lange said in a telephone conversation this week, last year's mall was "badly managed." Inadequate traffic control directions caused motorists great confusion, ranging from one side of town to the other. "This was my main objection that there is no movement of traffic onto the east side," he said.

"What's fair for the fish should be fair for the fowl. It's one thing to close a street but without ingress and egress to town it's not worth it."

So, even before plans to improve on last year's event could get under way, Mr. Lange filed an official protest, circulated a petition and appealed to the provincial transport ministry.

Reaction of the organizers when they heard of the objection at first was to go along with the car dealer's request and hold only a sidewalk sale.

Why did Mr. Lange send off his petition? He admitted over the phone if organizers could guarantee traffic control with directional signs, he'd be prepared to accept a 30 per cent reduction in traffic.

But he said this after he'd already sent off the petition that may well spell doom for the mall, if the ministry refuses to close the street.

However, the battle isn't over yet. Jack Wilson, manager of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce said further meetings between the merchants are planned and he has given assurances that the mall may go back into operation with the consolation of their findings."

Mr. Wilson also suggested that if the main businesses on the opposite side of the river, on Dundas West, had wanted to join in on the mall, across the bridge, the Chamber would have been glad to accommodate and help in any way."

But perhaps something a little closer to the hip pocket may lie behind former town councillor Lange's actions. Last year, a rival car dealer who operates from outside the town limits, displayed autos in the mall in connection with a bank's advertisements for car loans.

When questioned about this, Mr. Lange angrily attacked the merchants for allowing outside interests to participate in the mall. "They permitted out - of - town dealers who don't pay taxes here, to display.

"Sure," he conceded, "the same right was offered to local car dealers, but it still isn't fair."

Mr. Lange's arguments regarding traffic tieups are true. When repairs are being carried out on one of the downtown bridges, traffic snarls are regular occurrences. Certainly truck deliveries by merchants will be difficult for the three days — during the mall.

But there are alternate routes through two municipals, leading to main streets which would be a good detour routes during the mall.

The two municipalities were caught off balance by this quick action before they could really get started approaching the police and roads department regarding traffic.

Perhaps it would be a good amount of business generated into Trenton on these three mall days if the past years are any example. It would be a shame if those who have worked toward the event simply fall through because of the efforts of one man.

Construction Course Added by Loyalist

A new course for construction trade helpers will be offered at Loyalist College in September.

The 16-week program will begin on a monthly basis from September to March, 1974 and is made up of four units of one month each.

The course is no theoretical, and each unit will show the practical aspect of the construction industry. Students will be shown how to make and place good concrete, use and maintain tools and will be given a 16-week course in first aid. Special attention will be paid to construction safety.

The program was introduced because of the rapid expansion of the construction industry. Graduates will get a start in the construction industry and it is hoped each will pick an area to specialize in, such as brick and stone masonry, general carpentry, plastering, painting and decorating, electrical work, plumbing or sheet metal work.

Fee for the 16 - week program is $80 with additional costs to cover textbooks, tools and safety shoes. Enrolments are now being taken by the college registrar.

Citizens' Bureau Gets Reprieve

A board of directors was selected Friday as the first step to perpetuating Belleville's Citizens Bureau.

Following an announcement Friday morning, the president of the bureau through the Industrial Accident Prevention Association's annual meeting here Thursday.

"What's Your Score?" — which dealt with safety and golfing — was the topic.

Before dinner at the Picton Golf and Country Club, industrialists toured Hulimester Boats Ltd. at Loch Sloy Industrial Park and the Lake Ontario Cement Company Ltd.

A highlight of Thursday's banquet was the presentation of commendation awards by the IAPA to five industries in the Belleville - Trenton section.

Watches were presented to members of Prince Edward Collegiate Institute's championship safety awareness team. Recipients were Mark Vincent, Dennis Conley, John Wemekamp and George Wandless.

Downtown Work To Be Delayed

Downtown beautification is in for some long - term planning, the placing of benches, the changing of garbage containers and a free-parking scheme, is not in the cards at this summer.

Financed to $2,500 by the Downtown Improvement Area, the proposed work, by the Public Works or Parks Department, is unlikely to begin before October or November.

Alderman Roger Porter, chairman of the Board of Management of the Downtown Improvement Area has taken the Belleville Board of Park Management to go ahead with the project as his board had "little knowledge of the requirements."

At Tuesday's meeting of the Parks Board it was decided to tell Ald. Porter a plan could be prepared by the director, Lloyd Syer, by August 1, for discussion with the City Engineer, Jack Wilder. Mr. Syer said work could then probably be begun in October or November.

"This is the best timing our staff can commit themselves to," said Mr. Syer. "Their alternative is to go to other sources."

"People don't realize just how much time is involved in something like this. There's snow removal and utilities to consider," he said. "You can't dig up and bury and dig up the sidewalk."

Everyone becomes rushing in May when we are in the middle of our workload. It would be different in February," said Mr. Syer.

Ald. Porter was not overly disappointed this morning. "This is what we expected," he said. "We wanted to get something done this year if possible, perhaps just the garbage cans replaced, but it is imperative we do something this year to show appreciation for the money that's been collected from the downtown businesses."

Some five downtown sites are involved in the proposed beautification. They include the corner of Bridge and Bridge Streets, the entrance to the municipal parking lot on Front and Bridge Streets, the entrance to the commercial parking lot on Front St., in front of Band D Motors on Front St., Market Square, and a lot at Campbell and Pinnacle Streets where one of the pumps of Mohr's dairy is located. The other site is the Don Her lot on the north end of Front St.

Parking under an hour, or longer with a receipt from chants, would be free at these sites.

Belleville's Baggies Now Come by the Mile

By MIKE PATERSON
Staff Reporter

Feminine hands temper the product of a rhythmically automated system of machines that churn out roll after roll of "Alligator Baggies" at Mobil Chemical Plastics Canada, Ltd.'s Belleville plant.

"That little bit of the female touch — I feel it's very important," said Mike Foy, Mobil vice-president and manager. The touch is given by the packers, two to a shift.

"The rolls are actually in the same form as they are when the housewife opens up the box to take her bag off the roll," he said. "So where the function of the packer is to be a packer, yes — but it's also to make sure the presentability of the bag. As wrap, its feel and everything else is the way the housewife would like to see it.

"It's a woman's touch from the point of view that it's a housewife person that is our packer," said Mr. Foy. "There is, I think, a degree of human touch and a degree of practicality involved here: the job is more than just pick it up and drop it in the tray."

Automation has put the men at Mobil a step away from first - hand work with the product.

Two operators in a shift keep the blow - rolling production line "in tune," to use Mike Foy's words. A technical supervisor and two maintenance staff are there too to look after repairs when they are needed, but spend much of their time working on innovation and improvement.

A Finnish ham-radio enthusiast, Henry Pylvainen, has been spending a lot of time lately working up a new twistle dispenser that will make work easier for the packers.

Quality control and continuity of materials handling along the production line is the role of another man who with the operators and packers works under the production foreman.

With a total of 77 employees, including six office and administration personnel there are never more than 15 people at the plant that churns out 60,000 rolls of baggies each year. And production is on the increase.

"If automation can replace some of the more mundane, repetitive or unchallenging type applications, then in turn the responsibilities of people to control automation and to work with the equipment, like our operators do, means a much more rewarding and much more challenging, satisfying responsibility for a person," said Mr. Foy.

No-one bells sacks of the polyethylene pellets the plant ships in as raw material. It arrives in railway tank cars and is sucked through pipes into silos alongside the factory.

From there it is piped into a hopper that holds 4 day's needs.

Melted, it is fed upward through a circular die in an inflated, flattering tube that races past coolers hardening as it goes.

Passing over rollers, the tube is collapsed into a double sheet that descends into an almost elegantly integrated system of rollers which texture the polyethylene film, seal it at beg lengths, slice and seal it into bag widths, put perforations between bags, then wind them onto cardboard tubes.

Like the bolt of a well-oiled rifle, a probe shunts a length of tube from a supply bin and slips it over one of a number of stainless steel rods. As the rods step by, the tube is automatically cut to length and spot glued to hold the first bag of the new roll in place.

The wound rolls of Baggies slide down a tray to where the packer sits, in front of a steadily advancing procession of empty cartons.

The cartons arrive at the plant as flat sheets of printed cardboard, pre - cut to size by machine and folded one at a time off a stack. Hands glide and fingers form up on the moving belt that passes under the twistie dispenser to the packer.

She checks each roll, straightening one that is unevenly wound, pulling one out occasionally to check the count and seal. She cartons them for automatic packing into bulk cardboard boxes.

Quality control checks and wastage mean that a certain amount of polyethylene is regarded as scrap. Next to none of it is discarded. Most is finely chopped and mixed in with the raw pellets for reprocessing.

Mr. Foy feels strongly that recycling is the answer to pollution problems. Biodegradation, he says, is likely to create its own pollutants in the long run.

"Recycling is the final and utmost solution," he said. "First to minimize or eliminate the solid wastes problem and secondly to maintain some of our natural resources.

"I'm not just talking about plastics — the same thing applies with steel, glass, even paper-pulp products: all these things are taken from the earth," he said.

Automated Rollers

View from high on the machinery at Mobil Chemical Plastics Canada, Ltd. shows the complex system of rollers that produce finished "Baggies" from the translucent sheet of doubled polyethylene seen at the right. Cooled, the extruded tube has been collapsed and is reurning to ground level for the further processing. Operator Brian Hodgins (near) and maintenance man Henry Pylvainen check a control panel in the background.

Adjusting Controls

Operator Ken Burns adjusts the controls of the high speed extruder at Mobil Chemicals Plastics Canada, Ltd. Melted polyethylene rushes upward as a large tube from the extruder behind Mr. Burns. White vertical column in centre is part of the cooling system.

Picton Police Change Tune

Picton Bureau

By MARGARET HAYLOCK

Public relations were never better with the Picton police department than during National Police Week when the boys in blue were guests at a Kiwanis dinner organized through police commissioner Jesse Mason.

The Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police stood by for the evening to permit all constables to enjoy this salute to their service.

This week commissioner Mason received an ironic thank you note in the form of notice that salary negotiations with the local police association will go to arbitration. Both he and Picton Mayor H. J. McFarland have expressed surprise and concern over this action and are particularly disturbed by the fact that it may damage public relations.

The jolly good fellows of National Police Week are seeking a 21 per cent increase over a one - year period plus additional benefits that would total an offer of a 15 per cent raise over a two-year span.

In their first meeting with the three-member police commission, the local constabulary introduced a representative from the Ontario Provincial Arbitration Services for Police Associations.

Commissioner Mason has termed this "a step in the wrong direction" and feels that it indicated there was no communication between the police association and the community of this size he is sure that agreement could have been reached without an outsider's help.

Both Mr. Mason and Mayor McFarland have expressed concern for the tax dollar in relation to the 21 per cent salary increase now being sought. A two-year contract negotiated in 1970 gave police a 20 per cent increase over a two-year period. Now a further raise is sought.

The police department appears unrealistic in its demands for such a substantial increase. A first class salary now set at $9,000 would be raised to $11,800 if arbitration grants police demands.

The educational requirement for a constable's job here are grade 10 certificates, according to commissioner Mason. It seems ironic that a police officer with this limited amount of secondary school education might ultimately draw much higher pay than high school and trade school graduates employed elsewhere in the community.

Mayor Harvey McFarland has observed the cop on the beat is not as frequent a sight as he might be and reported that he personally rescued a youngster wandering in heavy traffic recently. He said that no policeman seemed to be patrolling when the incident took place.

The Picton police department is not responsible for animal control, ticketing of vehicles or parking meter collections. Free from these duties, the taxpayer might justly feel constables would have more time to walk Main Street.

If arbitration grants police association demands, the ratepayer might wonder how long it will be before firemen band together to win similar increases. This, indeed, appears to be a logical step since the two have been to equate their jobs.

The outcome of the arbitration may have long-reaching effects on community taxes and the public relations so carefully built, according to Mr. Mason, with the police department.

Home Residents Free to Leave

PICTON — Bloomfield reeve and chairman of the social services committee, Allan Anderson has commented that the Prince Edward County Home for the Aged is not a penal institution and residents can leave when they wish.

...clarified this policy in relation to the mysterious ... of resident Clay... Stouffles, 78, one week ago.

Mr. Stouffles, a Milford businessman, left the home and has been the object of an intensive police search. He is wearing a Pacemaker heart device.

Reeve Anderson said that Mr. Stouffles had been at the county home for only a short time before his disappearance.

He added that while residents are free to leave, it is hoped that those who do, first inform the home's administrator.

Hydro Plan Fought

While recognizing the need for increased hydro power and the paraphernalia that goes with it, we share the dismay of the public over Ontario Hydro proposals for placing a 230,000-volt transmission line across the scenic Hayward Long Reach to serve Prince Edward County.

Site of the Gold Cup hydroplane races and the former Harmsworth trophy races, this is one of the most attractive parts of a county which remains one of the most unspoiled regions in Canada. By "unspoiled" we mean that in Prince Edward is an environment that comes very close, even in this industrialized and frenetic age, to what nature intended. To straddle the Long Reach with unsightly transmission lines from towers on either side would be an affront to the region and to its people. Indeed it is absurd to contend as a hydro spokesman does, that the view of the towers crossing the reach would be "a point of interest."

Are there alternatives? According to James Madden, of Napanee, there are. Mr. Madden is chairman of the Save the Bay Committee which, with members of the Sierra Club of Ontario, is planning a petition calling upon the provincial government to have Hydro withdraw its plans. He says there are three transmission lines already leading into Prince Edward which could be updated to increase the power needs of the county.

Hydro should regard such alternatives as a matter of urgency, for if the Hayward Reach should be despoiled in the manner contemplated it will not be long that a world already "worked over" in cavalier style by the voracious needs of man, before there is little left of the environment to admire.

There is hope though, if the Government follows the example of the Quebec. There the provincial minister of fish, game and tourism has cancelled Hydro-Quebec's surveying operations on the Jacques Cartier River north of Quebec City. The government-owned utility had wanted to build a million-kilowatt reservoir system on the river upstream from Tewkesbury. A public outcry however prompted Simard to demand that Hydro-Quebec await the outcome of a special parliamentary committee on the situation. It seems the utility's plans were to generate power in the basin of Laurentide Park and conversion of the region into a giant playground. Thus, a vast river gorge and untamed wilderness, an area which Jacques Cartier saw as "a little Switzerland" would be made into a series of lakes.

But Simard's order was made three months ago and there is no word in a Montreal Gazette article on the subject as to what the parliamentary committee has ruled, if anything. Meanwhile, the article states the government is in the process of finalizing expropriation orders against property owners, incl uding a young government biologist who bought land in the wilderness area two years ago to escape "creeping development."

It is this what Canadians want: further downgrading of the natural environment by government-initiated schemes without full consideration of less damaging alternatives?

Press Role

Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau and Press Secretary James Bird never spoke a truer word when they remarked recently that "the fourth estate (The Press) is a necessary part of our civilization. . ." If it were not for the Press, the Watergate scandal for one would have remained largely the property of the U.S. administration it would have preferred.

Mr. Bird's observation was made during that recent discussion over whether the Press should be admitted to committee meetings. He felt discretion would be required by reporters covering committee sessions.

Agreed . . . but Mr. Bird and other public representatives must come to regard members of the Press as responsible people who do exercise discretion when the occasion merits it.

Committee meetings though are probably best held in camera, although the situation in Picton is complicated by the fact that Picton Gazette news editor Jack Evans is a member of council and consequently is in a position to become privy to information in committee which other Press representatives are denied.

And It Is Closed on Weekends

'Canada House' Is Scrummy and Unhospitable

By RICHARD JACKSON

LONDON — It was 12.05 p.m. on a May Saturday and two pack-sacked youths were standing on the steps of the Youth Hostels Association, just back of the Strand where it runs in to Trafalgar Square.

They were David Williams of 153 Heath Street and Barry Bloom of 137 Heath Street in Ottawa's Alta Vista district, and they were saying unkind things about Canada House, just across the Square.

They had gone there, at noon to ask directions and secure a little information, and the doorman was locking up.

He told them to come back Monday — the same message he gave an Ottawa woman who had wanted to use what the British call "the public conveniences" — and all three left, grumbling.

David Williams, taking a public administration degree at Carleton University, and Barry Bloom of the commerce class at Ottawa University, complained that it was a pretty poor show for Canada House.

The woman agreed.

They all recalled that in Ottawa of a Saturday afternoon — and Sunday too — such federal public facilities as the National Gallery, the Commons and Senate, the National Arts Centre and the assortment of museums remain open for the comfort, convenience and harassment of visitors and residents alike.

But not Canada House.

They lock the place up tight on weekends — for four straight days at Easter — and to hell with the visitors.

"And I was bringing them on Friday's Montreal Star," lamented David Williams, who has been in London before, "and they could have used it — their papers are three weeks old."

The two students were not cadging anything, were not looking for jobs, were soliciting any sort of special service.

They did not have to — they were well provided with British pounds and German marks in travellers' cheques, enough to keep them comfortable through three summer months of "doing" Europe.

All they wanted was a little information — but Canada House was not providing any, not after 12 o'clock noon, Saturday, certainly.

Canada House in recent years seems to be going through successive stages of abandonment as more and more Canadian government federal services move out of the Trafalgar Square building for the office spaces of their expanding offices in Mayfair.

About all Canada House remains, as far as the Canadian visitor is concerned, is a reading room. And a pretty crummy one at that, being squeezed each year into more cramped quarters.

The newspapers are weeks old, torn and smudged, all jammed into a small wall rack, with the latest editions often not available to read them. If any of them come airmail, they seem to vanish.

The whole aspect is lacking entirely in any semblance of hospitality with the visitor, if he bothers to ask a question, made to feel he is considered something of a nuisance and why doesn't he just seek up and go away?

But Canada House does put itself out to make one special group feel welcome — parliamentarians.

They are sought after on their junkets, traced to their hotels — if indeed they have not had the good sense to make themselves aware in advance of their presence — and given the warm hello and helping hand.

This could be calculated to immunize the London Canadian establishment against hostile or even searching parliamentary scrutiny.

But to anyone else, well, unless they are perhaps prominent business or industrial visitors who make their contacts at the Mayfair offices, Canada House is just another grimy building in the traffic - choked Trafalgar Square area, being allowed to get grimier by the day.

It does have its moments, though.

A veteran Canadian newsman, who has worked extensively in the Far East as well as in both Ottawa's press gallery and in London and other capitals of Europe, recalls the hilarious scene when the CBC October election returns were piped over the line to London.

There has been a tiny coterie of the Canada House staff so enamoured of Prime Minister Trudeau that they became almost notorious as propagandists for the conversion of the government to republicanism.

The pitch was that with Mr. Trudeau being absolutely the best of all possible prime ministers, no excellent as to be beyond betterment, elections should be dispensed with and the PM made "permanent" head of government as "president."

When the returns began coming in, relates the Canadian newsman who was at Canada House that night, with a couple of colleagues, the staff, at first stunned, became almost incoherent in their horrified surprise.

The Trudeau - worshippers, especially, turned paler by the minute as the near-unanimous Conservatives marched across the Maritimes, through Ontario, across the West and out to the Pacific.

The staff as a whole, civil servants, were safe from any political purge come a Conservative government, but not at all secure from transfers from those prime appointments in London.

Not the Trudeau-lovers though — without Civil Service protection they could be bounced.

The Canadian newsman made his own feet safer by telling them not to worry — that Tory leader Stanfield is a "reasonable" man and in all likelihood would take pity upon them.

Russia Gives Word on Berlin in Exchange for Aid

By ROD CURRIE

LONDON (CP) — Remote as it may seem, the apparent success of the Soviet-West German summit meeting in Bonn over much to such things as Leonid Brezhnev's preoccupation with China and the shortage of washing machines in Russia.

From the outset of Kremlin's five-day visit, it was apparent that Brezhnev, Soviet Party leader, was less interested in politics than in economic co-operation with the highly-industrialized West Germany.

With the Watergate affair clouding the future of President Nixon, Brezhnev wanted assurances that Brandt is increasingly emerging as the statesman best placed to speak for Western countries as a whole in matters of East-West detente.

He went into the meetings with Brezhnev well briefed, having received a personal letter from Germany's Willy Brandt.

He emerged with his personal reputation enhanced.

Brandt flatly refused to endorse any joint statement on what is included a Berlin clause. The formula worked out states that relaxation of tensions in Central Europe requires "strict adherence" and "full application" of the four-power agreement signed 11 months ago by the Soviet Union, Britain, France and the United States. It means that West German ties with West Berlin "will be maintained and developed."

Brezhnev's preoccupation on trade, investment and technology — he didn't even get around to meeting German Communist party leaders until the final day of the visit — is seen as a reflection of problems at home.

Some observers have suggested he is anxious to reduce tensions in Europe to free military resources to guard against possible Chinese pressure in Siberia.

Aside from that, production of Russian consumer goods has been disappointing at a time when Soviet leaders feel pressure to give their own and the East European people a higher living standard.

As one commentator put it: "Cars and washing machines can be a useful antidote to revolution."

Analysts in the Berlin Institute for European Research have concluded the Soviet Union is deepening its dependence on imports from capitalist countries because of failure to keep up to its plans for increasing industrial production, which rose only 5.2 per cent last year compared with seven per cent in 1971.

Swedes Taxed the Most

Brockville Recorder and Times

It is often said that Canadians are the highest taxed people in the world. It seems in actual fact that we cannot claim that dubious honor. It belongs to the Swedes.

This and other information has emerged from the latest statistical compilations of the 23-nation Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development headquarters in Paris. On the taxation survey it was learned that Sweden, which enjoys the second highest standard of living in the world, after the United States, takes back from its citizens the enormous total of 43 percent of their gross national product in taxes and social security levies. Canada is way down on the list at around 30 percent.

While Canadians may not be the most heavily taxed, we're keeping pretty close to the Swedes and the U.S. in income. The U.S. is tops with the average annual income of $5,100, the Swedes next at $4,800 and Canadians third at $4,200. We're second in the number of television sets, cars and telephones per capita and second to Norway as electrical consumption with an average of 9,021 kilowatt hours per capita. Even in rapid consumption we fall behind the U.S., Australia, Norway and France. And while we think we have a high percentage of people in industry, we fall behind many industrial countries. West Germany has this list with 51 percent of its adult population engaged in industrial pursuits, Britain is next at 45 percent, France is down 38 and the U.S. 31 percent.

The most densely populated of the OECD countries are Holland with 360 inhabitants per square kilometer, Belgium, 317, West Germany, 218 and Britain 226. In this category Canada is joined by Australia and Greece with only two persons per square kilometer.

It may be deflating to the Canadian ego to learn we don't rate too high in most categories of the OECD statistical report but we can be thankful that we have parents living sparse and income, we fare well.

Planning Headaches

Cornwall Standard - Freeholder

One of the biggest headaches in any community is the operation of many unattractive and dust-producing commercial operations in residential areas under what is termed non-conforming use.

What is non-conforming use? We will try to explain briefly. The city is divided into many blocks which are specifically set aside for commercial, industrial and residential development. But many people were in business before these blocks or zones were established; and they were granted the right to continue their operations, with certain restrictions, of course.

As we understand it, and attempts to enlarge such premises is considered in violation of city regulations, as would be the sale of such a property to other interests. In general terms the plan is designed to allow the owner to carry on so long as he wishes to, or is able to, but to have the property revert to its proper zoning when the situation changes.

Reader Has Praise For The Intell.

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Some time ago you published a letter of mine pointing out the really excellent local radio station we benefit from and enjoy.

Then there was the day The Intelligencer didn't come. When Box 92 was opened, expectantly, the "Belleville paper" just was not there.

What an indication, too, that we are served with a really looked for and appreciated newspaper. How unfortunate the situation would be if reader appreciation was lacking or indifferent.

Why is it that we will hear the news broadcast, and immediately often pick up The Intell and read about it too?

First the printed word has an important place in our lives which is imperative when we develop the habit of expecting to get the paper.

Come to give it thought, how does a news staff publish an interesting paper day after day, week after week, never failing?

A very knowledgeable and dedicated staff must also have a sense of loyalty and dependability and the theatrical slogan, that the show must go on to accomplish a paper day in and day out.

What a privilege the reader of The Intell has to find each edition the result of the world, the local newsy stories of the entire district, the reporting of the councils, the boards, county government, the special features like Second Glance, the happenings of society and education and finally, we doesn't carefully scan the advertisement sections?

Yes, it is a real tragedy when the paper isn't in the box. Perhaps one should call the word disappointing. Fortunately, it is a rare occasion when the paper fails to be there.

The city of Saskatoon was incorporated 67 years ago today—in 1906—by amalgamating three villages on the South Saskatchewan River. The name came from the Saskatoon berry, Saskatchewanna in Cree Indian. The settlement was originally planned by an Ontario-based temperance society which in 1884 obtained a 100,00-acre land grant and began colonization in 1883. The early settlers and other traders had different ideas and the title to the land "belland" on the Prairies was established. Saskatoon was reached by the railway in 1890 and became a trading centre for northern Saskatchewan.

Priest Finds He Has Become Biggest Caterer in Maritimes

By EVELYN OLDHAM
CP Correspondent

HOPE RIVER, P.E.I. (CP) — When Rev. Dennis Gallant was assigned to St. Ann's Roman Catholic Church in this hamlet, he became the famous beach at Cavendish,he didn't know that he would become, in his words, "the biggest caterer east of Montreal."

He and a handful of parishioners began the task of disheartened to learn that the church had a big debt and a parish of only 75 families. Most of the male parishioners were fishermen or farmers in summer and unemployed in winter with little money for tithing.

Father Gallant was aware that one of the things that attracted summer visitors to this quiet, bucolic island was seafood. Why not serve lobster suppers in the church basement?

The women of the church volunteered to prepare and serve the food and guests were charged $1.50 for a ll they could eat. Costs have risen since then and last summer the tab for a lobster supper was $4.50. To tourists it was still a bargain, however, and most nights there was a lineup outside the church.

Today the lobster dinners have become so popular that 76 paid employees a re involved in the project. The women work ig an air-conditioned kitchen complete with s t a i n l e s s steel restaurant equipment, all bought with revenue from the dinners.

The atmosphere is cheery and relaxed with guests sitting in small groups at tables covered with red and white checked tablecloths and decorated with candles and flowers. A bar, which operates at one side of the hall, goes through 1,000 bottles a week of wine and spirits.

The decor is strictly church basement or average impromptu restaurant. The concrete floor is painted grey and pastel paint covers the cement block walls; fish netting camouflages the pipes and beams; roping holds around the support posts, and red curtains bedeck the small windows. Organist Conn Zatt plays super music.

"We serve up to 5,000 suppers a week and last summer we served 40,000 people," said Father Gallant. "Some people come as often as three times a week. Myself, I find lobster too rich and have a s m a l l steak instead."

He jumped up, m o v ed timbly between the tables and sang When Irish Eyes' are Smiling, urging the diners to join him.

The dinner included juice, lobster or steak, potatoes, home-made rolls, salad, cheddar cheese, a dessert of pie or strawberry shortcake topped with real whipped cream and beverage. Children's plates are $3, and extra helpings are free except that seconds of lobster or steak cost $2.

St. Ann's lobster suppers aren't the only ones to be found on the island. Other churches, service clubs and community groups also have them. They all offer the general, informal, wholesome atmosphere of an old-fashioned church supper.

The suppers are served only during July and August. Most lobsters served are refrigerated for the summer season —the lobster season opens May 1 and runs till June 30 and reopens in mid-August. Restaurants, hotel dining rooms, seafood houses and lobster pounds sell these crustaceans at prices mainlanders haven't seen for a long time.

Clam and oyster chowders are 50 cents or $1, and a steamer of clams $1. Other local fish include Malpeque Bay oysters (in season in spring and fall), clams (all summer), cod, flounder, haddock, red fish, scallops and queen crab.

This September, when the lobster suppers are o v e r, there will be a great day in the life of St. Ann's Church and Father Gallant. The church debt will be paid off and the parishioners of St. Ann will ceremonially burn their mortgage.

Animals Adapt to Conditions But Man Changes Environment

By REV. GORDON C. SMITH

There is a fundamental d i s tinction between progress in human affairs and progress in nature. The first proceeds by the second by conquest of environment. It accepts conditions; the other creates conditions. One is a process of evolution; the other is a process of effort.

Evolution clothes an animal with a skin adapted to its climate, so that the tawny lion survives in the desert and the shaggy bear in the arctic, or on the other hand, instead of adapting himself to heat or cold, protects himself from both.

Instead of developing a skin like that of the lion or bear, he kills the lion and the bear and wears their skins, while his own skin grows soft and white. The hungry animal adapts himself to the tree, or the bird acquires his neck, the beaver his claws, and the monkey his tail, while the human man makes a ladder and climbs the tree, or builds a boat and sails it.

Evolution operates towards conformity and effort towards control. The distinctive glory of humanity is the capacity to shape circumstances into advantage, to transform threatening forces into servants of the will. Now this is precisely what St. Paul says about the religious life. He does not commend religion because it controls the world, or rescues one from the battle of life. He challenges individual and public life to deal with, and with that in mind, to put on the whole armour of God.

St. Paul points to his own experience: "We are afflicted on every s i d e, but we c r u s h e d perplexed, but not driven to despair; persecuted, but not forsaken; struck down, but not destroyed."

Taylor Caldwell's triumphant bestseller "Great Lion of God" makes the Apostle our contemporary and clothes that quotation with relevancy.

Genuine Christianity is a religion of effort. It teaches the sacredness of initiative. It deals with human nature not as a product, but as a producer. It is the weapon of attack, a means of enduring hardship, a gift of strength. Nature speaks of the victory of the strong over the weak. Christian religion enables the tempted, the sick, the dead, the victims of slander, to—those put in a seemingly impossible position, to affirm with Paul, "When I am weak, then am I strong."

In short, the maxim of the evolutionist is the survival of the fit: the rule of Christ within us is the revival of the unfit.

Krishna Consciousness Appeals to Young Folk

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A high, westbered wall ringed the garden behind the big, red-brick building in Brooklyn. A sign on the front door admonished: "Srila Prabhupada needs quiet!"

Inside the front hallway, the air piquant with incense, another pencilled sign advised: "Please walk softly and talk softly. . . Srila Prabhupada is here!"

The object of this concern was, as he is formally titled, "His Divine Grace A. C. Bakhvedanta Swami Prabhupada," 76, founder and spiritual master of the International Society for Krishna Consciousness.

"He's napping," whispered a devotee. Panchanna Das, 22. "He cannot be disturbed."

That apparently scuttled the interview, which had been scheduled in advance, with the elderly religious teacher from India who seven years ago started a movement in the West that has sung and danced its way across America.

In almost every major city nowadays you spot his followers, young men with shaven heads and topknots wearing saffron, wrap-around dhoti and unbelted kirtan, sandalfooted young women in flowing saris with painted marks of dedication, the tilaka, on their foreheads.

"Hare K r i s h n a, Hare Krishna," they chant, swaying along. "Krishna Krishna, Hare Hare, Hare Rama, Hare Rama, Rama Rama, Hare Hare." They thump their twin-headed drums, the khol, and ring brass tong-like cymbals, the kartals.

"It's great to go out on sankirtan—a chanting party in the street," said Sankarsana Dasi, 18, a young woman devotee operating the subway board at the mezzanine of a couple on Henry Street in Brooklyn, N.Y.

All the Western followers, many of them young people disillusioned by materialism or affluence, take Sanskrit names with various religious connotations symbolizing their change from "material" pursuits to a new "spiritual" path.

"We are vaishnav-lovers of God," said Goswami Bon Maraan, 28, an aide to the spiritual master and director of the New York temple, one of about 30 in the United States.

Most of the closest adherents—estimated now at 4,000 — live communally in the temples and surrounding apartment houses, going through their daily routine of chanting, classes, work and vegetarian meals taken together.

"Our objective is to develop greater love of God and to achieve a platform of cleavated, blissful life full of knowledge," Goswami Mtraan said.

When people are out of touch with God or reality, he added, they "think of themselves simply as bodies, but our real identity is spiritual—as souls, as eternal servants of God. If we don't realize who we really are, it is not possible to be happy."

The basic method for attaining this spiritual self-understanding is by chanting the name of God, called Krishna, and other sounds or "mantras" believed to release the mind from material concepts.

Studies are centered on the ancient Vedic literature of India, chiefly the Bhagvad Gita, which the group publishes as a source of financial support. They also sell incense — "Spiritual Sky," produced at their Los Angeles centre. Their colorful magazine, Back to Godhead, has a circulation of 300,000.

Members who hold jobs are enjoined to contribute 50 per cent of their income to the movement and members also accept donations on their musical expeditions into the streets.

In the temple altar room, at lunch nearest, a dozen barefoot devotees prayed before a gilt, ornate, decorative altar, while candles glowed throughout the room, bells tinkled, smoke rose from censers and Indian music came from a recorder.

Or their highly flavorful vegetarian meals — "p r a s a d a m" — served on the floor, men in one room, women in another.

"We try not to have too much association b e t w e e n them," said Omkara Das. "We want to think only of Krishna, and if we're together too much, that's hard to do until you reach a higher level of development."

'Heroic Virtues' Are Recognized

VATICAN CITY (Reuter)

The Vatican's sacred congregation for the causes of saints took one of the first steps Thursday towards raising a 19th-century Canadian bishop to sainthood.

Ignace Bourget, once the bishop of St. Hyacinthe, Que., was declared a Christian of "heroic virtues" in a decree issued by the congregation.

Mgr. Bourget, born in Becancour on the Quebec diocese of Nicolet in 1824, died in 1901.

A declaration of heroic virtue means that the bishop has passed the exacting preliminary investigation on the path to beatification, which brings the title of "blessed" and usually leads later to declaration of sainthood.

Rules of the movement prohibit illicit sex, gambling, intoxicants of coffee, tea, alcohol or "any intoxicants and the eating of meat, fish or poultry.

The spiritual master had been welcomed the day before at Kennedy airport with an outpouring of song, dance, showers of flower petals and garlands hung over his neck.

Brown — Black

Janice Rae Black and David George Brown exchanged wedding vows at Sacred Heart Church, Madoc, in an early afternoon ceremony May 19.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Raymond Black, Marmora; the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Brown, Belleville.

Rev. Father Murphy performed the ceremony.

Peter J. Laroche was groomsman. He was assisted by Donald J. Black and Richard T. Brown.

A reception was held at Havelock Hotel.

East Hastings WI Meets

The 72nd Annual meeting of the Hastings West District Women's Institutes was held in Westminster United Church on May 15 with 80 ladies in attendance.

Mrs. Tom Patrick introduced the guests, Mrs. Clifford Barber, Provincial Board Director; Miss Kaie Ann Wahl, Home Economist; Mrs. Robert Weber, Secretary-treasurer Officers Conference and Mrs. Gordon Macklin, Area President.

Kate Ann Wahl gave an account of her work as Home Economist in Hastings County. There are 31 4H clubs in the county with 240 girls completing the spring project.

Mrs. Goldie McInroy sang a solo "They all call it Canada". Mrs. Roswell Reid gave a few ideas from the Officers Conference at Waterloo.

Send Your Kids to Summer Camps

Parents who want to pack their kids off to camp this summer can choose from a variety of Scout - Guide or Church - related camps in the Quinte area.

Rev. Vern Zufelt is camp administrator and his wife is the registrar. They live in the 250-acre site all year round.

"Over 1,000 children and adults attend our camp each summer," Mr. Zufelt said.

Quin-mo-lac Camp has 12 cabins on one site and accommodates 80 on another. The second is similar to a hotel with kitchen and dining room. One mile of waterfront is available for canoe enthusiasts.

There are facilities for baseball, volleyball and regattas.

School children, patients from the Ontario Hospital, Cobourg, and visitors, children of families attend from areas as far away as Brockville, Bancroft, Toronto and Ottawa.

Camp Quin-mo-lac camping fees are $35 for a seven-day week.

If your daughter is a Guide or Brownie, she will have an opportunity to camp this summer with her companions at Camp Waupoos — 220 acres of land near Picton.

Girls from Belleville to Petawawa and Brighton to Picton attend this camp, as well as occasional groups of American Girl Scouts.

This weekend, a weekend training session for leaders will take place at Camp Waupoos. Next weekend, a test camp for badges will be held.

Included in the requirements at the Test Camp is "to cook a full course meal over a campfire".

"Guides and Brownies learn to provide for themselves outdoors, weekends and weekly at this camp," said Mrs. Bannon.

Camping costs range from $18 to $25 for each girl. Extras such as bus trips raise the cost.

At Camp Waupoos, there are eight campsites, three water sites, one at the top of a hill and a Brownie House.

Mrs. Bannon suggests campers bring:

— three blouses
— two or three pairs of shorts
— long jeans
— two changes underwear
— camp hat (no girl is allowed outside the tent without the hat, for prevention of sun stroke)
— camera, writing paper
— bed roll, extra blanket
— tooth brush
— gadget cord (to make tripod wash basins, hangars and shoe racks)

Girls who can't swim bring red bathing caps for safety.

Camp Sagonaska at Colonel Roance Vandervater Park has been the Boy Scouts of Canada's Belleville district camping area for 16 years.

But, not only Cubs and Scouts in Belleville, Redesville, Shannonville, Melrose, Cannifton and Corbyville have access to this 34-acre property which includes four acres along the Moira River waterfront.

Mrs. Betty Forte, in charge of registrations at the park, said Scouts from as far away as Kentucky come in hams to this campground.

"We offer this camping ground to the Scouts and Cubs in the Belleville district first. They have first priority."

But schools, church groups, CGIT's, may also use the camp grounds. "Our's is a non-profit organization," she said.

For the peak periods in June and July, reservations have to be made well in advance. Mrs. Forte suggests in mid-May.

Women Artists Establish Own Gallery

NEW YORK (Reuter) — A group of America women artists, incensed by what they call unfair treatment from the male-dominated art world, have successfully established an art gallery for females only.

The women are prominent in a growing movement in New York for female independence in the arts and publishing.

The 20 women members of the Artists in Residence (A.I.R.) women's co-operative gallery are not newcomers to the art scene. Their average age is around 35 and many such as Sylvia Sleboen, have exhibited work in places like New York's Museum of Modern Art and the Whitney Museum.

"But women can go on exhibiting their work forever," said Daria Darosh. "They may be quite successful. But somehow they never seem to reach the crucial stage when they become recognized as personalities. Like Jackie Kennedy, for instance. This is why we need our own gallery."

The women of the A.I.R. are not the only ones who feel strongly about the lack of enthusiasm for professional women. A women's art registry has already been set up in New York to guide dealers to the overlooked work of women. And a publishing house—Daughters Inc.—has also opened, dealing only with women authors.

The A.I.R. partners say they are firmly established after opening their gallery several months ago.

Salvaged from a derelict room in a downtown Manhattan street of shabby warehouses, the gallery is currently attracting more than 200 visitors a week. Reviews of its exhibitions have been favorable and the women say they are "satisfied" with sales.

The gallery is run entirely by the artists, using their time and money as economically as possible. They take their time to work, and the gallery takes no commission from the sales. The gallery's legal adviser accepts art in lieu of a fee.

So far they have not attracted the commercial dealers but some of the artists have been approached by museums—including the New York Cultural Centre and the Whitney Museum—which are interested in exhibiting their work in group shows.

Despite the success of their gallery, some of the artists' home lives have suffered. Daria Darosh explained: "One woman is divorced, two more have split with their boy-friends. You see, the rent, especially the ones who had to spend time at home, felt they did not have the same strong goals as the women."

When the members have each shown their work—which they are doing two at a time for periods of three weeks—the gallery intends to show work by other women artists.

The gallery runs an advisory service for the like of other women interested in starting their own co-operatives. They also lecture on the subject in art schools.

Workshop sessions attracting from 40 to 50 persons are held every week, with the help of a small grant from New York state Council on the Arts. Female artists, critics and other women specialists —including experts on such practical things as artists' tax problems—are invited to speak.

The existence of the gallery has raised doubts about whether women should isolate themselves. One male artist walked into the gallery and announced that he did not believe in segregation of the sexes in the arts.

"It seems strange," one woman reflected, "that these male artists did not express their objections in this principle during the many years when there were so many all-male exhibitions."

Big Hips Hippier With Fall Fashion

The bloused look in jackets, tops and dresses was a big feature in the Anne Klein fall collection.

The style should make fat ladies look fatter and slim ones look fabulous. Jackets and tops flanged out at the hip and ended in a wide band of elastic or knit. Some evening dresses were tied loosely below the waist.

The hip emphasis continued with the long sweater, a hot item for fall. V-necked sweaters were pulled down over full-length wool evening skirts or pants and matched with cardigans.

Miss Klein, who helped give sportswear the status it has today, also offered plenty of plaid blazers, easy skirts and slick leather pants suits.

Along with the plaid coats and bloused jackets were a few kimono wrap coats and some swirling capes.

Put Money in Antiques-Not Banks

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

TORONTO (CP) — The antique business is booming all over the world, says Elizabeth Ramsay, partly because people are looking for tangible assets.

Miss Ramsay is president of the Canadian Antique Dealers Association (C.A.D.A). Miss Ramsay has worked with The China Shop in Montreal for 25 years.

"All over the world there is interest in some form of antiquity. It can be coins, stamps, furniture, farm implements, any of the crafts.

"People have become interested in living with these things.

"A certain amount of interest latterly has arisen from concern over what money is worth.

"The enhancement of value over a five, 10-, 20-year period of antiques of value has been such that when you have a European auction, the previous value has been broken. Reports of the sales are beginning to appear in the financial pages.

"So many people have felt money should be in something tangible."

On a less immediately practical level, Miss Ramsay said she believes the interest could also be part of the general interest in the recent past.

"Life is so impermanent today, that this is maybe getting back to stability where things didn't change."

The antique dealers' association was formed in 1967 in Canada, and now has 61 members. Members must have been dealers for five years, must be knowledgeable and prepared to stand by the authenticity of their stock, the bulk of which must qualify as truly antique.

"An antique is something made by a craftsman which was not mass-produced. It can be something there was more than one of, but not made in mass production."

For world customs purposes, an antique is anything certified as more than 100 years old. At the CADA annual fair to be held in Toronto May 29 and 30, all European merchandise must be prior to 1850. Canadians prior to 1867.

Miss Ramsay said one difference between Canadians and other antiques is that the intrinsic value of Canadiana is partly historical and therefore local.

"Like all local historical things of interest, they have a monetary appreciation that really only exists in the locale.

"You can import European antiques to our shops and the intrinsic value is the same in both places."

Her definition of the antique of the future is much the same as her definition of the antique of the past, and she said the appreciation of something into an antique is accelerating as fast as everything else.

"An antique will be anything that was made or designed by a fine craftsman and produced in a limited edition.

"It used to take two generations to appreciate craftsmanship. We admired our grandmothers' things. Now it's one generation."

What you get for $2.09 at Ponderosa that you don't get someplace else.

We're not about to knock other eating places. In fact we want you to try them all.

Then we want you to come to Ponderosa.

At Ponderosa, you can get a tender Western Cut steak, broiled to your order, with a baked Idaho Potato, a roll with butter and crisp tossed salad, all for $2.09.

Your order is taken promptly by a pleasant Ponderosa staff member who is eager to make your visit happy and enjoyable.

Wherever you choose to sit, the table will be clean, the seat will be clean, and the floor around you will be clean. We're very big on clean.

We're also a family place. We like and respect kids (we have high chairs for the younger ones.)

Before you're far into your dinner, you'll wonder why the salad tastes so crisp and fresh. It's very simple: it's fresh because we not only chill your salad, we chill your salad bowl.

Our baked potato tastes unusually good because we serve only the best Idaho potatoes and any we don't serve within 30 minutes of being baked we throw away.

We have souvenirs for your children and free seconds on coffee and soft drinks. All you do is ask one of our Ponderosa girls.

That's what you get for $2.09 at Ponderosa that you don't get someplace else.

The one thing we won't do is let you leave unhappy.

More than likely, you'll be reluctant to leave at all.

By Vira Richmond Graham
WITH AUSTRALIA IN MIND

"The soul of a journey is liberty . . . to think, feel, do, just as one pleases." — Hazlitt.

c c c

"I am now in Agadir, a city on the southern coast of Morocco.

"Twelve years ago, as you may recall, Agadir was demolished by an earthquake. It has been rebuilt though, and by the looks of it, the Moroccan's must have spent a great deal of money on its reconstruction. Hence it has been pegged as one of the most modern cities in Africa . . .

We beg to interrupt, at this point, a letter dated October 2, 1972. Agadir, which Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Dibley, 40 Applewood Drive, received from their son Geoffrey, a graduate in Zoology, from the University of Guelph, who along with Stephen Lee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Lee, 32 Lambert Drive, is travelling in Afstralia, via Africa and India.

"The boys, who want to know the country thoroughly, hope to find work in Australia, though their plans are subject to change at any time," says Mrs. Dibley, who agrees with the boys that the time to see the world is when they are young and able, and on behalf of our readers, we greatly enjoy reading about her for sharing Geoff's informative, sometimes interesting letter, which continues:

"After Tangier, travelled to Casablanca, which is a huge industrial city. From there, we went to Marrakech but we found it too touristy. In Marrakech, there is a square in the market-place where it is possible to see snake-charmers, scorpion-tamers, magicians (in Arabic, unfortunately), fencing matches and fortune-tellers.

"We then journeyed by bus over some fairly land to the coast. We stayed in a fishing town called Essaoura. I was very impressed by this place. It has a tremendous beach that stretches for miles on one side. The other side and in fact most of the town is built on a rocky shore. There is also an old fort equipped with about 20 cannons. We watched the fishermen bringing in their catch which included skates, dogfish, sharks, large eel-like fish and other kinds that I'd never seen before.

"The bus ride from Essaoura to Tgaler was very interesting as it gave us a chance to see the pastoral aspect of Moroccan life. In general the land is too poor to grow crops, although in some river valleys bananas, sugar cane and vegetables are grown. Pomegranates are numerous. The most popular fruit here is a cactus-fruit about the size of a lemon. It is very seedy and tastes like a melon.

"Sheep and goats are to be seen everywhere. The goats climb the trees and it is not uncommon to see several goats in one tree. Camels are here also, but they are not numerous.

"We will be in Morocco for another week before going to Algiers on the train. I doubt if we will spend more than a fortnight in Algeria before going on to Tunisia."

(To be continued next week)

Successful Living
Newlyweds Educated . . . At Family Life Workshops

If you have a chance to attend a family life education workshop, go. These are turning up in various parts of the country, largely sparked by the efforts of the Vanier Institute of The Family.

When engaged couples or newlyweds get together in a group to talk about what a family is supposed to be and do, great things happen. The committed couples come down out of their rosy cloud and get a realistic idea of how they are going do affect one another.

Marriage always means adjusting. It always means learning to live with another human being, and, glamorous though he or she may seem, human frailties turn up which need human understanding.

Discussions at a workshop help a mother to see the job she has on her hands when she cuddles her first tiny baby, which is not a doll, but a human personality greatly in need of intelligent and loving care. A father gets a new picture of himself as one-half of this team, sharing all the responsibilities as well as all the privileges that go with producing and raising human beings.

Not only that, but such workshops are full of discussions, questioning; often marking the beginnings of bright new friendships.

Recently, the Lethbridge Family Service held a workshop for potential Family Life Education leaders. This would include social workers from agencies like the Alberta Alcoholism and Drug Abuse Commission in Calgary, family agencies in nearby communities, child care workers, workers from government departments, leaders of subjects related to family living, ministers, church or club representatives, and others.

The thing that is hard to learn is how what we say and do affects the other fellow. We also want to see ourselves as a needed cog in the wheel of family living.

There are Canadian centres where social workers are now devoting part of their time to the actual presentation of courses in public schools and high schools on this question of family life and what it can mean. One social worker in Ottawa described to me the role-playing sessions in which two boys of 13 and 14 years put on an impromptu playlet in front of the class, in which they argued over something which might well concern them both if they were brothers in a family.

Sometimes such an argument becomes quite heated, and the whole class is helped to see the weak and strong points; and while it is seldom admitted, they carry over some important thinking into their own behavior.

The role-playing might put a boy and girl at the front of the class as the mother and father of a family, disputing over who handles the money or who does the bossing. Or "Mother" may be reminding "Father" that the youngsters need his presence and chances to talk to him.

This is family life education, and out of the roots of good family living come our best Canadian citizens.

Better than drifting along with misunderstandings and letting things go wrong — before trying to do a patchwork job on marriage and families, isn't it?

Ann Landers
Gas Jockey Speaks Up

Dear Ann Landers: You've spoken up for many special groups. Please print this for the most abused, poorly treated, unappreciated of all service people. I'm referring to gas station attendants. Here are some rules to follow if you want to get really rotten service next time.

When you drive into a gas station, think ahead and park on the wrong side of the pump. The attendant will have to be an acrobat to fill your tank. Don't be surprised if he drops the nozzle on your fender and chips off some paint. (He knows how to get even.)

Never be ready to order. Search your pockets and rummage to see how much money you have—then make up your mind.

Leave your engine running while the service is being given. So what if the attendant gets a lungful of exhaust fumes?

If you come at a busy time and all the attendants are busy, blow your horn and let everyone know your time is more valuable than theirs.

Finally, never have a kind word or a thank-you for the attendant. After all, he is extremely well paid and there's no sense in spoiling him. Besides, his job is a breeze of laughs—sun, rain, cold wind. He has a real fun job.—Ex-Pump Jockey

Dear Ex P.J.: Thanks for letting us know how it is on the other end of the nozzle. I hope this letter helps.

Dear Ann Landers: We have three normal (straight) teen-agers and a fourth daughter who took to drugs four years ago. She married the village idiot, a worthless bum, even though we pleaded with her not to. After a baby and 14 months of starvation she moved back with us.

We furnished her with free room, board and laundry. She never lifted a finger around the house. Within six months she picked up a second loser and went on another rebellion kick. She spent the baby's first Christmas in another town with her loafer sweetheart. Shortly after that she moved into an apartment with him—unmarried, of course. He is on parole, having served time for four felonies and shows no signs of straightening out.

She refuses to get psychiatric help and claims we are the ones who need it because we will not accept her for what she is.

Question: Should we try to help her anymore? What about the baby?—Decatur, Ala.

Dear Alabama: It is useless to try to force help on someone who does not want it.

Offer to take the baby for awhile, but don't let her move back in after the second I-refer cuts out—unless she agrees to go to work and pay for her keep, that is.

Dear Ann Landers: I am only 17 years old but I'm afraid I'll look like a 3-year or two. My hair is turning grey and my boyfriend will not permit me to touch it up. What bothers me more than anything is that my mother-in-law keeps asking me what I'm worried about. When I tell her I am not worried about anything she insists I am hiding something because a person doesn't get grey for no reason" at such an early age.

Dear Mare: Grey hair is the result of glandular secretions. It has nothing to do with worry. Heredity is the major factor. As I've said before in this space, I love grey hair. On other people.

Kingston Visit

Tweed Senior Citizens are planning to attend the 15th annual Senior Citizens Picnic in Kingston June 27.

It's the day Queen Elizabeth will visit the city and the seniors plan to take part in several Tercentenary Activities there.

The seniors will meet June 13 at a pot-luck supper.

PRETTY POISON

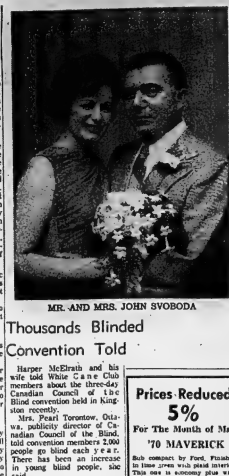
Pretty plants can be poisonous warns the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs. The prevalent and pretty marsh marigold, often called cowslip, can cause stomach and intestinal irritation if swallowed. Rhododendron and mountain laurel, widely used ornamental plants, can poison and yews can irritate stomach and intestines as can wisteria. Inside the house, castor beans, dieffenbachia, elephant's ear, poinsettia, philodendron and caladium can harm you in some way.



MR. AND MRS. JOHN SVOBODA

Svoboda—Merrill

Rev. John May married Patricia I. Merrill and John L. Svoboda, both of Stirling, May 11 in St. Paul's United Church Stirling.

Mrs. Evelyn Brown organist assisted soloist Mrs. Ann Puttoch, sister-in-law of the bride.

Escorted down the aisle by her son Lindsay Merrill, the bride wore an original Milk Trelina gown of cyclamen pink pure silk with a side drape across one shoulder flowing into a slight train. She carried a single white orchid enhanced by white staphanotis.

The bride's daughter, Judith Merrill, maid of honor, wore a long printed nylon gown in shades of cyclamen, pink and green on white with a cape-effect collar. She carried a nosegay of white mums and carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Svoboda will reside at 205 Mill St., Stirling.

SROILER BIRDS

Broiler turkeys are generally white feathered birds that have rapid, early growth on high energy, high protein feeds, and are marketed when 12 to 14 weeks old.

Thousands Blinded Convention Told

Harper McElrath and his wife told White Cane Club members about the three-day Canadian Council of the Blind convention held in Kingston recently.

Mrs. Pearl Torontow, Ontario, publicity director of Canadian Council of the Blind, told convention members 2,000 people are blind each year. There has been an increase in young blind people, she said.

"Blindness, too often has been associated with older people but, today, it strikes all ranks. Period" eye examination is stressed."

Sunglasses are no longer adequate identification for blind people.

Canadian Council of the Blind criticized Canadian National Institute of the Blind failing in strive for more governmental action for housing, increased pensions and community services.

Busing to Kitchener Strike Rally

David Wiseman (left), 12, made the trip to Kitchener today to support striking Dare Food Corporation workers at a mass rally. Boarding the bus behind David are Doug Sword, president of the Quinte and District Labor Council, and QDLC representative Jim Wiseman of Local 1000, Canadian Union of Public Employees (Hydro workers).

Quinte Workers Support Strikers

Seeking a 40 - hour work week, more equality of pay between male and female workers, improved working conditions and other benefits, the Cookie Division workers struck on May 29, 1972.

Doug Sword, chairman of the Quinte and District Labor Council said the company has since employed the Canadian Driver Food who rerouted strike breakers through picket lines.

"The use of strike breakers by these call them replacement workers — has been supported by the Chamber of Commerce and the Canadian Manufacturers' Association," said Mr. Sword. "It's a continuing confrontation that will continue until the province outlaws strike breakers in legal strikes.

"Ontario is one of the last strongholds of the strike breaker," he said. "In most other places they're illegal.

"The QDLC is pleased to have the opportunity to lend organized labor prepared to give up a day to support their union brothers," said Mr. Sword of this morning's departure. "The main thrust of the people going are from Trenton."

He said it was expected that 1,000 people would attend the rally.

After forming up at Victoria Park in Kitchener at 1 p.m., the rally will move to City Hall where the crowd's opinion will be expressed. The rally will then break up and a picnic is planned for those attending.

"The town of Kitchener is to be congratulated for the first endorsement at a Labor Day of Concern for the Dare strikers," said Mr. Sword.

Industrial Beat

Warehouse Space Needed

By MIKE PATERSON

Many of Belleville's industries from time to time, and some more than others, find a very real need for extra warehouse space.

It came up at a meeting between the Industrial Commission Board and local industry last week. It has been something many people have been aware of for some time. It is a need no-one has yet been able to fill.

The amount of space an industry allocates for storage is usually some economic denominator of regular needs. If there is an excess, it is "dead" space adding to company overheads. If there is too little, expense arises when the company has to look for alternative space or suffer inefficiency and even dangers of moving shipments from overcrowded warehouses.

Industrial Commissioner Fred Bensin estimates that ideally 50-100-thousand square feet of additional warehouse space would be a long way toward solving the problem.

Truck and rail servicing would be needed. A warehouse would have to be large, clean, clear-span as at present, and able to be divided into cubicles, and to be fire-proof, clearance and reinforced flooring to let fork lift trucks operate.

"There would be a strong need for security and there should be some office facility for the inventory control of stored merchandise," said Mr. Bensin.

"You would almost have to have the very best of warehouse space and use it for less critical demands," he said. "It could become quite expensive.

"The majority of our storage problems are not that critical," he said. "But there is a need for cold storage too." The main criteria, said Mr. Bensin, would be that it be clean, dry, grain-free and offer a good degree of protection.

The industrial commissioner said "numerous" local industries would use the space were it made available. "They would fall like two types," he said.

"A lot would use extra space from time to time in manufacturing toward future demands and shipping dates for two, three or maybe four months at a time," he said.

"Others would start out with short-term use then find their own space was better used purely for manufacturing."

From Mr. Bensin's description of the needs, the ideal would seem to be a 100-thousand - square - foot warehouse in the northeast Industrial Park where rail servicing is available. Sections for cold storage, humidity and temperature control would be desirable. It would have to be clean, well-lit and protected by security arrangements.

Fred Bensin estimates that right now perhaps 50-thousand square-feet could be used. The remaining space could well be leased to an industrial operation as a manufacturing site until a separate plant was established. The building specifications for a general manufacturing plant and warehouse space are essentially identical.

Warehousing is in many centres an industry in its own right. Centralized warehousing can be cheaper for industry because it does not duplicate overheads and costs such as security service. A private entrepreneur could well turn the need for warehousing in Belleville to his advantage.

Yet no-one has done so. Part of the problem is that federal loans will not generally be granted against only inventory investment. The association of a semi - permanent manufacturing tenant with warehousing operation could perhaps be an avenue to financing.

Technically, there seems nothing to stand in the way of the Industrial Commission and the City of Belleville in putting up such a warehouse and renting out the space. By the terms of its charter, the Industrial Commission is empowered to buy, sell and retain property.

The aims of the commission are generally for encouraging desirable industry and so create job opportunities and the best climate for the community. Providing warehouse space is the absence of private undertaking could well be construed as supplying a service to industry that would make expansion easier and providing a facility likely to encourage new industry.

Another factor is that the revenue coming from rents would be added to the Industrial Commission's resources, reducing the size of the city's contribution and the money to other services for the taxpayer.

It is regretted that city involvement—in such a project is highly unlikely. Charges of unfair competition, and use of privileged information would be too likely to embarrass the commission and council. It does not follow that such charges would be well-founded. They are, rather, a fact of life that civic executives would be probably unwilling to confront.

Ball Park's Lights Cancelled

A $15,000 disappointment for the Belleville Board of Park Management, which asked City Council for a $312,900 levy in 1973, has caused budget shuffles that pushed lights for Centennial Park's baseball field off this year's list of activities.

Had the $18,000 lighting project gone ahead as originally proposed by Parks Board, the lights would have been erected early in the fall for use next summer. Parks Board Director Lloyd Syer said he couldn't not say now when the lights would be erected. "It will have to go into next year's budget," he said.

"It would be very much my personal recommendation that it be given priority next year," he said.

Despite the cut, the 1973 budget doubles the park development allocation from $18,800 in last year's budget to $37,000 this year. The work slated includes sidewalk from the auditorium to Yeomans St., a 750-foot west boundary fence, curb cutting and filling fence, curb cutting and filling and parking lot extension and curbing at Exhibition Park.

At the West Riverbank Park, 2,000 feet of road from the canteen to North Park St., will be constructed, 15 acres of grass will be seeded and a development plan prepared. Lighting will be provided at the entrance and warm-up area of Alemite Park, at the East Hill Playground and for the Dundas St. Hill floral display. Other works will be carried out at Haig Rd., Centennial School Park, Churchill Heights and Victoria Parks.

The Parks Board building, the Garden and Supply Centre on North Park St. is to be fenced. Other preliminary and minor projects are also to be undertaken this year.

Other major items in the approved Parks Board budget include park maintenance, $21,000; new equipment, $11,000; equipment repair and supplies, $14,000; park supplies, $7,800 and building maintenance, $2,700.

Arbitrator Appointed

TRENTON — The Trenton Police Association Friday announced an arbitrator has been appointed for the forthcoming hearing into the case of former Trenton Police Constable Carman Schwager, released from the force due to health reasons in January.

Thomas Melver of Toronto has left it up to the Ontario Police Association, the Ontario Police Commission and corresponding Trenton bodies to select a date for the hearing.

The Schwager case was the first appeal under the force appointed last March 1 months before he would have been eligible for at least partial pension.

He was found medically unfit to continue his duties after serving with the force for 16 years. He claimed an accident in 1965 led to his health problems.

Det. Sgt. Harold Howling (left), promoted to No. 6 district headquarters at Mt. Forest, is presented with a fishing rod at a party held last night's OPP stag party held to bid farewell to four members of the local detachment and headquarters. Det. Sgt. Howling has spent 14 years in Belleville and 23 years with the OPP. He has held the post of Identification Sergeant and is replaced by Sgt. M. J. McGinn from Sudbury.

Autopsy Proves Girl Not Raped

COBOURG, Ont. (CP) — Michelle Keogh, 11, whose body was found near here Sunday, was killed by a stab wound to the heart, an autopsy report Friday shows.

The report shows the girl also had been choked, but says the actual cause of death was the stab wound. There was no evidence of rape as earlier believed.

A police spokesman said Friday that no weapon had yet been found.

Michelle, who lived in the Colborne area near this town 75 miles southeast of Peterborough, apparently was slain shortly after getting off a school bus near her home.

Her father, Michael P. Keogh, noting her lateness in returning home, set out along the route she normally took from the bus. He found her body on a wooded pathway.

Police are searching for a late-model, compact car, medium green or turquoise in color, that several neighbors reported seeing in the area.

PUC Appeals For Help

PICTON — The Picton Utilities Commission has appealed to the public to assist in curbing vandalism at electrical substations.

The PUC reports that objects are being thrown over the fences at transformers and creating "a very serious hazard".

Primary voltage at the substations is 44,000 and secondary is 4,160 volts. Both are lethal.

The PUC has urged all persons observing youngsters throwing things at transformers to notify them immediately.

"To prevent accidents or injuries as well as an uninterrupted power supply, it is essential that we have the public's co-operation to help us curtail the vandalism," states a PUC release.

Rape Charge Hearing Opens

The preliminary hearing of charges of rape and abduction against James Albert Sweet, 28, and his brother William Ephraim Sweet, 23, both of RR#2 Frankford opened Friday morning before Provincial Judge J. P. Hartt.

Joseph Dewhurst of Kingston is acting as counsel for James Sweet, and Peter Gair is counsel for William Sweet. James Sweet is accused is charged with one count of rape and three charges of abduction arising from incidents in the township of Sidney and Northern Belleville on March 3. Hastings and Lennox and Addington on April 20 and 21 this year.

Before the trial began, defense counsel asked Judge Clendenning for a ban on press reports of the evidence heard in court.

Launch Sites Under Study

PICTON — The Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority has scheduled a study of the possibility of opening more boat launching sites or use of township road allowances.

Each township will receive a letter asking for co-operation in a list of possible areas leading to waterfront areas that could be developed to have potential.

Bell Canada Man to Tour

Douglas Hinton, supervisor of engineering training at the Bell Canada Technical Training Centre at the Four Seasons Hotel here, is the first Bell Canada employee to be elected Canadian director of the Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers. The institute is the largest professional technical material in the world.

In his new capacity, Mr. Hinton will present papers in Moscow, Montreal and Paris in May and June. He will also visit 23 Saleswar and Bogota in South America.

About 10 per cent of Mr. Hinton's time at the Bell will be the institute which has 165,000 members throughout the world and 8,500 in Canada.

Mr. Hinton, with 25 years service with Bell Canada, has been with the engineering school in Belleville since 1966. The company offers about 20 courses for employees at its Four Seasons training centre.

Education Beat

Old Tricks Dressed Up

By LENNY WILLIAMSON

Call it bluff, psyching out the system or behavior modification, some form of manipulation always been a part of schooling.

But in California, where everything is up to date in education, they've pulled a switch. They're teaching children how to modify their teachers' behavior in turn, giving the sourpusses into loving and tolerant mentors.

A classroom study has turned up scientific techniques that classroom troublemakers and nuisances can use to persuade teachers they're lovable, studious little paragons.

The techniques use behavior modification, the hottest new thing on the psychological scene. Behavior mod updates grandma's old reward and punishment way of handling children — a peppermint at the end of every five wiggle-free minutes in church and a swift whack at every outbreak of sauciness. Behavior modification is now used to a greater degree in fancier day-care schools, especially with very young children or the retarded, where it has given astonishing results.

The California switch shows children how to give their teachers a lift — rewards or strokes for a job well done. Behavior mod is the edge a generation ago. The California psychologists call it the "she'll-come-around" method. It works this way: Wait until the teacher begins explaining for the second time something they have already mastered. Put on a dumb look until the teacher is half-way through the explanation, then light up like a 200-watt bulb, wave your hand excitedly, shout "How I get it" and ask a perceptive question that leads the teacher on to the next step of the explanation.

You've handed the teacher the reward of a sense of accomplishment. Every good teacher basks in spells over to include you.

We went a step farther. Nothing gives a teacher greater prestige in the staff room than the ability to motivate reluctant students. In geometry, for instance, it were like this:

We learned a theorem, but its corollary down at the bottom of the page wasn't on the course that year. After being thoroughly couched by a senior student, we called the teacher to our side during seat work, showed him some squiggles on a sheet of paper and confessed we almost had it figured out, but could he tell us if we were on the right track.

Effort beyond the call of duty puts the teacher on your side every time.

The California researchers made no mention of preparatory work essential before behavior can be turned against teachers. The teachers' creed says bad kids it ways sit at the back of the room, good kids at the front. Turn the tables. In our school the race to the classroom door on the first day of school was an obstacle course and the demure fought the elbows and knees of the gangers headed for the eight front seats. The winner could get away with murder for the rest of the year because the teacher was never around. He was patrolling the back of the room, memorizing the bad guys, who in this race, as in baseball, always come last.

The California psychologists are reported to have refined several other tricks of behavior mod for students to turn against the system. We're looking up the report, but don't expect to see it here. As the basis of an educational consulting service aimed at the teenaged market its possibilities are too profitable to be shared.

OPP Shuffles Personnel

A series of transfers and promotions in the identification section of the Ontario Provincial Police No. 5 district headquarters, Belleville, and a local transfer, resignation and a retirement were the reasons behind an OPP stag party at the Belleville armory last night.

Det. Harold Howling has spent the past 14 years with the identification section in Belleville. He has been promoted to detective Sergeant and moves to Mount Forest, 50 miles north of Kitchener, attached to No. 6 district headquarters. He has spent 23 years with the OPP. His father was in the Brantford City Police force and he has a brother who is a detective with the Metro Toronto police force.

Replacing Sgt. Howling at No. 5 district headquarters is Sgt. M. J. McGinn, Sgt. Larry Smith, recently promoted from corporal with the identification section in Belleville, has been transferred to Thunder Bay after nine years here.

Sgt. Smith is being replaced by Jim Ryan who has been promoted to corporal. Cpl. Ryan has been in Belleville since 1968 nine years. Constable Bill Kelleher from the Picton detachment is filling Cpl. Ryan's former position.

After more than 33 years with the OPP, 8½ of them in Belleville, Cpl. J. Everett Downs retired May 1. He is replaced at No. 5 District Headquarters by Cpl. Jim Healey. At last night's party civilian radio star Brent Daniels presented Cpl. Downs with an electric clock-radio.

Con. George Briggs who has spent more than three years with the Belleville D-detachment is being transferred to Kalladar. Cpl. George Cole last night presented Con. Briggs with a set of golf equipment.

After almost six years with the OPP, all of them with the Belleville Detachment, Constable Wayne Adams has resigned to take up a trucking business. Originally from Brockville, he has decided to stay in Belleville and hopes "eventually" to have a small farm near the city. Constable Howard Adamson last night presented Const. Adams with a stereo tape deck for his truck.

Det. Major Ray Kowal presented Det. Sgt. Howling with fishing equipment to take with him in his transfer to Mt. Forest.

Plant Damaged

Northern Electric Co. Ltd. production workers in Belleville, said last night that work has been broken in the strikebound Montreal plant at Pointe Claire.

"In addition, at Amos St. four cars belonging to security guards and managers were considerably damaged," he said.

At other Northern Electric plants picketing was not reported as the strike by four separate unions against the company continues.

The Dog's Day

Once a month, about this time, Marge Cairns, secretary of the United Community Services of Belleville, has to bring her family pet Minka to work with her. Not because the pet is lonely or because the baby sitter can't make it, but because the 24th day of each month is when the Culligan man comes to call, much to the distrust of Minka.

Boos to Cheers For the Tigers

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

For 13 innings Friday night the only sounds coming out of Tiger Stadium were boos, loudly and continuously.

In the 13th, however, Detroit fans were cheering wildly as the Tigers scored the only run in a 1-0 victory over Oakland Athletics.

Elsewhere in the American League, New York Yankees overcame Texas Rangers 9-7, California Angels defeated Milwaukee Brewers 5-3, Kansas City Royals edged Minnesota Twins 5-4 in 15 innings and Cleveland Indians slugged Chicago White Sox 8-3.

Afternoon games today have Texas at New York, Oakland at Detroit and California in Milwaukee. The late games are Boston at Kansas City, Baltimore at Minnesota and Chicago entertaining Cleveland.

It's a full slate of afternoon games Sunday with Oakland at Detroit, Cleveland at Chicago, Baltimore at Minnesota, California at Milwaukee, Texas at New York and Boston in Kansas City.

For the most part, the uncomplimentary sounds were a part of Detroit's welcome for Bert Campaneris. The Detroit spectators warned Oakland's shortstop to know that they remember. So they booed.

What they remembered was an incident in last year's Detroit-Oakland American League playoff game. Campaneris, fielding a ball off Jerry LaGrow's pitch against his ankle, so he returned the favor. He tossed his bat over the retreating pitcher's head was supposed to be. Fortunately, the 6-foot-5 pitcher ducked.

This was the first time Campaneris had returned to the scene of the crime, for which he said his bat were forced to sit out Oakland's first 10 games.

Besides releasing their vocal energies on Campaneris, the fans had plenty of abuse left for their regular targets—the umpires. The game was scoreless in the bottom of the 10th when Joe Rudi's throw and Ed Brinkman's relay arrived at the plate simultaneously.

Umpire Larry McCoy gave Brinkman the call, and the Detroit fans disagreed. They booed. Detroit manager Billy Martin also disagreed. He charged out towards the plate.

Another umpire, Nestor Chylak, held Martin in a bear hug while the Detroit skipper attempted to twist away. McCoy wasn't overly impressed with Martin's act and gave it a beanball closing notice—a quick ejection.

Detroit won when rookie Dick Sharon's second major league hit scored Mickey Stanley in the bottom of the 13th.

"Chicago is supposed to have the power but we got the home runs tonight," said Indian manager Ken Aspromonte. Chris Chambliss and Charlie Spikes slammed two-run homers while Oscar Gamble and Dave Duncan added solo shots.

In Milwaukee, Vada Pinson hit a homer and a run-scoring triple, but the Angels still needed Clyde Wright's relief pitching to hold on to the victory.

The Yankees won a game they once trailed 7-0. Gene Michael hit the 11th homer of his major league career to give the Yankees the lead and victory.

Kansas City Royals and Minnesota Twins came into a ninth-inning, bases-loaded, no-out situation with the score needing just one run to win. Del Cantonkept the Twins off the hook by fanning Bobby Darwin, nailing Tony Oliva bit into a 6-4-3 double play and Rod Carew grounded out. Gail Hopkins' 10th-inning single provided Del Canton with the tie-breaking run and he protected the lead.

Jack Brilliant On 2nd Round

ATLANTA (AP) — "Maybe we ought to get a handicap when that guy is playing," said Tom Weiskopf after Jack Nicklaus had put the finishing touches on another brilliant round for a four-stroke lead going into today's third round of the $150,000 Atlanta Golf Classic.

Nicklaus, returning to the tour after a month's absence, fired a 66 Friday for a two-round total of 135, 11 under par.

Weiskopf was the only player close to Nicklaus, adding a 67 to his opening 70 for 137 over the par-72, 6,883-yard Atlanta Country Club course.

"I'm kinda surprised to be playing this well after taking a month off," said Nicklaus, aiming for his fourth tour triumph of the season in only his 10th try.

"An 11-under on this course is pretty fantastic," said Weiskopf, who had seven birdies and two bogeys in the round Friday. He had a hole in one in his 70 on opening day.

Toronto's George Knudson, the only Canadian in the tournament, just managed to survive the halfway cut for the final two rounds today and Sunday. Knudson, with a 72 Friday, had 148 after 36 holes.

Mac McLendon and rookie Dave Glenn, who shared the lead after second and first with Nicklaus, both fell back. McLendon had a 77 for 144 and Glenn an 81 for 146.

Not as fortunate were Masters champion Tommy Aaron, who had a 74 for 149 and defending champion Bob Lunn with a 78 for 155.

Gary Player of South Africa, winner of the first four sports once in America since September, took a 71 for 147.

Leading money-winner Bruce Crampton, Lee Trevino and Arnold Palmer are not competing.

GAIF Favors Changes In Olympic Rules

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The General Assembly of International Federations failed to take a new position regarding China Friday, but approved a proposal to push for modernization of Olympic rules governing amateurism and eligibility.

A statement of the GAIF position regarding Olympic rules, approved unanimously, is merely a simplistic, it will be forwarded to the International Olympic Committee (IOC) for consideration.

The GAIF proposes to scrap Rule 26 of the IOC. That rule, among other things, forbids an Olympian from practising his sport for more than 30 days annually, forbids financial support other than pocket money, forbids athletes from accepting money for commercial sponsorships and forbids an athlete from neglecting his employment or studies by participating in the Olympics.

The GAI Proposed a rule on Olympic eligibility and amateurism that reads:

"A competitor is take part in Olympic games must be eligible in accordance with rules and regulations of its international federations as approved by the IOC.

"He must be eligible provided he has not derived any personal profit from competing in his sport."

The question of the People's Republic of China's possible re-entry into international sports competition drew much debate at the meeting. However, the delegates could not agree on a position to take on the matter.

Keller and GAIF secretary-general Oscar Statt of England said the Chinese position remained unchanged in regard to Taiwan (Nationalist China). They reported that China will not join any sports federation which has Taiwan as a member on basis that there is only one China.

They made it quite clear they're not intending to make any concessions in their position," said Keller. He said Chu Tse, an official of the All-China Sports Federation, agreed to have "friendly contacts" with the international federations.

Lee May Jumps on Sliders

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bob Moose doesn't learn from his mistakes. He made the same mistake twice, and Lee May hit both of them out of the park.

"I threw two sliders that didn't slide, and that was the ball game," said Moose after serving up two home runs to May that helped Houston Astros beat Pittsburgh Pirates 7-2 Friday night.

In the other National League games, Montreal Expos trimmed San Francisco Giants 5-3, Chicago Cubs downed Cincinnati Reds 7-2, St. Louis Cardinals defeated Atlanta Braves 4-1, Philadelphia Phillies trounced San Diego Padres 8-1 and Los Angeles Dodgers topped New York Mets 6-4.

Chicago is at Cincinnati today while Montreal visits San Francisco, Houston is in Philadelphia, Atlanta at St. Louis, Philadelphia at San Diego and New York at Los Angeles.

Philadelphia and San Diego engage in the only doubleheader Sunday, again on the west coast. Single games include Houston at Pittsburgh, Atlanta at St. Louis, Chicago at Cincinnati, New York at Los Angeles and Montreal in San Francisco.

Houston's victory ended long dominance by Moose. The right-hander had amassed a 7-0 lifetime record against them before Friday night.

The loss now boosted May's season total to six, a relatively low number for a fellow who annually is among the National League leaders.

"I think I went bad once for about two weeks when I played for Cincinnati," he said, "but never this long."

Jerry Reuss pitched a five-hitter for Houston to record his sixth victory in seven decisions. Moose lost his fourth in seven.

Ron Hunt singled home Tim Foli with the winning run in the ninth and later scored on Ron Woods' double to help Montreal defeat San Francisco.

Jose Cruz doubled home the winning run and scored another, keying a three-run rally in the eighth that carried St. Louis past Atlanta.

Ken Brett fired a four-hitter and helped his cause with two RBI and Bill Robinson hit two homers to lead Philadelphia over San Diego.

Willie Crawford hit a grand slam homer in the fifth inning to propel Los Angeles over New York. It was Crawford's first career slam and the first for the Dodgers in two years.

DiGregorio Is Signed By Braves

BUFFALO (AP) — The signature of Ernie DiGregorio is on a Buffalo Braves contract, a spokesman for the National Basketball Association club said Friday.

"This is for real," the spokesman said, breathing a sigh of relief that protracted haggling with the former Buffalo star had been concluded.

The spokesman said the contract was "for more than two years" but declined to disclose its worth. Earlier reports on the negotiations had said Snyder had offered the Providence College star more than $1 million.

Six days ago, Buffalo thought it had outbargained Kentucky Colonels of the American Basketball Association and began dropping hints about an important upcoming announcement. And Wednesday morning Snyder announced the DiGregorio's signing was imminent.

But later that day, the Braves acknowledged that Snyder had developed and Snyder went to New York for further talks.

Contacted in New York, Snyder said the contract was worth "a tremendous amount of money," but indicated it was less than the Kentucky offer.

He said he had been sided in the bargaining by other clubs in the NBA.

"They did everything except give us money," he said.

Badminton Team Even With India

JAKARTA (CP) — Canada scored two doubles victories to draw even with India in the opening round of the Thomas Cup world badminton championships Friday.

The Canada-India nine-match tie continues today with three more singles matches and two more doubles.

India took the first two singles matches Thursday as Indonesia defeated Jamie Paulson of Toronto 15-6, 11-15, 17-14 and Dipu Ghosh beat Bruce Rollick of Burnaby, B.C., 15-3, 15-11.

But that doubles combination of Channaron Ratanasangsuang and Sapit Kanchanavatil, Thailand natives now living in Calgary, put Canada's first point with a 15-10, 12-15, 15-12 victory over India's Atif Pervais and Prakash.

Paulson then teamed with Yves Pare of Montreal to defeat brothers Dipu and Ramon Ghosh, 15-13, 18-16.

3 Belleville Boxers On Card At Norwood

Two Quinte Athletic Club boxers will be making their second starts tonight and a third will be seeing his first ring action this year at a Peterborough Midtown Boxing Club event in Norwood.

Welterweights Joe Harvey and Joe Carroll are getting their second tests. For middleweight Ernest Johnston, it is a chance to test his conditioning and the benefits of training, in his first bout.

In a card at Peterborough in April, Harvey won a three-round decision over Steve Bendera of the Cabbagetown Boxing Club, Toronto. Carroll lost to Ken Dale of Peterborough. This time out, Bendura has evidently moved up the ladder since he's matched against Johnston in the middleweight division which is for boxers who tip the scales at less than 165 lbs.

Lenders Flagged Down By CNR Squad 9-7

A winning streak was snapped and a string of losers prolonged in Friday's Industrial Softball League action at Albert Park. CNR knocked Quinte Mall Lenders from the ranks of the undefeated by chalking up a 9-7 win in the nightcap of the twin bill. In the early game. The Intelligencer was handed its fourth straight loss as Brooke Bond hammered out a 16-6 win.

CNR bounced into the lead with a five run sixth inning to take it a 9-5 score and then held off Lenders' last inning bid to pull it out. The losers counted twice in their final turn at bat but it was too little, too late.

Wayne Casselman worked six and one-third innings for the winners with Brian Plumbe taking over with one out in the seventh. Plumbe got the job done in his relief role. Casselman allowed 10 hits while fanning six and walking one. Plumbe got the only two runs he's faced on ground balls.

Terry Murphy took the loss on an eight - hitter. He faced five and gave up seven walks.

Herm VanDaalen connected for an over the fence home run and a single for the losers and catcher Norm Tetlock continued his solid hitting with a pair of doubles and a single. Jack Stroo, Bob Wilkes and Jim Fazaccarley each supplied a pair of singles.

Brooke Bond came back with a barrage of singles en the way to their second win over the Intelligencer. The winners hit for a total of 17 base hits and the only need for extra bases was a double by Lou Rivers.

While his mates were supplying him with plenty of support at the plate, winning pitcher Toni St. Jules was living with the base hits. Except for the first inning when he saw Terry Hiddleston bang one over the centre field fence St. Jules was in command.

The Brooke Bond right-hander finished up with a five hitter and 12 strikeouts to his credit. He walked three.

Plagued by uncertain fielding support, Intelligencer pitchers John Edwards, who started, and Dave Feeney sweated it out along with cutcher Fred Stickle who had his work cut out for him but never stopped trying.

Hiddleston had a double to go with his homer while Matt Smith and Randy Doyle each had a single for the losers.

Belleville Bobcats Few Games Affect Goalie's Playing

By AL ZABAS
Staff Sportswriter
(Seventeenth of Series)

John Burnside did not play in the Bobcats' net as much as he would have liked to during the past Jr. B season, and the 18 - year - old goaltender feels it had an effect on his play.

There is definitely a difference in what you learn in practice and what you gain from actual game time experience according to the Mic Mac midget graduate.

But the goaltender, backing Bob Moore throughout the season did not often get the opportunity to mind the nets as he played only four and a third games during the regular season plus one in Oshawa during the playoffs.

"It got discouraging sitting on the bench," said Burnside, "but you can't really say anything because Moe didn't have any idea how I had been playing in Madoc.

"Maybe he got the idea that I didn't want to play when I didn't show up four times when I was slotted to play, but if I hadn't wanted to, I wouldn't have had a puck it out during the season."

Burnside explained those games he missed very sloughy. "I missed the bus going there to-Belleville three times and once in the winter I went into the ditch with the car."

That didn't help his chances of feeling comfortable playing

JOHN BURNSIDE
... sees difference

for the Cats. "When I went down to Belleville, I was completely in the dark. I didn't know anybody.

"But by the end of the season I got to know them. I think the main problem was that I joined the Bobcats later in the season. That didn't help."

Should Burnside be playing hockey next year with the Bobcats, he is unlikely to have similar problems. More players are coming back to the training camp than are leaving.

However, the goaltender remains unsure of what his future plans are since of catching for the Madoc juvenile softball team during the summer.

In the fall, he will either be going to Europe or to one of three universities which have accepted his application.

Broadloom Tops Cosy Grill 17-3

Scoring at least once in every turn at bat, Belleville Broadloom racked up a 17-3 win in a Belleville and District Ladies' Softball League game played Thursday. The winners' big production came in the fifth inning when they counted six times.

The losers were held to single runs in each of the first, third and sixth innings.

Winning pitcher Mary Anne Sills countered its hits while striking out five and walking one. Sandra Claus and Joanne Green shared the catching duties, for Cosy Grill and gave up 20 hits between them.

As well as pitching the win, Mary Anne Sills was a big threat at the plate. She connected for three singles and a double. Rose-Anne Hovinga slugged a homer and two singles while Helen Reid and Sharlene Wenstaff each contributed three singles.

Judy Peltz was the big noise at the plate for Cosy Grill, supplying a double and two singles. Sandra Claus poked two doubles and Sharon Francis had two singles.

Instruction As They Play

The junior girls' gymnastic program continued at Bay of Quinte Country Club Tuesday.

A team competition was won by Laurie Clarke and Betty Ingram. Runner-ups were Sherrie McKinney and Bonnie McClelland.

During the instruction period, Mrs. Ingram joins the girls as they play the course and gives advice while offering pointers.

Ted Adams Sparks Braves

Ted Adams couldn't keep his feet still or his shots from scoring against Cooney's Haulage in Bay of Quinte Soccer Association play Thursday.

The Bata Brave's centre forward booted five goals under the crossbar to lead the Batawa soccer club to their first win of the season.

Ed Hartnick, Tony Veldstra, Peter Kalamiros and George Mountford each scored single goals to round out Bata's 9-3 romp over the Bayside Secondary based team.

CAHA and NHL To Meet Today

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Representatives of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association (CAHA) and the National Hockey League will meet in Montreal today to negotiate a new agreement between the amateur group and the professional league, CAHA officials reported.

Gordon Juckes of Ottawa, executive director of the CAHA, and a past president of the organization who declined use of his name confirmed that negotiators would meet.

However, Alex Devine of Belleville, Ont., elected CAHA president Thursday, said the meeting would only clean up minor details to conclude the CAHA annual meeting that has been under way here.

The date of the meeting with the NHL was advanced, Juckes said, to forestall—a rumored move by the World Hockey Association to set up a separate agreement with the Western Canada Hockey League, providing for payment of $70,000 a team for players selected in the amateur draft."

The NHL now pays the CAHA $3,000 in draft money and an additional $7,000 signing money for each of the first 32 amateur players selected.

The payment is scaled down further to $3,000 for the third and $4,000 for signing for the following 32 players and reduced to $2,000 for drafting and $2,000 for signing of players selected 65th and beyond.

The agreement expires June 30.

At Friday's directors meeting, Hull, Que., Festivals were accepted as a new entry in the Quebec Major Junior A Hockey League and Cornwall, Ont., Royals were granted permission to remain at least one more year under the jurisdiction of the CAHA. The British Columbia branch was granted permission to add two new teams to its Tier Two junior A league.

The CAHA approved the following scheduled of tours submitted by the minor hockey congress, with the dates to be decided by individual branches:

Sarnia bantams to Sweden; Welland Juveniles to Sweden; Oakville midgets to Finland; Trenton, Ont., juveniles to Finland; Calgary Rosarians midgets to Finland; Edmonton Lynwood Bantams to Czechoslovakia; and four teams from Quebec to be named at a meeting June 25.

Also approved were visits by Leksand, Sweden, midgets to Orillia; Wallstetler, Switzerland, midgets to Ontario; France, Finland, Sweden, Czechoslovakia, Switzerland, Japan and Russia to Quebec pee wee tournament; Sweden bantams to Saint John, N.B., Malmo, Sweden, bantams to Edmonton and a European team to the Brandon midgets tournament.

Olympic Facilities

MONTREAL (CP)—With the 1976 Summer Olympics only 37 months away, members of the Montreal organizing committee admit little is viable today in the way of physical preparation for the Games.

But at the same time they cite reasons.

"Seventy-five to 80 per cent of the facilities that will be required already exist," Andre Kalkenbos, newly appointed director-general of information, says. "As a result there's not much visible activity. The public of the work that is going on."

Kalkenbach says he feels the stress of not having a monopolistic display of achievement.

He said there are about 600 projects under way including "from communications to construction," but that most of these progress is "almost silently."

Walter Siever, a Swiss-born assistant in vice president Pierre Charbonneau's sports echelon of the committee, points out that work is already under way at the rowing course on Notre Dame Island at the site of Expo 67 and at Maisonneuve Park where the main stadium and cycling velodrome will be constructed.

These two sites show some activity.

The West German pavilion at Man and His World is being demolished as the first step toward a 2,200-metre rowing channel. This site has already gained the approval of Thomas Keller, president of the international rowing federation.

The proposed rowing course is near the start of what was named Regatta Lake for Expo. When finished, the channel and a practice basin will have room for 25,000 seats along its banks, Siever said, with parking for 5,000 autos.

"Work will start this year and it will probably mean knocking down some small bridges and perhaps other pavilions," he added, noting that the course must be completed for rowing by the time Montreal plays host to the 21st Olympic rowing championships in 1975.

Much of the digging completed so far is to extend Montreal's subway facilities to the Olympic park area. The excavation for the velodrome is under way. The velodrome must be completed in time for the world cycling championships in 1974.

Montreal will also play host to the world boxing championships in 1974, but Siever says this event does not concern the organizing committee. The world event will be staged in one of several athletic arenas that will also be used for various sports in 1976.

Three of these are within walking distance of the main stadium area. The Paul Sauve and Maurice Richard arenas will be used for preliminary rounds of basketball and boxing in 1976, while wrestling is scheduled for the 2,000-seat Centre Maisonneuve. The other two arenas have 5,000-seat capacities.

The basketball and boxing semi-final and final rounds will be moved to the downtown 19,000-seat Montreal Forum, along with the volleyball finals and gymnastics.

Alouettes' Johnny Rodgers

Berger Hopes Signing Will Renew Interest

MONTREAL (CP) — Sam Berger, owner of Montreal Alouettes, hopes the signing of halfback Johnny Rodgers will renew interest in his Canadian Football League team.

Rodgers, who won the Heisman Trophy as the most outstanding player in U.S. college football, signed a three-year deal with Montreal Friday for a reported $100,000.

"It's been almost 20 years since we've had a football team to finish on top," Berger said in an interview.

"I've had people come up to me and offer $50,000 for a piece of the action to try and help us out, but what good is that? The gamble here is that Johnny Rodgers might be able to do that in a single game.

"That's the sort of thing that will get football turned around again in Montreal."

Berger bought the club three years ago and even though Montreal won the Grey Cup in 1970—after finishing first season in third place—they never filled the 23,000-seat Autostade. Alouettes finished last in 1971 and third again in 1972, and the crowds continued to dwindle.

"We just had to do something to put excitement back into Montreal football and I've never been afraid to spend the money if I felt the right opportunity had come along."

Rodgers, meanwhile, said he plans to stay here during the weekend and then head home to Lincoln, Neb., before coming back to the Als training camp June 7 or 8.

"Now that all this hassle is out of the way, I can't wait to get started."

Rodgers, lured away from San Diego Chargers, who picked him as their top selection in the National Football League draft, said there were several reasons for coming to the Alouettes.

"The people here and the city had more to do with my decision than the money. I'd still like to live here, even if I wasn't playing football."

Rodgers admitted he did not like playing in cold weather but it doesn't mean I can't."

Berger said Jake Gaudaur, commissioner of the CFL, called Rodgers' signing a great thing for the CFL.

"I understand the people in New York, who are putting together this year's CFL U.S. television package, are delighted to have the Heisman Trophy winner.

"There's no question what this can mean to us on the road. Montreal has not been a big draw when we go west, but now with Rodgers, who knows! This move could mean money in everyone's pocket around the CFL."

There were reports from the United States that Rodgers, size—five feet, nine inches and 173 pounds—would hamper him in the NFL and that the Chargers would use him as a wide receiver rather than a running back.

But while some U.S. officials feel Rodgers is a bit small, the Alouettes know he could be a giant factor in rekindling the football fever here which has been dormant for years.

AHL All-Star Team

Voyageurs' Lambert Unanimous Selection

WEST SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (CP) — Left winger Yvon Lambert of Nova Scotia Voyageurs is the only unanimous choice in the selections for the American Hockey League's first All-Star team.

The Voyageurs, top farm team of Montreal Canadiens in the National Hockey League, also placed Michel Laroque and centre Morris Stefaniw on the second All-Star team.

Lambert, a second-year professional and leading scorer in the AHL last season, received a maximum 100 points in the 5-3-1 system of voting among AHL players and sports writers and broadcasters.

Cincinnati Swords, who defeated the Voyageurs in the Calder Cup final playoff, had two men defenceman Ray McKay and centre Billy Inglis—and the two were individual awards.

McKay won the Eddie Shore Trophy as the league's outstanding defenceman in the 1972-73 season while Inglis was pro voted the most valuable player and picks up the Les Cunningham Trophy.

The Red Garrett Memorial Trophy, for rookie-of-the-year honors, goes to right-winger Ron Anderson of Boston Braves.

The first team represents a total of 150 goals scored, led by Lambert's 52. Featherstone scored 49 and Inglis 49.

Indy 500

Pole Position For Rutherford

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Six feet and four years can make quite a difference in a man's viewpoint, says Johnny Rutherford.

The dark-haired, Texan cut something of a niche for himself at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway by winning the pole position for Monday's 57th Indy 500-mile race by zooming around the 2½-mile asphalt oval at faster official speeds than any driver ever has clocked.

His four-lap qualifying speed of 198.413 miles an hour and his one-lap best of 198.977 both were Speedway records and made Rutherford the reigning King of the Hill Race time Monday is noon EDT.

In nine previous races, the 31-year-old Fort Worth resident never finished higher than 18th, a feat he has accomplished three times. But he has started in the front row before.

In 1970, Rutherford qualified at a then amazing 170.213 m.p.h., trailing only Al Unser's 170.221. Beginning that race in the middle of the first row, he finished 18th.

Rutherford said Friday: "I feel very confident for this race. It was different than 1970 because I really hadn't been in that position before."

"I'm not worrying about someone running off and hiding from me. If they do it, they won't be around at the end."

He's relaxed, in fact, that he took time out Friday night and did some orchestral conducting, leading the Indianapolis Symphony through a rendition of the traditional Back Home Again in Indiana.

Rutherford, who played the piano and trumpet as a youngster, went from the concert to the annual banquet for race track mechanics.

"I'll probably be the first one at the wake and tells who ever appeared before that bunch of grease-monkeys," he said.

Alongside Rutherford will be the Indy veteran Bobby Unser, one of five former champions in the 33-car starting field.

Defending champion Mark Donohue will be on the outside of the front row; 1969 champ Mario Andretti on the outside of the second row; Al Unser—Bobby's younger brother and Indy winner in 1970 and '71—in the Indy veteran Bobby row. Three-time winner A. J. Foyt, Jr., will be in the middle of the third row, in the worst start in his 16 Indy races.

If the weatherman is wrong—rain is predicted for Monday—and barring prolonged caution flights, the race could be over by 3 p.m. EDT, the first time the Indy race would be finished in less than three hours.

The race record of 162.962 miles an hour, set by Donohue last year, is expected to fall. This year's 33 starters averaged a staggering 182.329 miles an hour, 8.674 faster than last year's field.

Should the rains fall as predicted, the race would be postponed until Tuesday or until the first day the weather allows the race to be run.

Indy Facts And Figures

Events—200 laps around 2½-mile, asphalt-on-brick track; does not count in world standings because of engines up to 4.2 litres against Formula I limit of three litres.

Field—Thirty-three fastest cars in 16-mile qualifications. Johnny Rutherford holds the pole position in a McLaren-Offenhauser with record qualifying speed of 198.413 set one lap ahead of 199.077 mph. Field includes defending champion Mark Donohue, 1969 champion Mario Andretti, two-time winner Al Unser and three-time winner A. J. Foyt Jr.; Bobby Unser and Mark Donohue both clocked over 4-capable Rutherford.

Race Record — Three tours four minutes, 5.54 seconds, average 162.962 m.p.h., set by Mark Donohue, 1972.

Purse—Depends on attendance and accessory awards; 1972 payoff was $1,011,945 of which Donohue received $210,787.90.

Crowd—Speedway never discloses attendance, admits to 253,000 reserved seats and room for 19,000 more persons in infield.

Mortality—There have been 32 deaths at the Speedway including pre-500 races of 1909-10; Art Pollard, 46, Medford, Ore., killed this year in practice crash prior to opening of first day of qualifications. Total includes 34 drivers, 14 mechanics, nine spectators and one Speedway guard since first Indy 500 in 1911.

|---|---|---|---|
| Pass | 1♠ | Pass | 3♠ |
| 3NT | 4♠ | 5♥ | 5♠ |
| 6♦ | 6♥ | Pass | 6♠ |

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

Here is a swing hand from a team of four match. At the first table South got to six spades on the bidding shown. East's impudent two notrump bid was the unusual notrump convention of great length in the minor suits.

West leaped to five diamonds in response, but then gave up the ghost after North bid six spades. This was poor strategy on West's part since a vulnerable small slam was imminent and even diamonds doubled could not cost much.

West led a diamond and shifted to a club. Declarer won, drew four rounds of trumps, cashed the king of hearts and took a heart finesse which succeeded. As a result, he scored 1,430 points.

The finesse was certainly logical. Declarer reasoned that East, who had shown up with no high card strength at all, probably had 6-6-1 distribution for his two notrump bid.

The bidding was spirited at the second table also, but here East became declarer at six diamonds doubled.

South led the king of clubs and made the fatal error of shifting to the queen of spades, instead of a heart. East ruffed, trumped a club, cashed the ace of diamonds, and ruffed another spade.

When he then trumped another club in dummy and found the suit divided 3-2, his 10-7-6 all became tricks. So, after trumping another spade, he cashed three clubs, discarding an equal number of hearts from dummy, and so made six diamonds doubled for a score of 1,090 points.

His team thus gained 2,520 points on one deal, having first made slam North - South and then made a slam East-West — which is exactly how championships are sometimes won.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

SUNDAY, MAY 27

Aries (March 21-April 19): Attend local ceremonials with dignity, abstain from gossip or conflicts. You need to spare people your impatience.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Much of what you are most interested in is not practical at the moment. Bide your time.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Keep weather eye out for your friends—they're apt to be into mischief you don't accept. Be as calm as possible.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Doing what is most needed sets you onto a practical path. Find time for meditation.

Leo (July 23—Aug. 22): Despite the need for quiet diplomacy, you make considerable progress. Inner strength now shows in your bearing.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): It's not so much what you do this odd day but how you attend to it. Get your notes and facts straight.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Don't be surprised if you find you are wrong—be willing to change, go with the truth as you now see it.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Grant others the right to be incorrect. Begin seeking ways of clarifying your share in current events.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You reach another peak of personal persuasiveness. Great responsibility rests with what you provoke or inspire.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): For once total organization appears not to help. Improvisation is sufficient if it gets you through safely.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Be bright and hopeful in bearing witness for your true beliefs this Sunday. Then retreat for extra prayer and meditation.

By JEANE DIXON

Monday, May 28

Aries (March 21-April 19): Everybody is inclined to participate. There's extra work as the day begins. Overtime may be justified.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Your heaviest thinking goes into finding the reasons for some present complication. Knowing the history gives you insight into the problem.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Nostalgia comes to your attention. A chance to correct error opens. News may justify celebration later.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Self-indulgence may work well today. Be insistent on getting your fair share of the fun and attention.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Unsolicited advice arrives. Vary usual values today. If travelling, extra care is essential.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Cultural observances are not excuses for abandoning financial caution. Current situations indicate growth as your judgment matures.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): At this quiet point in your career-building cycle you need time off to yourself for planning. Dodging issues doesn't help.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Today, use your best skills, especially financial. News is pleasant, but lacks detail—wait before acting.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): "Luck" should smile on you. In sports and hobbies, be both a good loser and a good winner. Personal contacts promise opportunity.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Some old problems are now at least temporarily solved. Be selective and in good humor. Young people carry most of the responsibility.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You are short of time today. Participation in public events and hasty co-operation contribute to unavoidable delays.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Progress develops despite much discussion. Take great care in material arrangements. The puzzle is complex but not insoluble—patience.

School Will Close

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — St. Peter's elementary school, the last remaining private school for Roman Catholic children in this city situated near the mouth of the Fraser River, will close in June after 100 years of operation. School officials said dwindling enrollment, down to 185 this year from 163 two years ago, made it impossible to keep St. Peter's financially solvent.

ICE COVERED

About 97 per cent of Canada was covered by glacier ice within the last million years.

Pregnant Cannot Take Off Pounds

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I was a few weeks into a very strict although doctor-approved quick weight-loss diet, when I became pregnant.

How can I diet safely throughout pregnancy so I will weigh less after my baby is born than I do now? I am 21 and have no health problems other than being 25 pounds overweight.—Mrs. A.W.

Sorry, but pregnancy is no time to think of quick weight reduction. Just aim at gaining no more than 15 or 20 pounds up to the time of delivery.

Most of that weight represents the weight of the fetus and amniotic fluid. Some is also due to fluid being retained in your tissues generally — in which case limit the amount of salt you eat, because salt tends to hold fluids in the body. Taste lightly; don't shake on salt before tasting.

During pregnancy you should get ample protein, vitamins and minerals. You'll get vitamins and minerals from certain meats, foods, fruit and vegetables, but taking a daily capsule of vitamins and minerals is a safety precaution.

After the baby is born will be time enough to work off surplus pounds but if you manage to go through the pregnancy without gaining more than the stipulated 15 to 20 pounds, you will have accomplished something of real value to you. You will have learned how to avoid gaining excess weight.

And that is as important as actually losing pounds. Too many folks drum up an alibi: most of will power and lose a number of pounds quickly. But if they haven't learned how to eat so as to avoid gaining, their reducing programs are a waste of effort. As soon as they stop, they start gaining again, and presently they're back where they started.

So don't be disappointed if you don't lose during your pregnancy.

The key, to keep in mind during your pregnancy, is to avoid fatty foods—fried foods, fat meat, excessive cream, butter, margarine. And by all means avoid rich desserts because the usually contain two things you need to avoid: fats and carbohydrates.

In fact, keep carbohydrate consumption low, because you don't need much of it—and serve as that you don't need it going to be stored up as body fat.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I apply men's cologne on my skin about three times a day. Can that be dangerous?—Mrs. J.

Also I have been told that if I wash my hair too much I will lose it gradually as I mature. I wash mine twice a week. Is that safe?—V.V.

No to the first question—but less you happen to be allergic to something in the cologne, that would be obvious.

Washing your hair certainly it's safe to wash your hair twice a week. If you lose any hair later, it won't be because you kept it clean.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 43, female, and overweight (5 feet 6 and 180 pounds) with high blood pressure and a smoking habit of 25 years' duration. I know I am going to have to do something soon but the thought of giving up food AND cigarettes at the same time paralyzes me to the extent that I do nothing at all.

Logically it would seem that I should tackle the habit that is most harmful but which I find it. What would you do?—Mrs. C.W.

In my opinion controlling your weight should come first—for that doesn't mean you can't at least start cutting down on your smoking, since smoking is doubtedly also is contributing to your high blood pressure, too.

Learn Shorthand

EDMONTON (CP) — Businessmen are again demanding shorthand proficiency from office support personnel and are even finding benefits in having a knowledge of shorthand themselves, says Dr. Steven Kanshuba; chairman of the secretarial studies program at Grant MacEwan Community College. Dr. Kashuba says interest in shorthand fell off in the 1960s because of a theory that the electronic age and computers would make shorthand obsolete.

Davis Stoical After Parley

OTTAWA (CP) — "I am neither disappointment nor wild exhaustasm," Premier William Davis said Friday after the three-day federal-provincial conference that left Ontario with little solace in its fight with Ottawa over health and education financing.

Mr. Davis said the major achievement for Ontario was a clearer recognition by Prime Minister Trudeau that the federal government was committed to eventually eliminating cost-sharing arrangements with the provinces, and turning over to them the fiscal equivalents with no strings. Mr. Davis had sought at this conference a clear opting out by next year of programs in finance health care and post-secondary education. Instead, the provinces decided to continue the 50-50 cost-sharing arrangements in education, and to table for further study Ottawa's new formula for grants plus tax points to refinance health.

Mr. Davis said he engaged in a personal exchange with Mr. Trudeau during one of the closed sessions about the concept of opting-out. He said the prime minister agreed opting out provided greater efficiency in the operation of programs. Asked if he was referring to the provinces assuming full responsibility under cost-sharing schemes, he said Mr. Trudeau replied: "Yes, Mr. Davis, to assume full responsibility."

The premier said in interviews that he gave a clear indication of Mr. Trudeau's position. Later, in a communique, Mr. Davis described it as "increased recognition of the need to clarify the respective roles and responsibilities of the various levels of government, so that each can play its most effective part in managing the business of this country."

"You like to achieve everything," he told reporters. "But that is never possible and I think we made some progress."

Mr. Davis said the provinces would be ready in two to three weeks to decide whether or not to accept the Turner-Lalonde proposals to pay for health-care schemes.

"Ontario is not rejecting the federal proposal, but we will need time to study and assess the figures."

Teaching Colleges To Close

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — Education Minister Thomas Wells said Friday the Ontario government had to impose ceilings on education because school expenditures "were getting out of hand."

However, Mr. Wells said education remains the province's top priority even though school board expenditures had to be trimmed to a reasonable level.

Mr. Wells Friday announced closing of two teacher colleges, at Stratford and Peterborough, owing to a trend to a declining school population and the transfer of three other teaching colleges to university faculties.

Mr. Wells, interviewed while here to attend graduation exercises at the University of Waterloo, also said other programs such as health care and transportation require an increasing amount of the tax dollar, making spending restrictions on education necessary.

"I think we have come to realize after 10 years or so of very heavy (education) spending, the money isn't necessarily the answer."

Prices Highest

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal Leader Robert Nixon charged Friday in the legislature that despite provincial government programs, Toronto house prices are the highest in North America.

He said the average price now is in excess of $40,000.

Gas Scarce

TORONTO (CP) — Donald MacDonald (NDP—York South) suggested in the legislature Friday that an urgent United States need for gasoline is drying up the Canadian market.

He charged that the export of Canadian-manufactured gasoline is hurting independent gas retailers in Ontario.

Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations John Clement said some gas stations have been closing in Ontario but none because of an inability to buy gas.

Mr. MacDonald asked for figures to show how much gas is being exported before asking more questions on the matter.

After Status

TORONTO (CP) — Jack McIlle, provincial minister of colleges and universities, announced Friday that agreement has been reached between the province and the board of governors of Waterloo Lutheran University to make the institution a non-denominational university.

Under the terms of the agreement the university could receive the full operating grant for the 1973-74 year. Church-related institutions receive only 50 per cent of the operating formula from the province.

The agreement now must be approved by the Eastern Canada Synod of the Lutheran Church.

Canadians In Vietnam Get Bonus

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian soldiers in South Vietnam will receive an additional $70 a month, Defence Minister James Richardson announced Friday.

The additional money will bring the soldiers' pay to the level of external affairs officials on the International Commission of Control and Supervision, he told George Hees (PC—Prince Edward Hastings) in the Commons.

The majority of Canadian observers in Vietnam are soldiers and there have been complaints that they receive less pay than external affairs personnel for the same work.

The $70 a month is added to the $150 to $180 foreign service allowance the servicemen receive on top of their regular pay.

Mr. Richardson said the tax-free extra money will be retroactive to Jan. 29 for men who have been in Vietnam since the start of the observer operation.

Professional Canadian

Lloyd Bochner, an actor for almost 40 years, says he would like to produce a film in Canada. He calls himself a professional Canadian in Hollywood. Bochner is shown in a production called the Firing Squad. (CP Photo)

Tax Bill Coming In Days

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government's long-awaited corporate tax measures will be introduced in Parliament within the next few days and dealt with before the Commons adjourns for the summer, Finance Minister John Turner said Friday.

He made the announcement at a news conference after informing premiers at the federal-provincial conference of his intentions.

"In the next few days, the process will begin," he said, leaving the impression that the measures will be presented to the Commons next week.

The legislation, opposed by the New Democratic Party, could threaten the life of the minority Liberal government which has relied on the NDP for support since Parliament opened Jan. 4.

PCs to Try to Cut Off Publicity Branch Funds

OTTAWA - (CP)—The Conservatives served notice in the Commons Friday they will try to close down Information Canada by refusing to vote its $10-million budget next month.

"We intend to . . . make a valiant, honorable and diligent effort to bring this monster of government under some kind of control," said Baldwin, Conservative House leader, said during a Conservative-inspired debate on the just-released report of the auditor-general on government spending.

Information Canada was established by the Trudeau government after the 1968 election and has been criticized by the Conservatives ever since. Its announced aim is to inform the public on departmental programs and policies.

It also operates the government printing office and has bookstores across Canada.

Monday the Commons will debate a New Democratic Party motion which will deal either with Vietnam or with energy policy.

Mr. Baldwin quoted liberally from the report of retired auditor-general Maxwell Henderson, who warned that Parliament is losing control over government spending. The report also cited numerous examples of what Mr. Henderson calls "non-productive spendings."

One way to let the public know how its money is spent is to televise sessions of Parliament when government spending is debated, Mr. Baldwin said.

He repeated charges that Liberal governments since 1963 have been trying to make it more and more difficult for the opposition parties to scrutinize how tax money is spent.

Treasury Board President C. M. Drury said the reverse is true.

For example, estimates of each department went to a separate Commons committee where witnesses were available to answer all questions in detail.

Mr. Drury also said the format of the so-called blue book, outlining proposed government expenditures, has been revamped to allow MPs to get more details.

He added that government spending has had a much more searching review in the last three years than ever before.

And this despite "the seeming inability or unwillingness of some members of the opposition to use the opportunities for inquiry given them."

"Don't tell us fairy tales," interrupted Erik Nielsen PC Yukon).

Lang Says Wiretaps By Police Essential

MINAKI, Ont. (CP) — Forbidding enforcement agencies to wiretap would be like taking guns from police while criminals continue to use them, Justice Minister Otto Lang said Friday night.

He told a conference of Crown attorneys it is essential the hands of police are not tied when they are fighting organized crime.

Mr. Lang was commenting on anti-wiretapping legislation that has received second reading in the Commons and is due for detailed study by a Commons committee.

The bill would outlaw most wiretapping but allow police to obtain permission from a judge to install bugging equipment in certain circumstances.

In emergencies police could bug without an order from an attorney-general or the solicitor-general but would have to obtain permission from a judge before any evidence gathered by electronic means could be used.

He warned that organized crime will continue to use bugging equipment after it is outlawed. Therefore it was essential that police be allowed to use devices to cope with crime.

New Development Act Is Promised by Province

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — John White has set a strong tone for the tri-level conference that begins here today by announcing a major change in legislation to strengthen regional planning.

Mr. White, the province's minister of intergovernmental affairs, said in a 20-page position paper released to reporters that he will introduce a new Ontario planning and development act in the legislature June 4.

Mr. White's paper said the new bill will establish a new framework under which the public and the three levels of government—federal, provincial and municipal—will be able to "make their views known before plans are made." However, the paper made it clear it will be the province that will be the agent for developing plans "for any area in Ontario."

Federal Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford was among the 200 delegates who arrived here Sunday night for the two-day conference on urban problems such as housing, transportation and environment.

Many delegates were not certain whether Mr. White was proposing a tough Ontario stand to force municipalities into unified action or if he meant only to spur them on.

Desmond Newman, mayor of Whitby and chairman of the provincial-municipal liaison committee, said in an interview he had not had a chance to study Mr. White's background paper which will be released to the conference today.

"If it means that the minister is prepared to delegate his authority under the planning act to a group of municipalities to set up a planning board, then it is a step along the road," Mr. Newman said.

Mr. White said he could give no other details until the bill is introduced in the legislature.

The minister was to leave the conference briefly today to return to Toronto to table in the legislature the government's long-awaited plan for regional government east and west of Toronto. He said these plans will complete the most important phase of regional planning in Ontario.

The minister said he also will announce in the House June 4 plans for preserving the Niagara escarpment and for the major transportation parkway belt west of Toronto.

The key sentence in Mr. White's position paper, as far as municipal officials here were concerned, was the one stating that the idea that land "should be the broadest sense of the word is exclusively a provincial activity is unacceptable both in theory and practice."

Mr. Newman said this may indicate a new and better era in relationships between the two governments.

Mr. White, in an interview, said the new legislation will take specific aim at the powers vested in the province to arbitrarily control municipal planning. He said ministerial orders there can currently be no appeal, indicating that might change.

But he said there was no intention of backtracking under the new act the Ontario Municipal Board's function to oversee municipal financing. Mr. Newman had expressed fear that this might be the intention.

Ontario Municipalities Want Lakeshore Property Controlled

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Ontario municipalities want zoning and other controls over development of shoreline properties on the Great Lakes.

The municipalities are urging the controls in an environmental position paper produced for the two-day tri-level conference which opens here today.

The statement suggests that it will not be possible to apply any significant control over water levels of the Great Lakes system. The alternative is to control over shoreline development.

The paper says the imposition of such controls, which would involve removal of structures and requisition of land, would be beyond the resource of municipal governments, adding that the controls should be a matter of concern for federal and provincial governments.

The municipalities also warn the senior administrations that there is a growing danger in the Great Lakes in the form of thermal pollution, discharge of heated water from electrical generating plants and industry.

The ecological balance can be upset by water 10 to 20 degrees warmer than the lake temperature, the paper says, and "taste and odor problems could develop in drinking water sources."

The paper proposes more extensive research by federal and provincial governments into reduction of thermal pollution. The next five to 10 years could be critical to these lake resources, it says.

Trawlers Told To Stay Near Navy Frigates

LONDON (CP) — British trawlers operating inside Iceland's proclaimed 50-mile fishing limit were under strict orders today not to stray from the protection of the three Royal Navy frigates patrolling the area.

Foreign Secretary Alec Douglas-Home said Sunday night that it was imperative that the British fishermen conform to plans laid down by the navy, aimed at preventing Icelandic coast guard patrol boats from trying to drive the trawlers away.

The warning to the fishing boats came in a television interview about an incident over the weekend when the Icelandic coast guard flagship, the Aegir, fired several shells into the trawler Everton.

Meanwhile, there appeared to be growing support in Britain for the Icelandic position in the dispute.

Two left-wing weekly journals, The New Statesman and The Tribune, strongly criticized the government's decision to send the navy in and called for understanding of Iceland's dependence on fish.

At the same time, a parliamentarian from the ruling Conservative party publicly described Iceland's extension of its fishing jurisdiction to 50 miles from 12 as "a modest claim." The parliamentarian, Laurence Reed, said it was urgent to find a practical solution to the dispute.

Meanwhile, North Atlantic Treaty Organization diplomats in Reykjavik speculated Sunday that Iceland may be trying to manoeuvre Britain into a gun duel before the arrival of President Nixon and French President Pompidou Wednesday.

The purpose of such a strategy, these diplomats suggested, would be to bring the Nixon administration down from its neutral perch in the dispute and over to Iceland's side.

Prime Minister Olafur Johannesson of Iceland, in a broadcast Sunday, thanked the gunboat's crew, saying their action was "natural and inevitable law enforcement."

He warned the British: "Evenia like that will always repeat themselves."

Boat Hits Wall Couple Die

KINCARDINE, Ont. (CP) — Mr. and Mrs. R.J.F. Leslie Dahms of Muldmay, Ont., about 45 miles south of Owen Sound, died on the weekend from injuries suffered when their 17-foot boat slammed into a concrete breakwall outside Kincardine harbor Saturday night.

Skylab Work Commences As Temperatures Decline

HOUSTON (AP) — With temperatures in their space station continuing to drop, Skylab's astronauts began their primary task today, activating experiments that may bring many benefits to mankind.

Charles Conrad, Joseph Kerwin and Paul Weitz also planned a 10-minute television news conference, answering questions from reporters on the hectic two days in which they repaired the huge laboratory.

"We read temperatures inside the workshop at 91 degrees," mission commander Conrad told controllers Sunday night "It's feeling a bit hotter."

Just 24 hours before, the heat inside the lab registered 123 degrees because a protective shield had ripped away during the launch of the Skylab May 14.

The astronauts raised a huge awning-like sun shade over the affected area. Mission Control said the temperature was dropping at an average of more than one degree an hour and within a day or two should be a livable 70 degrees.

Despite the still-stifling heat in the 90s, Conrad, Kerwin and Weitz worked through the day in the two-story workshop and Sunday, checking and activating water, electrical and other systems.

Whenever it got too hot, they retreated to other rooms of the station, cooler because they have been shaded from the sun, or to the Apollo ship that carried them to a rendezvous with Skylab Friday.

A televised view of the laboratory showed the astronauts floating from one point to another inside the weightless workshop, as large as a three-bedroom house.

"You can go anywhere you want to in the vehicle," said Conrad. "You just shove off and go. It's just superfast."

"This workshop is getting quite workable," Conrad said Sunday. "Give us another day and a half and we'll have the baby parking along just like it's supposed to be."

Weitz planned to work today with a $37-million array of photosensors, preparing them to study wide areas of the world and evaluate the best instruments and methods for exporting earth's resources from space.

Ma Murray Assails Fellow Journalists

THREE VALLEY GAP, B.C. (CP) — Pioneer journalist Ma Murray tore into fellow journalists at a retirement party in her honor Saturday night.

Publishers, editors and columnists from all parts of British Columbia were on hand in this ghost town 12 miles west of Revelstoke to hear her charge them with allowing "that dictator (W. A. C.) Bennett," to stay in power for 20 years and then permit "that Socialist crowd" to replace him.

During her speech Saturday night, however, she said she'd voted for the New Democratic Party in last year's provincial election. "There was no liberal candidate," she said, but "that bunch in Victoria, will take away every scrap of initiative and freedom and democracy we have in this beautiful province."

Trenton Man Charged With Murder of Girl

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

COBOURG — A Trenton man appeared briefly in provincial court here this morning and was remanded in custody to appear again Thursday on a charge of non-capital murder of an 11-year-old Grafton-area girl.

Gary Leo Genereaux, 29, of 56 Division Street, Trenton, was interrogated for several hours above the Trenton Police Station Saturday by Toronto Inspectors John McKendrie and Ronald Waddell of the Ontario Provincial Police before his arrest.

The body of 11-year-old Michelle Keough was found by her father Michael on a bush trail last Wednesday. Her father, supervisor of staff development at the Ontario Hospital here, became worried when she failed to arrive home from St. Mary's separate school in nearby Grafton.

It was first believed Michelle was the victim of a sex slaying but an autopsy performed in Toronto showed no evidence of rape. The report listed the actual cause of death as a stab wound to the heart. She had also been choked.

Witnesses told police Michelle left a school bus near her home on the Thomas Road off Highway 2, 19 miles east of here, at 3.45 p.m. May 22. They reported seeing her soon after in the company of a man with whom she drove off in a late model, green, compact car.

It was the description of the car that led to the arrest of Genereaux in Trenton, a spokesman for the Cobourg provincial police said last night.

"We were lucky some witnesses saw the car," he said.

The car in question is believed to have been a 1973 Pontiac LeMans, rented recently in Belleville.

Released from Collins Bay Penitentiary on March 30, 1972, he told police he had been employed during the past winter as head of maintenance at the Frontenac Downs Raceway in Kingston.

Genereaux is single.

Nixon's Guard Dies in Crash Of Helicopter

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — President Nixon prepared to return to Washington late today after a holiday weekend marred by the death of a secret service bodyguard in a helicopter crash.

Nixon, who flew here Friday with his family, will be in the capital only briefly. He flies to Iceland Wednesday morning for summit talks there with French President Georges Pompidou.

The helicopter fell into the Atlantic Saturday night near Grand Cayman in the Bahamas, where the Nixons were guests at the home of New York industrialist Robert Abplanalp.

IRA Factions Meet

LONDONDERRY (CP) — British security chiefs feared a fresh campaign today by the Irish Republican Army IRA after the two divisions of the movement got together for the first time in more than a year. Leaders of the Marxist oriented Official wing and the militant Provisional wing of the IRA met in this predominantly Roman Catholic town Sunday night to plan joint demonstrations against British rule in Northern Ireland.

Heath Visits Germany

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Edward Heath left Monday on a three day private visit to West Germany. Heath flew out in a Royal Air Force jet. He was due to meet informally for dinner in Munich with West German Chancellor Willy Brandt before returning to Britain.

Squatters Fight Troops

GUATEMALA (AP) — Tension gripped eastern Guatemala today following a gun battle between peasant squatters and troops in which at least 17 persons were killed. Police and troops surrounded the hamlet of Palo Verde, 72 miles east of the capital, in an attempt to head off further violence. But hundreds of peasants were reported holding on to the land they seized during the weekend.

Tougher Act Urged

TORONTO (CP) — A group of Osgoode Hall law students has called on the Ontario government for tougher consumer protection laws including consumer fair practices act. In a 141 page brief to Consumer Affairs Minister J. R. Clement, the law students say existing laws are "far from adequate" and that they result in "haphazard and uncertain protection."

Small Deficit Likely

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Robert Bourassa said Sunday night his government believes the 19 Summer Olympic Games here could produce a small deficit". "But," he added, "the facilities that will be there after the games will more than compensate for any deficit."

Job Picture Bright For Loyalist Grads

Reassurance that the job outlook was bright was given along with the certificates and diplomas to graduates of Loyalist College of Applied Arts and Technology at Saturday's convocation ceremonies.

Both John Donelan, chairman of Loyalist's Board of Governors, and Herbert Young, president of the college, cited statistics in their opening addresses that suggested fulfillment of the graduates' employment hopes. The statistics also indicated many of them would continue some form of full or part - time study.

"In education, government and industrial circles, people have a special interest in you," John Donelan told the graduates. "Partly because you are the product as it were of a unique educational institution, the community colleges.

"The first two years of a five-year study on graduates of the colleges of applied arts and technology have shown that over 80 per cent of you will secure full-time employment on graduation, that over three quarters of you will be in a job related to your college training, that over 30 per cent of you might have to leave this immediate area to secure the employment you desire and, most significantly, that this time next year about 85 per cent of you will probably be taking some further educational courses," he said.

The figures were encouraging, he said, but the colleges still had a long way to go in fulfilling the goals set out for them. "What you choose to do and what you eventually do is important to the development of our programs and our courses," said Mr. Donelan. "So if you receive your student questionnaire please fill it in — it enables us not only to help you further, but also to help all those who follow you."

Mr. Young also appealed for feedback from the graduates. "Only you know what has been happening in the classrooms during the hundreds of scheduled lectures and labs," he said.

"But even you won't know how good or bad a job we have done for a while — not with the conviction that the passing of time and your own solid achievements will give you," said Mr. Young. "When you do have real convictions on the subject I hope we will be hearing from you."

Mr. Young said Loyalist established last year had been better than the general case: "Approximately 14 per cent of our graduates in 1972 went on to further studies, mainly here or at universities. Of the remaining graduates eligible for employment,it some 86 per cent obtained employment, with 85 per cent of the number here directly employed in the field of their studies.

"It is, however rather disappointing to discover that area is still an exporter of brains." he said. "In the 1972 graduating class, approximately 30 per cent came from outside the four counties, but 55 per cent had to locate outside our college area."

He added that one thing the figures did not show was that in some areas of study where the demand for graduates was extremely high, there were smaller enrolments. "For example, in chemical, electrical and electronic technology, in accounting, in business administration and in a number of technical fields the jobs available substantially outnumber the graduates from the whole college system," he said. "Our problem is to get high school graduates or retrainable adults interested in entering those fields.

"We are making every effort to develop solutions at our level, and if we are successful, the placement figures in years to come will look even better," he said.

John Donelan gave graduates the advice: "The real joy in life is doing things that have some worthwhile end. Competition with others is great but the most challenging ambition is to excel yourself year after year. Never be satisfied with mediocrity, and always strive for excellence in all you do.

"You may have talents or interests, but you will probably have one over - riding ambition," he said. "Define it, make it your main goal, organize your efforts and use all your talents and energy to achieve it."

Members of the Trenton No. 416 Combined Division demonstration beats first aid techniques on a simulated hit and run victim. Only the victim knew when to stop and dispute arose when it came to tearing up the shirt being taken off by the "passer - by" (right). All went well and the patient "survived". The above demonstration was one of those presented by the five Divisions of the Quinte Corps of the St. John Ambulance Brigade at their Eleventh Annual Corps Inspection Sunday at the Belleville armories.

St. John Corps Inspected

The five divisions of the Quinte Corps of the St. John Ambulance Brigade were on parade in their finest on Sunday for the eleventh annual corps inspection.

In 1972 the 125 - member Corps provided a total of 8,381 hours free public duty, 70 hours hospital duty and a total of 11,658½ hours of all service during which 1,188 casualties were treated.

Now well into another year of service, combined divisions 127, Picton, 128 Belleville, 416 Trenton, 561 Cobourg and 150 combined Cadet, Division Brigadier-General G. R. A. Coffin and Corps Superintendent Murray J. Pohler.

Certificates of Achievement for "outstanding contribution to the work of St. John" were presented to those who had contributed more than a 300 hours free public service. Ruth Lillian Britnell topped the list, having contributed 307 hours of her time in 1972. Clarence Douglas Deacon contributed 312½ hours and Hazel Marilan 304½ hours.

Jack Sorsole received a 20-year award for his 20th Examination in First Aid and Decade Awards for 10th Examinations in Home Nursing went to Elizabeth Chapman, Betty Laundry, and Fred Beghie.

A 3-Bar for nine years' service was presented to Leola Kennedy and 1-Bars for three years to Corps Serjeant-Major Robert Walters Jr., Denise Davis and Ida Ferguson.

After a brief and complimentary address by the inspecting officer, Jack Ellis, the largest-ever annual inspection parade was dismissed and the Belleville Branch was host for a social hour.

Two Break-ins On Weekend

Thieves made off with several truck keys and approximately $6 after ransacking Guy Carriage, 88 Princess St.

Thieves also broke into the basement of the Trenton Lions Club, 77 Dundas St., but were unable to gain entry to the main section of the building.

Police also are searching for a 1964 Chevy, reported stolen by Dennis Mountford, 270 Pinnacle St., from his driveway early Monday.

Driver Hurt

THE OUTLET (Staff) — A Kingston motorist was treated and released by Prince Edward Memorial Hospital Sunday afternoon following a one-car accident at the junction of County Road 11 and the Outlet Road.

Clarence Turpah, driver of the vehicle was treated for cuts and bruises. Only minor damage resulted to the car.

Barn Burned

TWEED (Special) —A large century-old barn on the former Clayton Blackburn farm north of Elzevir was completely destroyed by fire Saturday afternoon along with seven calves and a quantity of hay and farm machinery.

No-one was home at the time of the fire. Neighbor Mrs. Ivor said the flames erupted suddenly. Members of the Elzevir and Tweed fire departments answered the call but were unable to do anything to save the bank barn structure. Origin of the blaze was not immediately determined.

The owner, Mrs. Violet Johnson, was at work at the sales counter at the Eldorado Cheese Factory when the fire occurred.

IN MEMORIAM

FOOTE — In loving memory of a dear mother, Florida, who passed away May 28, 1971.

We do not need a special day,
To bring you to our mind,
For the days we do not think of you
Are very hard to find.
If all the world were ours to give,
We'd give it, yes, and more,
To have you here to share our joys,
Since sailing through the storm.
—Lovingly remembered by daughter Marjorie, husband and family.

FOOTE — In loving memory of our dear mom, Florida, who passed away May 28, 1972.
Dear Mom, that day was suffering
That the hills were hard to climb,
But God saw you getting tired,
And wisdomed, "Peace be thine."
Away in the beautiful hills of God,
By the valley of rest on him,
Some time, some day, we know not when,
We will meet you mother there.
—Always remembered by the family.

FOOTE — In loving memory of a dear mother and maternal wife passed away May 28, 1972.
There's a day that haunts my memory,
There's a voice I long to hear,
There's a smile I will always remember,
And I thank God for those wonderful years.
I love you softer, I heard you sigh,
But still I could do was just stand by,
God knew you were suffering,
So he took you home to rest.
He let closed your weary smiles,
And whispered Peace be thine.
You have not me with memories,
I shall treasure through the years.
—Lovingly remembered by husband Dick.

HOLLEY — In loving memory of our dear son Barry William who died May 28, 1970.
We miss you more our brother,
Only those who have lost can tell,
Of the grief that's locked in silence,
For the one we loved so well.
—Sister Jacqueline, Mom and Dad.

Proud Moment

Elizabeth Bradshaw (left) and Louise Byers were among the 33 graduating nursing assistants who received their one-year certificates at the Loyalist College Sixth Convocation Saturday. Here they look with justified pride at the proof of a year's demanding study. Louise Byers was one of the 24 nursing assistants to warrant mention in the Dean's List.

Peke Winner

Forboro Pekingese, Sunchings Mr. Toy, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Ron Johnston was awarded best Canadian - bred puppy in group five and best Canadian-bred puppy in show, this past weekend.

The show was held Sunday in the Aurora and District Kennel Club.

Keeping Things Running

Almost behind the scenes at Saturday's Loyalist College Convocation in the auditorium of Centennial High School was College Registrar Jim Hemsley. One of the busiest people there, the above kept up presentations to the 41 Achievement Award winners of 1972-73.

Hospital Land Use Questioned

Belleville General Hospital is to be asked to clarify its proposed use of a piece of land the hospital has asked the Board of Park Management to sell for $1.

The Parks Board - owned land, once intended as the site of a parking garage for the hospital, was to be made available once surrounding properties had been purchased. At Thursday's meeting of the Board of Park Management was notified the hospital had obtained the other properties.

Alderman Stu Meeks questioned the state of the original agreement. "The agreement was on the understanding this land was needed for a garage," he said. "I understand now that it's not needed for that purpose."

Alderman Joe Cox questioned the $1 sale. "We should get some price on it — and I don't mean $1," he said. Alderman Jean Smith felt it would be difficult to assess the property's value.

The board tabled a memorandum from City Manager J. R. Reynolds calling for the transaction to proceed until information was obtained from the Hospital Board on the proposed use of the land.

Railroad Buffs Will Ride Again

PICTON — The Picton Model Railroaders this fall again will sponsor a rail fan trip from Belleville to Marmoraton Mines to the Picton ore docks.

Staged for the first time last June the trip attracted 140 rail enthusiasts. Visitors came from New York, Montreal, Ottawa, Galt, Kitchener and Toronto to enjoy the excursion.

This year the trip will be held on Saturday, September 22, when two passenger coaches will be hooked to the scheduled train run. Unlike most chartered rail fan excursions the Belleville - Marmoraton - Picton run is not a special one but is a regular scheduled trip.

A member of the Picton Model Railroaders, Allan Capon, has observed that the ride is enjoyed by a wide cross section of rail fans including modellers, rail historians, and persons who may never before have ridden on a train.

Tickets for the September run will be priced at $8.50

Because of the length of the trip which begins at 7:30 a.m., it is not generally recommended for children.

The Canadian Railroad Historical Association of Montreal has asked for reservations for the trip and its magazine, Canadian Rail, this month will carry an illustrated feature story of last year's excursion.

Former Prince Edward County warden Rose Benway and former Picton reeve Albert Piroth both rode the rails for last June's trip and when the train stopped at the Picton ore docks, Picton's ex-mayor Margaret Ackerman greeted the travellers.

Copies of the souvenir book "The County" autographed by Warden Benway were presented to all passengers.

Harsh Sentence

It is encouraging to learn that the case of Eleanor Faye Davis, a Belleville mother of seven jailed for welfare fraud, is being considered by Justice Secretary George Kerr.

We are not suggesting that the decisions of our courts should be subject to in every case to revision at government level. However there is surely room in this instance — and we said it before, at the time of the original sentence — for the exercise of compassion and common sense.

Mrs. Davis was deserted for a time by her husband, but subsequently returned home and she continued, fraudently, to receive mother's allowances while her husband lived in the same house and was receiving unemployment cheques.

The Court of Appeal has already reduced the sentence from 50 to 30 days and deleted provisions of a lower court judgment, including a probation term and repayment of nearly $2,000. Any further commutation presumably is a matter for Mr. Kerr.

While the children are being cared for by social organizations, and the father is at home, the separation of the mother — hitherto the family's main support — is, in the circumstances, bordering on tragedy. Mrs. Davis must be considered to have suffered enough already without the further burden of a jail sentence.

A National Trait

Canadians are currently breaking out in a heavy rash of self-righteousness — undeniably something of a national trait — over Watergate and the personal trials of President Nixon. But even such an outspoken opponent as Senator Edward Kennedy (perhaps with thoughts of his own personal trauma of recent years in mind) was moved to acknowledge recently that it has been a difficult time of late for Mr. Nixon and said in effect that the press was not going to kick a man when he was down.

Not that Mr. Nixon is anywhere near being down. He is just not that kind of a man. For one thing, as we mentioned, he is not going to resign and the other day he counter-attacked by telling his audience of ex-POW's it was time the public stopped making national heroes of people who stole top secret files and published them in the newspapers. The inference here was clear, relating as it did to former Pentagon staffers who managed to obtain an acquittal from a Court because of the admittedly questionable conduct of Government personnel now on the hot seat in the Watergate scandal hearings.

We were talking about the smugness of Canadians in the face of these matters next door. Well the smile on our faces may cloud somewhat with the Last Hurrah of Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson. Within recent months ago, Mr. Henderson's "ghost" (as one columnist put it) nevertheless lives on, to scare the Commons once again in recent days with a further report on the latest scandal of our own parliamentary and public scene — Government extravagance, the cavalier waste of public money and Ottawa's repeated unconcern and failure to do anything about it.

The latest word is that the Government blew nearly $9 million of public tax money "on nothing" — yes "nothing" in the fiscal year 1971-72.

In accountants' parlance, a sum of $8,842,000 went on "non-productive payment," such as the Department of Manpower's outlay of $2,000 on an engraved piece on a chartered flight for students, or — of interest in this area — the Department of Defence's expenditure of $21,500 for unused office equipment in Belleville.

The list goes on — tales of fraud in the Old Age Security program (now totalling more than $1 million), overspending on defence contracts, income tax refunds, rental for accommodation never used, and so on — not to mention, incidentally, an increase in overtime payments to penitentiary staff to $3.7 million from $2 million the previous year. So much for the parole caper, prison security and all that.

If we have little in the way of outright scandal to highlight issues in Canada these days, this continuing waste of public money is one which surely may be labelled just that. Unfortunately, Mr. Henderson may have been one of a kind in his policing of such boobs; but we hope his successors, and we don't know if one has been appointed or not, will be at least as vigilant as he was. Let's have some action too from the Government in being more careful about funds that were not its own in the beginning.

PEI's 100th Anniversary

Maritime Union Idea Resulted in Confederation

Radio Canada International

Canada's mini - province, Prince Edward Island has two claims to fame — its fine potatoes and that it's the birthplace of the Canadian nation.

But for this capital Charlottetown was really Canada's cradle, the Island province itself was a late-comer to the nursery.

Although Canada six years ago celebrated its 100th birthday with Expo '67 and a flourish of trumpets that echoed around the world, the 100,000 folk of P.E.I. — tucked away in the southeast corner of Canada, in the Gulf of St. Lawrence — hold their own Centennial Celebration this year.

Before 1867, Canada was only one of the colonies in British North America. It was the largest, in both population and wealth and was divided into two:

Upper and Lower Canada. Which consisted of Ontario and Quebec.

West of Canada there was wilderness, small settlements and the Arctic barrens. The majority of the people were nomadic descendants of the buffalo hunters of the Canadian prairies. Only in British Columbia, west of the Rockies, did the small population enjoy an organized form of self-government.

East of Canada were the separate and self-governing colonies of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, and Newfoundland.

The concept of Canadian Confederation may seem to have been a relatively simple affair, but there were a few strong catalysts in the background.

There was Britain itself with many of the problems of expansion to settle its difficulties with the United States, the U.S. which had just concluded a particularly nasty Civil War and was trying to reunite the troubled nation; and there were the Fenians, south of the border, Irish-Americans who were trying to get at Britain, any-which-way for its domination of Ireland.

It all began when the colony of Canada had the dream of a political union of the eastern colonies of BNA in a confederation. They saw the opportunity to present their case, when the eastern colonies, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island agreed to have a meeting to discuss Maritime Union."

The delegates to that meeting, were told they could not, but were warned not to try and take over the meeting. A place, Charlottetown the capital of PEI, and a date, September 1, 1864, were decided upon.

The Canadians said the idea of union of the colonies so well, all hostility and suspicion were dropped and a hasty wedding ceremony was almost performed then and there.

For the first time, these colonies drank the heady spirit of nationalism, and felt they might share a common future. But, there was a lot more talking to be done and they agreed to meet again in Quebec City, October 1st of that year.

At the second meeting, there were two major mistakes concerning PEI. When the Island asked for increased representation in the proposed Lower House of Parliament, it was turned down. The second was a failure by the delegates to persuade to buy back PEI's land from absentee owners who lived in Britain.

Back in PEI, none of these things was of any great concern. Its geographic isolation was a fact, it was in good shape financially, and it could see no benefits from Confederation.

Prodded on all sides, the Dominion of Canada came into existence on July 1, 1867. It consisted of the provinces of Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia — with PEI and Newfoundland opting out.

Canada began to grow rapidly with the transfer to Canada of the Northwest Territories, part of which became the province of Manitoba in 1870. And a year later, British Columbia entered on the promise of transcontinental railway.

Fortunately, they did not have contend with this. But for the people above the border, the possibility of having to defend themselves locally and without British troops was pretty scary.

Back in PEI, none of these things was of any great concern. Its geographic isolation was a fact, it was in good shape financially, and it could see no benefits from Confederation.

Prodded on all sides, the Dominion of Canada came into existence on July 1, 1867. It consisted of the provinces of Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia — with PEI and Newfoundland opting out.

Canada began to grow rapidly with the transfer to Canada of the Northwest Territories, part of which became the province of Manitoba in 1870. And a year later, British Columbia entered on the promise of transcontinental railway.

Hard times had come to PEI. Not only did it have the same old problem, but was now saddled with a half - built railway it couldn't afford. In other words it was broke.

On July 1, 1873, it became part of Canada on conditions that those distant landlords would be bought out, communications with the mainland 'maintained' during the 3 seasons, and its railway completed.

Thus for a full year — 1873 — PEI, the birthplace of Canada, is celebrating its 100th birthday as a member of the Canadian family.

The island is a pastoral delight, surrounded by the sparkling blue water. There are long uncrowded sandy beaches, sheltered bays ideal for boating, and fish-filled rivers and streams. It's a vacationer's paradise. If you fly over Prince Edward Island one of the first things you will notice is the soil — red as can be. It is a rich soil and the landscape is predominantly green.

"Sounded like she said 'enough is enough' and walked out to sea."

Educational Ceilings Not Thought Out

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I would like to thank the Minister of Education for his prompt and public response to my letter. I am happy that he has acknowledged that some people feel there are problems. I am sorry that under present circumstances I cannot share his confidence that all of education are being controlled without affecting adversely the quality of the programs in the schools.

The Hastings County Board was in a very good position when the spending ceilings were imposed in 1971. This board had the third lowest spending rate per student of any board in Ontario. The quality of Education was good and was improving. This board had not even reached the suggested limitations, let alone exceeded them. Still the board reach those limitations in 1972. This year for the only reached those ceilings, but to just maintain the quality of education despite the minister's assurances.

If this board, a board which has seriously attempted to live by the ministry's guidelines, is in trouble, imagine the problems of other boards (clearly all but three of those in the province) who were not in the now enviable position of our board of 1971.

Therefore the minister appears to be in error. True, all boards could meet the ceilings and many have, but what has been the effect on the quality of education? I am sure there is also true that some boards have cut "trimmed the fat" as carefully as ours.

The director of education has publicly acknowledged that this board needs an annual 12 per cent increase in its "ordinary" budget to simply maintain the level of education. The "ordinary budget" pays all salaries, supplies and most maintenance costs as well as most annually recurring expenses. The Province pays 75 per cent of special educational costs in this area.

The board has a second part of the budget called "extraordinary expenses". This includes one shot deals such as major construction or renovations.

This budget is also subject to absolute ministry control, but it is not covered by or involved in the "spend ceilings". Further, any monies left over from the Extraordinary Budget cannot, by ministry regulation, be used elsewhere.

Few people in education would argue with the need for controlled costs. What we in the "grass roots" are annoyed about is the fact that the controls being used were not well thought out and are having a harmful effect.

Even Mac Smith, chairman of the Hastings board, has admitted that to meet the ceilings imposed by the ministry, "we are having to curtail, or in some cases abandon, educational programs which many of us feel is essential to quality education. In this connection we are going to make a direct approach to the ministry to seek answers to questions we have regarding the implications of the ceilings on the growth of our educational programs."

It is particularly interesting to note that, while our board has increased its spending by approximately 36 per cent over the last three years, the cost of the Ministry has increased some 65 per cent over the same period of time. This fact recently appeared in two Toronto newspapers.

To reiterate, it is not possible to limit a board to 8.5 per cent increase this year, and if the ceilings remain unchanged, an increase of only 4.4 per cent next year (1974) when the expenses of the board increase by 10 to 12 per cent annually. Even the director of education, Mr. Eric Runacres, admits that the quality of education in the county is being harmed by the inadequate ceilings.

No, I cannot accept the assurances of the minister that students will not suffer. He is not and never has been in a classroom as a teacher. He is, unfortunately, not in touch with all the facts. The majority of taxpayers would not support the ceilings if they realized how their children may be hurt by them.

ALAN J. DEACON

U.S. Firm in Lindsay

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Your newspaper recently published an editorial entitled Canadians Lose Out, which rather accurately described the qualities that the chief executives of Prowler Industries of Ontario Ltd. It would appear that the factual information you obtained was from another source than the one originally furnished were of your own fabrication. It is with these conclusions that I take issue.

The chief executives of Prowler Industries of Ontario Ltd. are all Americans and were all employed by the parent company prior to any knowledge of the Canadian plant. The Canadian plant was spent considerable money, time and effort to train these gentlemen in the techniques that would ensure a successful business operation. The Canadian venture was offered to them knowing that they were capable of applying these proven techniques.

The U.S. parent company also went to considerable expense to recruit Canadians, who were hired to understudy for the top positions. Perhaps more research on your part would have produced this information and shown that this blending of talents has resulted in a successful enterprise in a short period of time. You would also have learned that there is an ever-prevalent concern for all of the work force that does not exist in many Canadian Companies.

It appears to me that application of proven techniques to establish a business that is sound and capable of giving people jobs over the 150 people is far more important than gratifying some phony nationalistic notion that the top positions must be held by Canadians.

I believe any Canadians willing to invest their money and apply their talents to establish this country. They must believe as they say "sour grapes" reaction when someone else is successful in their ventures?

The decision to build a plant in Canada was obviously made by the parent company after a feasibility study. This decision was reached with the help of some Canadians who are in the top ranks of the parent company. As far as so frequently is the case, Canadian executives had to go to the States to gain experience. It is with this influence that they now are able to make an impact on their native Canada.

Thank you for affording these comments space in your paper. The information is factual as it has been made available from the incorporation.

F. R. JAMES JOHNSTON,
Lindsay

Editor's Note: As our editorial pointed out, the information came from a public relations firm in Tustin, California. It mentioned the executive appointments and gave brief biographical sketches. "Sour grapes" were neither expressed by this newspaper nor implied; we simply asked why there appeared to be no Canadians available of filling the top positions in a firm having "Ontario" as part of its designation. As for any conclusions reached, they were just that, conclusions, which letter "fabrications" is inappropriate.

Youthful Enthusiasm in Program

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

On May 17 in the Belleville Memorial Arena we were privileged to listen to a recital of music presented by a massed band and choir involving some 600 students from the elementary and secondary schools of Hastings County under the direction of the famous conductor, Mr. Martin Boundy.

The effort of planning, preparing and executing such a performance is tremendous. That was well done or the program, the selection in music would not have moved, along with such precision.

I was most surprised to learn that Hastings county has no co-ordinator of music. This is the person who is in charge of promoting and arranging such events including, as many boards have such a person.

It would be a tragic blow to the efforts of Mr. Murray Irwin and to congratulate him, and to the youth and music of our country, on the splendid performance.

When the audience gave a standing ovation at the close of the program it was an indication that we too, Believe in Music, and we deeply appreciate the work being done in the schools.

It was a real disappointment that our director of education could not have appeared a few minutes to attend at least part of the program or to have publicly sent his regrets. We are left to wonder if he Believes in Music.

I would like a column in your newspaper on Saturday evening we learned of some of the events of the first subjects to be cut back in the school program next year.

I hope that the people and particularly the parents of Hastings county are aware of the high calibre of music which has been achieved in the schools in spite of the lack of a music coordinator. This is the result of dedicated teachers who are dedicated to their jobs.

Quebec Road Hazards

- Letter in The Montreal Gazette

It doesn't surprise me at all to read of Quebec's high incidence of accidents on roads leading to our disgraceful record. How cruel and heartbreaking on Mother's Day that many of them have lost a son or daughter or themselves become widows.

My husband and I were on the road Sunday evening between 8 and 9 o'clock. The traffic was very heavy and fast and we only saw two police cars. We would not support the sale of a restaurant and the other thing children may be hurt by them.

Roads are still in poor condition due to the winter damage and not yet repaired. In many areas the curves are badly designed, some sections are like roller coasters and one bounces from one hole to another and is forced out of the curb lane, a real hazard.

Lighting is still in need of intelligent planning. It is either too bright, dim or burned out or non - existent even when there should be some. When a lighting is too bright it often creates a blind spot, a serious hazard.

One is lucky to reach home safe. In addition there should be able to credit good roads with saving lives, but unhappily we cannot.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

May 28, 1953

The wheels of organization for the federal election expected some time in August began turning when the Belleville Liberal Association under the leadership of Herbert McCabe held a meeting at the Hastings Centre. The meeting was well attend,d; a great deal of work was accomplished and Frank S. Follwell, MP for South Hastings, gave a short address outlining the work to be done.

At the request of Great Britain's chief Rabbi J. Dayan, a special Coronation service will be held at the Pinnacle Street synagogue. A special prayer by the Rabbinical Council of Canada will also be said by Rabbi N. Kutzinar, in charge of the service.

30 YEARS AGO

May 28, 1943

An ambitious and far-reaching plan to support the educational and cultural interests of young Canadians under arms by bringing original paintings by Canadian artists into army camps and barracks, air stations and naval bases in Canada, Alaska and Newfoundland has been launched by the Canadian YMCA War Services under the direction of is associate secretary, William R. Cook.

Happy Abortion Rejected

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

A recent article carried by The Intelligencer was much appreciated. It mentioned the 4% drop in numbers of children born in Belleville. In addition it told of all to life, presented by Dr. Morris and her group to Prime Minister Trudeau and members of his cabinet.

Now I see there is to be a presentation by a newspaper of Toronto which is very complicated and controversial subject. People are being led to believe that the majority decide, that abortion is the simple answer to their difficulties. It was very apparent on a recent TV presentation showing an abortion. It was then that a child had a 29 percent chance of being born deformed or in some way badly handicapped. We chose the remaining 71 per cent and now have a lovely daughter normal in all capacities.

Again, thank you for being willing to be first in mind.

One of Eastern Ontario's biggest home-furnishing outlets, Robert Michaud firm is a family business. Robert Michaud who founded company 10 years ago, was later joined by son, Robert Jr., as vice-president.

Customer Service Grows with Store

That's been the nameplate on one of Eastern Ontario's busiest home furnishings outlets in the past 10 years.

Now a new decade begins for the family-owned Belleville business.

Expansion, its need long apparent, has been realized at its Coleman St. operations centre.

The name is the same, the location is unchanged.

But the store area has doubled to meet supply and satisfy demand.

Expansion may have altered the appearance of the Michaud enterprise. But its content and operational intent remain unchanged. There's still the wide range of quality home furnishings — from drapes to dining room suites and accessories, bed room suites to broadloom. And it's all backed by experienced customer service.

At first glance, the new-style Michaud store — with not a carpeted corner empty of the latest in home furnishings — might seem sufficiently stocked to comfortably confront any demand on variety or volume.

But what the customer does not see on the upper and lower floors of the centre is also significant.

In its adjoining warehouse Michaud's carries a selective stockpile of products as a backup to its showcase supply.

This ensures "immediate delivery" to the customer despite sometimes severe shortage in a bustling markety, says Robert Michaud.

Carpets — Always a big item at Michaud's. Now look for the Special Carpet Boutique if exclusive styling is sought. It's a unique complement to a full range of carpeting meeting a diversity of tastes in decor.

Accessories — To style, comfort, elegance in home furnishings, now add accessories. Along with complete furnishing any room in the house, Michaud's can provide matching accessories — vases, boiters, bric-a-brac.

Furniture — All the leading makers with complete suites in individual display areas. Upholstered furniture is a — out feature. Much emphasis on colonial styling with wealth of decorative accenting items for any room.

Display Areas on Two Levels

It's a setting to inspire any householder in the process of decision-making on home decor.

The display areas on two levels — brightly - lit and broadloomed — make that process pleasurably simple.

Furniture suites are arranged in self-contained settings giving a clearcut impression of the total effect produced at home. There's a total range of accessing accessories.

The broad choice of carpeting — feature of a bustling decor market — is arranged for easy inspection and selection.

Backing up the displays is the aid and advice of a staff with professional experience and training.

Here is a quick shopper's guide around the new store:

Ground level — Upholstered and general furniture, wall prints, custom-crafted draperies are among the major features. Then, impossible to avoid, is the display of quality carpeting. Floor racks have displayed vertical displays to ease customer selection. For the consumer seeking something different there's the Special Carpet Boutique, offering an exclusive range of broadloom.

Upper level — A plush, red-velvet stairway leads to a succession of individual room displays — dining room, bedroom suites, French, Italian, and Spanish styles are among the settings. A big feature is the assembly of versatile colonial furniture. Also now a big feature of bonn decor. They range from soup tureens to swag lamps.

Service on the Way

Wayne Flagler is among work team which Michaud company counts as important contribution to business success — consumer service. For delivery, service , followup and other customer - relations calls, Michaud's maintains a small fleet of vehicles.

Business Career Began in the 30s

An early start characterizes many a successful business career.

Robert Michaud started so early he had to invest in a hat.

"Put on a hat — so nobody can tell your age," the boss advised the teenage Bellevillian.

At 16, the young Robert Michaud was venturing into the business world, selling hardware.

Today the owner of one of Eastern Ontario's biggest furnishings and carpet retail houses looks back on his early beginnings in a business world sharply contrasted with modern times.

A buoyant economy today sees business booming. To keep pace with demand, big suppliers like the Michaud enterprise maintain warehouse stockpiles.

For Robert Michaud, business endeavors began back in the 1930s — at the height of the Great Depression.

He went travelling through Ontario as a hardware salesman. It was a time to test the mettle of any businessman.

It wasn't only a matter of trying to make sales, recalls Mr. Michaud. Frequently, there just wasn't the money to spend no matter how badly a customer wanted to buy.

"Even if people wanted something, they couldn't afford to purchase it," Mr. Michaud recollects.

Came World War II and he went into service. He joined the Royal Canadian Air Force in Toronto.

After wartime service he returned to his Belleville home town and went to work in a city furniture store, first as salesman then, in short order, manager.

The postwar boom was on and demand was intense — particulary in housing and furniture as servicemen were demobilized, using their gratuities to begin family life.

Mr. Michaud launched his first business enterprise in the period. He opened children's wear stores in Belleville and Trenton.

The Tots 'N' Teens outlets were later to be sold.

But, by the early 1960s, Mr. Michaud, with close to 20 years in furniture and carpet retailing, was ready to launch into his biggest undertaking. In 1963 he bought out the long-established Bill Deline Ltd., furniture business.

Operating in half of the Coleman St. premises, he founded a "fair-sized operation — but nothing like what it is today."

And, long before the first year ended, all signs pointed to success.

"Within six months we were firmly established and became a limited company," says Mr. Michaud.

Today, 10 years later, the volume of business is among the biggest in eastern Ontario. The original staff of four is now up to 15. The firm has eight vehicles for staffwork and deliveries. Business is drawn from a radius of more than 100 miles.

Sales volume increased each year and service — always stressed by the Michaud company — pays dividends. It now has second-generation customers.

"It's surprising," says Mr. Michaud, "how many youngsters of parents we've done business with come back to buy from us."

He counts customers from Toronto to Brockville, recently even Hamilton. But Hastings and Prince Edward counties are a solid base for business.

In fact, says Mr. Michaud, the Quinte district, with its diversified industry and farming communities, makes "one of the steadiest in Canada for the retailer".

When he first opened business on Coleman St. a friend warned him against locating off the main commercial thoroughfare. But fewer traffic problems and free store parking proved a boon.

But successful business can also pose problems. The Michaud enterprise is a family undertaking — Mrs. Michaud is secretary-treasurer, son Robert, Jr., is vice-president— and much stock is put in the personal touch. With the number of customers continually increasing it sometimes is difficult to practice such a style.

Nonetheless, "the big thing is we're a family business and over the years get to know many people in the area," says Mr. Michaud. "Most people who come in here we like to [illegible] know and can talk to them."

Second Generation On Michaud Team

Experience and youthful drive are the combination for unlocking business success.

Both are personified in the thriving business that is Robert Michaud Ltd.

Complementing the experience of his father, founder of the quality home furnishing outlet, is Robert Michaud Jr., who brought to the family business a fresh attitude seven years ago.

A graduate in economics of Queen's University, Robert first worked in the sales department of General Motors, Oshawa, before spending a year travelling in Europe.

Then, in 1968, he entered the family operation of which today he is vice-president.

Augmenting his general business training is a specialty, he took a Chicago college professional decorating course. Then, firmly settled in the operation, he pointed it in new directions.

As a result, the Michaud firm today is actively engaged in commercial and industrial carpeting operations. The company's services and supplies now also enhance offices and apartment buildings.

But business has been steadily increasing in all areas of the home furnishing trade, says Bob.

For the family-owned company it's marked by the current expansion of the store which his father opened 10 years ago.

In a broader sense, expansion can be seen in the number of housing starts across the country which has set records in the past two years, says the young vice-president.

So great is demand that the trade has difficulty in matching it with supplies.

In fact a major manufacturer can't promise delivery of an order for up to six months.

But Michaud's has evolved a solution to the problem — stockpiling in its big warehouse adjacent to the now-enlarged store.

"We stock a large volume of merchandise so we can ensure immediate delivery of any order," says Bob.

Training, experience and expertise are all essential in modern business — particularly in home-furnishings, he adds.

There are sound reasons.

For one thing, women are now more interested in their homes and what goes into them — more "style-conscious and very knowledgeable," says Bob.

"The consumers today know what they want."

Carpets Go Boom

Modern technology has created carpet boom with wide variety of colors, styles, textures matched by lower prices. John Wilson examines rolls of Michaud's broadloom stock — variety of which reflects industry's ability to satisfy phenomenal demand.

Carpet Department Grows with Store

With the boom mounting in the carpet market, the firm of Robert Michaud Ltd. decided another top flight staff member with the right credentials was needed.

That's where John Wilson came in.

Under vice-president Robert Michaud Jr., the family-owned business had moved its carpet sales in new directions. Along with household sales, there were were commercial and industrial contracts — broadlooming offices and apartment buildings.

"With the increasing volume of sales in the carpet business, it was obvious we needed another knowledgeable professional with a good background in the business," says Bob Michaud.

John Wilson fitted the description. His experience started right at the top. He was a representative of Burlington Carpets, the Toronto manufacturer which is one of Canada's leading producers of quality carpeting.

John had worked in Western Canada and Eastern Ontario. He accepted the Michaud post and came to Belleville a year ago — when plans were in the making for the store's expansion.

He has worked with the Michauds in shaping the new setting for the business, now one of the busiest retail outlets of its kind in the Eastern Ontario region.

Technology Lowers Prices

A quick trip to Robert Michaud Ltd. will prove it.

For price, there's no such thing as a flying carpet.

Everything else is soaring — quality, choice, production, demand.

But prices are lower.

Science and technical efficiency are basic reasons.

New technology — which has seen the industry explode with color and texture choices — has also made stable prices possible by reducing production costs.

The savings have put quality carpeting within financial reach of a majority of Canadians.

Now consumers can pay less for a carpet with more decoration than most products available 10 years ago — when Robert Michaud Ltd. first opened for business.

Not only has carpeting been an industry — it is one of the best buys in the home-furnishing industry, says Robert Michaud.

Recent statistics show Canadians are spending more of their income on carpeting than other products.

New style ranges are an eye-catcher. But the big attraction is the quality-value ratio. Approximately 90 per cent of all carpeting in Canadian stores is produced by Canadian industry. This year, better-quality carpets are outselling lower grades.

Today's value - conscious consumer is drawn to modern carpeting by a number of attractive qualities — convenience, comfort, luxury, esthetic appeal.

Carpeting has taken root in the Canadian home and has outgrown its living - room - only era. Carpeted floors are time and energy savers in kitchens, bathrooms, even patios and porches.

In fact, wall - to - wall carpeting is seen almost a necessity by the modern housewife. It cuts down cleaning time and effort — freeing her for more time with her family.

Ann Landers

'Brotherly Love' - What Is It?

Dear Ann Landers: The attached clipping is the saddest commentary on brotherly love that I have read in all my life. What in the hell is happening to us, anyway?

The clipping, as you can see, reports on the suicide of a 25-year-old man whose car broke down near Green River, Wyoming. The note which was found under his windshield wiper read, "I have been waiting for 11 long hours for someone to stop. I can't stand the cold any longer. They just keep passing me by."

But for the grace of God it could have happened to me last week. I was driving from Boston to Portland, Maine. My car stopped dead in the middle of Portland. It was ten o'clock at night and starting to blizzard. I had on a light coat because I had expected to be in a warm car all the way. A woman alone on the highway is an easy target for robbery, rape, murder —anything. My husband had warned me about this for years, but I had made the trip several times and was never afraid.

After the third car had passed me by I began to panic. My fingers and toes were getting numb. I told myself if I got out of this dilemma alive I would never again be so foolish.

I was never much for prayer, but I began to pray harder than I've ever prayed before. God must have heard me because the next car stopped and took me into Portland where I arranged to have my car towed in.

That incident taught me plenty. I will never again pass up a motorist in distress, no matter what the hour. Please, Ann, make a special plea to your readers to put themselves in the other fellow's shoes, especially in bad weather. If we can't stop and give a helping hand to someone in distress, what is life all about, anyway?

—I Am My Brother's Keeper

Dear Brother: A lot of people passed that fellow by the road before the good samaritan came along, so there is nothing new about your experience. Unfortunately, the increase in drug abuse has fostered violence and crime and many people have become reluctant to "get involved." This next letter is from Peoria. It came in the same batch as yours and helps give a balanced, more realistic picture of the world as it is, which is to say both good and bad.

Dear Ann Landers: Last night my girl friend and I were driving home from the bowling alley and we came on a girl from another team whose car was stuck in a ditch. It was cold and windy and we tried to help get her out but it was hopeless. Several people drove by and just looked. Finally a man stopped. He tried to push her out but she was in the mud and mud 100 deep. In a few minutes another came by and offered to help. He said we needed to be pulled out and offered to go home and get a chain. He returned in a few minutes and the two men pulled her out.

This proved to me that there are still some kind and considerate people in the world who aren't afraid to "get involved," and I say thank God for them.

—Feels Renewed

Dear Faith: You've helped renew the faith of others—and that's worth a great deal. Thank you for writing.

Successful Living

His Wife Hates Parties—Things Start Flying After

Dear Doris: I get really upset if husbands pay too much attention to other ladies.

Because:

(1) His wife is the one he is living with.

(2) She loves to be loved and cuddled.

(3) It is unfair that alien when husbands are at home they are tired, but when they can hold hands with other women, they are full of pep.

(4) When other men look at a man's wife, he resents it or says the other fellow is "sick" or "over 40".

(5) He acts as if men can do anything; it is only wives who are jealous.

(6) Most fights are over other women.

I start hating parties because of all the little things that go on and you just sit there and take it, till the party is over. Then things start flying.

Life could be beautiful, men. Look at nice "things" but don't touch! I like good looking men too, but that's it! — J.P.W.

Dear J.P.W.: Thank you for putting in your quarter's worth. Maybe what you say will help a husband or two to see his lady's point of view. Just be sure you are being fair, too.

Dear Doris: Would you have any helpful hints for a middle-aged woman (me, and 53 years)? I had polio as a baby and I have a problem with balance and weak knees. — Polio Victim.

Dear Victim: If you walk at all, there are muscles in your legs and knees. And it is surprising how muscles can be strengthened, in such cases.

As for balance, would you consider carrying and using a stout cane? This could make short walks, then longer ones, possible; and walking is exercise. Maybe two stout canes, at first, would help you keep steady.

Don't do a thing without your doctor's approval. He knows how much you can take, and may even prescribe knee-bends and stretches just one or two at first - if he finds you are willing to try.

Confidential to Wondering: You are asking about large pores. These often go with acne-type skin which is subject, very often, to blackheads and pimples. We have leaflets on: "Acne - What To Do About It," "Complexion Care After Fifty," and a list of recommended medicated cosmetics which help to shrink enlarged pores and keep down the flow of excess oil.

If you would like any of these write in again in care of this newspaper, enclosing 25 cents for each leaflet you want and a large, eight-seat-stamped, self-addressed envelope.

MR. AND MRS. HENRY FORD

Ford – Fergusson

Helen Gail Fergusson and Henry Wayne Ford exchanged wedding vows May 19 in an afternoon ceremony at Christ Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. William Sutherby and Bruce Fergusson, of Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford, of Rossmore.

Rev. Canon Wright performed the service.

Given in marriage by William Sutherby, the bride wore a floor length gown and train with mother-of-pearl trim.

Matron of honor Debbie Fitzgerald wore a pink flowered floor-length chiffon gown. She carried a basket of mauve roses and yellow carnations with lillies of the valley.

Debbie Fergusson, the bride's sister, and Debbie Ford, sister of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids. They wore yellow gowns and carried baskets of flowers.

Groomsman Jerry Campbell was assisted by the bride's brother Stephen Fergusson and Neil Ford, brother of the bridegroom.

They will reside in Belleville.

Catholic Women's Convention Held Here

"Caring is Sharing" was the theme when 150 Catholic women met here Saturday and Sunday for the 51st annual convention of the Kingston Archdiocesan Council of the Catholic Women's League.

Hosted by the Marmora CWL council, the convention includes more than 51 Catholic Women's Leagues in an area roughly bounded by Marmora, Morrisburg, Trenton, and Lanark.

At the convention, Mrs. Carmel Foster, of Glenburnie, was elected president of the league. Other officers are: Mrs. Isabel Delaney, Gananoque, first vice - president; Mrs. Peggy Glover, Brockville, second vice - president; Mrs. Shiela Martin, Wolfe Island, third vice - president; Mrs. Dorothy Meehan, Marmora, recording secretary; Mrs. Michael Mahone, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Norma Deonyan, Merrickville, treasurer. Past president is Lillian O'Connor, chairman of Prince Edward - Hastings Separate School Board.

The women resolved to petition the Department of Education to allow less permissiveness in choice of subjects for high school students and urged that Canadian history, geography and literature be required subjects.

Other resolutions include a decision to support returnable beverage containers and to notify the government of this resolution; they will also petition government to disallow parcels for "drug pushers".

Premarital courses for young adults were urged and the group re-affirmed its strong anti-abortion stand.

Two new annual projects were reported by leagues: the observation of April 28, feast day of the group's patron, to help senior citizens and the recognition of the first Sunday in May as Catholic Women's League Day.

Saturday's session was highlighted by a multi - media presentation by the Religious Education department of Hastings - Prince Edward RCSS.

"The Social Implications of the Gospel of St. John" were discussed by Sister Joan Whallingham, religious education consultant. William Geary, family life consultant and Basil Arbour, director of religious education.

Slides, contemporary music, film and group participation were all part of the presentation.

Guest speaker at the convention was Basil Arbour, who addressed the group on Christian Self-Awareness.

He told the group that for Christians, no man is a stranger and that they must be thoughtful, kind and selfless in their treatment of others.

Another program at the convention was the presentation of a film by Michael Flynn, of the education department of the Canadian Catholic Organization for Development and Peace.

In an address on the group's work in the "third world", he urged league members to talk to government representatives and become involved in the situation.

He said the women should talk to government "in very hard terms" since "we don't want the gap to widen" between developed and underdeveloped nations.

Masses at the convention were performed by Father R. C. Vickers, of Godfrey, Catholic Women's League director and Father T. G. Scanlan, of Marmora.

Color party at the convention's opening session was by the Marmora Girl Guides who also sang at Saturday's Mass.

The convention committee included general convener Mrs. Dorothy Meehan, Co-convener and treasurer Mrs. Jean Hanley, Secretary, Mrs. Margaret Monk, Registration, Mrs. Leona Brady, Arrangements, Mrs. Helen Brady and head table and decorating Mrs. Beverly Maloney.

Leisure Clothes Displayed At 4-H Achievement Day

Groups represented were Bethel - Zion, Carmel, Canniffon, Lonsdale, Marysville and Melrose I and II.

After a welcome, by home economist Kate Ann Wahl, the girls evaluated their garments and took part in a quiz to test their knowledge of fabrics and sewing.

In an afternoon session, the girls presented demonstrations and skits. Presentations were Colleen Lott, Bethel Zion Variety in Leisurewear: "Selecting materials and patterns" by Carmel 4-Hers Fabrics and Finishes exhibit, Marlene Treverton, Canniffon and a skit, Sleep and Lounge-in Comfort by Debra Baddley, Elaine Badgley, Betty Sutton, Margaret Sutton, Maryanne Doran and Mirian Coffey. Melrose I.

County honors were awarded to Barbara Cole, of Carmel and Corliss Sero, Melrose II.

Provincial honors went to Donna Sullivan, Bethel Zion, and Cheryl Reid, Carmel.

Other presentations included a skit by Marysville girls Carol Callaghan, Laurie Murphy, Barbara Callaghan, Stella Whalen and Mary Agnes Walsh. Trim with Imagination was exhibited by Agnes Farrell, of Lonsdale. Melrose II presented Styles of Leisure, a skit with Corliss Sero, Tina Lucas, Claudia Lucas, Joan Clegg, Nancy Clarke and Bonnie Swart.

Quinte Cuisine

Lu Sonne's raspberry biscuits are a little "finicky", she says, but worth the effort. A relative newcomer to Belleville — she's formerly of Greenfield Park, Quebec — Mrs. Sonne is an avid bowler with an 185 average. She and husband Robert share an interest in opera. With sons Richard, 15, and John, 11, they live on Lambert Drive with Mickey, a Persian tabby.

Raspberry Biscuits

1 lb. flour
½ lb. butter or margarine
1 cup white sugar

Work together as for shortbread Roll out thinly on cookie sheet and cut with a glass.

Bake at 375 deg. for 10 min. When cool, put 2 biscuits together with raspberry jam and ice with a mixture of 1 cup icing sugar, 1 tsp. lemon juice, 1 tbsp. boiling water. Makes 18 rich filled cookies.

Gauvin Says Fights Harder In Some Areas

SAIGON (AP) — The head of Canada's truce observers says fighting has intensified in some areas of Vietnam since the ceasefire was proclaimed four months ago.

Truce violations have been committed in both sides, Ambassador Michel Gauvin said in an interview.

Commenting on reports that Canada might withdraw from the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS), Gauvin said the peacekeeping organization could carry on without the Canadians.

But it might be difficult to find a replacement acceptable to both sides.

The other commission members are Hungary, Indonesia and Poland. Their work often is deadlocked by a split along East-West lines, with Indonesia siding with Canada.

Q: Do you think the peacekeeping machinery as provided for in the Paris agreement has had any chance of success?

A: I believe that like all agreements this was a compromise and as a result cannot be an ideal agreement. Nevertheless, the agreement is still a workable one if those who signed it did so in good faith with the intention of living up to it. It is not so much the letter as the spirit that's important.

There are a number of points in the agreement that are rather too elastic because they leave the issues unmentioned. For example, the presence of North Vietnamese troops in South Vietnam.

Another thing is that the agreement never defined the lines of demarcation between the opposing forces. Thirdly, the ceasefire came into effect without a proper Joint Military Commission in operation.

Q: Is the agreement standing up pretty well, and, in fact, improving?

A: I'm not sure that it is improving. I believe that as a result of the continued fighting there is a clearer demarcation between the opposing forces than there was Jan. 28. But that is not an improvement.

Q: But the level of fighting is decreasing?

A: In certain areas, yes. But in others it has increased. In the Mekong Delta area, for example, the terrorist attacks have increased, assassinations and that sort of warfare. What you have is a civil war here, with all the dramatic and unfortunate facets of civil war.

Q: Do you believe the ceasefire will stand up and eventually there will be peace in Vietnam?

A: I believe all this depends on the determination and good faith of those who signed the agreement.

Q: Has the ICCS fulfilled any useful function in Vietnam?

A: Yes, certainly. It has fulfilled numerous functions in its capacity as an observer, such as the exchange of prisoners and the withdrawal of American troops and troops allied to the Republic of South Vietnam. In its capacity as a control body, to a certain degree, but that not so effectively.

As an investigator of violations of the agreement, two delegations in particular, Canada and Indonesia, have been able to meet their mandatory obligations and to investigate at the request of the parties, regardless of who they were.

Q: Have the other two members, Hungary and Poland, obstructed this work?

A: At times who have had differences of opinion, some on matters of principle and some trivial. We are faced with a situation where you have two Communist countries which have political affinities with parties to the agreement and we have to accept the fact. But that does not mean you have to compromise on matters of principle. You can accommodate yourself to such a situation, but you must not go so far that you give in on issues that are fundamental.

Q: And you have not done that?

A: No, never.

Q: Have the Hungarians and Poles shown goodwill on this commission?

A: I'm sure they are satisfied from their own point of view that they have.

Q: What, then, are the reasons for some obvious failures in the agreement? Fighting is still going on.

A: It is not only a question of the parties not wanting to live up to the agreement. There is also the fact that they have been fighting for many years and you cannot brush aside suspicions just like that. It takes ahold. Also, the tactics which one side has been using to achieve its goals are not giving much confidence to the other side.

Q: Would you say all the violations have been by one side?

A: No. I would say the violations have been on both sides. But the degree of violations has not necessarily been equal.

Q: What are the factors which might persuade Canada to withdraw from the ICCS?

A: I think the record of the commission up to now and the implementation of the agreement—or rather the lack of implementation—are considerable ammunition for those in favor of withdrawal.

Two Shot

PARIS (AP) — Two criminals were gunned down in Paris streets Sunday in what appeared to be gang warfare. Killers shot three criminals to death in a Paris cafe May 16. Three men fired pistols repeatedly at a convicted heroin smuggler as he sat in his car Sunday. Another man killed by two shots as he stepped from his car to enter a cafe Sunday had a record of many robberies.

Red Lands Accept Probe Call

SAIGON (AP) — Hungary and Poland accepted Monday Canadian moves to discuss alleged North Vietnamese troop infiltrations into South Vietnam, averting a threatened Canadian walkout from the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS).

The ICCS has been virtually paralyzed for five days by the dispute.

Hungary and Poland originally objected to an agenda which included items referring to the interrogation of North Vietnamese prisoners.

They said they took no part in the interrogation and therefore reports by the Canadians and Indonesians could not be discussed.

They argued the ICCS could function only on the principle of unanimity.

Ambassador Michel Gauvin, head of the Canadian delegation, directed a walkout Friday and the Hungarians and Poles were attempting to veto Canadian investigations.

A walkout was averted Friday when Poland and Hungary asked for more time to get fresh instructions from their home governments.

When ICCS delegation chiefs reconvened today the Hungarians and Poles announced an about-face, agreeing to include the interrogation reports on the meeting agenda.

According to ICCS sources, two fo the four North Vietnamese prisoners admitted under questioning they came to South Vietnam after the Jan. 28 ceasefire—in breach of the Paris peace agreement.

Since it began operating shortly after the signing of the peace agreement, Jan. 27, the ICCS has consistently split along east-west lines, with Canada and Indonesia on one side and Poland and Hungary on the opposite side. Thus it has accomplished very little.

Sculptor Dies

CAPRI, Italy (AP) — Jacques Lipchitz, 81, Latvian-born sculptor whose works won praise on both sides of the Atlantic, died Saturday. Police reported Lipchitz suffered a heart attack while on vacation with his wife on this Tyrrhenian island. The sculptor won the gold medal for sculpture of the American Academy and the National Institute of Arts and Letters.

To Honor 38

OTTAWA (CP) — The Royal Society of Canada, an academy that recognizes high distinction in the humanities, social sciences and sciences, will induct 38 new fellows into its ranks June 8 at a ceremony at Queen's University, Kingston. Membership in the 91-year-old body is for life.

Nixon's Call for Secrecy Challenged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leaders of the Democratic party said of the Senate armed services committee are challenging President Nixon's contention that Watergate investigations threaten to expose sensitive United States national secrets.

And the Bipartisan Fair Campaign Practices Committee says the campaign tactics of Nixon's re-election group have set a 20-year low in dirty politics.

In San Jose, Costa Rica, meanwhile, an associate of financier Robert Vesco said he and Vesco would like to talk with special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox about "a missing link" in the case.

The associate, Canadian businessman Norman LeBlanc, would not elaborate on the link. But he told reporters Sunday that he and Vesco would like to meet Cox to tell their story.

Cox was not available for comment.

Vesco, former attorney-general John Mitchell and former commerce secretary Maurice Stans have been indicted in connection with an unreported $200,000 contribution to the 1972 Nixon campaign.

Chairman Robert Strauss of the Democratic national committee said Sunday that Nixon is attempting to justify a partial Watergate cover-up on the pretext of national security. But he predicted the public won't buy it.

"There's a big difference, and I think the public will understand the difference, between national security and Nixon security," Strauss said in a television interview.

Senator Stuart Symington (Dem. Mo.), acting chairman of the armed services committee, said most of what the panel has uncovered so far has nothing to do with national security. The committee is investigation activities of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) and other links between government security agents and the Watergate wiretapping.

"It seems to me that it's very important that we don't consider the effort to bug the office of the chairman of the Democratic national committee as an effort to promote or defend national security," Symington said.

Symington spoke on CBS's Face the Nation; Strauss on NBC's Meet the Press.

Also on Sunday, the Fair Campaign Practices Committee, a small, nonpartisan group that investigates complaints of dirty electioneering, issued a five - page report entitled Dirty Politics — 1972.

The committee said other investigations have tied the Nixon campaign not only to wiretaping and burglary, but to theft, vilification, violations of campaign finance laws, spying and a cover-up of apparent crimes.

"In nearly 20 years of studying the political process, the Fair Campaign Practices Committee has uncovered no campaign tactics comparable in extent or in potential damage to a free, self-governing society," the report said.

Heath Given Name Of Third Culprit

LONDON (Reuter) — British Prime Minister Edward Heath faced the possibility today that two more government ministers may be involved in a sex scandal that has already brought the resignation of two members of his administration.

Political sources said Heath had been given the name of a third minister alleged to have been involved with call girl Norma Levy, the woman at the centre of the storm that has shaken the Conservative government.

Last week Lord Lambton, a junior defence minister for the air force, and Lord Jellicoe, the government leader in the House of Lords and a senior member of Mr. Heath's cabinet, stepped down after admitting association with prostitutes.

Both were understood to have associated with Mrs. Levy.

In a statement on the affair in the House of Commons Thursday, the prime minister said he was satisfied "on the information available" that there were no grounds for suspecting that any other minister was involved.

But Mrs. Levy, now reported at a Moroccan hotel with her husband Colin, was quoted by a newspaper here Sunday as stating that a third cabinet minister was among her clients and that a fourth could have been.

The newspaper, the Sunday People, passed on the information from the Irish-born Mrs. Levy to British police, who later reported to Home Secretary Robert Carr. Carr had a meeting with Heath Sunday night.

Official sources were discounting the new allegations Sunday and the prime minister was understood to be going ahead with his plans to take a two-day holiday in Germany until Wednesday.

Newspapers here continued to spotlight the affair and The Times also made the reports of the involvement of a third minister its main story.

Meanwhile, Lord Lambton, who some years ago renounced his peerage to keep his seat in the House of Commons but insisted on retaining the courtesy title of lord, took the first step towards resignation from the House of Commons, officially informing his constituents he could no longer represent them in Parliament.

CP News Roundup

Hospital Strike Favored

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — The Canadian Division of the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE) voted during the weekend in favor of a strike by the union's 20,000 hospital workers across the province.

"It could be in a month or two," Shirley Carr, president of the 73,000-member division, told the annual meeting. However, she added that individual hospital locals would have to favor the strike.

Under the Labor Disputes Arbitration Act passed in 1963, it is illegal for Ontario hospital workers to go on strike. The strike motion approved Saturday called for repeal of the act.

The 430 delegates at the two-day meeting also approved a resolution calling for an amendment to the minimum wage law and the concept of a "reduced hours" work week.

Working 10 hours a day for four days "may appear inviting to some workers" but they should strive instead for shorter hours in the total work week, the resolution said.

The meeting went on record as condemning the Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) for "disregarding the jurisdiction" of CUPE and encouraging the Alberta Civil Service Association to affiliate with the congress.

CUPE national president Stan Little told delegates that the 1963 the CLC gave CUPE the right to organize all provincial government employees.

"The CLC seemingly wants to ignore this," he said.

The CLC, of which CUPE IS a member, is considering allowing the 20,000 member Alberta association direct affiliation with the congress.

The association would then be in a position to discuss bargaining rights with the Alberta government without having to join CUPE, which would lose about $2 million in union dues or about $165 yearly for each of the 20,000 workers if they were allowed to join the CLC directly.

Back Strike

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Union members from many parts of Ontario mobilized Saturday to demonstrate support for workers of Dare Foods Ltd. here, who have been on strike for a year on Tuesday.

About 3,500 representing all major unions gathered to hear speeches pledging solidarity with the Dare employees and urging them to continue their fight for equal pay for women and men.

The equal pay question has been the key issue in the walkout of 375 workers of both sexes, members of the United Brewery Workers.

River Blocked

FORT ST. JOHN, B.C. (CP) — The Peace River stopped flowing for about 12 hours about 20 miles upstream from here early Sunday when a gigantic earth slide, caused by heavy rains, blocked the river and created a temporary lake behind it.

But the water, backed up for 20 miles and an extra 10 to 40 feet in height, began making new channels through the slide Sunday afternoon. By nightfall, it was estimated that 50 per cent of the water was getting through, easing fears of ranchers.

Pays Fine

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — After holding out for four months in a dispute over a parking ticket, Charles Hall of Youngstown finally paid his $10 parking fine—with heavy, heavy piece of cardboard.

Hall, who contended he was not parked illegally when ticketed, pasted 1,000 pennies on a large piece of cardboard and presented it to the municipal court clerks.

There were no objections.

Said one clerk: "After dealing with Hall over a period of time, we didn't resist. We just accepted the payment."

Resignations Bring $84,000 Settlement

MONTREAL (CP) — Voluntary resignation will bring a maximum of $84,000 to the more patient of the 494 longshoremen here who accepted a Maritime Employers' Association (MEA) offer.

Arnold Masters, president of the MEA, said in an interview Sunday:

"Over 10 years, it's $26,000 to $28,000. Over 20, it's $84,000.

The offer, accepted Friday, will cost the MEA $6 million and will reduce the stevedore work force on the Montreal docks by close to 25 per cent.

The MEA has said the men are no longer needed on the docks because of technological changes in cargo handling and the slow rate of growth.

Mr. Masters said the main difference between this offer and one which drew a weak response this spring is a greater degree of consultation with the men.

"The last offer was for a flat payment of $12,000," he said. It was withdrawn due to the poor response.

"This time we worked together with the union and came up with six different options."

The options, he said, are all variations on a deferred payment scheme. While a resigning longshoreman can take $12,000 in a lump sum, he can also take it in instalments.

In all cases, the men also receive full retirement benefits.

Playful Stanfield Delights Cartoonists

OTTAWA (CP) — The way Robert Stanfield tells it, two editorial cartoonists in Nova Scotia helped give him the impetus to enter federal politics.

"They revealed to me that I had the kind of personality that they could really do a job on," the Progressive Conservative leader told the association of American Editorial Cartoonists Saturday.

"After being in Ottawa for five years, I must say you've never properly expressed your gratitude for all the raw material I've provided you."

Mr. Stanfield's dry humor had the cartoonists howling with laughter at their closing dinner.

He scolded the Canadians in the group for "still doing cartoons of me with one drooping eyelid."

He said he had the other eyelid lowered "for those cartoonists with a passion for symmetry."

On the other hand, Mr. Stanfield said he was pleased to see that cartoons of him featuring underwear and bananas have been "gradually subsiding" in number. The first is a reference to his family's underwear firm, the second to a television shot of him during a 1967 Conservative leadership race munching a banana.

"I was getting concerned about underwear being cheapened through overexposure," he jonned. As it was, cartoonists knew little about the subject.

"I have to tell you . . . that when it comes to underwear, your slips are really showing."

Mr. Stanfield told the cartoonists they seemed to be hung up on his eyebrows and said he appeared to be portrayed mainly as a "modest, self-effacing, sort of laughable threat to the future of Canada."

That was not true. The only modest person in the Commons was Prime Minister Trudeau who, instead of using his old line of "like it or lump it" when opposition MPs are unhappy with legislation, now tells the New Democrats to "like it or we'll dump it".

Commons Faces Busy Session

OTTAWA (CP) — In what is shaping up as one of its busiest weeks this session, the Commons will likely consider controversial corporate tax cuts, the fate of Canada's peace-monitoring force in Vietnam and the knotty issue of bilingualism.

Finance Minister John Turner said Friday he hoped to introduce his long-awaited tax bills this week, a move some observers have predicted could start a process that would end the Liberal government.

Others, however, have said that the measures to slice the corporate tax rate for processing and manufacturing companies to 40 from 49 per cent and speed up depreciation write-offs for industrial machinery will stand or fall like any other piece of legislation.

Since the Feb. 19 budget has been generally approved by the Commons already, some experts, including Government House Leader Allan MacEachen, have said that the corporate tax bills do not represent an issue of confidence in the government.

White House Job Is Like Funeral

WASHINGTON (AP) — "It's like driving to a funeral," a young White House aide said as he spoke of his job and his work in the wake of the Watergate bugging scandal.

A stack of unread reports was on his mahogany desk.

"You can't have heavies like Haldeman and Ehrlichman wiped out and expect it to operate business as usual" he said.

High-level operations at the White House are "pretty damn confused," added the aide who declined to be quoted by name.

Top administration aides H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman resigned April 30 as the Watergate scandal spread over the White House. More than any other assistants, they were the men President Nixon relied on to keep the government moving.

White House press spokesmen go out of their way to declare it's business as usual but by most accounts, the Watergate scandal hit hard at the White House and its efects are rippling through the federal government.

The scandal is cited as perhaps the over-riding reason why about 63 top federal jobs are vacant and almost a dozen departments and agencies have temporary leadership.

Other claimed effects of the scandal: routine job appointments are held up; legislation is stalled at the executive end; morale in government is sagging.

Outside the government, there's another effect: major campaign contributions to the Republican party have dropped noticeably.

Why are so many top-level jobs unfilled?

"The White House is having no trouble recruiting people," answers Gerald Warren, deputy press secretary. "We're getting more offers of assistance than we can handle."

He had just announced vacancies in 9.2 per cent of 520 executive-level jobs and 14.5 per cent of 200 sub-cabinet positions.

The vacancy situation aside, another White House official conceded that routine matters don't always make their way to the president's Oval Office.

"When we're busy like this on any subject, whether it's Watergate or Vietnam, occasionally there's a day when routine matters don't get brought to the President," he said, "Of course, important ones do."

Any major effect of the scandal on Nixon is denied. "He looks a little older in repose," his daughter, Julie Eisenhower said last week. "We might expect that. He's past 60. But there has been no dramatic change."

A survey of the federal government showed some long-range planning and policy decisions requiring White House approval have been delayed.

"There's simply no impetus from the White House in matters of legislation or anything else," said a high labor department official. "There's just not much going on."

At the lowest department an official said routine job appointments have virtually ground to a halt "pending political developments."

At the Environmental Protection Agency, where three of the top seven jobs are vacant, an official said the scandal's effects seem "to have stopped the whole White House operation. They don't even return my calls. The whole apparatus is gone."

At the commerce department, four top jobs remain unfilled, including the one once held by Watergate witness Jhe Stuart Magruder who was director of policy development. Officials said long-range policies and new programs are not being" developed.

At the Securities and Exchange Commission, G. Bradford Cook, resigned as chairman last week in a controversy linked to Nixon's 1972 campaign financing. Major SEC projects will be affected as a result, agency sources said.

"The most notable project that will be delayed is the SEC plan to reorganize the nation's securities markets into a single, nation-wide central market system," a source said. "Cook had been devoting considerable time to this project, and with his departure, it will take some time for a new person to pick up the ball."

Grandma Shot

ROME (AP) — "Granma, watch out, I'm going to shoot you," Marco Ciri, 7, said Sunday. Then he did.

The grandmother, Ernesta Rocchi, 60, is in hospital in serious condition with a bullet in the back.

Police said the child found the loaded pistol while going through drawers at his grandmother's house.

New Ship's Officers To Face Hostile Crew

GENOA, Italy (Reuter) — Thirty Greek navy officers and sailors flown in from Athens face a possibly hostile crew today when they take over the Greek destroyer Velos following an anti-government mutiny led by its captain.

Although 240 of the crew remained on board when Capt. Nicholas Pappas disembarked with his fellow mutineers Saturday, the captain said they had pronounced themselves against the situation in Greece "as one man."

The new crew flew in from Athens Sunday night and joined three senior Greek NATO officers and three plainclothes men believed to be secret service officers, who arrived Saturday.

The mutineers left the ship at the fishing port of Flumicino near Rome when their request for political asylum was granted after a day of delicate negotiations with Italian authorities.

The ship arrived here yesterday, and it moored alongside four other NATO vessels.

The mutiny on the Velos followed an abortive coup discovered in Greece Wednesday which was to have involved the seizure of three warships in an attempt to force the government's resignation.

In a news conference Sunday all the Rome contel where the mutineers are staying until their future as political refugees is decided, Capt. Pappas said he chose exile because he did not want to provoke a civil war or bloodshed by more "dynamic action" using the firepower of his warship.

The captain added that the mutineers belonged to no political party and had mutinied because "we are faithful to our oath of loyalty of the Greek constitution."

Capt. Pappas said he ordered as many of the crew as possible to stay on board ship, despite their sympathy with the revolt, because it would have been too great a problem for Italy if they had all gone ashore.

Asked what would happen to the mutineers' families, he replied: "I don't know, but I believe that a weighed all consequences before taking our decision."

Fullback at Work

Cobourg Tony's fullback Hans Esser (left) was a thorn in the side of Trenton Quinte Transport attackers all through Sunday's Bay of Quinte Soccer Association match at Trenton's Centennial Park. Here, he fights for ball with speedy Trenton forward Jim MacDonald. Later in the game, MacDonald beat Esser and went in to score Quinte's second goal in a 4-2 loss.

Tony's Gets 3rd Win

TRENTON — Tony Vendittl, coahc of the Cobourg Tony's club in the Bay of Quinte Soccer Association was pleased some concern over the fact that he was mitssing a few regulars for the league game with Quinte Transport Sunday at Centennial Park here. And before the match was over, it appeared his concern was justified.

Cobourg posted 11s third straight win in an unbeaten string turning back the young Trenton squad 4-2. But the visitors had their work cut out for them as Quinte used speed to carry the play to their more experienced opponents.

Cobourg moved from the opening kickoff to score in the first 10 seconds with centre forward Dominic Sica hitting the mark. Another goal a little more than one minute later made it 2-0. Don Vincent was the Tony's first scorer.

On both those early scoring plays, Trenton was guilty of poor clearing. And the fact Quinte's regular goalkeeper was missing didn't help either.

Gord Killy took over in goal after the second Cobourg score and the team started to play organized. Killy, while not a goalkeeper by tr a d e, turned in a creditable performance.

Tony's upped its lead to 3-0 late in the first half when John VanBalen clicked on the penalty spot. Killy was beaten when the ball was rcrned off the goal post and into the net.

Jim Cousins put Trenton on the scoresheet b e f o r e halftime. He too got a chance on a penalty shot and he made no mistake, picking the corner and beating Cobourg's Steve Miller cleanly.

In the second half, Sica got his second goal to make it a 4-1 score and Jim MacDonald closed out the scoring in the game, beating Miller from close in after speeding past fullback Hans Esser.

Walkers Raise Funds For Senior Hockey

Three of the 10 participants in the Belleville Screaming Eagles senior h o c k e y club walkathon held on the weekend trudged every step of the way from Belleville Memorial Arena to Kingston Community Centre.

Club publicity director Dave Lucas who estimated the distances at 50 miles, was one of those who made it all the way. The others were Bob Poppot, trainer with the Belleville Quintes last season, and Rick Gale, a hockey enthusiast who is very interested in keeping senior hockey alive in the city.

The trek took a little more than 13 hours. Starting time was 6:45 p.m. Saturday. Arrival at Kingston was 8 a.m. Sunday. Several times along the way, the walkers were accompanied by Ontario Provincial Police cruisers. The O'Keefe community services vehicle was with them all the way.

On hand to greet the Belleville walkers at Kingston was Alderman Vic Whiteman. Each of the participants received a Kingston Tercentenary pin.

Bill Lucas logged 45 miles and club vice-president Dick Rose checked in with 43 miles. Ken Dalpee and Dan Bennett covered 41 m i l e s each, one more than Brian Brown, son of 1972-73 Quintes coach Wayne Brown.

Karl Bagnell, goaltender with the Quintes last season, had to drop out of the walkathon at the last minute. Ill ness in the family forced him out of the list of walkers.

Karl turned his pledges over to Dave Lucas in the hope that those who had sponsored him would fulfil their obligations and pay for the miles recorded by Lucas.

How much money the walkathon raised is uncertain at the moment, but organizers feel the total will be between $2,000 and $2,500.

The general consensus of opinion among the footsore walkers is that it was a long, hard outing but well worth the effort.

Belleville Bobcats

Defenceman Finds Juniors Tougher

DAVE TAYLOR
. . . gets the call

By AL ZABAS
Staff Sportswriter

(Eighteenth of Series)

Dave Taylor didn't expect to be called up by the Bobcats once the Western Tire Juveniles had been knocked out of the playoffs, so he registered some surprise when he was.

"I didn't think that they needed an extra player," said the 19-year-old defenceman, "I thought they had enough players."

But once he did see action in the playoffs, he noted there was definitely a difference in style between the two leagues.

"It's a faster style of hockey," said Taylor, "you had to put more work into it. You either had to skate harder or get hit behind.

"Playing junior, there just wasn't any thinking about going into the corners, you either do it or he's going to get away from you. Playing juvenile hockey, I felt fairly sure that I could catch the guy if he got away, but in junior, you make a mistake and the guy's gone."

Speaking of the playoffs in which he spent most of his time paired up with Joey Edwards, the defencemany said that he found the Toronto Young Nationals the toughest team to play against.

"The team wasn't all that big," said Taylor, "but they wouldn't quit. They just would not give up — they kept coming at you.

"You had to do more hitting against them to survive. Other than the guys who were wrestling in somewhere and scoring goals, I didn't make too many mistakes. A few times, instead of watching the puck, I should have been hitting them."

Though-Taylor will be working this summer, and staying away from competitive sports, he said that he would be trying out for the Bobcats next year. "Though I don't know if I'll make the team. I don't know what's coming up and then there are still the guys that are staying from this year."

Finland Tour Is On

Trenton Is Selected To Represent Canada

By DOUG WALSH

TRENTON — Unofficially, the 'word has been out for months that it was almost a sure bet a Trenton hockey team would be visiting Finland for a series of games late this year. It is no longer a possibility. It is a fact.

Vern McCubbin, secretary-manager of the Ontario Minor H o c k e y Association (OMHA), announced Friday that the final go-ahead has been received from the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association (CAHA).

The Quinte Canada will be the Trenton Birt's Handy Stand Juveniles, the team that earlier this year captured the OMHA AA championships. The team was selected by the OMHA, subject to approval of the CAHA and now, all systems are go.

Team manager Gary Birt says Charlie Drake will be back as coach of the club next season and ahead of the 1972 — 73 championship squad will be returning. He gets moving up to juvenile ranks will have extra incentive to make the big club and join the Handy Stand team on the overseas tour.

Birt terms the invitation to represent Canada "a real accomplishment for a team this size."

The team plus other members of the group who will be making the trip are scheduled to leave Finland December 27, returning January 14. Further announcements concerning the tour are expected to be made when the Handy Stand team is honored at a banquet scheduled for June 29 when Bert McCallum will be the guest speaker.

Mr. McCallum is the "Slave for Finland shortly in order to set up an itinerary for the December - January visit of the Canadians. He will be reported on this at the banquet.

At the June 29 banquet, it is expected the Town of Trenton will take the opportunity to honor the Juvenile AA championship team. It is hoped Mayor Duncan McDonald will be in attendance.

According to Birt, the cost of the trip to Finland will be in the neighborhood of $2,000. He is confident that target will be reached. The Trenton Chamber of Commerce is spearheading the drive for funds.

The players themselves will also be pitching in to help out. Several projects including a skate-a-thon are planned. Of course, all donations will be gratefully accepted and should be sent to the Trenton Juvenile Hockey Club, in care of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce.

Back On His Feet

Trenton Birt's Handy-Stand coach Charlie Drake wasn't allowed much time for celebrating when his team won the OMHA Juvenile AA championship back on April 15. A week after seeing his club win the title, Charlie was in hospital for major surgery. He's rounding into shape again and looking forward to the team's trip to Finland for a series of exhibition games.

Johnston Makes Impressive Debut

NORWOOD (Special) — A Quinte Athletic Club of Belleville middleweight put on an impressive show here Saturday on the way to a unanimous decision in a three-round bout. Errol Johnston made his first ring start a good one, taking the nod over Dan Kitel from Canadian Forces Base, Camp Borden.

"I trained hard and it paid off," remarked Johnston after the bout.

"It really felt good to be in there."

Johnston's trainer, Terry Bennett who is president of the Quinte Athletic Club, was proud of his boxer's showing.

"He's in top shape and it showed," enthused Bennett.

Two QAC welterweights who were to appear on the Peterborough Midtown Boxing Club card were disappointed. Joe Harvey and Joe Carrell never got to put on the gloves.

"Carroll's scheduled opponent Doug Douglas of Bancroft broke his finger while training," informed Bennett.

"Two Oakville boys who were to meet Carroll and Harvey failed to show."

But Johnston's showing made the trip to Norwood worthwhile.

QAC boxers are slated to make their next starts June 15 in another Midtown Club card.

Besides his obvious satisfaction with the effort turned in by Johnston, Bennett is also pleased over some other good news he received recently.

"Mark Storms, the former Belleville golden gloves champion has said he'll be out to give me a hand instructing the boys and I'm certainly glad to have him," said Bennett.

Bayview, Gems Lose

O'Brien's and Wannamaker-Baily Sheiks came up with wins in recent Prince Edward North Shore Softball League games. O'Brien's defeated Bayview Dynamics 12-5 and the Stables' crew walloped the Gems 19-3.

Bruce Sutherland got the win for O'Brien's, coming up with a neat four-hitter while striking out nine and walking four. Dynamics' Dan Dafoe took the loss, allowing 13 hits, fanning two and walking none.

Garry Thornton and Sutherland each supplied three base hits for the winners and Mike Reddick hit for a pair. Tops for Bayview were Dale Desrosiers' and Mike Spracklett with two safeties apiece.

Pitchers Dave Workhoven and Earl Colton combined talents for the winning Wannamaker - Baily effort. T Berkley, B. Boyle and A. Generaux shared the pitching for the Gems.

The winners got three hits apiece from Jack Crocker, Pete Moran and Ron Sedore. Ron Bateman and R. Emery were tops for the losers with two each.

Girls Need Coaches

With league openers just round the corner, the Belleville Girls' Minor Softball Association finds itself on the lookout for five coaches.

An association spokesman said late last week that three coaches are needed in the junior division (ages 8, 9, and 10) and one each in the senior (14, 13 and 16) and intermediate (11, 12 and 13).

Plane's Trips Reserve

Bernie Coughlin delivered Reserve their third loss of the South Hastings Baseball League season Sunday as he went the distance allowing eight hits while striking out seven and walking three batters.

Cannifton's Plane's Concrete defeated the Reserve entry 10-3 with Coughlin taking the loss over the nine innings despite striking out 10 batters.

Cannifton's Ken Abrams hit two, one a homer, to earn batting honors along with Doug Eggleton, Kevin Allen and Roger Ruckstuhl with two singles apiece. Eggleton, coming over from Melrose, batted in three runners.

Reserve's Bud O'Connor earned a double and two singles.

Saturday's two games were rained out.

President's Trophy Won by Art Deline

STIRLING — Jack Hanna and Carl Hagerman, co-conveners of the fifth annual Stephens - Adamson trophy golf tournament held at the Bala Hills Golf Club here Saturday saw the event from two viewpoints.

On the one hand, the tournament drew the largest ever entry list. But on the other, the weather was the worst the company golfers have encountered during tourney play.

Thirty-six employees slogged around the Hills course, many dodging for cover when the rain made playing conditions uncomfortable. But all 36 finally managed to get in their 18 holes. Also taking part were representatives of two of the Belleville firm's suppliers, Herb Richards of Goodyear Tire and Rubber, Toronto and Ray Pedley, W. S. Tyler Screens, Toronto.

When it was all over, Art Deline had carded the low NET score for the President's Trophy. The presentation was made by company president Don Levins.

Jack Hanna presented the low gross trophy and a pair of golf shoes donated by Goodyear Tire and Rubber to Ed Martin. And the trophy for the most improved player went to Masato Sato who accepted the award from engineering department representative Dave Dibbon. Masato had played the game only once before.

Harry Brien took the most honest golfer award while prizes for hidden scores went to Bill Grant and Dave Dibben.

Six Belleville Players Are Named to Team

Though the under - 21 - year - old Belleville Selects as a team lost their soccer game against Peterborough Selects 2-1, six of the members were chosen to form part of the team that will take on the three beautiful chances he had," said Iasenza.

The Belleville - Peterborough versus Kingston - Ottawa game, 14 players plus two officials will be selected to represent the Ontario Soccer Association's area four (Eastern Ontario) at the Ontario Summer Games in Oshawa at the end of June.

Belleville Selects coach Joe Iasenza how-ver believes that one other player could have been selected from his team had he booted a penalty shot when he had the opportunity.

"In my opinion, Terry Hore would have been selected for the two-city team if he had scored on at least one of the

"The Belleville coach also singled out Chris Johnson as having had a similar opportunity to even the representation on the team between the two cities.

However, once the control of the first 15 minutes of the first half had ended for Belleville, the Peterborough forwards set the pace for the remainder of the game Sunday.

The Belleville players who were selected for the twin city team were from the back six.

Goaltender Garv Donovan will be providing his services between the posts while Harry Lamers and Joe Siderfin will take up positions as fullbacks.

The other three players selected by the committee under the OSA's Eastern Ontario representative Harold Pollard were middlemen with the underage duo, John Thompson, Peter Hillier and Ernie Brown got the nod for the fifth reccer pitch again with the Peterborough forwards.

President's Trophy Presented

Saturday's rain didn't dampen the enthusiasm of Stephens-Adamson employees as they slaged their fifth annual trophy golf tournament at the Oak Hills Golf Club. Art Deline (left) receives the President's Low Net Trophy from company president Lou Lewis. Art Masato carded the low gross and Masato Sato was presented with the most improved golfer award.

Hank Aaron Chasing Musial and the Babe

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hank Aaron has been chasing Babe Ruth for a decade, people forget that he's also chasing Stan Musial.

While Ruth's home run mark of 714 is prominent in most people's minds, Aaron is also serving in the Stan Musial record of 1,177 extra-base hits.

The Atlanta slugger drilled a ground on both with a home run Sunday in the Braves' 5-4 loss to St. Louis Cardinals. The blast gave him 686 career homers and 1,178 extra-base hits, tying him with Ruth for second place.

"I got a kick out of watching him," said Atlanta manager Eddie Mathews. "He didn't do anything but walk off the bench cold and hit a home run."

Because of bad weather, Aaron had not taken batting practice. He had also missed two games because of a bad back.

In other National League games Sunday, Houston Astros defeated Pittsburgh Pirates 4-2, Chicago Cubs blanked Cincinnati Reds 2-0, Philadelphia Dodgers turned back New York Mets 2-1, San Francisco Giants checked Montreal Expos 6-3 and Philadelphia Phillies beat San Diego Padres in a double-header, 4-3 and 6-4.

Saturday, the Cubs blanked the Reds 2-0, the Giants whipped the Expos 10-3, the Pirates downed the Astros 7-2, the Phillies blanked the Padres 4-0, the Cardinals defeated the Braves 2-0 and the Dodgers outslugged the Mets 9-5.

Houston plays at Pittsburgh in a rare morning game today. In today's other games, Chicago plays at Cincinnati, New York at San Francisco in the afternoon, Atlanta at St. Louis, Philadelphia at Los Angeles and Montreal at San Diego at night.

While Aaron continued his extra-base assault, he also had a key single in the Atlanta offence. He base hit drove in a run that tied the game 3-3 in the fourth and then he scored the go-ahead run on Mike Lum's double.

The Cardinals, however, won the game with a two-run rally in the fifth inning climaxed by Lou Brock's run-scoring single.

Lee May backed the five-hit pitching of Dave Roberts with a home run, double, single and three RBIs, leading Houston over Pittsburgh.

May opened with a bases-empty homer and Inser Steve Ontiveros added a two-run blast in the second inning. The Astro slugger drove in a run with a third-inning double and another with a single in the fifth.

Fergnuon Jenkins of Chatham, Ont., pitched a three-hitter and Don Kessinger knocked in three runs, leading Chicago over Cincinnati in a game played in the rain. Jenkins pitched perfect baseball through four innings, until a 30-minute rain delay. Johnny Bench then broke Jenkins' no-hit bid with a single leading off the fifth after the teams resumed play.

Ron Bryant scattered eight hits and drove in three runs with a single, pacing San Francisco over Montreal. Bryant blanked the Expos on two hits through the first five innings before yielding a run in the sixth. Clyde Mashore drove in the Expos' final two runs with a pinch homer in the ninth.

Joe Ferguson hit his 11th home run and second in as many days, and Don Sutton scattered seven hits and drove in a run with a sacrifice fly, leading Los Angeles over New York. Ferguson's homer gave him the National League lead in RBIs with 37, one more than Bench.

Philadelphia converted three San Diego errors into three runs in the first inning and went on to beat San Diego in the opener of their double-header.

Terry Unser drove in four runs—three with a double in a five-run fourth inning, powering Philadelphia to victory in the second game.

The Padres had a small profit last season but Smith said he has been drained by interest payments. So the $100,000 loan be secured to purchase the franchise. He had expected to pay off the loan from baseball profits. Annual interest on the $10 million is about $700,000, the owner said.

The club was purchased in 1969 by Smith and his two partners—Carol Smith Shannon, his daughter, and Barvasi.

Smith and his daughter own 68 per cent of the franchise and Barvasi the other 32 per cent.

Paid attendance for 26 home dates in San Diego Stadium this year is 249,284, compared with 263,342 in the same period last year.

Sale of the club will not become final until the Washington people fulfill Smith's terms of $12 million and until the shift is approved by the National League.

Further, there is the complication of the 20-year lease on San Diego Stadium. It was learned that Smith has talked to mayor Pete Wilson about the possibility of being excused from the stadium obligations.

The Padres are in the fifth season of the 20-year agreement with the city.

The mayor's executive assistant, Bob White, declined to comment on Wilson's discussion with Smith.

Umpire's Decision Right One for Texas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Manager Whitey Herzog of Texas Rangers hasn't been having much luck choosing his relief pitchers lately, so it stood to reason that umpire John Rice couldn't do any worse.

As things turned out, Rice made the right move—for the Rangers—when he wig-wagged to the bullpen in the seventh inning Sunday. The result was 2 1-3 innings of one-hit relief by Bill Gogolewski that preserved Sonny Siebert's 2-0 victory over New York Yankees and enabled the Rangers to break an eight-game losing streak.

In the only other American League action on a generally rainy Sunday, Kansas City and Boston split a doubleheader, the Royals romping 13-3 in the opener and the Red Sox rebounding in the nightcap 7-2.

The Oakland-Detroit, Minnesota-Chicago, Baltimore-Minnesota and California-Milwaukee games were rained out.

In Saturday's games, Detroit trounced Oakland 9-5, Cleveland 8-5, New York Yankees trounced the Rangers 10-5, Milwaukee Brewers blanked California Angels 4-0, and Baltimore Orioles stopped Minnesota Twins 7-2.

The contest forced suspension of the Cleveland Indian-Chicago White Sox game and rain prevented a game at Kansas City between the Royals and the Red Sox.

California plays at Milwaukee, Baltimore is at Minnesota, Detroit visits New York in today's afternoon contest, Tonight, Oakland visits Detroit, Cleveland is at Chicago and Boston at Kansas City.

Trailing 2-1, the Yankees scored on singles by Matty Alou and Thurman Blomberg, a passed ball and Jim Ray Hart's long sacrifice fly. When Siebert walked Thurman Munson, Herzog headed for the mound, signalling for a new pitcher.

"Look," he said to Siebert, "you've thrown 100 pitches. How do you feel?"

"My elbow's tightening and I've got a blister on the ball," said that's all signals were off.

"Uh-uh," said Rice. "I made your move."

So Gogolewski it was, and he put down the Yankees' last threat by retiring pinch hitter Johnny Callison on a fly ball.

The Rangers broke through New York's Steve Kline with four runs in the fourth inning on five-run doubles by Jim Spencer and Dave Nelson. Bobby Murcer's fifth-inning homer, his 10th, accounted for the Yankees' first run.

Boston's John Curtis checked the Royals on seven hits in the nightcap and Carl Yastrzemski drove in three runs while the Red Sox scored three times in the third inning.

Jack Hangs On For Fourth Title

ATLANTA (AP) — Jack Nicklaus made the Atlanta Golf Classic his fourth title of the year Sunday and regained his customary spot as the money winning list.

But after rushing to a commanding lead in the final round, he had to hang on for the victory by two strokes after blowing seven shots over the last 11 holes.

"I was never in a position to really worry," Nicklaus insisted. "I just had to watch out and make certain I didn't make any dumb mistakes."

Nicklaus, who won the Tournament of Champions five weeks ago in his last previous start, virtually won this one on his first three rounds of 67, 66 and 66. In Sunday's final effort over the 6,883-yard Atlanta Country Club course, he could do no better than a one-over-par 73 for a 272 total, 16 under par.

Tom Weiskopf was the only one in the field able to keep close to Nicklaus during the first three rounds. And it was Weiskopf who put the pressure on over the finishing holes.

"I'm just glad I was able to make it close," Weiskopf said.

"I think I played as well as Jack did. I just made more mistakes."

Weiskopf finished with a 69 for 274, a score good enough to win any previous Atlanta Classic.

Al Geiberger was third with 72—279 and J. C. Snead finished with a 68—280. Hubert Green, with a final 71, and Bobby Sanders, 68, were next at 281.

Terrell's George Knudson came in at the tail and with rounds of 77 and 74 during the weekend for a 299 and finished out of the money.

South African Gary Player, making his first start of the year in this country, finished with a two-under-par 286 total. Lee Trevino, Arnold Palmer and Australian Bruce Crampton did not compete.

Crampton's absence cost him the leading money-winning spot. Nicklaus collected $30,000 from the total purse of $150,000 and took over the money lead with $178,064. Crampton is second with $167,551.

Nicklaus, winner of 46 tour titles in a career that started in 1962, began the day's play with a six-stroke margin. It went to eight when Weiskopf hit his second shot into the water and took a double bogey on the sixth hole.

And Nicklaus took advantage of a break to send it to nine shots with a birdie on the fifth hole. His second shot, over the trees, hit a spectator and bounded back on to the green. He made the 18-foot put.

But after that, Nicklaus had trouble.

Calls for Halt To High Salaries

TORONTO (CP) — A leading Canadian sports agent said Saturday that management in professional sport should take steps to halt spiraling salaries and to take a harder line in disciplining pro athletes.

Gerry Patterson of Montreal, executive director of the Canadian Football League Players' Association and agent for several individual athletes, made the statements in panel discussions at the Ontario Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association's annual seminar.

"We're dealing in a market where managements really have to make a decision on how much money they're going to pay and I'm not certain that the burden is on the athlete or the agent to decide that.

"My personal opinion is that salaries are going to have to level off and I think we're approaching that point now. ... I do think we all have to consider what is in the professional sports generally with this high level.

"Profit is not a four-letter word. We have to have clubs making money to have sport continue at a professional level. I think professional sport, running well, profitably, has an impact on amateur sport because the aim of many amateurs is to make it to the professional levels."

In response to questions about athletes who demand large fees to make appearances at Charitable functions, Patterson said: "I'm having difficulty now with young athletes in convincing them they should go out to public functions and when they go they should do so at a nominal fee."

Asked about some professional athletes who tend to ignore the orders of their coaches and thus detract from the sport, Patterson said he favors a move to "get some kind of responsibility back into the athlete."

"I think it's the responsibility of management and coaches to take a harder line and I think the best example of that is what happened to Montreal Canadiens this year.

"I think there was a very good, regulatory line taken there and look what it did for them—they won the Stanley Cup."

Patterson handles the business affairs for such prominent athletes as Gordie Howe and Jean Beliveau, now both retired from hockey, and now is embroiled in the affairs of Howe's sons, Mark and Marty.

The Howe boys have been drafted by Houston Aeros of the World Hockey Association although Marty, 19, and Mark, 17, would not be eligible for the NHL draft until they are 21, according to the agreement between the NHL and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. The WHA has no agreement with the CAHA.

Defends Olympic Financing

TORONTO (CP) — An official of the Montreal Olympic organizing committee defended financing of the 1976 Games Sunday by pointing out the other benefits the Games will generate.

Louis Chantigny, vice-president of communications for the organizing committee, presented his stand in a panel discussion at the Ontario Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association's annual seminar.

"This is the greatest showpiece any country could have," Chantigny said in noting that the Games have a reputation for generating tourist industry revenue.

He was supported by Jack Daly, head of the organizing committee for the 1967 Pan-American Games in Winnipeg.

"Our tourist industry in Manitoba in 1968 showed a million," said Daly.

"In 1967 it went to $111 million because of the Games and it has never gone below that and keeps getting higher."

But Daly warned: Chantigny that his committee must be prepared to produce figures to show opposition groups that the tourist and other revenue generated by the Games actually can be of some benefit to poor people who argue that money could better be spent on housing and public services than on sports facilities.

Chantigny said the Canadian public was not being compelled to spend anything they didn't want to towards meeting the estimated $310-million Games costs.

The bulk of the revenue is to come from the sale of special stamps and coins and a national lottery.

"If you look at our self-financing means for the 1976 Olympics, we are not taking money away from other priorities," said Chantigny.

"We are asking the Canadian people and the whole world to finance these Games on a voluntary basis.

"Now, in the national lottery, there will be a $1-million prize, but you are not obliged to buy a ticket. The same with the coins.

"In fact, you are not spending money when you buy these coins because you are actually buying the equivalent value—a value that will increase every year."

Chantigny had a special rebuttal for critics who argued that the money could better be spent on such things as sewage systems:

"Do you think the ABC television network would spend $50 million for the privilege of covering the inauguration of a sewage system? Could you sell coins or stamps commemorating the inauguration of a sewage system?"

Norman Cafik, parliamentary secretary to federal Health Minister Marc Lalonde, told the seminar that an omnibus bill authorizing the stamp and coin issues and the lottery would be introduced in the House of Commons within the next two weeks.

Batted by Breeze

Striking a blow for the Irish movement, Libby Terry, 21, a senior at the University of Arkansas took over the duties as the official batboy for the Razorbacks baseball team. Arkansas was facing Trinity University of San Antonio recently when treacly struck. An untimely breeze swept her headgear away and roussed her coiffure. Luckily, the team had to take the field, leaving Libby time to repair the damage. (AP Photo)

Rough Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It rained in most parts of Ontario during the weekend but not enough as far as the Oshawa team of the Ontario Football League was concerned.

Two of six weekend games were cancelled because of the weather and another was shortened but Oshawa still managed to get dumped twice, both by 3-0 scores.

London collected all their hits—three—in one inning Saturday to shut out Oshawa and Niagara Falls turned a similar trick Sunday.

In other Sunday games, London edged Welland 2-1 in 11 innings, St. Catharines won their first game of the season—7-4 over Newmarket in a game shortened to 6½ innings because of rain.

Games between Burlington and Toronto Saturday and Woodstock and Kitchener Sunday were postponed because of wet grounds.

In London Saturday, left fielder Vaughan Carpenter's fifth-inning double drove in two runs to give London the win. Harry Bartley and Juri Lees had reached base on consecutive singles.

In Welland, Les Gregorasz led off the 11th inning with a single and scored after two passed balls and a throwing error.

Dave Cox picked up the win after relieving Ivan Herrington in the eighth. Ken Rhora, charged with the loss, went the distance, giving up four hits and striking out 13.

In St. Catharines, the winners got three runs with the help of three Newmarket errors in the sixth to break a 4-4 tie.

Bill Hall had a two-run homer for St. Catharines.

Action resumes Tuesday with Niagara at London, Woodstock at Oshawa and Toronto at Welland.

Time Running Out
Odds Against Foyt

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Foyt A. J. Foyt Jr., a battle scarred veteran of auto racing, time after time running out in his quest to become the first driver to win the Indianapolis 500-mile race four times.

The 38-year-old Texas was on his way to becoming a legend in 1967 when he started fourth and went on to win his third Indy race in seven-year span.

But even though he has attained wealth and success in racing, that fourth Indy crown has eluded him. And it is appearently getting tougher each year in the face of an onslaught of fresh, young drivers.

Foyt was set to start today's 57th Memorial Day race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway in 23rd position on the 33-car starting grid, his worst start in 16 years of Indy racing.

Foyt had proclaimed he was coming to Indianapolis in 1973 with a car capable of the fastest speeds the old Speedway ever had seen. But engine problems that would be ironcured until after qualifying day cost him a shot at the pole position.

To make matters worse, his since no winning driver has charged from farther back than 19th since Louis Meyer started 28th and went on to win the 1936 Indy. In Foyt's three Indy triumphs, he started no farther back than seventh.

And Foyt is not coming off a good year at the Speedway, either. He qualified in 17th position in 1972, had problems starting his car at the beginnine of the race and finally retired in the 60th lap of the 200-lap race with mechanical difficulties.

The leather-tough Foyt, whose features are marred by the evidence of numerous race course wrecks and several fires, made his reputation as a charger and time hasn't slowed him down much.

The only man to have won a fire national driving championships had his most serious mishap at Riverside Raceway in California in 1965. He flipped his stock car in a flaming crash and suffered multiple injuries.

Devine Urges Parents Not to Interfere

TORONTO (CP) — The new president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association says he wishes parents would put less emphasis on their children winning and more on having fun.

"I'm convinced that parents have taken a lot of fun out of the sport by too much emphasis on winning or scoring goals," said Jack Devine of Belleville, who was elected CAHA president last week.

His comments, which he said reflected his own opinions and not necessarily those of the CAHA, came in a speech Saturday at the Ontario Sportswriters and Sportscasters annual seminar.

"When's the last time you heard a father ask his young lad if he had fun playing hockey or baseball or whatever," said Devine.

"It's always 'Did you win? how many goals did you score?'"

Devine said he criticizes minor hockey organizations for the slogan used during minor hockey week.

"You know this, 'Don't send your boy to the rink, stay and see him play'."

"I say take your boy to the rink if it's necessary, if he can't catch a bus or walk, but then leave.

"Don't start to interfere with the kid because then you start to interfere with his fun."

Devine noted that the CAHA's technical advisory committee has taken a stand against organized competitive hockey below the age of 10.

"I don't know how far they're going to get with it, but they're against it."

Devine's wide-ranging address also touched on international competition, the World Hockey Association andpeople who go to court to force teams to allow their children to play.

"How many times have you heard or read of a boy refused to play for a team of his choice because that team already had the maximum number of imports or waivers or whatever you want to call it?"

He said that rules of all hockey leagues regarding recruiting of players are made to ensure even competition, but despite these rules, some people feel that in a democratic society, their children should be allowed to play with whatever team they want.

"Each team carries a certain number of boys, but when some court rules that a team which already has the maximum on its roster must allow another boy to play on that team, then it means another boy gets dropped from the roster. . . .

"I don't believe this is right. Your rights stop where mine begin."

Kitchener Editor Is OSSA President

Proctor House Grant Extended

BRIGHTON — The federal government has granted a one - month extension to its 1973 LIP grant of $36,000 for renovations to the former John Proctor mansion on the northern outskirts of the village.

Mrs. Jane Kaduck, wife of SOHO (Save Our Heritage Organization) chairman Ray Kaduk said Friday 14 full-time workers are employed on the site at this time.

Because of delays in leasing arrangements of the property from its owner, The Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority work was halted temporarily.

Mr. Kaduck thought at that time a portion of the grant, the second received under the Local Initiative Program in two years, would have to be returned because of the approaching May 31 deadline of the grant.

But work will continue until the end of June Mrs. Kaduck reports.

One of the problems facing the historical society is weak foundations in the Victorian mansion. Since work has resumed, basement walls have been reinforced with steel joists and beams.

But even the federal grant will not cover full interior renovation expenses and SOHO will soon be soliciting additional funds by way of a 2,000-letter mail drive.

One major item of importance in the estimated $5,000 cost of a new heating system.

Since recent newspaper articles locally and in a Toronto paper, visits to the manned by workers painstakingly restoring its interior to its original condition have increased and sparked province - wide interest in the project.

Showbiz Shorts

LONDON (Reuter) — Former Beatle Paul McCartney wanted to make a quick trip from London to Scotland Wednesday, so he spent nearly $2,500 chartering a jet airliner—about $2,675 more than the rail fare.

Before leaving Gatwick Airport with his wife and their three children in the 79-seat aircraft, the pop idol said: "It's the only way to travel . . . it's quick, no crowds."

NEW YORK (AP) — The Changing Room, by British writer David Storey, was chosen Wednesday by the New York Drama Critics Circle as the outstanding play of the 1972-73 theatrical season.

Picked as the best work by an American author was Lanford Wilson's Hot L Baltimore. The best musical citation went to A Little Night Music.

DETROIT (AP) — A topless dancer, modestly clothed for the occasion, pleaded Wednesday with Detroit's common council for the right to continue baring her breasts in public.

Roberta Chilson, 24, told the council that if a proposed ordinance banning topless dancing is passed, she will have to go on welfare and will be unable to support her mother and son.

"I do not believe my work is in any way obscene," said Miss Chilson, a Detroit dancer for the last eight years.

New Deterrent

TORONTO (CP) — Officials at Toronto international airport have come up with a new deterrent against the flocks of birds that create hazards for air traffic. Hans Fisher, superintendent of field and mobile services for the Ontario region, says the program consists of large bursts of cracker shells fired out of shotguns. The cracker shell, similar to a shotgun shell, does not explode until it is about 250 yards away and then it makes an incredibly loud noise.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Aries (March 21-April 19): Adopt an easy schedule today—there are extras to fill all gaps. Budgets and reserve funds need conservative revision.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Excitement is where you create it, so do this is not productive. Let friends do their own dreams in peace. You'll be glad tomorrow.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Goal changes take more than casual drift, are worth the effort. Some affairs require imagination.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): There's much to be gained by personal independence. Check out your household. Even improvement. Work conditions ease a bit.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Routine should characterize practically all your work program. Be pleased with even slow progress.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You have basically calm working conditions, and to return you must do it yourself, while sharing results.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You're off dead centre and mostly on your way. Test a new idea and revise it now if needed.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Select for quality, then for urgency; disencumber yourself of unneeded possessions. See life as a clear passage ahead.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Laziness and carelessness are your main temptations. It's easy to scramble things in an unthinking moment. Besides this, you may make private progress.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Check out any reasonable sounding offer. Perhaps acquaintances have ideas that balance with yours.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19): Home life thrives. Career-building creeps at slow pace. Associates try to talk you into an evasive solution.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Peace is a good goal—but in harmony with the environment. See that you are not the target of petty comments.

To Your Good Health

Hard to Say Why Knee Collapsed

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My 13-year-old daughter has had a problem with her knee. The first time it "gave way" when she was just standing. About a month later it gave out again and she was standing and she really wrenched it.

It became quite sore and swollen and we had an orthopedist examine her. He taped the knee but said the x-rays showed nothing wrong and the knee gradually got better.

What do you think could have happened? And what can we do to prevent a recurrence? It's been a month since the last time.—Mrs. R. G.

Not an easy question to answer but the knee tends to be what we call an "unstable joint." The knee has to move in quite a variety of ways and it just isn't a simple piece of biological engineering to be complicated.

Thus I can't venture an opinion as to exactly what happened in your daughter's case except to point out that adolescents have some disorder as injury to cartilage or internal ligaments of the knee which cause the joint to "give out" as unexpectedly as it seems to lock.

Twisting or running can put stress on such a joint. It can happen to boys who develop a "trick knee" in football, basketball or other such sports. But girls are not immune to some unusual strain that can produce the same sort of problem.

The taping of the knee evidently stabilized the situation—at least for the time being. To prevent a recurrence, the soundest means is to avoid violent activity—running or dancing included—but this is a formidable restriction to try to impose on an active 13-year-old.

If she'll try to avoid heavy strain of that type for a few months, whatever injury occurred in the knee may heal and strengthen sufficiently. The fact that it didn't show up in x-rays would seem to rule out damage to the bone structure.

Or if your daughter experiences some twinges, but without the knee giving out under her, an elastic knee support may be wise for a time, while further strengthening develops.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I, however, the same doctor should case her again since he is now familiar with the case. In my limited experience, it is often necessary or wise to attempt to secure the joint. Such surgery, however, leaves the knee perfectly functional. That is, it does not, as so many fear, mean that the knee will be stiff thereafter.

I suspect that that's just one of the stories that gets started for no better reason. Anyway, I have seen no verification.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Dealing with your column on venereal disease, I was wanting to prevent V.D., I've found a source which disagrees.

The Metropolitan Life publication, Facts You Should Know About V.D. Its Probably Don't, states on page three:

"The soap and water washes away some of the germs . . . and it helps to urinate . . . These steps are no guarantee but they will reduce the chances of infection."

Please straighten this up so the public will know.—R.D.

There's no conflict. Your quotation says "these steps are no guarantee," a sentiment in which I thoroughly concur.

If you remember, my reference was to a young lady who wanted to know if taking a bath four hours later would prevent V.D.

Well, it won't.

Contract Bridge

By B. Jay Becker

(Top Record-Holder in Masters' Individual Championship Play)

Famous Hand

This is a story about a two-card ending. The full hand — each player having started with his normal complement of 13 cards — was played in Miami during the 1972 World Bridge Olympiad in the match between New Zealand and Italy.

Avarelli, playing with Belladonna, was in four spades and had already lost two tricks in the side suits when he found himself confronted with the situation shown in the diagram and the lead in his own hand.

Obviously, if either opponent's last two cards were the K-J of trumps, the contract could not be made, so Avarelli elected at this considerable talent to trying to guess whether he should win the ten — in case the king was singleton — or whether to lead the queen — in case the jack was singleton.

Mathematically, one play was as good as the other, and Avarelli, searching the criffle-end, and his soul for inspiration, found nothing at all in either of those regions to guide him to the right decision. Finally, in desperation, he asked to see the previous trick and the New Zealand West player's misunderstanding Avarelli's poor English, inadvertently showed him his last two cards — including the singleton jack of spades.

Avarelli became greatly embarrassed, for he felt he ought not take advantage of this accidental accretion of knowledge. He now shuffled his Q-10 of spades, face down and came up with an ingenious solution to the problem when he asked West to choose one of them and play it for him.

West, a supersullious soul politely declined this offer and East, apparently not a member of the same church, likewise refused to draw a card. Belladonna, in mock horror also would not assume the responsibility, and it finally fell to the American official supervising the proceedings to draw the crucial card.

He duly called a card — the queen of spades — and as Avarelli made four spades as a result of guessing the right trump play to make in the situation shown.

Tomorrow: Good . . . management.

Belleville Cadets Win Drill Trophy

TRENTON — Belleville's Duke of Edinburgh 608 Squadron, Royal Canadian Air Cadets yesterday took top honors in a precision drill competition at CFB Trenton that makes them eligible to compete in the all - Ontario finals next month.

Commanding officer Captain A. L. Foley said this is the second year in a row 608 Squadron has won the Squadron Leader Cairns Trophy.

Each squad of cadets was given approximately 15 minutes to perform before a select panel of regular forces judges — Chief Warrant Officer E. M. Clark, Warrant Officer H. E. Tolbart and Sergeant J. P. Bell of CFB Trenton.

As coordinator, Major J. D. Donald told the gathered guests, 834 Squadron received the honor of parading first "by the flip of a coin."

Inspection followed close-order drill under the commands of a cadet squadron leader. The finale to each squad's performance was a precision drill without commands.

At the conclusion, Major Donald announced that the scores were extremely close, and then turned the field over to former Squadron Leader Norm Cairns, who presented his trophy to the 608 Squadron drill commander, Sergeant John Haggis.

"I'm very proud of the boys," Captain Foley said after the competition was over and the judges were explaining faults and good points to each cadet squadron.

A hesitation by one of the Belleville cadets near the end of their drill performance could have proved disastrous, one of the judges explained. But by maintaining their cool and completing the manoeuvre, the out-of-step move did not go heavily against them.

The condition of 608 Squadron's uniforms was also mentioned by the judges, who noted most of them were thread-bare. Captain Foley explained all had been cleaned before the competition but replacements have been almost impossible o obtain.

He said he hopes soon to receive new forces' green uniforms to replace the old RCAF blue used across Canada by cadets.

The Belleville squadron will now go to Trenton to compete in the all-Ontario Royal Canadian Air Cadet drill competition June 10.

Six-plex Planned

TRENTON — Wreckers have been demolishing buildings all along the Trent River shoreline of Ontario Street and a local realtor this morning announced a new apartment building will be constructed on one of these sites.

Hugh O'Neil of Fraser and O'Neil Limited said a new six-plex apartment building is being planned by Frank DiFazio, a local barber, who has purchased the former P and D Ice and Paving Limited on the corner of Baptiste and Ontario Streets.

Several old houses and the CPR freight sheds along Ontario Street have been under the wreckers bar in recent weeks.

Mr. O'Neil welcomes the tearing down of most of the buildings along the shoreline. "Most of them are eyesores and the area will really be attractive once it's fully developed," he predicted.

Cyclists Beat Weather

TRENTON—Saturday didn't prove to have the best weather conditions for a 65-mile bike ride, but 14 members of the Trenton Sing-Out Group decided to give it a go.

And despite minor accidents, a wrong turn here or there, eight of the 14 made the trip. One rider, Howard Forter, got off on the wrong road, did an extra five miles, and still made it back in town before the rest of those in the bike-athon.

An eager bunch of the young singers gathered at Trenton High School at 9 a.m. Saturday. Spirits were high, and a they said, their goal of $500 for new equipment, was well worth the effort.

But as they prepared to set off, rain began to fall and continued for most of the trip.

The first accident occurred before the riders got into Prince Edward County. George Panelas lost control of his 10 - speed on a rain-slick curve at the Wooler Road, crashed, and required medical attention before he could continue.

A watchful eye was kept on the travellers by a nurse and members of the 5-Wallers Club in radio-equipped cars. The route led the riders along the Redenville Road, south on Highway 14 to Bloomfield and then back to Trenton via Highway 33.

Not all of the bicycles were up to the gruelling cross-country ride. Part-way along the route the bearings on Joyce De Long's bike wore out, and the front wheel came off.

A pickup truck was used for emergencies such as this. Any rider who wanted to call it quits was picked up and transported back to the Sing-Out hut at CFB Trenton AMDU.

By 5.30 p.m. Saturday, it was all over with tired and thoroughly soaked Carolyn Moles and Cindy Weaver the last peddlers to finish.

Dried off and given a chance to rest up, the bike-athon participants and those who manned the 13 check-points got together for a bike-a-party at a member's home later that day.

Regional Plans Revised

Hastings Now Not to Change

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

There will be no change in the boundaries of Hastings county as the result of the provincial government's announcement Monday regarding its final intention on regional government set-ups east and west of Metro Toronto.

Treasurer John White in his announcement said there will be a new region to the east of Toronto would take in the county of Durham stopping at the boundary between Clarke and Hope township.

Port Hope, Cobourg and four adjoining townships will not be part of the region, as they would have been under the original plan.

The government's plans for regional government east of Toronto were first outlined in December and were followed by strong protests from municipalities in the Port Hope and Cobourg areas.

Under the initially proposed plan nine municipalities in Northumberland county — the five most easterly townships and the urban municipalities of Campbellford, Hastings, Brighton and Colborne — would have been joined to Hastings for the purposes of administration.

Additions of the eight municipalities would have increased membership in Hastings county council to nearly 60 from the present 47.

Today, Hastings clerk-administrator Carl E. Bateman, said he had received a call from Toronto Monday prior to Mr. White's announcement stating that final instructions reached would not result in any change in Hastings' boundaries.

The decision, Mr. Bateman said, was consistent with the wishes of Hastings county officials.

Mr. White said the regional municipality of Peel would follow closely the original plans for the area with three local municipalities in a two-tier system.

The regional municipality of Halton will take shape as originally proposed with the exception that Waterdown and East Flamborough will remain in the Wentworth region.

Here are the other proposals:

—A new municipality will be established consisting of Ajax, the village of Pickering and part of Pickering Township, assuming the new community and proposed airport will be under municipal jurisdiction from the outset.

—West Route will become part of the boundaries of the municipality of Uxbridge.

—The township of Thorah and Brock and the villages of Beaverton and Cannington will become a new municipality of Brock.

—Darlington will be included with Bowmanville, Clarke and Newcastle in the new municipality of Newcastle.

—The Township of Manvers will be added to Victoria County.

—The Township of Manvers Monaghan and Cavan and Millbrook will join Peterborough County.

—The townships of Rama and Mara will join Simcoe County.

The eastern boundaries of the new region will be just east of Newcastle, Ont., which is about 20 miles east of Oshawa.

Treasurer John White announced the new region to the east of Hastings would be become part of a restructured Northumberland county.

PoWs May Be Charged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon officials expect a former U.S. prisoner of war leader to file charges of aiding the enemy against a small group of soldiers and marines he commanded in a North Vietnamese prison. The charges, which could be laid today by air force Col. Theodore W. Guy against seven to 10 army men and marines, would be the first such action against any of the 566 returned PoWs.

Skylab to View Sun

HOUSTON (AP) — The Skylab astronauts point a battery of telescopes at the sun today and hope to give scientists their best look yet at how this sphere of gases controls our solar system. Ground controllers completed an automatic checkout of the 10,000 million array of six telescopes Monday, and Charles Conrad, Joseph Kerwin and Paul Weitz plan to put it on operation today, the fifth day of the scheduled 28 day orbital flight.

Exchange Maps

SAIGON (CP) — South Vietnamese and Viet Cong military negotiators agreed today to exchange maps showing the areas of control claimed by their two armies in the South, a South Vietnamese military spokesman announced. The spokesman described it as a most important agreement in the almost paralyzed military talks on implementing the ceasefire.

Province and Municipalities Agree

Ottawa Role in Housing Seen As Merely Supplying Money

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Ontario's first summit conference of government power blocs wrestled Monday with housing problems and their own levels of competence, but came to no agreement on any major issues.

Federal Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford offered new initiatives to lower land costs and promote neighborhood development in cities, but was told by the province and municipalities it would be better if Ottawa got out of cost-sharing programs in housing and just turned over the money to them.

John White, the province's intergovernmental affairs minister, offered a new legislative format to give municipalities and the public more say in planning. But he was told his proposals were a failure because the ultimate power for planning strategies remain with the province.

The two-day conference at Trent University, first for Ontario involving the three levels of government—federal, provincial and municipal—ends today with discussions on transportation and the environment by the 200 delegates.

Mr. White also proposed Monday that there be federal representation on the provincial-municipal liaison committee on planning policies, but got a lukewarm reception from Mr. Basford.

The 62-member municipal delegation, led by Whitby Mayor Desmond Newman, appeared united in opposition to what its spokesman said was lack of consultation at all government levels.

The exchange between Mr. White and the municipal leaders became so spirited that Mr. Basford expressed surprise at one point at the lack of "sweetness and light" he had believed existed between those two governments.

Mr. White's most severe critic on opening day was Chinguacousy Township Reeve Robert Williams, who said senior provincial advisers had after ways been disdainful of the participatory process.

The reeve of the Toronto-area township labelled Mr. White's background paper, stating Ontario's intention to unveil a new planning and development act next week, "a total failure" in providing for municipal rights.

Mr. Williams said the municipalities could not understand why the province last June withdrew support of the Ontario Regional Development Council and its 10 regional councils, which had been considered an essential part of the planning program.

Mr. Basford's proposals for stimulating housing envisaged the setting up of land banks and servicing of those lands with federal help. The effort was to cut down the high cost of land in larger centres such as Toronto, Hamilton and Ottawa.

Announcement Today

Ottawa Decides Trace Team Future

OTTAWA (CP) — When the Commons opened at 2 p.m. E.D.T. today, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp was to announce whether Canada would bring home its sometimes-criticized, often-harrassed Vietnam truce supervisory force.

Mr. Sharp told the House Monday that the long-awaited decision on the Canadian force in the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) has been made.

There was speculation that the troops, in Vietnam since the end of January, will be called home. One Canadian has been killed and there has been increasing concern over the safety of the other troops and questions about their effectiveness in what have been described as impossible conditions.

However, an external affairs spokesman said Monday the troop withdrawal is far from certain.

"There is immense pressure on us to remain there," he said.

Taken from Legislature

Hamilton Mayor Angered by Plan

TORONTO (CP) — Hamilton Mayor Victor Copps was escorted from the Ontario legislature's public gallery by two police officers Monday when he tried to speak against plans for regional government for Wentworth County.

John White, minister of intergovernmental affairs, earlier had told the legislature that the province plans a two-tier system of government for the region.

The city of Hamilton had supported a one-tier system of regional government.

Mayor Copps tried repeatedly to speak to the House, but was told several times to sit down by Speaker Allan Reuter.

When he refused, the speaker ordered the Sargeant-at-Arms to escort him from the chamber.

Two provincial police constables pried him loose and led him outside.

Mr. White said that the government chose the two-tier system because theirs is a large

Bernier Willing to Help Indians Sue Polluters

TORONTO (CP) — Leo Bernier, minister of natural resources, said Monday he is willing to support a request from Kenora-area Indians for Ontario government funds to prosecute polluters of the English-Wabigoon river systems in northwestern Ontario.

Commercial fishing has been stopped and residents have been warned not to eat the fish in the system because they are contaminated with mercury which might be dangerous and even fatal to humans.

Mr. Bernier said in an interview he thinks "the Indians are entitled to some sort of compensation from the polluters and if it can be proven through the courts that a polluter is responsible, then, damn it, he should pay."

U.S. Holiday Motorists Encounter Rationed Gas

NEW YORK (AP) — Like the unwelcome thump of a flat tire, the reality of the gasoline shortage has begun to bear on the minds of United States motorists.

Warnings went out early that drivers who took to the highways for the Memorial Day weekend might have to shop around for gasoline to get home.

Most of them made it because there are still huge quantities available. But the locked service stations and rationing encountered by many emphasized that the supply is not quite enough.

Transit officials seek bids for fuel and get no replies. State troopers in Florida have been ordered to cut back mileage. Taxi drivers in Des Moines, Iowa, have been told not to use their air conditioners.

"I could sell about twice what they're allocating to me," notes Norman Smith, a Texaco station operator in Littleton, Colo. "I guess I can give fill-ups to my regular customers, but I'll have to limit the rest to 10 gallons."

A handful of stations were limiting customers to five gallons during the weekend. Many stations have cut back hours or closed Sundays.

Ed Kiley, vice president of the American Trucking Association, says "Congress has to decide who is and is not going to get petroleum. And unless something is done quickly, we might not have enough fuel to continue essential trucking services."

Industry sources say the shortage is essentially the result of limited supplies of crude oil and limited refinery capacity.

An opposite view is voiced by California Assembly Speaker Bob Morretti, a Democrat. He notes that U.S. refineries operated "at less than 75-per-cent capacity last year" and listed record first-quarter profits this year.

Is it coincidence that the shortage occurred "during a period when the oil industry is pressing for the Alaska pipeline, relaxation of other environmental safeguards, resumption of offshore drilling . . . and preferential tax loopholes?" he asks.

160 Tornadoes Kill 48 Persons in U.S.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — About 160 tornadoes zipped to earth from storm systems across the Midwest and South during the United States Memorial Day weekend, claiming at least 48 lives. Seven others were missing.

Deaths were reported in 11 states from Oklahoma to Florida, and at least six other states reeled under heavy rains, high winds and flash floods.

The U.S. national weather service said more tornadoes were reported between Saturday and Monday than in any previous 72-hour period on record.

The weather caused five deaths in Oklahoma, three in Kansas, seven in Missouri, Illinois in Arkansas, 10 in Tennessee, one in Mississippi, seven in Alabama, two in Georgia, one in Florida, seven in North Carolina and two in Virginia. Six persons in North Carolina and one in Virginia were listed as missing and presumed drowned.

The storms began Saturday in eastern Oklahoma and continued into Monday night, when a tornado at Athens, Ga., took the life of one person and left more than 40 injured.

Watergate Jury Wants Nixon View

WASHINGTON (AP) — United States government prosecutors reportedly would like President Nixon to testify on how the Watergate cover-up could have been carried out without his knowledge, but are said to feel dubious about their constitutional right to subpoena the president.

The Washington Post, quoting justice department sources, said today that the president's role in the scandal is the only key question remaining to be clarified in the grand jury investigation.

The prosecutors are reported to have told their superiors that evidence obtained thus far justifies questioning the president about how his closest aides could have kept knowledge of a cover-up from him .

The president should be given an opportunity to explain himself," The Post quoted a source as saying.

Painting Girl

Bronwyne Harvey paints under the watchful eye of an officer aboard the HMCS Haida in Toronto recently. Wrens and cadets from HMCS York, Toronto's Naval Reserve establishment, tackled the job of painting the destroyer. The Haida was saved from the wreckers by a group of Toronto businessmen as a memorial to Canadian seamen who lost their lives at sea. The ship is moored at Ontario Place on the Toronto waterfront.

Loyalist Convocation Overflows Auditorium

To Eric Coates' Knightsbridge March, played by the Centennial Secondary School band, gowned graduates and faculty of Loyalist College filed into the auditorium of Centennial Secondary School Saturday for the Sixth Convocation in the history of the college.

In the happy decorum of an age-old ceremony, many of the eligible graduates of 1972-73 were presented the certificates and diplomas that will mean greater opportunity on a competitive job market.

Over the past academic year Loyalist College has turned out 197 graduates in Applied Arts and Business, 99 from the Technology Division, 198 from the Retraining Division and 13 from the Extension Division. A total of 152 business certificates and diplomas were granted in the year, four having been presented in August last year.

In June, another 24 certificates are to be presented retraining graduates of the Bancroft Campus. Management of farm business certificates had already been presented to 25 graduates in Belleville and 14 in Campbellford.

Special achievements were recognized in the presentation of 41 special awards, while 72 students were honored with inclusion in the Dean's List. To make it onto the list, a student has to have earned a 3.2 or higher grade average with no subject failures in a complete program.

Past members of the Board of Loyalist College D. E. Hodgins and Donald M. Sinclair were also recognized in Saturday's ceremonies with presentations for their contributions to the development of the College.

Dr. J. Gordon Parr, Deputy Minister of Colleges and Universities recalled his own graduation in delivering the convocation address.

"I don't think we were as sensitive to life as you," he told the new graduates. "Nature is lovely, but it is also cruel and hard.

"We forget how delicate our emergence as a species has been," he said. "There is no place on earth where you can live without food, fire, clothes and shelter."

He said the one advantage man had over the other species was the use of mind and hand, "they gave man the ability to reason and to do things. "Community Colleges typify this combination of abilities that gave us our survival," he said.

Dr. Parr added that it was impossible to produce the things we needed without producing some waste. Pollution should be controlled, he said, but not at the expense of failing production. "It's not a case of smog being here because of us or much of us being here because of smog," he said.

After a benediction by the Rev. S. G. Horne, CD, the chairman of the Board of Governors, John Donegan closed the 1973 Convocation. Students, their families, governors of the college and faculty then got together into the hall for a reception in the school's cafeteria.

It had been an overflow audience at the convocation. Television circuits had been hooked up to nearby rooms so families and friends could follow the ceremonies. Even several of these rooms reached capacity. Over-flow crowds at the reception that followed, several members of faculty were speculating on the site of next year's convocation when nearly 2,000 will be in many graduates are expected.

Conference Enthuses Mayor

By ROBERT WHITELAW
From The Toronto Bureau
Of The Intelligencer

PETERBOROUGH — Mayor Robin Jeffrey of Belleville says it's coming through loud and clear that the provincial and federal levels of government are working closely with municipal governments.

Mayor Jeffrey made the comment this morning in an interview with the Toronto Bureau of The Intelligencer at the final day of the tri-level conference at Trent University.

The conference, the first for Ontario, involves federal, provincial and municipal delegations.

Mayor Jeffrey called the conference a giant step for the three levels in order to discuss their problems. He said "It's a great feeling to listen to the debates and realize that grass roots level are in a position of decision making."

She told the Toronto Bureau the conference has offered her an opportunity to talk with other officials and to get new ideas.

"I can hardly wait to get back to talk to council about some of the new ideas," she said.

One idea which she learned about is called community improvement costs which are assessed for lot developments. The money is then used by the parks or add to existing libraries.

Desmond Newman, mayor of Whitby is co-chairman for the municipal delegation. Ontario treasurer John White heads the provincial group and federal urban affairs minister Ronald Basford heads the federal delegation. The conference concludes this afternoon with discussion on environmental management.

One Building For All Food

All food product exhibits will be displayed in one building this year at the Quinte Exhibition.

This was stated today by exhibition manager Everett Connell, who said transfer of the church group food catering services to the Ben Bleeker Auditorium would allow grouping of all food product displays in the one building.

"We will call it the food building," Mr. Connell suggested.

The new "food building" will be the No. 3 quonset structure which in recent years has housed the cheese and butter displays and meals at the fair.

Mr. Connell said all fruits and vegetables, domestic science displays and other agricultural products from the past have been shown in different buildings, will now be congregated in the same structure.

Grants Announced

The Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority will receive $8,200 for the acquisition of river lots following a joint announcement from minister of natural resources Leo Bernier and Quinte MPP Dr. Potter and Quinte MPP Dr. R. T. Potter.

The conservation authority, in an attempt to clean up and recover the Trent River frontage, is acquiring properties along the river as it flows through the town of Trenton.

Additional grants are being made to the Glen Miller Conservation Area of $1,000 and to the Sager Oak Hills Conservation area of $500.

These grants are for the maintenance of land already in the authority's possession.

Courts, Canteen Budget Victims

Budget chopping at city hall, which last week saw $19,000 trimmed from the Recreation Committee budget for expenditures, will rule for this year construction of one small hill tennis court and planned renovations for the canteen at the Belleville Memorial Arena.

The committee had planned construction of two double courts in the east hall district. But now any funds will be available only for one court.

Major canteen renovations planned for this year will be recommended to the 1974 committee for budget consideration.

Specifically the council budget meeting deleted $10,000 from the recreation program and added $1,000 to grants, namely the Quinte Kiwanis swimming program which gets $3,000 instead of $2,000.

The council budget also chopped $10,000 from the committee's recommended capital equipment and renovations and this meant that either the modern concession or new lights for the arena had to go by the boards.

The committee, at a special post-budget meeting, erupted into new arena lighting. Specifications will be tenders called for the lighting installation in time for the next ice season.

Lighting at the Memorial Arena is well below the recommended level with the reading in most ice areas being five foot candles with a maximum of 15 at centre ice.

Window Dive Bid Is Lost

While bystanders watched in the lobby, the man suddenly kicked the chief in the leg and broke the leather strap of his night-stick when he attempted to defend himself.

The two then began wrestling. But just when Chief Beattie thought he had his opponent in a headlock, the man broke free, only to plunge head-first through the stained glass window.

Chief Beattie quickly grabbed the man's legs and pulled him back into the station where he was hustled off to a cell. Damage was confined to two panes of the eight-foot-square window.

Donald Richard Pringle, 37, of 354 Thomas St., Deseronto, was fined $200 by Judge J. L. gulity in Provincial Court Monday on a charge of assaulting a police officer. The incident took place March 27.

Picton Taxpayers Dispute Police Pay Boost Demand

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — If the Picton police association succeeds in winning the 25 per cent salary increase it is now seeking over a one - year period, several ratepayers seem to feel police efficiency also should be boosted.

Picton police commissioner Jesse Mason announced last week that salary negotiations had gone to arbitration after the police association rejected an offer of a 15 per cent increase over a two-year period.

In an Intelligencer interview with several Picton businessmen it has been indicated that several merchants do not agree with the 31 per cent salary raise being sought by police.

"I haven't seen much of any police on the street until after they asked for a raise," said optometrist Earl Grubin, who claims unchecked vandalism forced him to remove his sidewalk awning.

Mr. Grubin said he is not aware of the proposed raise of 31 per cent and added when the policeman's educational qualifications and his salary are compared with those of a teacher or other professional person, the increase is not warranted.

"I think they ought to show they are worth it before they ask for it," he remarked.

"How are the ordinary people going to live with it."

He added referring to possible increases in taxes to cover wages.

Mrs. Ted Folds, who with her husband operates Ted's Mr. and Mrs. Shop, said she did not feel the town could afford to pay the salaries now sought by police.

"Maybe they deserve it but I don't think we can afford it," she remarked.

Mrs. Folds felt that more foot patrols were needed here, especially on Friday nights.

"I wouldn't want to knock them because perhaps every- one deserves a raise, but I don't see where they'll get it from," sh said.

Picton jeweller Duncan D'Esterre said he thought town police would be overpaid if arbitration should grant the requested raise of 31 per cent.

"If the town is willing to pay a 15 per cent increase, that should be the limit," he observed.

He commented on a lack of foot patrols and excessive vandalism.

"There should not be the loitering that there is and processions of cars honking their horns after weddings shouldn't be allowed," he said.

Picton landlady and tourist resort operator Miss Meriand Pearsall said she would not oppose a salary increase if it could be fitted in the town budget. The police service is required to provide service in accordance with the requested raise, however.

"They have to be better qualified for that money," she remarked.

Miss Pearsall complained of loiterers in the doorways of her rented business places and said these persons should be cleared from the street. She felt police should be on foot patrol oftener and ought to curb hotrodders on Main Street.

"If you want money you have to earn it; are they qualified for that?" she asked, referring to the proposed raise.

Former news reporter Philip Dodds has stated that repeated increases like those of the Picton police association should be considered on a basis of merit and the ability of the municipality to pay.

He felt more foot patrols were needed and said police should still be responsible for ticketing cars and for meter infractions since these duties kept them on Main Street.

He observed constables seemed concerned for their images when forced to ticket cars but now, when requesting a substantial increase, this concern has disappeared.

Mr. Dodds felt the request could hurt the public relations of the police departments.

"If more training and educational standards are involved than those at present, maybe we should throw it open for applications," he suggested.

"It's very hard to comment without seeing evidence of individuals but it's the principle of it," said Mr. Dodds.

"In the value received worth the money it would cost? he asked, as he questioned the increases now sought.

Bloomfield reeve and Picton area retailer Allan Anderson said he considered constables should be justly paid and the public justly served.

"They have a heck of a dirty job, too," he reflected.

Mr. Anderson said that on Friday evenings when his store is open he frequently sees policemen at work although he lot of people say they don't do anything.

"I'd like to see them around when the public isn't," he remarked.

He said he has had no problems in obtaining satisfactory police protection at any time. His store window was slashed with a knife, however, on one occasion.

Because of vandalism, Mr. Anderson said he would revere the saving if it were not for fading merchandise in his store windows.

Police May Issue Rélease

PICTON — The Picton Police Association is considering a press release explaining its request for a 31 per cent salary increase over a one-year period.

Constable George Wright of the Picton police department said yesterday that the association does not wish to become involved, however, in a series of rebuttal statements.

He contradicted a statement appearing in the Picton Gazette that quoted Constable Guy Brown, president of the police association as promising a press release.

Constable Wright said that the advisability of a press release was still under discussion.

1,000 Applications For 38 Teaching Jobs

Hastings county board of education has 38 positions on hand for eight secondary teaching positions open next September and 700 applications for 30 elementary school positions.

The sudden teacher surplus across the province was brought home last night in a report by superintendent Robert Harwood, in charge of hiring for the county board.

Fourteen teachers were declared surplus in individual secondary schools this year as the board brought its budget in under the provincial spending ceilings. The teachers have been reassigned to other schools in the county. Six of the surplus teachers will be hired for a one-year term only and hiring is restricted in electronics, occupations and machine shop.

The eight positions to be filled are in art, commercial, home economics, instrumental music and geography.

In individual elementary schools, 17 teachers were declared surplus and they have been reassigned to other schools or offered positions. Twenty-eight teachers on temporary and part-time agreements with the board are being given preferential treatment when vacancies occur. Positions to be filled are in industrial arts, home economics, French and special education.

Trustee Mrs. Jean Hutchison brought a message from school principals to the board on the teacher situation.

They wanted the board to accept the "genuine and unsolicited expression of confidence" Mr. Harwood for the way he has handled the situation.

Despite the need to declare teachers surplus and curtail hiring, "feeling in the county is good," said Mrs. Hutchison.

Film Slated

PICTON — Resources manager of the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority, Ken Meadow, of Napanee will present a special film at this week's meeting of the Picton Rotary Club. It will be of interest to all sportsmen.

He will be introduced to Rotarians by Jack Stenning of Bloomfield.

Indian Children To Visit Quinte

A first-time trip "outside" to the Bay of Quinte district from their homes in the James Bay area is to mark the end of the school year for approximately 30 Indian pupils at the Moose River elementary school.

During their week's visit the pupils will be billeted at the United Church Sunday School at Brighton with daily trips to points of interest in the area being planned.

Church members, fraternal and community action groups into the Brighton area, are co-operating in the provision of meals and other activities to assure that the visitors' stay is a memorable one.

Sunday, June 3, the visiting pupils will have dinner at Westminster Church on the Wallbridge Road and later in the afternoon will visit the Ann Hamilton farm in Sidney township where for many it will be their first close-up look at a dairy cow.

The trip south for the Moose River children is to represent a visit to round out a program which last year saw Brighton children travel to the James Bay area.

In charge of this year's return safari are Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Hamilton, who act as teachers for the two-room school at Moose River.

With individual sleeping bags as part of their baggage, the Indian children will travel by train to Cochrane where they will board a bus for the remainder of the trip to Brighton.

Renovation Tender Accepted

Administrators of Hastings county board of education approved a tender for renovations at North Hastings High School costing $35,000 more than estimates and as a result, provoked questioning from a trustee.

Donald Williams, of Stirling asked for an examination of policy to prevent a recurrence of the incident. The lowest tender for the work was $175,500 and it was approved without going to the full board for consideration.

Because the ministry of education will pay about 45 per cent of the cost, the additional expense to the board will be only $5,000.

The tender for renovations was approved by the board at the price of $175,500.

Boat Comes Adrift

BLOOMFIELD (Staff) — R. was anchors aweigh for Belleville boater Leslie Winter Sunday night when his craft flipped off a trailer, shearing a hydro pole in Bloomfield.

Mr. Winter was towing his boat through a back street in Bloomfield when the accident occurred. A power blackout occasioned by the collision followed.

Cause of the mishap was attributed to a poor road surface. Damage to the boat was estimated at $1,000 and to the hydro pole, $200.

Blood Donor Clinic Said Big Success

The unqualified success of the recent Tri-Town blood donor clinic held at the Centre Hastings Secondary School at Madoc has resulted in high praise from the Ontario Division of the Canadian Red Cross Society.

In a letter to C. Winterburn, Tri-Town Blood Donor Committee chairman, R. D. Riddell, Red Cross blood donor service supervisor, said he was most impressed with the co-operative effort of committee members and expressed the hope that the success would continue with future clinics.

The Madoc clinic on May 10 saw 211 donors offering blood with a total of 181 pints of blood being donated.

Mr. Winterburn attributed the success of the clinic to the unselfish effort and contribution of time and skill of many people.

He extended the thanks of the supervising committee to the Marmora Red Cross Branch, the Tweed Kinettes, the Madoc Legion, and the student body of the school.

Also recognized were the school medical staff, the transportation committees in at Madoc, Tweed and Marmora, Kate Kincaid for refreshments and the Coca-Cola Company for free soft drinks.

The next Tri-Town Blood Donor Clinic is expected to be held in about six months.

Youth Charged

TWEED (Special) — A Springbrook area youth has been charged by provincial police in connection with an alleged hit - and - run accident early Sunday on Highway 14 south of Harold.

Police said that Raymond Leonard Vanlierop, 18, had been charged in connection with the mishap.

Thomas Davidson, 20, RR 2 Marmora, with five passengers in his car was northbound about 2 a.m. when his car was sideswiped by the southbound vehicle. Damage to the Davidson car was estimated at $900 and to the other vehicle $250.

No one was injured in the accident.

Taxi Move Protested

PICTON — Picton merchant and reeve of Bloomfield, Allan Anderson, does not agree with town council's decision to abolish the taxi stand on Main Street.

Councillors this month voted to convert the parking slots now used by taxis in front of the Royal Hotel to metered parking slots. The area will become available for public use next January.

Mr. Anderson said the loss of the taxi stand will create a problem through inebriates coming from the hotel, unable to find cabs at the door.

The merchant, whose shoe store is located across the street from the hotel, observed that it is a nuisance to have persons asking to use his business telephone to call for taxis when they wish to go home.

Waking up to the wise use of electricity means more than owning a clock radio

Ontario's demands for electricity virtually double every decade. Not simply because there are more people around who need it, but because it is used in more and more ways. Industrially, commercially and domestically.

Not so long ago it was generally thought that this province had inexhaustible hydro-electric (water power) resources. Today, there are no more major sites available for economic development. While electricity can be generated in thermal stations fuelled by coal, gas, oil or uranium, such fuels are not unlimited either. And although Canada's wealth of natural uranium is a welcome newcomer, it will be some years before nuclear generation of electricity becomes the primary source of power.

Through a program of planning and development shaped with the help of public involvement, Hydro is endeavouring to meet future electricity requirements. But we must realize that the fulfillment of these requirements has a cost, both environmental and financial. Every consumer can help to minimize this cost.

All we ask is that when you use your power, use it wisely. It's a matter of waking up to the thoughtful use of electricity... and all resources.

Contrasts

The high spirits of children are a joy-ous thing to behold, so too is the concern that the young people often display for others — more perhaps than the adult world appreciates.

A recent article, with pictures, in The Kitchener-Waterloo Record spoke volumes. The story went like this: twice a day, 82-year-old Emanuel Popplow takes a walk past St. Mary's separate school playground. The children are waiting: they dash to the wire fence and thrust their hands through the gaps to shake his.

"None of them knows his name," says the narrative. "They just know that every morning and every afternoon the old man goes by and spends a few minutes shaking hands and talking to them."

What happy faces too are those of a party of grade 7 students from Fort Saskatchewan, Alberta, a community of 3,000 north of Edmonton. Also visiting in the Kitchener-Waterloo area, their trip to Ontario was arranged through Project Canada. This is a reminder too that a group of Belleville high school students will be visiting Alberta this summer. Also on the move are Indian youngsters from Moose Factory who have been in Kingston in recent days, as well as Deseronto.

But amid these and other aspects of the glory of youth there is, unhappily, the inevitable darker side. Vandalism is a manifestation of this and it takes many forms. The virtual wrecking of the interior of a home on No. 2 highway, owned by a Stirling funeral home director and left empty for the most part in recent years, is a case in point which was mentioned in our news pages some months ago. In the last few days also we have learned that a historic home in Kingston, the former residence of Sir John A. Macdonald in Rideau Street, has been experiencing constant spoilation by vandals. Its owner William J. Cosgrove, a building products salesman who had hopes of preserving the building as part of the city's heritage, blames "punks" who roam the neighborhood and succeed in eluding police.

Tragic indeed is this sort of thing and regrettable as it is, it is part of the social fabric of most communities, among the more frustrated and disenchanted, not to say ignorant, segments of the youth of our day. Its understanding such behavior, however, let us not forget the best of which our young people are capable and which we have been discussing here.

Cultural Exchange

When President Echeverria of Mexico led a party of officials from his country to Ottawa recently, columnist Charles Lynch got into a fascinating discussion with one of them. It seems the Mexicans admire the "calm, cool and collected" matter-of-fact, calm, cool and collected characteristics of Canadians. Lynch countered that Canadians, in turn, "could do with more emotion, since we are such cold fish . ." He said he then "clinched off an old proposal that was to exchange women for a period of one year. All Canadian women to Mexico, all Mexican women to Canada, with wondrous effect on both our countries."

"My Mexican friend," Lynch added, was so bedazzled at this idea that he forgot what we were discussing, and shouted: "Viva!" It took him several moments to compose himself."

A nice idea to be sure — but how impractical can you get? Of such are some of mankind's wilder dreams made of.

Gambling Spot

We know that the Isle of Man, that nice little tourist island in the Irish Sea, with its gym clubs for parliament, is one of those places a fellow pays no income tax — like the Channel Islands and Bermuda — but we did not know it is on the international gambling circuit.

That is the word from a Quebec Police Commission which heard from a 38-year-old promoter and muscle-man (he spoke of giving "love taps" to persons who refuse to pay up) told of organizing gambling junkets to the Isle of Man and Guadaloupe, Mexico, through a company of his based in the Bahamas.

Interesting indeed. Who would have thought of the Isle of Man, playground of the British working man and more than ever of late, vacation haven for nerve-wracked citizens of embattled Ulster, as being in that sort of chancy league?

Another illusion shattered. . . !

Embassy Embarrassing Contrast

Canada House Too Tacky to Suit This Ottawa Visitor

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — "During a recent visit to London, England, I was appalled by the shabby state of Canada House on Trafalgar Square," writes W. Costello of Ottawa in letters to the editors of The Ottawa Journal and the Toronto Globe and Mail.

"Its grimy exterior contrasts embarrassingly with those of other high commissions and embassies and projects us as a rather dreary country which has become indifferent to its relationship with the United Kingdom.

"The need for external cleaning is apparent but I can not but wonder whether its neglect is not part of a systematic and deliberate policy by the Canadian government to downplay our traditional ties with Britain.

"As a Canadian who attaches great value to our ties with the United Kingdom, I find this situation unacceptable and I think the Secretary of State for External Affairs ought to take immediate measures to see that Canada House is brought up to standard which will allow Canadians to take pride in at least the visual aspect of their representation in the United Kingdom."

Amen to that.

What is even more unacceptable to visiting Canadians is that Canada House is a private grubber, in a different way, inside than out.

The entire public ros m— used for catching up on stale news in days-old Canadian newspapers — is hot, cramped and vinyl-covering, a little on the seamy side.

The entrance used by most visitors is at the corner of the building and the small hallway and reception area are stacked with pack-sacks and cluttered with an assortment of hand baggage.

Ask a simple question like how to get to this place or that street London, and you receive an indifferent "Don't ask me, buy a map of the city or ask a cop".

The Canada House staff is resident in London and might be expected to know some of the answers — get them, get answers, or at least show enough interest to find out — but that ought to be standard equipment for all hands.

But visitors seem to be regarded as an unwelcome and unavoidable irritation as Canada House is downgraded in favor of the more immaculate High Commission offices in exclusive Mayfair.

This year there is one plus—the "conveniences" in the men's washroom are in good working order and more accessible than previously to the visiting Canadian, who, perhaps expecting Canada House to reflect a little of the feeling of home, is turned off by its chilly impersonal indifference.

The tackiness of Canada House is made all the more unpleasant by comparison with the offices of the agents general to London of British Columbia, Ontario, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

Its clean, tidy tasteful offices in Regent Street do "Beautiful British Columbia" proud.

The ground floor offices are spacious and the pleasant receptionist moves out from behind the desk and, ever before you speak, how she might be of help.

Big, beautiful color blow-ups of Vancouver's English Bay highrise waterfront, of Victoria's Butchard Gardens and of the Okanagan's blossoming orchards adorn the walls.

The carpets are clean, the desks tidy, the flag of BC as brightly spotless as the Maple Leaf at Canada House is dirgibly dust-dulled, and the Vancouver and Victoria newspapers in the pleasing magazine rea ding room are reasonably current.

Ontario House, just off Haymarket and two floors for public use, neat, bright, well-equipped, has Daily Star readers the welcome the ring of sincerity by asking if you would care to see yesterday's Toronto Globe and Mail that has just come in the air.

Why don't some of the other Ontario dailies come by air instead of surface mail that can take two to three w e e k s? "Money," smiles the receptionist, "there are too many of them, and it would cost an awful lot."

New Brunswick and Nova Scotia are in the process of moving from their old Trafalgar Square offices, but even amid the confusion of laying down new carpets and pushing around furniture, the small staffs have time to show a friendly interest in visitors.

Nova Scotia, moving into a six-room suite in Pall Mall, gets the Halifax Chronicle-Herald airmail and has clean surface-post copies on hand of the Saint John Daily Telegraph-Times Globe and Mail and Halifax Mail-Star.

New Brunswick is setting up shop back of the Dorchester in a three - room Mayfair suite, and even while directing the furniture movers, the receptionist meets you at the door, asks what they can do to assist you and wonders if you would care to glance at the latest edition of the Saint John Telegraph-Journal.

British Columbia, Ontario, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia radiate the warmth of home — but Canada House, ech!

"Mind you, we're not as advanced at it as the Chinese."

Minority Government Showing Strains

By HENRY HEALD

OTTAWA — The strain of minority government is beginning to tell on Parliament Hill. Tempers are short, routine issues assume undue importance as they become potential weapons for defeating the government and MPs are sitting under the pressure of keeping the party machine tuned up to election pitch month after month.

The pressure has also put considerable strain on the operation of the Commons itself, which worked splendidly well when the government had a majority although there are always MPs who have ideas for improving or at least changing the rules — break it down when the number of opposition MPs greatly exceeds the government members.

First place the strain appears is in the daily oral question period. If the government had a majority, there would be 139 opposition MPs competing for time to ask questions in the 40-minute period. Now there are more than 150.

Minority government necessitates the problem in another way. With the possibility of an election around every corner each opposition member is under the gun to prove his effectiveness and hit the headlines before he has to offer himself again to his constituents for re-election.

But the question period is not the only aspect of House rules that has come under fire. James Walker, the Toronto Liberal MP who is chairman of the Commons standing committee on procedure and organization, says he has a stack of documents six inches thick of items this committee has to consider.

Recently, when MPs had an unspecified time traded accusations of abusing the House rules and demanded changes in the operation of the question period Mr. Walker reminded them that it was number one-priority on his committee's agenda.

But if the problems are to be satisfactorily dealt with, he said MPs will be required to co-operate with the committee in presenting their views instead of bringing individual grievances before the House of Commons.

He plans to invite each MP to submit in writing his views on how the question period can be improved. Mr. Walker also has a few ideas of his own.

The first one is to stop the practice of letting every Tom, Dick and Harry from every party squeeze in a supplementary question on the initial question.

What happens is this: Opposition Leader Stanfield asks a question about the consumer price index. By the time two or three members of each opposition party has asked two or three supplementary questions, half the question period has gone and a question on the price index has been turned into a debate on the cost of living.

Mr. Walker would like to see supplementaries limited to the person who first asked the question. As chairman of the committee, Mr. Walker knows he should not be anticipating the views of the committee in advance, but that one is so elementary that it is bound to be suggested by various MPs.

About the only ones who might object would be the French-Canadian Tories who have obediently tried to stage-manage the question period as it does in the question on the initial question.

About the only ones who might object would be the French-Canadian Tories who have obediently tried to stage-manage the question period as it does in the question on the initial question. Tory backbenchers who bounce up and down for days trying to catch the speaker's eye, will be delighted to have the committee lop off the supplementaries.

It will not take the committee very long to present its recommendations on the question period. It is Mr. Walker's intention to have the committee submit interim reports on each item as it is dealt with.

Another rule the committee will examine is standing Order 43 — a provision that allows any MP to move a motion of "urgent and pressing importance" but only if there is unanimous consent of the House. It has degenerated into a refuge for the MP who gets tired of trying to ask a question and who knows he can get the attention of the Commons under that rule. Since the motions are normally just disguised questions, the Liberals have adopted the practice of automatically shouting "No!" without hardly listening to the motion.

Another problem Mr. Walker's committee will consider is the long list of redtape for the production of papers. In reaction to the Trudeau government's early emphasis on assigning task forces to look into every conceivable question and its refusal to make the studies public, opposition MPs have labelled Guidelines covering the government's policy on the questions have been referred to the committee for study. Mr. Walker admitted privately that he thinks the government made a mistake in not making more reports public in the first place.

Fascism on Upswing

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

It will be thirty years this summer since Mussolini's fascist state crumbled before the Allied invasion of Italy and the shattered dictator fled north to join his Nasi friends and part occupiers of his country.

Three decades is a long time to look back in contemporary history, given the swift and incessant changes in the fortunes of men and nations. Yet there are easy comparisons to be made with what might have happened to Italian fascism if Mussolini had played his cards as coolly as Spain's Generalissimo Franco.

He is still alive, aging now it is true, but in control of an authoritarian state of the right which has outlived the Fascist regimes of Germany and Italy.

The other and more realistic basis for comparison of what might have been is the resurgence of Italian Fascism in the MSI Italian-fetish for the "Italian Socialist Movement" and as once-familiar ideological shatterings of the Mussolini variety.

The first promise that Mussolini aging like Franco, would still be in power over a long lived Fascist state if he had kept free of entanglements can be quickly dismissed.

General Franco in 1940 was the head of a totally unarmed and dissipated Spain, bled white by the Spanish Civil War which ended in 1939 with a Communist Spanish dead and a thorough backlash of hatred for hordes of foreigners, Italian, German and Russian who had used their country as a battleground for their new weapons.

Mussolini's boast that' heady summer of 1940 for the Fascist states of Europe would not be "parasitical" countries to ride on the coat-tails of the victorious Fuhrer at the war's end. Franco would not be so encouraged.

The Italian Duce was another kettle of fish. His alliance with Hitler had already been sealed in the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo Axis of 1936. He was looking for materials in Africa, especially the bigger, richer ones owned by France, Belgium, Holland and British.

So he went with Hitler in June, 1940, had a brief flurry of glory in Africa, then ended up bloodied, run-over and battered by partisans in 1945 next to Carla Petacci, his mistress.

That's not much of an historic legacy for the rejuvenation of Fascism in Italy of the 1970s. And apparently the MSI with a self-proclaimed aura of respectability and not as much success as it has hoped for through normal parliamentary means. Italian Chamber of Deputies, is aware of this.

But there is a factor, escalating in Italian life an' constantly working in favor of a restored Fascist Party. This is Italy's growing political and social chaos, the inability of successive national governments to remain stable and of Italian institutions to solve mounting crises of inflation, unemployment and industrial pollution.

Except for the latter which was unheard of 50 years ago, the Italian political climate sounds very much like 1922, the year Mussolini marched on Rome, (or rather took the t h e r e while his blackshirts marched), and won Italy.

The 1948 Italian constitution forbids "the reconstitution" of Fascism and a 1952 law allows for stiff jail terms for anyone through word or deed trying to restore Fascism.

Even if there may never be another 1922-style March on Rome, Italy's modern chaos cannot prevent frustrated and angry citizens of all classes, but chiefly the rich and powerful, from unrealistically seeking a return to "law and order" and seeing in historic Fascism the ideal vehicle for another violent change.

Hansard Has Share Of Humor

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — Hansard, the official record of parliamentary debates, is usually free of humor but political errors and occasionally letters are transposed, such as the time Mervyl MacInnis (NDP—Vancouver Kingsway) was talking about pensions and others the view board:

"I suggest that the minister look at his head in a way completely different from that in which he has so far viewed it."

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, explaining to a French-language television interviewer why he appears to speak slowly:

"I don't, it's just that everyone else talks quickly."

An aide has finally cleared up the difference between Mr. Stanfield's "news conferences" and "press availability sessions" that usually follow ministers in his cross-Canada tours.

"A news conference is to deal with specific issues; and an availability session is when he is available to answer questions reporters want to raise."

Prime Minister Trudeau now is being driven in a new 1973 Cadillac, replacing the 1967 model he has used since assuming office. Unlike the old car, this one has armor plating and bullet-proof glass.

But the licence number remains the same — CAN-001— making it easier for the two RCMP officers who invariably follow the limousine in an unmarked cruiser.

Davis Taking Death Threats Seriously

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's
Queen's Park Bureau

At first it is perhaps not easy to take seriously the need for security to protect the lives of Premier Davis and cabinet ministers.

This has been a non-violent province. It perhaps has its share of crackpots but they have tended to be looser with the lip than quick on the trigger.

There is no question, however, that Mr. Davis takes the threats he has been receiving seriously. And there is probably good reason that he should do so.

We do not readily remember back to the scene at the opening a few years ago, when it was disrupted by a stranger, to realize just how serious any threat can be.

On this occasion the parliament building and the corridor and the hall in the chamber were packed with police.

But this man wearing a gasmasktype contraption got through them all to the floor of the chamber, threw off his coat and began to shout and yell and begin shouting for justice.

The police, not to mention the members and the public, were in consternation.

And with good reason.

For this stranger made crashing the legislature look easy.

And one had to wonder just what would have happened if he had been a dangerous person.

Actually, there has been some security around at least the pre-

Lewis Says---

We Already Pay Domination Price

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Canadians, while understanding the need to regain economic control of their own country, "are unfortunately already paying part of the price of foreign domination," New Democrat Lesder David Lewis said Monday night.

"We are being faced this year with price increases for our energy needs like those we experienced in food," he told a party rally. A text of his remarks was released in advance of delivery.

"We are going to pay more for home fuel, for lighting and for gasoline for our cars."

Mr. Lewis said prices are not going up because of any shortage within Canada.

"There is still plenty of oil and gas in the ground to meet our needs and more but the Americans are running short. They are willing to pay higher prices for energy and the international oil companies that control our wells will sell at the highest possible price."

The only solution was to match U.S. prices and this was why prices in Canada were going up.

Mr. Lewis tossed the blame at the Liberals and Conservatives, saying a good example of government attitude is the Liberals' insistence on construction of a Mackenzie Valley pipeline.

He said there will be between 9,000 and 6,000 short-term construction jobs and only 130 to 200 permanent ones, "hardly enough to populate a tiny village."

He said financing the pipeline could force interest rates even higher, push up the premium on the Canadian dollar and thus damage our export position and result in lost jobs.

Mr. Lewis said this attitude is typical of present and former governments.

"To hell with the average Canadian taxpayer. We've got to help our corporate friends ship our resources out of the country for the fast buck.

"This is the attitude that is leading Canada to a point where we are not going to be able to afford our own natural resources.

". . . Think about that. Canada with its great storehouse of resources unable to buy those resources at a price that will make Canadian industry competitive.

". . . Not only are we shipping jobs out of the country each time we ship our natural resources out unprocessed; we are increasingly going to have to pay more and more for our resources . . . up to the price that the large corporation is able to squeeze out in an energy-hungry world."

Mr. Lewis lambasted Imperial Oil as being in the forefront of "the mad rush to suck Canada dry."

He said Imperial has made more than $1 billion in profits in the last 10 years. Last year's profit had been $151 million, an 11-per-cent increase over 1971's $136 million.

Crime Dips

While the over - all violent crime rate in Canada is down there are slight upswings in some of the components — taken per each 100,000 population. Violent crime includes murder, attempted murder, manslaughter, rape and other sexual offences, wounding, assault and robbery. The figures do not include arson — although the rate of arson also is believed to have "stabilized," — and driving offences, which continues to increase. (CP Newsmap)

Police Investigate Tape's Disappearance

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial police are investigating the disappearance of a tape containing a recorded telephone conversation between police security officers, Solicitor-General Joan Yaremko said Monday.

During debate by an Ontario legislature committee of his departmental estimates, the minister told Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP Toronto High Park) that the investigation is also intended "to ensure that the security of this province has not been breached."

Dr. Shulman played a copy of the tape to a news conference last Friday. The conversation related to security plans in which the OPP have been involved at the time of the first anniversary of the October, 1970, FLQ crisis.

Jobless Insurance Costs Sharply Higher

OTTAWA (CP) — Cost of the unemployment insurance program—an issue which harassed the government during last year's election campaign—was about $150 million higher in the first quarter of 1973 than for the same period in 1972.

Latest figures from Statistics Canada show total benefit payments of about $681 million in the first three months of this year. In January, February and March last year, the figures was $533 million.

Higher average benefit payments and a greater number of claimants had offset a drive to cut off payments to alleged abusers of the plan and a recently-improving unemployment situation, causing the higher costs.

Final cost of the unemployment insurance program came to nearly $2 billion for 1972. Included in this were benefit costs totalling $1.873 billion, administrative cost of $23 million and interest on loans of $3 million.

The government recovered $5 million in insurance overpayments.

Last week, Guy Cousineau, UIC chairman, said in the first quarter 98,000 of 144,000 recipients investigated in selected occupational groups had been cut off from payments.

But in spite of this and an improving unemployment situation in recent months, increased payments and a larger number of claimants have raised costs.

Other factors adding to the $150 million increase are the higher wages of those who resort to unemployment insurance than last year, a UIC spokesman says.

Supreme Court Ban Asked On License Suspensions

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada was asked Monday to invalidate provincial legislation that suspends the drivers' licences of persons convicted of impaired driving.

The court began hearing appeals against such provincial action in Ontario and Prince Edward Island. But the constitutional question is such that there are interventions from Quebec, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, British Columbia, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

At issue is the right of provinces to suspend licences when such action is not taken by magistrates upon conviction of impaired driving, an offence under the Criminal Code of Canada.

The appellants' basic argument is that federal law is paramount over any legislation passed by the provinces and, as the laws in this case conflict, the provincial law is ultra vires—outside the law—and cannot be applied.

The provinces say the Criminal Code sections may impinge on their constitutional right to regulate traffic on their highways.

The issue is being fought on two cases.

Stewart Bell, a mailman of Belle River, P.E.I., was convicted in December, 1972, of impaired driving and fined $100. His licence was not suspended by the magistrate, although Section 235 of the Criminal Code gives him this prerogative.

But Section 238 of the Highway Traffic Act of Prince Edward Island calls for six months suspension for the first offence and 12 months for the second.

Mr. Bell appealed against the provincial legislation to the provincial supreme court, lost, and came to the Supreme Court of Canada.

The other case involves Gordon Russell Ross, a building inspector in Windsor, Ont.

He was convicted of impaired driving Aug. 22, 1972, and fined $250. He appealed the sentence and in January it was changed.

He was forbidden to drive for six months except between the hours of 8 a.m. to 5:45 p.m. Monday to Friday in the course of employment and going to and from work.

His licence was not suspended and the registrar of motor vehicles was so advised.

Under Section 21 of the Highway Traffic Act of Ontario, a person convicted of impaired driving has his licence suspended for a period ranging from three months to one year.

Ross went to the Ontario Supreme Court seeking a declaration that Section 21 of the provincial act is inoperative and that the "purported suspension of his operator's licence under that section was of no effect."

Under agreement of Ross and the Ontario attorney-general and the registrar of motor vehicles the matter was removed from the Ontario court to the Supreme Court of Canada.

The provincers argue that provincial legislation suspending licences is valid because it comes under their right to set conditions of licensing and regulation of highway traffic provided in the British North America Act.

Ann Landers

Worried About Physical Because Her Dad's 'Doc'

Dear Ann Landers: I am fishing college in the spring and plan to be married in June. My fiance is a wonderful person. We have great communication. The problem I am writing about has nothing to do with him.

I want to have a thorough physical examination before the wedding and I need some guidance in selecting the best method of birth control. And this is what I am writing about. My father is a wonderful doctor. He has taken care of me all my life. I need to know if he could tell, from a pelvic examination, whether or not I have had sexual relations. I'm afraid my father would be very disappointed in me if he learned the truth. He probably wouldn't say anything, but I need to know whether or not he could tell.

Please check with your medical consultants and give me the word. Thanks, Ann.—Information Needed In Birmingham

Dear I.N.: I consulted three physicians, all with teen-age daughters. The immediate response in each instance was that a physician should not be treating his family, except in an emergency.

All doctors have reciprocal arrangements and your father could surely have you examined by a colleague. You're a big girl now, and it's time you brought that Wee-Tot-Papa thing.

The answer to your question is—maybe.

Dear Ann Landers: I am new in your country and want to thank you for helping me learn the English language. When I first started to read in America I could understand everything in your column because you write for everybody, not just bank presidents and college professors.

And now I apologize for bothering you when others need help with serious worries, but if you could answer me I would be appreciative.

Very often lately I am receiving in the mail items I did not order, like keychains, neckties, cosmetics and decorations for the house. These are not free samples. They expect money in return. I mostly send everything back and then sometimes I receive bills anyway. Please tell me what to do. I do not want to damage my credit or get into trouble with the law. Thank you.—Syracuse Reader

Dear S.R.: When unordered merchandise arrives in the mail, you may consider it a gift. You do not need to pay for it, nor do you have to go to the trouble and expense of mailing it back. It belongs to you.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm only the father, so, of course, I don't have anything to say around here. I am permitted to pay the bills and drive everybody where they want to go. I just keep my mouth shut and do as I'm told.

My demands are simple. All I want is a chance to look at the newspaper while it's still readable. Yesterday where your column should have been was a big hole. Our daughter tore it out to take to her family living class. Yesterday the crossword puzzle was missing. My mother-in-law wanted to do it later." This morning my son ripped out a recipe for peanut butter soup. On the other side were the stock-market returns which I wanted to read. If I'm a sourpuss, what about this?—M.C.F.

Dear M.C.: You need two papers in your house. One for recipes and one to read. Too expensive? Not when you consider the benefit in terms of family unity. Be good to yourself. Dad. Order that second paper today.

Help for Consumers At Carmel W. I.

Three compilers of consumer's help book were guest speakers at the May meeting of the Carmel Women's Institute.

Program convener Freda Holtshousen, Elaine Struthers and Rosemary Vodrey.

Mrs. Vodrey spoke on the Rinerant salesman, outlining some favorite "pitches" to the group. Mrs. Holtshousen dealt with "signing a contract" and stressed consumers shouldn't be embarrassed to ask questions. Mrs. Struthers spoke on comparison shopping.

Successful Living

Reader Needs Cookbook, Advice

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Recently my I find it harder to balance the food budget. I know this is not your field, but you have consultants, and I am hoping one of them can recommend a cookbook to give me some nice cheap ideas. — Three's a Crowd - To Feed.

Dear Three's a Crowd: "Family Meal Planning" is the book for you. It starts at the beginning - a very good place to start! Gives some ideas about food elements, comparative values when it comes to nourishment, food-cost cutting. Then into recipes that work away at beating the high cost of living.

It was put together by a group of dedicated home economists at the request of the Family Service Association of Edmonton.

The home economist I showed it to where I live said she thought it would be an ideal cooking guide for new brides or housewives without much background knowledge of cooking for a family. She thought women should all learn how to cook like cheaper things, anyway. We have to think economically first.

Seems to me a neighborhood of housewives could form themselves a group to try out some of its ideas and share and critique. Cost: $3.00. Write for Recipes to The Family Service Foundation, Suite 106 Street, Edmonton, T5K 1S2, Alberta, enclosing $3.20 (the extra 20 cents is to cover postage.)

Dear Doris: It is my belief that if a boy and girl date and become serious about marrying, they should first be sure that each of their parents like their future fiance, or take a firm stand that the one they marry, no one can take asunder.

I have been married three years after a courtship of four years, and to this day my in-laws have not accepted me completely. Through the countless quarreling between my husband and me over them, and the constant interference from them, our marriage has suffered needless pain.

I dread to think of the young lovers who marry to find themselves in such an entanglement because they were too headstrong to realize that it could happen to them. Can love climb any mountain, or can parents chip away enough to weaken love? — Broken Hearted.

Dear Broken Hearted: Love surmounts the insurmountable, reputedly; but when it is a case of in-law pressure the lovers simply must learn that their first loyalty is to each other. Their disputes belong within their own four walls.

In-laws tend to learn this too, and are sometimes the surest offenders; achieving the effect of tightening the spurs instead.

You need to stand together. If necessary, confront, together, the we-know-better elders. You are entitled to make your own mistakes without their help. Only then will love grow to the spot where no mountain can daunt it.

Dear Doris: I am 26 years of age and have been married for five years. We have no children, so for the last four years I have gone out to work, but when I started to work my husband quit.

Now he works only about four months of the year and expects me to pay the bills and run the house besides.

I left him once because he begs me, but came back to save our marriage. But it is nearly as bad again. — Discouraged.

Dear Discouraged: Don't let your husband resign his responsibilities just like that! Both of you need personal counselling.

Make an appointment at the Family and Children's Services of Hastings County, 311 Front Street, Belleville.

The experts there will help you to sort out your priorities.

Once Is Enough

LIMA, Peru (AP) — A brakeman who assisted a 19 year old woman in giving birth to a boy aboard a train in Peru's Andes said later: "It's the first and last time I'll get involved in such problems."

The Lady Builds Pianos

TORONTO (CP) — The president is a woman but it is because she was the best person for the job or because she was the only one available at the time to direct the family firm?

Ann Heintzman Hooper seems to oscillate between an image of herself as a tough-minded corporate executive and as a brooding mother preparing a future for her sons.

Mrs. Hooper is president of Heintzman and Ltd., piano makers in Canada for more than a century and now the only holders in Canada of grand pianos.

She became the company's chief executive in 1971 after the death of her husband and a protracted fight to place shares of the company back in family control. She re-captured the same year.

Herman Heintzman died in 1969 of a heart attack at age 46. He was the fourth generation and his two sons now are going through apprenticeships to learn how to make pianos and run the company.

Mrs. Hooper says she asked her sons whether their father died—Charles was then 18 and James 16—if they wanted to be piano makers. Then she went after control of the firm.

"I felt very strongly about the history and the tradition of the family."

Theodore Heintzman, Herman's great grandfather, came to New York from Germany in 1805 and 10 years later moved to Toronto. For a time he had worked with Heinrich Steinweg, who changed his name and established Steinway and Sons.

Crescent pianists have played and famous singers have been accompanied by Heintzman pianos for decades and some of the letters and autographed programs are framed and hanging in the new office in Don Mills, a Toronto suburb.

Mrs. Hooper lives I had tried to make them understand that heritage they had," Mrs. Hooper said.

Charles Heintzman, now 23, has been taking a rural course in piano making and now is vice-president in charge of production. James, 20, currently is going through the piano-making apprenticeship program at the firm's plant in Hannover, Ont., about 30 miles south of Owen Sound.

Upright pianos are made at the Hanover plant and grand pianos are built in Don Mills.

Mrs. Hooper, a prim blonde, says with a faint smile of obvious satisfaction that production at the Hanover plant has almost doubled since she became president. The company has about one-third of the Canadian piano market.

She talks easily and freely about her adjustments after Herman Heintzman died and her future plans for the firm.

"My second husband has been a tremendous help. He certainly has taught me how to be a president."

He is Alan V. Hooper, senior vice-president of Gairdner and Co. Ltd., a brokerage firm, and a director of Heintzman and Co.

Mrs. Hooper was born and raised in Oshawa, Ont. She declined to give her age, saying only she is in her 40s and that self-consciousness about her age is just a silly quirk.

Her father now is retired after about 26 years with General Motors of Canada Ltd. He was general superintendent of the paint and hardware division when he retired.

One of the lessons she learned at home was an understanding of unions, she said. Heintzman and Co. negotiated a new contract with its unionized employees last year.

She worked for four years as a bank teller during the second World War and says the job "taught me accuracy and to remember things." Then she had a series of secretarial jobs.

In 1946 she was married and the next salaried job she had was as president of Heintzman and Co.

"When I was a housewife and a mother I did a lot of volunteer work and that was valuable," she said, because it taught her how to deal with people and make decisions.

Grand pianos are important to the prestige of Heintzman and Co. and she said the grand piano department had become run down during the years when her husband's health was failing and there was a fight for ownership of the company.

The handcrafted grands take about a year to build, allowing time properly to age and tune them. The standard instrument sells for about $5,500 and the concert grands for up to $8,000.

A former partner was bought out in an out-of-court settlement after a legal fight was begun for control of the company.

"I'm really a bridge for my sons and the company," she said. But she will remain as president. I really believe that the boys are capable of some of the letters and running it the way their forefathers ran it."

Mrs. Hooper said she tries to maintain a nine-to-five schedule and leave business at the factory but the presence to my long-suffering husband, Alan, admits he not always being successful.

She still does all the cooking at home—except on the Christie drive from the office—but has help with the housework.

"I don't see my friends as much as I would like," she said and painting and sketching, a hobby she enjoyed, is one of the things she seldom finds time for any more. She said both she and Charles play the piano but neither is a gifted pianist.

Her principal advisers are David Green, financial vice-president, Frank Richter, secretary-treasurer, both 36, and the eldest son Charles.

Platform Soles--Health Hazards?

Sprained ankles, low back problems and cramped toes may be the price you pay if you follow fashion trends this season and put your feet in platform shoes.

Dr. R. R. Brain, doctor of podiatric medicine, says unstable shoes, particularly strap styles with open heels put pressure on the ball of the foot or forefoot. Toes are cramped and the pelvis bends, thrusting body weight forward.

He says weight should be distributed on the entire foot.

Teen-agers suffer more from platform shoes, he said, because growth centres of the foot become inflamed, flaring up and becoming sore.

In fact, ankle sprains, knee instabilities and low back problems can all occur as a result of wearing high platform shoes, he says.

Fortunately, it's just a fad and can't last forever.

* * *

Dr. Brain points out that men don't have too many problems with platform soled shoes because the backs are closed in.

Best shoe for men and women? A casual tie-on or slip-in shoe with rubber soles and flat heels about one inch high.

* * *

Permanent damage to your feet can result if you wear cheap shoes that crowd your feet, according to Dr. H. G. Williamson, orthopedic surgeon.

He says sore feet can lead to a sore back though of course there are other causes of backaches. Muscle tone and posture are significant and, the doctor points out, the combination of poor posture and improper shoes will lead to back problems.

Women have more foot problems than men, Dr. Williamson says, and older people are prone to joint problems. Abnormal stress from poorly fitting shoes may cause damage.

Summer often corrects uncomfortable foot problems with open toe shoes and exercise sandals, though teenagers who go without shoes may have problems with "bread feet".

The difficulty comes when you try to put those feet back in shoes.

* * *

R. S. Burtt, a chiropractor, says high heeled shoes affect patients more than platform soles. "These heels affect patients' posture," he says.

High Heeled Shoes Cause Spinal Stress

CLINTON, Ont. (CP) — As the twig is bent, so goes the spinal column, and the twig who is wearing high heels and elevated shoes is definitely being bent, says Kenneth S. Wood.

Dr. Wood is president of the Ontario Chiropractic Association. He says young men and women still in their formative years are most likely to be the ones to do themselves some permanent damage slumping around in the current shoes.

"Many chiropractors are beginning to screen their patients for their footwear. We often find that when we eliminate the footwear, we eliminate the problem."

In a release, Dr. Wood says: "Elevating the heels of shoes produces an anterior tilt to the pelvis and an increase in the lumbar curve (lower back). This results in weakness and instability of the lumbar spine with resultant fatigue and discomfort."

In other words, he explains, you lean forward.

"As soon as you raise the heels, the body wants to lean forward as well.

"Particularly if the spine is not normal to begin with, this height can trigger a problem that might be dormant."

The release says: "The increased spinal stress caused by this unnatural footwear fad can result in postural and spinal derangement that may produce temporary or permanent disability."

East Hastings District Meet

Hastings East Women's Institute held its annual district meeting Thursday at Cannifton.

More than 60 women attended the meeting representing Bethel-Zion, Cannifton-Corbyville, Carmel, Lonsdale, Chapman, Plainfield, Roslin, Melrose, Quinte and Tyendinaga East Women's Institutes.

District Director Mrs. Clifford Barber, Belleville, installed the groups new officers. They are Mrs. Irene Wellman, past president, Mrs. Alta Vance, president, Mrs. Lois McMechan, first vice president, Mrs. Gwen Hall, 2nd vice president, Mrs. Elsie Whitmore, secretary treasurer.

Mrs. Robert Weber, of Kitchener-Waterloo, representing the Home Economics Branch of the provincial government, addressed the group. She admonished members to keep meetings timely, modern and creative.

When it comes to money management, we wrote the books.

There are many very good reasons to save money. For a house, or a car. Sure, we could remind you of these good reasons to save. But we think it makes more sense to show you how to manage your money in the first place. Which is precisely what our books are all about. They're called Focus on your Finances. And there are three.

One is Personal Financial Planning. It shows you step-by-step budgeting in such areas as food, clothing, transportation, and recreation. Follow these steps, and you can budget your money for those good things you have always wanted, maybe a house or a car.

And that's where our other two Focus on your Finances books come in. Because these books can help by showing you how to avoid some of the common pitfalls you might face when buying a house or a car.

Recliners At Home In Parlor

Reclining chairs appear headed out of the casual room and into the living room.

The recliner has become more versatile in design and fabric. Chairs is not limited to the upholstered models which often became the centrepiece of the family recreation room.

More manufacturers are showing lower and more stylish models, a trend away from the casual look of a few years ago.

No matter the housewife's taste in decor, her husband often preferred a relaxer chair, points out one Toronto manufacturer. To now, many women wouldn't have one in the living room unless its decor was fairly traditional.

But now the man of the house can sit in his living room on a high-styled recliner without upsetting his wife's decorating scheme. New styling has made it possible for any one to own a recliner.

On the Job

Big feature of Robert Michaud furnishing enterprise is its total service to consumer. Wayne Flagler (left) and Stephen Brown lay carpet in city home — the final phase of a service that started when customer entered store.

Colonial Furniture Groupings Will Fit in Almost Anywhere

Furniture arrangement is the most vital design element in planning any room.

A highlight feature of furniture displays at Robert Michaud Ltd. is the wide range of colonial style suites and complete accessories.

Tinged with the romance of the past, there is the timeless grace of heritage about the colonial style that has held the enthusiasm of generations.

Its versatility is also a factor it noted, says Robert Michaud. Accented with the correct accessories, colonial is at home in every room of the house.

In the dining room it provides a blend of every day comfort in a warm, graceful setting.

With varying accents it can supply the ideal environment in living-dining areas, for coffee and conversation.

For areas used for multiple purposes — family and recreation rooms — it can be arranged to broaden space.

In apartments where space is at a premium the proper groupings create a combination of settings.

In bedrooms, the effect can be warm, regal — and practical.

Choosing the correct pieces and accessories can call for experience and knowledge.

This is also available at Michaud's where a skilled, trained staff is ready with assistance and creative advice.

Estimate Carpet This Way

How much carpet do you need?

Robert Michaud Ltd. suggests this simple system of calculation:

Just measure your room carefully in feet. Then multiply the length by the width. This gives the amount in square feet. Divide by nine to get the total of square yards — most carpet is sold by square yardage.

This doesn't take into account odd wall shapes or jogs. So figure on some extra yardage when establishing final cost estimates. You may also need some additional yardage to match the pattern or direction of the pile.

White Sale

DOVER (CP) — Two British businessmen plan to sell bits of the White Cliffs of Dover to Africans as keyring fobs and paperweights. "Americans are very interested in anything that is British," said Peter Brown, 40, one of the partners. Each chunk will have an authentication embedded in it signed by the Dover town clerk. "Maybe there could be a reciprocal trade in 'paperweights of the Grand Canyon," Brown said.

Every Beautyrest mattress has this hidden difference

Individually pocketed coils for maximum comfort and support

In most mattresses, the coils are wired together. So they compress together, giving more 'sag' over a wider area of pressure than is really necessary.

In a Beautyrest, each coil is in its own pocket, not wired to its neighbour, so it can 'give' or apply pressure individually, according to your anatomy. So they 'give' under your shoulders and hips without sagging everywhere else, and your spine remains straight. This way, you get maximum comfort plus real support where it counts.

Why it makes sense to buy matching Box Springs

Because a Beautyrest lasts so long, it makes sense to protect your long-term investment with a box spring specially designed to add to its comfort, support and long life.

The Vanishing Beaches

High water in Lake Ontario has claimed the sand beaches that are a favorite summer playground in Prince Edward County. Wellington Beach, a popular spot for bathers and picnickers has disappeared with this spring's record water levels. The windrow of gravel in the background of the flooded change house was washed ashore when the waters rose.

Northern Strikers Prepared To Remain Out Indefinitely

By MIKE PATTERSON
Staff Reporter

"Orderly picketing" of Northern Electric Co. Ltd. plants across Ontario and Quebec continues today.

United Auto Workers Locals 1830 and 1530 are the striking Belleville unions. More than 1,000 members of the two Locals, production and shop employees, set up the first picket lines without incident May 1, just over three weeks ago.

In the striking workers, picketing and the continuing strike had slid into a weekly routine. Every day all day and through the night groups of two, three or four pickets are seen standing by the gates of the Northern Electric plant on Sidney St.

They talk with each other, have an occasional wave for a passing car or truck and stand around with their signs. There isn't much else for them to do. No trucks have tried to cross the lines. The "confidential staff" enter and leave on their 9-3 schedule and no-one minds.

"They're just in there for the money," said a picket. "Most of them are not against us. A few take it to heart but they're a minority."

"I'd do the same — they don't belong to any union," said another. "If the company tried to get a truck through though we'd fight — all the pickets would stand their ground."

Each striking production worker puts in two hours a week on the picket lines. Office workers put in three hours a week.

Each Tuesday, from 10 a.m. to noon and from 2 - 5 p.m. "strike school" is held at the Royal Canadian Legion Hall. Office workers do not have to attend — that is why they do the extra hour at the gates of the struck plant.

But everyone has to go to the Legion Hall Tuesday to pick up their strike money cheques.

A single man gets $30 from the UAW. A married man with no children gets $50 and with dependents, $40. The strike school is to brief workers on developments. "But they haven't had too much to tell us lately," said a picket.

The strike pay is not much. "A lot of people figured this was coming and put a bit away to last till they get a part-time job," said one. "I figure I'll start looking for a job about next Monday — it's next month I'm going to need something."

The union tells us the cost of living has gone up six cents since the strike started," said another.

There is the dull routine of the picket line and the money, the pickets were quick to point right behind their union. "Everyone's backing the union," said one. "We've got to stick together when we've got this far."

"It's soon going to start affecting others — Bell Telephone will be limited I guess and the downtown merchants; people aren't going to be as busy with that strike," said another.

"This is one time the company is going to have to back down," said yet another picket.

"As soon as they get talking they could have it over fast — no-one wants it to last long," said one. "But we're not backing down."

When will it be over? "I heard June 10 but I can't say," said one. "I heard August or September," said another.

Does the time hang heavy? "I still go out and enjoy myself as best I can," said a picket. "I've been out helping on my father's farm — but not for money," said another. Yet another picket said he had painted the bedroom.

Rain or shine, night and day the pickets' vigil over the stillquiet plant goes on. Negotiations are at a halt. The company wants settlement at the Local level. The union is holding out for a centralized contract agreement which, it says, the company had earlier promised. "If the company gets things going at one or two plants they won't care about the others," said a picket. Either way, no-one is at the table.

"We get a lot of smiles and waves," said the pickets. "So far we've kept it fairly peaceful."

"A girl said some-one threw an apple at her, but that's only hearsay," said one. "I've seen no trouble."

'Not Guilty' Northern Plea

MONTREAL (CP) — Northern Electric pleaded not guilty Monday in Quebec Superior Court to a charge of illegally locking out 1,900 Montreal office employees.

The company told most of their Montreal office workers to go "off duty" May 18 because of a strike by 6,000 Montreal and 4,000 Toronto workers.

The Northern Electric Office Employees Association charged the company move was unnecessary because most office employees still had work to do despite the strike.

Production at Northern Electric was halted three weeks ago when the production employees, members of four unions, went on strike to back contract demands.

The shopworkers are demanding an hourly raise of $1.90 over a two year contract. The company has offered 54 cents over three years for a cost of living allowance worth 26 cents an hour.

The trial was adjourned to July 4.

Council Approves Crossing Guards

TRENTON — Town council Monday approved placing crossing guards at four points in the vicinity of Queen Elizabeth and Marlmora Street Schools.

On April 16, a delegation of parents requested council consider placing guards at heavily trafficked intersections. Approximately 250 youngsters who live north of Dixon Drive will be crossing Third Marlmora Street Public School instead of Queen Elizabeth.

The parents were concerned for their safety.

"It's noted that the children may be informed of processures, this matter cannot wait until September for it to be activated and run the chance of a child being killed while the powers that be discuss and plan the safety measures required," Mrs. Carolyn Tremain of 36 Bocage Street told council.

A traffic flow study of the crossings was made by the Trenton Police Department. Guards will be posted at the intersections of West and Kilchener, Dixon Drive and Marmora, Dixon Drive and Sidney and Wilmot and Sidney Streets.

Low Water Kills Idea For Races

Belleville's Olympic balloon burst this week with the report the Moira River could not accommodate white water paddling.

Two weeks ago representatives of the Ontario White Water Association and the Canadian White Water Association met with civic officials to see if there was any local interest in playing host for the white water events for the '76 Olympics.

From that meeting the city engineer's office and the Moira Conservation Authority were instructed to analyze the river's potential, taking into consideration the construction of two dams.

Both the engineer and the conservation authority concluded that sufficient water would not be available for the races which would be held in the summer, the driest season.

"There would be nowhere near enough water for the event," said Wilbur Purcell, city engineer.

The race requires a minimum of three feet depth with water travelling at a rate of six feet a second.

A spokesman for the white water association said the association appreciated the efforts of the city but the group would now look for another site, perhaps closer to Olympic City — Montreal.

Because of the scarcity of lakes, the kayak paddling events could be left out of the games even though the sport was born in Canada. Held in Germany for the first time during the last Olympics, organizers have said the event should be dropped because of the expense of a man - made course costing them $3-million.

TANYA TKACHENKO, member of Toronto's Royal Conservatory of Music board of examiners visited Belleville May 22 and will return June 30 to adjudicate local competitions. Mrs. Tkachenko studied in Russia's Kiev Conservatory before joining the faculty of the Royal Conservatory of Music in 1962.

Trenton Taxpayers Will Pay More This Year

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Taxpayers in Trenton will have to dig a little deeper to meet the average six per cent mill rate tax increase approved by town council last night.

Hardest hit will be the residential taxpayer, who faces a $7 mill increase, seven mills the result of the added school levy, the remainder Trenton's over-all three mill hike.

Separate school supporters will receive a better deal. Because of a reduction in their school levy, their 1973 mill rate increase has been set at 2.91.

Approval of the increase, despite $40,000 in provincial grants and a 1973 surplus of $63,000, did not get through council without a battle. For weeks now the finance committee has been studying the figures and last night, Mayor Duncan McDonald called a special closed budget meeting that delayed the regular council session by an hour.

Upon presentation of the budget, both the mayor and councilor Ronald Price voted against the mill rate increase.

"I'm not satisfied we're being used to provide a surplus for the province," said Price. "I used to ease the taxpayer's burden," he said after explaining his decision to Councilor Peter DeGroot in order to speak on the floor of the committee of the whole.

The mayor said the provincial grants awarded Trenton "were intended to relieve the tax burden".

"I'd much rather have seen the full grant go to the people," he said, indicating he was undertaken with the $400,000, taking into consideration the $63,000 surplus the town emerged with a $63,000 surplus.

But Councilor Robert Patrick, chairman of the finance committee, disagreed. He said the 1973 budget and income could have left a step in the right direction. It's prudent to reduce the capital debt by a certain level," he said.

In low@Treasurer Brian Fagan's figures, $1,161,161 (representing 10.98 mills), is to be used to reduce the projected necessary 13.48 mill rate increase to three mills.

The balance of the provincial grant, $232,918 can be applied against future capital projects.

This will result in a savings of $28,500 in debt payments over the next 20 years; reduction of the town's debenture debt by $27,500 for each cushion of 11 mills in 1974 to offset a nine mill increase in debenture debt payments and other increased costs; plus provide for an increase in 1974 treasurer grants from the provincial government.

Additional capital is necessary because of an over-all capital budget increase for all departments of $775,860 above the 1973 budget.

Of this, $114,206 includes salary, wage, and employee benefit increases, no official built increases, $57,050 in increased educational costs and such capital expenditures as a new fire truck, partial payment for new town offices, a heavy increase in road repair work for 1974, $13,000 to repair the roof of the Trenton Community Gardens plus $20,000 for repairs to the swimming pool at Trenton High School.

Councillor John Bonn said when the mill rate was beyond had been received of the provincial grants. He said the town was faced with a projected 24 mill rate increase "if we wanted to go ahead with these much-needed projects".

By applying portions of "will cut down on the cost of and debt, plus increasing the mill rate slightly, he said it "will cut down on the cost of borrowing money, a fact this town has always been burdened with."

"This will leave us with a sound financial oasis," he predicted.

Commercial taxpayers will also face an increase. The public school rate will 11 increase 10.5 mills, the commercial separate school rate by 9.5 mills.

The new mill rate structures are listed with the 1972 schedules in brackets: Residential public, 136.9 (127.3); residential separate 155.564 (132.654); commercial public, 150.518 (140.018); and commercial separate, 169.033 (146.134).

To the average Trenton residential taxpayer assessed at $3,500, the increase will be estimated a 1973 increase of 75 cents a week, or $105.50 annually for the seven mills.

Estimated total revenue for Trenton is $3,815,161 with estimated expenditures set at $3,758,908. This will result in a surplus of $57,668 surplus if costs, do not exceed estimates by 1.5 per cent.

Largest allocations for 1973 are in the areas of education and public works, the latter considered-much - needed in the past. The educational allocation in 1972 is $932,129 ($851,000 in 1972). The estimated budget for public works is $988,500 ($794,546 in 1972).

Also the largest increase for 1973 was for the Trenton Police Department. The budget-$1,115,000 increase over the 1972 figure of $355,782, was chiefly taken up by $83,000 in increased salaries and employee benefits.

Council had budgeted $250,-000 for the fire department, up more than $15,000 over last year's budget, and $58,280 for the recreation and parks budget, up more than $10,000 over 1972. The parks board had originally asked for $78,200.

Even though Mayor McDonald failed in his attempt to maintain the 1972 mill rate, one of his recommendations was accepted by council last night. The finance committee had changed due dates for tax payments for one in July, the second in August. Town treasurer Fagan said the change would save the town $1,500 in interest rates.

Mayor McDonald argued that changing the tax collection dates to none so close together would be "too much of a burden." Council agreed and the existing August 1 and October tax due dates will remain.

Mall's Fate Uncertain

TRENTON — As of last night's town council meeting, it still appears the 1973 downtown merchant's shopping mall is all, to be replaced by a sidewalk sale.

A petition signed by 14 merchants and prepared by car dealer Vagn Lange was tabled on protest more vigorously this plan," that calls for closing off Dundas Street West for three days in July.

The merchants have objected, stating it is unfair that so many businesses.

They feel that the town has no right to bar traffic from passing our doors while a new one is given undue consideration to other merchants in town," the petition reads.

Councillor Ronald Price agreed that in cases such as this, council must "listen to the wishes of the people and merchants" represented. But, he added, these same merchants had every opportunity to go to the meetings" held by the committee when they were planning this third annual mall in conjunction with the Trenton Chamber of Commerce.

Mayor Duncan McDonald said he has been confused by reports concerning the status of the mall. He said most of pleased from newspaper reporters.

Councillor Price said the matter is not a council matter. "We passed a bylaw to close the streets at the request of the Chamber," he said, adding if a change is desired, council should be asked to rescind the bylaw.

Town deputy clerk Arden Boyce informed council a letter had been received from the Chamber of Commerce requesting the street closure request be ignored and council simply consider a sidewalk sale along Dundas West and from Dundas along Front Street to Elgin Street.

No word has yet been received from members of the merchants' association, but apparently further meetings are scheduled before a final decision will be reached and the fate of the mall known.

Hospital, College Agree Nurses to Train at BGH

Student nurses at Loyalist College next year will get clinical experience at Belleville General Hospital.

At Friday's meeting of the board of governors of Belleville General Hospital an agreement with Loyalist College was approved that will make the hospital available for clinical study.

Under the terms of the agreement the hospital retains full responsibility for the care, treatment and safety of its patients, whose interests are protected.

The number of student nurses using the hospital at any one time and the student-teacher ratio for each clinical area is set by each clinical by the hospital's department of nursing, against the needs of the clinical areas will be opened to the students at the final decision of the department of nursing.

The agreement charters the effective decision on patient assignments and the right to interview if a student or teacher is acting, in the hospital's opinion, against the policies, welfare or hospital regulations, rules, policies or procedures.

Meetings between the nurs

Trustees Question Classroom Work

John Forbes asked how the schools are approaching the conversion to the metric system and learned that two teachers' workshops have been held on the subject. Sir John A. Macdonald School has produced a film on the metric system and a number of study for grades 1 to 6 is now in preparation.

So far, our approach has been exploratory, but the schools will be getting into it in September," said director of education Eric Runacres.

Donald Thrush didn't get as definitive an answer when he asked if it were true that students know more about the American system of government than about Canada's.

Mr. Runacres told him that students study concepts of government around the world, but not all students study civics.

Donald Williams zeroed in on a common complaint of students; one he said was raised by a student on the curriculum committee last year, that homework assignments are often piled on at the end of the term or the end of the year.

"A teacher may have to give three tests a term, but it is not good if he gives them all in the last week of school," said Mr. Williams.

"We shouldn't burden child unnecessarily," agreed Mr. Runacres.

Mr. Williams asked for assurance that the students' complaint had been taken back to principals. The director said it had gone before the principals' cabinet, but promised to "take a reading" to be sure the complaint had been acted upon.

Camp Registration Forms Available

Legislation forms are available throughout Belleville and district schools today for day camping sponsored jointly by the YMCA and the city recreation committee, Miss Miller.

This is the third year for the program which in its first two years took hundreds of children between the ages of eight and 12 for day camping at Vanderwater Conservation Area, 20 miles northeast of the city.

The camp will operate over four, two-week sessions with the first session beginning July 15.

Mrs. Darlene MacInnes, a graduate of Waterloo University, majored in outdoor education, will co-ordinate this summer camp.

Children attending the camp will be gathered after morning at various points about the city to be transported to the conservation area by school bus. Following the day's activities of nature trails, fishing, swimming, nature lore and handicrafts, the children will be returned to the YMCA for showers and swimming.

Fees for the camp are $20 for a two-week period, ($16 for an additional child from the same family), $12 for one week and $10 for an additional child. Depending on the income of the leader for the camp, the program sponsors plan to subsidize approximately up to 25 per cent of the campers free of charge in cases of low family income.

Interested parents may contact either the Y or the city recreation department on Pinnacle Street for additional information. Registration is to be completed by June 16.

Nordiques Sign Dale Hoganson

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec Les Nordiques have hired defenceman Dale Hoganson to the World Hockey Association but are having trouble getting other National Hockey League players to join the team.

Hoganson, who spent most of the 1971-72 season skating in he played 26 games for Montreal Canadiens' team-mates performs, signed with Les Nordiques. The club did not announce the length of the deal.

It was also announced at a news conference Monday that Jean-Claude Tremblay, another former Canadien defenceman, had been named a playing-assistant coach. Tremblay was captain of Les Nordiques last season.

Hoganson, a 23-year-old native of North Battleford, Sask., played 38 games for Montreal this year and had two assists. He was the top dark pick of Los Angeles Kings in the 1969 NHL amateur draft and played with the Kings and their American Hockey League affiliate at Springfield before being dealt to Montreal along with goaltender Denis Delorely, forward Doug Robinson and defenceman Noel Price in exchange for goalie Rogatien Vachon.

Jacques Plante, general manager and coach of Les Nordiques, was happy about the signing of the defenceman but at the same time had a less optimistic report on other attempts to sign players.

With only announcing any names, Plante said Les Nordiques are dickering with seven NHL players at the present time. There were reports during the weekend that Les Nordiques had signed defenceman Bob Murdoch, sent forward Rejean Houle, both members of the Stanley Cup champion Canadiens.

Houle, just returned from a Florida vacation, said in Rouyn-Our., he had met with Plante during the recent Stanley Cup playoffs in Black Hawks.

"I told him that we might have the opportunity to get together after the playoffs." Houle said in a telephone interview. "There was no question of discussing a contract or money."

Indonesia Makes It To Final

JAKARTA (Reuter) — Rudy Hartono, the world's No. 1 badminton player, clinched victory for Indonesia over Thailand in the Thomas Cup semi-finals Monday night.

It is the sixth successive time that Indonesia has reached the final of the world's badminton team championship.

Indonesia began the second day with a 4-0 lead. Rudhi Jaryen postponed the inevitable when he won the first singles for Thailand, beating Indonesian veteran Muljadi 15-12, 14-18, 15-8.

But then Hartono, holder of the All England title, quickly gave Indonesia an unbeatable 5-1 lead in the nine - match contest, defeating Sakdi Rattanasorn 15-5, 15-4.

Canada plays Denmark to determine which will face Indonesia in the final. The Canadians beat India 5-4 to advance to Tuesday's semi-final.

Bobby Moore Considering Retirement

LONDON (AP) — Bobby Moore's long reign as captain of England may be drawing to a close as the team prepares for the big push into the final stage of the 1974 World Cup.

After 11 years and 104 appearances for his country, Moore had been considered almost indispensable to England's World Cup triumph in 1966 was largely based on a defence centered on Moore.

But Moore, 32, made a little-publicized admission in a newspaper published in the area around his West Ham club's ground in east London. He said he is seriously considering following the example of former England colleagues Jack and Bobby Charlton and retiring while he is still at the top.

"As soon as we are able to gather all the facts, a decision will be made very quickly."

Muirhead said that as far as club directors are concerned, Herron is innocent until proven otherwise.

"We are looking at this thing strictly on its merits and what we will have on our football club."

Bombers Want The Facts

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers executive said Monday they are investigating all the facts behind the weekend arrest of all-star ballback Mack Herron for possession of marijuana.

President Gordon Muirhead of the Western Football Conference club said following a special board of directors meeting that no decision regarding the 24-year-old former Kansas University star's playing status will be made until next week.

"Naturally the club is deeply concerned," said Muirhead.

500 Rescheduled for Today

Fiery Crash Mars Indy Start

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The 57th - Indianapolis 500 was rescheduled for today after being hit Monday by the race driver's two worst nightmares—a fiery crash and a downpour.

The crash came on the main straightaway only seconds after the lead cars of the 33-car field had started the rain-delayed 500-mile race Monday. It stunned the crowd of more than 300,000.

Driver David (Salt) Walther, 25, of Dayton, Ohio, and nine spectators were taken to hospital. Walther in critical condition with burns to 40 per cent of his body, a broken left wrist and a possible back injury.

Several drivers complained about the start and the way the accident occurred. Mike Mosley, involved in an accident last year the past two years, told starter Pat Vidan:

"This is terrible. Nobody was in position behind the front row. Both of A. J. Foyt's cars (Foyt and George Snider) passed me before we got to the green light. I am not saying it was their fault. Nobody was in position."

Chief Steward Harlan Fengler said he thought the start "looked pretty good."

Most of the injured spectators suffered burns.

Drivers Mike Hiss and John Martin received minor injuries and were expected to be in the field today if their cars could be repaired in time.

Crews of the cars damaged in the 10-vehicle wreck and Speedway repair crews worked throughout the night to get both the cars and the track ready for the race.

Walther's car rammed into the wall, turned upside down and exploded in flames. The crash sent a shower of debris that denied several other cars and flew into the front rows of the crowd only about 20 feet from the track.

The crash sheared off two steel poles supporting a cable and wire mesh fence above the wall, but the cables kept the cars and bigger pieces of the wreckage from going into the grandstand.

Only Walther's McLaren was ruled out of the race.

In addition to Walther, Martin and Hiss, the crash also involved Wally Dallenbach, Lee Kunzman, Jim McElreath, Mosley, Dick Simon, Hobbs and Lloyd Ruby. It focused in the middle of the 11-row grid.

The front row—polesitter Johnny Rutherford and former champions Bobby Unser and Mark Donohue were not involved in the accident, nor were three other former champions, three-time winner Foyt, Mario Andretti and Al Unser.

"I haven't eaten for two days," he said. "You get all psyched up for a race like this and look what happens—rain. It drains you of everything you've got."

SHIFT INDY TELECAST

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The American Broadcasting Co. said Monday it will broadcast the postponed Indianapolis 500-mile auto race on a delayed-tape basis from 9 to 11 p.m. EDT tonight. The race, postponed by rain Monday, was to have been televised Monday night.

Fuming Bettenhausen Demands Roll Cages

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — "How much longer are we going to let this go on?" fumed Gary Bettenhausen, starting at the wreckage of David (Salt) Walther's 77 McLaren-Offy in the Speedway's Gasoline Alley.

"We'll keep on having serious injuries and deaths until we put roll cages on these cars. I've been fighting for them for a long time. The drivers are 98 per cent in favor of them. Still nothing is done.

"Look how many deaths we've had from cars that land upside down. I'm one of the few guys to walk away from such a wreck. But the guys are just too proud or something to go for the cages."

The 25-year-old Walther was the chief casualty in a nine-car accident Monday on the first lap of the rain-delayed Indianapolis 500.

His car bit the outside wall, severed two support poles, flipped over, spun and burst into flames before the startled eyes of spectators in the main grandstand.

He was reported in stable but serious condition from burns to 40 per cent of his body and a broken left wrist.

Two other drivers were treated and released, and eight spectators, hit by flying parts, also were taken to hospital.

An hour after the flaming crash, after most of the 330,000 spectators had begun streaming out to await today's second-try at the race, Walther's garage on the north end of the alley was grim.

Bettenhausen, whose father has clashed and died on the old brick and concrete oval, and Walther's chief mechanic, Tom Smith, examined the wreckage as other members of the team and pit crew, including one of Salt's six brothers, Jeff, stood by in silence.

"I got a good look at it," said Smith. "It was a tight squeeze going down that straightaway and I think he was bumped."

"Looks like his right rear tire blew," said Bettenhausen. "There were some skid marks and they looked like they got heavier."

Bettenhausen had dropped in out of interest both in the man and in the car. If he could find out what happened to the car during the crash he might save the lives of other drivers. The need for roll cages dominated his analysis.

"They are compulsory now on sprint cars and midget cars, every kind of car except these," Bettenhausen said. "I remember one year six men were killed in sprint races when their cars turned over. Since the cages were installed, I know of only two."

Bettenhausen had his car turn eight flips before landing upside down in 1969 at Milwaukee.

"I was just lucky. Later I told one of the drivers that we should have protective cages and he just laughed at me. I believe it."

Walton Likes Saints' Offer

TORONTO (CP) — Boston Bruins forward Mike Walton says he's considering a $100,000-a-year deal with Minnesota Fighting Saints of the World Hockey Association.

It's a deal he wants to get out of Boston, where he's played 10 years and "I like as much as any city," he said Monday.

"That's not the reason. The reason is I want a better contract."

He said he's negotiating with the Bruins and with another National Hockey League team, Los Angeles Kings, "but Minnesota's offering me the most and I'll probably go where the best offer is."

"I'm looking for at least a three-year contract. What Minnesota's offered would give me to my decision."

He expects to make a final decision within five days.

He said he would like to stay with the high-calibre play of the NHL, but "it's good conviction to say that I'll go with Minnesota if don't get a better offer."

He signed a one-year contract with the Bruins last year, not wanting to sign a multi-year contract "because I knew the new league would be tested."

"I'm very fortunate I didn't."

Another factor is the fact that his brother, Bob, who played last year with Seattle Totems of the Western Hockey League, is also negotiating with Minnesota.

"I'd like to play with Bob. That would lend a little weight

Antigonish Boxer Wins Amateur Title

UNIONDALE, N.Y (CP) — Carroll Morgan of Antigonish, N.S. unleaded his right-hand bombs early and won the North American amateur heavyweight boxing title Monday night, stopping defending champion John Chapman in the first round.

The 25-year-old Morgan's second straight win, his second knockout in three days, highlighted the meeting of Canadian and American boxing champions.

But for the fourth straight year, Canada failed to win a team championships, six matches to three.

Morgan, a graduate of St. Mary's University in Halifax, made short work of Chapman. Referee catching the Canadian's medical student with a right hook on the jaw in the first minute.

A dozen punches put the American down. He was standing when the referee counted nine and then stopped the fight after 2:14 of the first round.

Third Period Barrage Sinks Picton Team

The Picton Kinsmen controlled the major part of the first period in their box lacrosse game against the Belleville Juveniles Monday, but in the second their grasp of the proceedings began to slip.

In the third frame, the Kinsmen fell apart at their gold and blue seams as the Juveniles set up a barrage of shots which hit the mark for seven goals to win their first outing of the South Central Lacrosse Association season 9-2.

Except for a late rally in the third period, the Kinsmen not only couldn't score but they had difficulty getting a clean shot on net as the Juveniles ran the ball for the major part of the period.

Kevin Whipple scored both Picton's goals with his second coming with 3:48 remaining in the game. Larry McQuaid set up Whipple with a pass in front of the net and the forward beat goaltender Steve Hale for the tally.

The Picton club, playing with one practice under their belt and without a coach, outshot Belleville in the first third of the game. Without the outstanding work of Doug Semark in the Juvenile's nets, Picton would have ended the first period leading by a wide margin instead of the 1-1 tie.

Gabe Krekk polled Belleville into a slim 2-1 lead at the end of the second period. With 3:28 spent in the third period, Krekk led off the scoring burst for Belleville.

Through the savagery of Picton's checking increased in the final frame, Kerry Reid and John Maracle both scored double tallies while Alan Tebworth and Audie Brant each earned singles.

After the game, Tebworth was particularly pleased with himself saying that he earn ed more points in a single game than he did in his entire season last year. "Tebby" Tebworth saw action in the nets in his previous season.

Though David Dreby only managed to score Belleville's first goal of the game which saw 28 penalties handed out to Picton and 11 to the Juveniles, the forwars persistently threatened Picton netminder Jerry Harrison.

Doubleheader Rescheduled

Last night's commercial Softball League doubleheader postponed because of the weather, has been rescheduled.

The games will be played Sunday night with the Devolin Motors Ellis Juniors contest set for a 7 p.m. start and the Trenton's Auger's Men's Wear - Bardon Supplies match to follow at Alemite Park.

League secretary Vern Whalen made the announcement this morning.

Stewart - Warner Bats Are Booming

Breaking out the heavy artillery, Stewart Warner blasted The Intelligencer 17-2, in the only one of three scheduled Industrial Softball League games that was played Monday.

The winners lashed five home runs, two by Ron Tracze in an 18-hit attack. Bob Tomaso, winning pitcher in relief for Marvin and Dennis Ray had the others.

Tomaso added a double and a triple to his contribution. Marvin, a single and a double and Tracze a double. Gerry Lewis had two singles, Bill Lynch doubled with one single apiece for Fred Davis, Jim Henn, Bob Hunter, Bob Young and Lenny Hegadurn.

Bill Cooney was the only Intelligencer player to produce more than one base hit. He connected for a double and a single. The losers' other safeties, all singles, went to Fred Stickle, Randy Derry, Rick Hay and Doug Walsh.

Women's Darts Event Attracts 30 Teams

Thirty teams entered the Ontario Women's Darts Tournament held Saturday at Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 99. The event was sponsored by Chiasson's Tropical of Trenton and the conveners were Bill Salter and Dave Evans.

The team championship was won by Jessie Mustard, Shirley Powers, Queenie Salone and Marg Mervigan of the Toronto Naval Club. Trenton's Joan Chiasson, Muriel Frauts, Sheila Allison and Irene Beeston finished in the runner-up position.

Teams from Consecon and Ottawa tied for third place.

Lois Middleton and Lil Mc-Donald of Frankford were captured the doubles title with second place going to Nell Crevier and Audrey Woodcock of Hastings.

Tied for third place were Belleville's Fay Evans and June Newlands and Trenton's Jean Frauts and Joan Chiasson.

Branch 99 will host the Legion Provincial Darts Tournament June 2.

Dairy Queen, Ziebart Win

In Belleville Minor Lacrosse Association novice play Monday, Dairy Queen defeated Quinte Mall 5-3.

In peewee house league action, Ziebart took the win by a similar two goal margin over the Belleville Police Association team. Ziebart won the contest with a 4-3 final.

Tennis Stars At Trenton

TRENTON — Ontario's two top ranking amateur tennis players will be showing their stuff in exhibition matches here June 3. Harry Farquier and Keith Carpenter will show the area tennis buffs how the game is played beginning at 1 p.m.

The exhibition will take place at the new tennis courts at Centennial Park here, and is being presented by the Trenton Lawn Tennis Club. Admission is free.

Track and Field Club Plans for Season

A vitally important meeting concerning the future of the Belleville Kenmore Track and Field Club is scheduled for tonight at the Recreation - Access Centre at 7 o'clock. Enthusiasts of the sport are very anxious to have a competent executive elected at the meeting.

Now in its fourth season of operation, the Club is hoping to attract more athletes for summer's track and field program. Over the past three years with the assistance of the Kinsmen, the club has trained a number of successful athletes who have brought recognition to Belleville.

Arrangements have been made to use the facilities at the Ontario School for the Deaf here.

Already recruited to form a nucleus for this year's club, are Quinte Secondary School sprinters Paul McQuaid and Kevin Jondrea. Former Quinte track star Jim Sled will also participate.

Distance runners John Shepard of Quinte and Centennial Secondary School's Jim Thompson along with Ron Casey, Ontario Federation of Secondary Schools' competitor in the throwing events are other well known athletes taking part.

Plans are being made to increase the number of meets the club will compete in this season. Belleville will host one of the meets during the summer.

A large turnout for tonight's meeting would go a long way to assuring a successful season for the club.

BMSA Game Results

Complete Rest - ails and Belleville Plaza earned wins in Belleville Minor Softball squirt division play last week. Rest-ails topped Sidney Inn 15-6 while the Plaza players outscored O'Neil Stationery 25-5.

Alan Derry and John Munkittrick led the Rest-all hitters. Alan banged a triple and two singles while John came through with two doubles and a single. Munkittrick also had a good day in the pitching department, logging 17 strikeouts on the way to the win.

Three doubles each were recorded by Sidney Inn's Danny Rose, Paul O'Connor and Mike Miller.

Top hitters for the Plaza in the big win over O'Neil were Brent Pittman, David Wilton, Steven Hannah and Stephen Ashbury who were credited with four each. Terry Vance and Dave Dagley had two apiece for the losers.

In bantam action, Pit Bunny SAGO peewee allstars 11-8 and Stephen Licence squeezed past Belleville Police 6-5.

Pit Bunny pitcher Bob Chase along with John Jladpoules paced the hitting attack with three safeties. Dwight Begley slugged a triple.

Danny Vance chouted a bases loaded triple for the peewees who got a fine display of fielding by first baseman Bob Hedge.

Winning pitcher Chase clothed eight on third strikes while the losers' Tim Soule fired third strikes past five batters.

Stephen License got a solid hitting effort from Don Doornbos who supplied four safeties including the one that drove in the winning run. Rose Lawrence had two hits for the winners.

Bill Forbes got the win going all the way, recording 15 strikeouts while walking eight.

Jim Cole was the leading hitter for Police with two. Pitchers Steve Hannah and Randy Smith put third strikers past 12 batters and walked four.

Brains and Brawn Pressed To Serve

By AL ZABAS
Staff Sportswriter
(Nineteenth of Series)

Rob Foster didn't lose a lot of sleep over his play with the Bobcats, but the 18-year-old forward was not so unconcerned with his hockey that he left the arena and entirely forgot about the game.

"You pretty well have to think about what you're doing," said Foster. "A lot of time was spent thinking about hockey. School came easily, so I thought about hockey. Besides, hockey always comes before school, at least it did this year."

Along with the rehashing of his own performance and considerations upon the science of the game, the mild mannered left winger did his fair share of the scoring for Belleville's Metro Jr. B. entry. Over his 36 regular season starts, Foster earned 18 goals, 22 assists and was one of few Cats who was penalized for only seven minutes. In the playoffs, the Quinte Secondary student earned seven goals and four helpers.

But his play was not without error as he readily admits.

"I figured most of my mistakes, the majority of the time were from not acting quickly enough," said Foster.

"You have to do what you have to do quickly or it's too late.

"If they score a goal, it's either because you weren't quick or you held back. But the reaction to situations isn't physical. It's mental, and therefore it's a matter of preparing yourself.

"If you can't react quickly enough physically, you would rta have made the team anyway."

But Foster did make the Cats' roster, though after an early season scoring spurt, he ran into some bad luck. He felt he did not do as well as he wanted to, though he did have plenty of opportunity. "I should have worn my glasses," quipped Foster who at various times in the season played all three forward slots.

"I was playing with Rick (Meagher) at the beginning," said Foster. "That's probably why I was getting so many goals. Playing with him, goals almost come naturally, if you're to the right place."

In the playoffs, Foster said he molded himself into the style of play that went along with the line he played on — namely that of Peter Snarke and Mike Watt.

"I generally like playing aggressively, but I liked the defensive role we played. There wasn't as much work playing with Snarke, however. I had to hold back and play my wing, whereas I like playing centre had the harder job.

"Generally, the centre has to worry about the forechecking first, he's the first to make contact."

Though Foster has a year left of Jr. B hockey he will likely be heading for university come fall. Having received acceptances from three schools, Foster said he will probably be going to Queen's in Kingston. With no place for the summer besides playing the proverbial nose to the grindstone on the job, Foster said that "sooner or later I'll be playing hockey against

2 Wins in 1 Night For Red Hot Wilbur

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Wilbur Wood pitched a six-hit-ter Monday night. And he did it in both games, not one.

Wilbur Wonderful added a pair of victories to his imposing total with the latest work of art, 6-3 and 4-0 Chicago victories over the befuddled Cleveland Indians.

The White Sox left-Arm went five innings in the first game, continuation of a 16-inning suspended affair, from Saturday night, and gave up two hits and one unearned run. He fired a four-hitter in the regulation nine-inning game to bring his record to 13-3, the best by far in the major leagues.

His 13 victories are half the White Sox total.

"I've won two in one day before and I've lost two a couple of times," said Wood, grinning. "But I guess I never did it this way."

Wood, who usually pitches with two days rest, didn't find the extra work especially taxing.

"I got away with a limited number of pitches. They were hitting right on the first and second pitches much of the time."

Wood is nearly a month ahead of Denny McLain's pace in 1968, when he won 31 games and lost only six. McLain didn't win his 13th that year until June 24.

In the other American League games, Minnesota Twins defeated Baltimore Orioles 14-1, California Angels beat Milwaukee Brewers 7-4; Detroit Tigers topped Oakland A's 4-3 and Kansas City Royals turned back Boston Red Sox 5-4.

Rain postponed a contest between the New York Yankees and Texas Rangers.

Wood appeared on his way to losing Monday night's first game when he gave up an unearned run in the top of the ninth. However, his mates quickly settled things in the bottom half of the inning. Eddie Leon's single brought in the tying run and then Dick Allen's game was through with a three-run home-run with it.

In the regulation game he yielded hits in the first three innings, and then went on to shut down Walt Williams in the seventh.

The White Sox gave Wood all the runs he needed with a two-run first inning as Bill Melton doubled home Ken Berry and scored on a single by Rick Reichardt.

Jim Kaat, aided by a six-run third inning, scattered 13 hits in Minnesota's victory over Baltimore. The left-hander survived a shaky start and two homers by Bobby Grich to notch his sixth victory in eight decisions.

Steve Braun belted two basesempty homers for the Twins, one in the fifth and another in the seventh. Also included in Minnesota's 13-hit attack was a two-run homer by George Mitterwald.

Pinch-hitters Tom McCraw and Winston Llenas came off the bench to drive in runs in the seventh inning, rallying California over Milwaukee.

Bill Singer won his eighth game in 10 decisions but trailed until the seventh-inning comeback.

Norm Cash's two-run homer helped Detroit to a 4-0 lead and the Tigers held on to beat Oakland for Joe Coleman's ninth victory.

Cookie Rojas' run-scoring single capped a three-run rally in the ninth inning to beat Kansas City over Boston. Trailing 4-1 going into the last inning, the Royals tied the game on a two-run single by Kurt Bevacqua and then won it on Rojas' hit with the bases loaded.

Messersmith's Record Doesn't Come Easy

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Andy Messersmith set a modern National League record Monday night for strikeouts at the start of a game, but didn't look for any records after catcher Joe Ferguson refused to cooperate.

Messersmith dropped off Philadelphia's Oscar Tova. Del Unser and Mike Ryan for strikes in the first inning of Los Angeles Dodgers' 5-1 victory over the Phillies.

He continued to fan Phils in the second, but Greg Luzinski reached first when the third strike got away from Ferguson.

Bill Robinson and Mike Schmidt also struck out, giving Messersmith a modern National League record of six consecutive whiffs at the start of a game and matching the major league standard. Luzinski took second on yet another passed ball before Bob Bonac broke the strikeout string with an outfield fly.

Messersmith, who finished with 12 strikeouts, got Unser again in the third, and again the pitch escaped Ferguson for another passed ball and again a fanned batter scampered to first.

Elsewhere, San Francisco Giants hold off the New York Mets 6 - 5, Cincinnati Reds nipped Chicago Cubs 6-5, Pittsburgh Pirates beat Houston Astros 4-2, St. Louis Cardinals edged Atlanta Braves 3-2 and Montreal Expos knocked off the San Diego - Washington 2-a-n-y Ducks 7-6 on Clyde Mashore's five-run pinch homer with two out in the ninth inning.

Despite his strikeout spree, Messersmith trailed 1-0 until the fourth, when Willie Crawford hit a two - run homer and Ron Cey followed with a solo shot, the first home runs off rookie Dick Ruthven this season.

Mashore's game-winning blow for Montreal followed two - out singles by Hal Breeden and John Boccabella and made him the 18th player in major league baseball history to execute a pinch homerun.

San Diego pitcher Mike Corkins hit a two - run homer and Ron Fairly had a solo homer for the Padres.

A crowd of 3,161 came out to see the Padres, said earlier in the day to a Washington, D.C., group which hopes to move the club to Washington, be told.

Bobby Bonds belted a home run on the first pitch thrown by rookie Tommy Moore and added a run-scoring single as the Giants scored four times in the second en route to their victory over the Mets.

Juan Marichal boosted his lifetime record against New York to 26-8. He lost his shutout bid on John Milner's two-run homer in the sixth.

Joe Morgan singled home the winning run with one out in the ninth inning to give the Reds a comeback 6-5 victory over the Cubs. The Reds had tied the score 5-5 in the seventh on an error by Chicago second baseman Glenn Beckert that allowed Gene Locklear to score from second.

Cesar Geronimo started Cincinnati's winning rally with a leadoff double. An intentional walk and a force out at third followed before Morgan came through with his game-winning hit, a ground single off Pat Bourque's glove at first base which the Cubs argued was a foul ball. Bourque and Billy Williams homered for the Cubs.

Dock Ellis, with help from three relievers, halted his personal five-game losing streak in the Pirates' victory over Houston. Milt May homered for the Bucs and Dave Cash had a pair of RBI singles.

Washington Bound?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Joseph Damasesky, the supermarket president, could barely restrain his enthusiasm Monday over San Diego Padres becoming a Washington-based baseball team. It most likely will be next season but quite possibly, although remotely, this season after the all-star game.

Damasesky, who headed the three-man group that purchased the club for $12 million, told reporters they shouldn't go overboard just yet because, he said, the National League hierarchy hasn't approved the deal.

Damasesky, who has been trying to obtain a team for the Nation's capital for two years, said the sale was consummated May 3 in San Diego when he signed a contract.

The deal called for a deposit, believed to be $100,000; adequate financing; stadium lease, and National League approval, all to come within 45 days from the contract signing date, or by June 19.

Densky said that financing has been arranged among the National Bank of Washington, Riggs National Bank and the National Savings and Trust.

He said his group met with the Armory Board, which runs RFK Stadium, and worked out a 13-year contract.

The last obstacle, Damasesky said, was approval by the National League, which must be a unanimous vote by the owners.

Donnybrooke Date Is Off

DENVER (AP) — The Canadian-American Challenge Cup road race of the Sports Car Club of America (SCCA) tentatively set for June 24 at Brainerd, Minn., has been removed from the SCCA's circuit, it was announced Monday.

Cameron R. Argetsinger, director of road racing, said contract negotiations between the Donnybrooke track management and the SCCA had bogged down.

The Donnybrooke Can-Am event has been the second of 10 races in the series. The first is scheduled for Moosejaw Park near Bowmanville, Ont., June 10. The ninth in the series is scheduled for Mosport Park, international Speedway Sept. 30.

Ottawa Valley Gas Stations To Close as Supply Reduced

OTTAWA (CP) — A local independent gasoline retailer could be the first Canadian victim of the alleged national energy crisis in the United States.

Gary Bisson, owner of Capital Cy Gas and Parts which operates or franchises 24 stations in the Ottawa Valley, said Monday he will have to close 16 of them because he cannot buy enough gasoline to keep them open.

Mr. Bisson said it takes 22 million gallons a year to keep the stations operating, but that he had been able to buy only seven million gallons.

He said this means he will have to stop supplying his wholesale customers Friday because the amount of gasoline he can buy will only keep open the stations he owns outright. There will be 125 full-time and 120 part-time employees in Ontario and Quebec put out of work.

Mr. Bisson told a news conference there were two reasons he was unable to get enough gasoline to stay in operation.

One reason was that his company was cutting too deeply into the profits of the major retailers and the other reason was that exports of gasoline to the United States had suddenly shot up and there was not enough left to fill his needs.

Mr. Bisson said major retailers—all U.S.-owned—have always sold their surplus gasoline in the independents. But now they were shipping it south.

This same subject arose in the Commons Monday with T. C. Douglas, former New Democratic national leader, questioning Energy Minister Donald Macdonald.

Mr. Macdonald told Mr. Douglas that as far as he was aware there was no shortage of gasoline in Canada and that he had written to Mr. Bisson with this information.

Food Price Increase World's Second Highest

TORONTO (CP) — Excessive profiteering, monopoly controls by supermarkets and price rigging led to Canada entering the second highest rise in food prices among Western countries in 1972, the Ontario Federation of Labor (OFL) said Monday.

In a report, the OFL produced figures to show that retail food prices in Canada rose 8.6 per cent during 1972, double that of the United States and only marginally lower than in France.

That represents a 370-to-300-per-cent increase in food costs between the farm gate and the dinner table, the report said.

But the OFL report, aiming most of its criticism at supermarket chains, was unable to explain how supermarket expenditures.

Despite letters in every major supermarket chain asking for details of labor expenses "OFL received negative replies from everyone" OFL President David Archer said in an interview.

"What this report is trying to do is find out who takes the money," Mr. Archer said. "We must therefore find out what percentage wage at store level goes into the cost of food."

Mr. Archer said the report is to be submitted to the federal government in the hope that legislation will be passed to force supermarkets to release these details.

"Monopolistic control of processing, packaging and selling allow mass supermarket chains to stabilize and rig prices at will," the report stated.

The report said that supermarkets handle 85 per cent of food sales in Canada and in many cases have no need to deal with middle men due to monopoly controls.

"Added to this," Mr. Archer said, "there is very little, if any, price competition between the large supermarket chains. In this realm, free enterprise just doesn't exist."

The report also charged supermarket chains with "soaking the poor."

"Prices are usually higher in low-income areas than they are in higher income districts," the report said. "Among reasons given for disparity in food prices is that chains have less buying power in poor areas. In a phrase, it costs more to be poor."

NDPer Says Firms Told Supply Is Not Assured

TORONTO (CP) — Donald MacDonald (NDP—Toronto York South) told the legislature Monday that some independent retailers have been told by gasoline companies that gasoline supplies cannot be guaranteed beyond June 1 or July 1.

The New Democratic Party financial critic charged that gasoline manufactured in Canada would be going to the export market, possibly as an alternative to selling it here.

He asked whether the government has any jurisdiction over pricing or refusal to supply Canadian retailers.

Premier William Davis said Ontario's constitutional authority for such jurisdiction might be questioned but promised to check on the matter.

NDP Leader Stephen Lewis asked the premier to find out how much gasoline was being exported and where it was going.

He also asked the premier if the government was confident about adequate gas supplies.

The premier said he would check on the supplies.

Versatility Is Keynote Of Red Chinese System

China (C) — The International Race Hospital runs a fine ball of style and its staff and patients produced 50,000 kits of vegetables last year.

Doctorwig in the fields and pediatrs work as part - time doctors.

A vegear army unit is building a civilian apartment in this dy about 200 miles southwer of Peking, while a phalanx of primary-school childrenreach by like little soldiers

Students break away to work n mines and miners take me out to attend universiti.

Factries grow wheat or rice in the forecourt a nd farmrs run glass factories on the sck forty.

Its all very confusing to a visiting Westerner, this refusi of the Chinese to organ inseciety into clear-cut compartments and social strata.

If the Peace Hospital, and o elsehere, a group of visiting Canadian doctors would be told that the staff consisted of such and such number of wrkers. The confusion set in wth the questioning for details.

If we would that total break down into doctors, nurses, orderlies and others? The hosts wouldhry hard to oblige, but is a fri herbalist a nurse, doctoror neikor? And what about the textile factory worki who performs three days aweek as a radiologist, not ory taking X-rays but diagnoise?

In medicin, the blurring of the professinal hierarchy is understandable against the background of a desperate shortage of health care.

When the Communists took over in 1949, they were faced by the problem of a disease-plagued population with a ratio of perhaps one Western-style doctor for every 150,000 people. Canada's ratio is one doctor for 850 people.

What could make more sense than the long-standing Communist classification of the well-educated as intellectuals has been officially blurred since the 1966-69 cultural revolution against special privilege.

"There are three types of intellectuals," explains a Chinese authority; primary school intellectuals, middle school intellectuals and university intellectuals."

Since all Chinese have at least primary-school education, everybody thus is an intellectual.

"Engineers, doctors, people," explains the doctor at the Peace Hospital, "commune worker who mouids implements in a small factory offers an almost identical explanation why his farm is engaged in manufacturing.

In China, everyone is said to fit into just three general classes—all equal—as workers, peasants or soldiers. Even the long-standing Communist classification of the well-educated as intellectuals has been officially blurred since the 1966-69 cultural revolution against special privilege.

"There are three types of intellectuals," explains a Chinese authority; primary school intellectuals, middle school intellectuals and university intellectuals."

Since all Chinese have at least primary-school education, everybody thus is an intellectual.

Jack Davis Called Liar

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons erupted into uproar Monday when Environment Minister Jack Davis was accused of lying in a speech outside the House.

He said Mr. Davis indicated the Conservatives want only a 50-mile zone off Canadian coasts reserved exclusively for Canadian fishing while the Liberals are advocating a 200-mile limit.

That statement is an absolute fabrication, said Mr. Lundrigan.

Five Named to Food Prices Board

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumer Affairs Minister Herb Gray Monday gave to the House the names of five people who will serve on the new food prices review board.

Beryl A. Plumtre of Toronto, a long-time consumer activist, will head the board, which will look into rising food prices. The other members are Dr. Gordon L. Burton of Claresholm, Alta.; W. Grant Thompson of Halifax; Evelyn A. Rose of Vancouver, and Louis H. Lorrain of Baie d'Urfe, Que.

The board was recommended by the special Commons committee on food prices. However, the Conservatives have said the board will be useless and have urged a 90-day freeze on prices and incomes.

The NDP proposed a three point plan, including export restrictions on gasoline and other refined oil products, to avert repercussions in this country from the United States energy crisis.

The New Democrats also called for a two-price oil and gas system to protect Canadian consumers and urged the government to abolish the Ottawa Valley line that separates Canada into two energy markets.

Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said the problem with a two price system is that while it would lower prices for Canadian consumers, it would reduce returns for western producers.

He said the government intends to see that domestic gasoline needs are met and, if producers cannot meet those needs export controls on gasoline will be considered.

Wholesale Prices Rise

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is concerned about a rise in the wholesale price index, Finance Minister John Turner said in a Commons reply Monday to Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, who also urged temporary price and income controls.

"It represents primarily a rise in agricultural commodity and world commodity prices which will not be susceptible, until it involves a change in supply, to the type of action recommended," Mr. Turner said.

BY-LAW NUMBER 6463

A BY-LAW TO AMEND BY-LAW NUMBER 3462 AS AMENDED BY REGULATING AND PROHIBITING THE USE OF LAND AND THE ERECTION, USE, BULK, HEIGHT, LOCATION AND SIZE OF BUILDINGS AND STRUCTURES WITHIN THE CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE AND TO REPEAL BY-LAW NUMBER 3463 AND BY-LAW NUMBER 3464 AS AMENDED.

THE ENACTS AS FOLLOWS:

1. That By-law Number 3462 be amended by deleting the "YARD definition from Section 2 - Definitions, and by replacing it with the following:

"YARD shall mean any open space on a lot occupied by a building on that lot, which open space is unoccupied except by a building or accessory thereto, and which may with shall be the minimum horizontal distance between any part of a building or accessory thereto and a lot line."

2. That By-law Number 3462 be amended by adding two new subdefinitions from Section 2 - Definitions, as follows:

2.19 The portion of any building or structure to a main building which is used for the purposes of and is incidental to the use thereof.

(a) erection, alts, sever ac ommodation, or repair of which requires no more than two feet above the ground, or no more than two feet in height, or

(b) unenclosed verandas, not more than four feet in width, or more than four feet above the ground, or no more than two feet in height, or

(c) a chimney which projects not more than two feet, and

(d) unenclosed ramps, with a width not exceeding four feet, below the surface of the ground which projects no more than six feet six inches or more than four feet above the ground, or no more than six feet in height, or

(e) canopies which project not more than four feet over any entrance of the yard to which it is attached, and which may project over any of the yard, or any side or rear yards are required by zoning regulations, and which project no more than one foot over any lot line.

3. That By-law Number 3462, as amended by deleting the following words from Section 6(3)(a) of Section 6 "Exceptions" at all projections except eave or chimneys ... so that the paragraph will read as follows:

6(3)(a) The minimum width of any side yard shall be 20'-0", such additional or partial yard as may be required by this section shall be provided regardless of the existence of any yard or court maintained for the purpose of complying with or as a result of any building on an adjoining lot which has a required front or the side yard the minimum width of which is less than that required by the provisions of this by-law."

Young Pianist Deserves Better Audience Support

By EUGENE LANG

Sparse indeed was the attendance at Centennial Secondary School for the debut performance here of the young Canadian pianist Frederick L. Pritchard, but for those who were present an enjoyable recital was given last evening featuring the music of two of the pianistic greats of the 19th century, Frederic Coopin and Franz Liszt.

Born in Toronto, Mr. Pritchard is a graduate of the Royal Conservatory there and also has studied at the Western Conservatory in London. Being successful in various competitive festivals he has done concertizing in both this province and Quebec and foc.s. a tour of Western Canada in the coming year. He presently lives in Campbellford, where he is director of his own academy.

His program encompassed some of the best known solo keyboard works of the two masters mentioned. The opening Ballade in G Minor Op. 23 was well contrived, although the final presto confuoco could have sparkled more if the left hand had not overshadowed the galloping play of the upper notes. The three waltzes chosen came through very well with polished tenderness in the mournful B Minor Op. 69 No. 2 followed by a light and saucy texture in the G Flat Major Op. 70 No. 1 and concluded with lyrical poise in the A Flat Major Op. 69 No. 2. More of a rubato could have been used in these non-dancing waltzes with touching up of phrasing the final item that could have given it added charm.

The two Etudes chosen were played in exemplary fashion, the Op. 25 No 1 realized in subtle caressing of melody over filigree of undulating arpeggios. The E Major Op. 10 No. 3 brought out beauty of tone, although the middle section saw the tempo disclocated before main theme returned. The dreamy Nocturne in B Major Op. 32 No. 1 was read with placid emotion by our young artist in a lovely rendition. The lugubrious Scherzo in B Flat Minor Op. 31 was revealed in dramatic framework and forecul delivery, but some of the passage work needs resculpturing to enhance the final effect that the pianist wishes to attain. The familiar Ballade in A Flat demonstrated flair with off-beats accents clearly yet carefully conguived. Passage work here also needs rehoning, but left hand proved fluent when required.

Liszt was represented by three selections, the first being a reworking of some of the delightful piano dances by Schubert under the title of Soirees de Vienne A very good rendition was at the hands of our soloist, although a trifle of heaviness was apparent at times. Delicacy is the keynote for this music, even though Liszt did consult the original with embellishment. A little more definess of touch would be welcome.

The Maiden's Wish (originally a song by Chopin) was presented in a sensitive style that recreated its idyllic measures with romantic sincerity. The two Paganini Etudes were examples used to demonstrate the technical ability of our pianist, the La Chasse not content of virtuosity that was shown in La Campanella. The latter was given a brilliant interpretation by Mr. Pritchard which brought forth decided applause from his hearers. La Chasse could stand a reviewing and a reworking out.

One encore was given, the familiar Nocturne Op. 9 No. 2 in E Flat major by Chopin. Mr. Pritchard pleased his listeners very much by a most listenable recital and we wish him well in his forthcoming appearances, hoping he will return here and that when he does the shocking low attendance will be bolstered by a much fuller house. The sponsoring organization, CPA, are to be commended for their backing of up and coming talent, but surely they could let us know what CPA means — not too informative on their part.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Aries (March 21-April 19): However trivial the item seems, it may be a potential windfall. Your time is divided between your own and the community's welfare.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Co-operation, offer no more or any less than you'd expect in return. Make do with available resources. Social activity buzzes.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): You go along with the crowd unless you talk or get ahead of them. It's easier to clear out early, stay ahead.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Keeping up with companions is difficult. Select your activities during leisure carefully—time is golden today.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Ideas you've abandoned now work, mostly productively, and need further effort. Emphasize deeds rather than words.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Incomplete information, particularly on younger people, plagues your day. Nearly everyone is helpful if you'll only listen.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You're off base. Make amends where you must and review your plans. Live and let live.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Definite knowledge gives you power to demand what you've earned. Accept alternatives only if no better can be had.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Adventure is the mood. Even well worn routines take on a romantic quality. Take time to observe formalities.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): With luck you can avoid brash remarks of younger people, although it may be hard to stay with energetic companions, you travel farther.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You can't just send your own affairs and forget about the rest of the world. Free advice often provokes unexpected reaction.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Family matters give you pause for thought. Your prayer guides you. Write those postponed letters.

GRAVE ROBBERS

Art historian estimate that 90 per cent of Peruvian artifacts in museums and private collections come from grave robbers, who are farmers by day and treasure hunters by night.

LIVE LONGEST

The bidding:

| South | West | North | East |

Opening lead—king of clubs.

Bridge is often a contest between good luck and good play. To win when suits break not unfavorably or finesses succeed is no great accomplishment, but to win when things go against you requires more skill. Consider this deal where South got to six hearts a minimum of formality. He reasoned that partner must have jumped to three hearts — had the equivalent of an opening bid in support of hearts and he consequently knew that his own 19 high-card points would give him a good shot at the slam.

West led the king of clubs and the contract appeared to depend solely on finding the missing diamonds divided 3-2. In that case the only loser would be a diamond.

But after winning the club with the ace, drawing two rounds of trumps and cashing the A-K of diamonds, declarer discovered to his horror that the diamonds were divided 4-1, and that he would evidently have to lose two diamond tricks and go down one.

But South did not throw in the sponge prematurely. He saw that he had a perfectly legitimate chance for the slam, and he adjusted his play so as to overcome the poor diamond division.

He ruffed a club in dummy cashed the A-K of spades, and ruffed dummy's last spade. He then led the ace of clubs and permitted West to win the trick with the queen, at the same time discarding a diamond from dummy.

West was now in bad shape. He had to return a spade or a club, and in either case South would discard dummy's last diamond as he ruffed the return in his hand. As a result, South's only loser proved to be a club — he brought home the slam despite the diamond division.

Tomorrow: Unnatural play.

OLD HOUSE

The Jesuit Mission of St. Joseph de Sillery, built near Quebec City in the 1630s, is reported to be the oldest house in Canada.

To Your Good Health

No Needles Used In 'Brain Scan'

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My doctor wants me to have a brain scan done to see what is causing my blood pressure so high.

I couldn't understand the terms he used and I am a little afraid of all they do. Do they use needles and shots and will the electricity cause any brain damage?—Mrs. M.M.

A brain scan is a painless procedure. A radioactive material (technitium 99) is injected into the vein of an arm. This travels through the bloodstream and reaches the brain. Then its presence is detected by the Geiger counter.

This has no effect on you. The radioactivity is low enough so it causes no harm. There are no needles used in this test and there is no brain damage as a result.

It is a useful and frequently used procedure.

If it will reassure you, and I probably will, compare it to the ultrasound method of examining the unborn baby. In fact, because of the sound waves used in this case, iodine 131 is used instead and it is taken by mouth rather than being injected, but the principle is similar. The radioactive iodine goes to the thyroid gland and it is scanned by a Geiger counter which reacts to very small amounts of radioactivity.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been on a gall bladder diet for several years. Would it account for a chronic constipation? Mineral oil has helped but has done not much to stop the problem.

Is there any medication that could soften the material in the intestines.—E.E.

A "gall bladder diet" is essentially one that is low in fat. In some patients, uncooked fruits and vegetables may have to be avoided—this depends on how a particular patient reacts. Instead, such raw foods cause distress, don't count. Bulk (if they don't cause trouble, then eat them, and they will help the constipation.

A gall bladder sufferer who doesn't tolerate raw foods very often has no difficulty with cooked fruits and vegetables—and "stool softeners" and, especially, bulk combat the constipation. Like-wise, small quantities can tolerate prune juice which is an excellent mild laxative.

As to softening tool material, bulk producers (agar and such products which your doctor or pharmacist can recommend) are very useful. So are the so-called "stool softeners" containing dioctyl sodium sulfosuccinate.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would appreciate your comment on whether a common wax candle burning in the air in a closed room will purify the air, no. All it will do is add a little carbon dioxide and particulate matter to the atmosphere.

Dear Doctor: What is the remedy for holding back the urine? For about a week now I have had only involuntary leakage, no voluntary.—J.D.B.

This is a dangerous situation which can become critical in a very short time. Causes vary—but whatever the cause, the only advice I can give you is to see a physician now. This is urgent. I presume you are male. Prostate enlargement can cause this.

KICK THE HABIT
of rent payments, and purchase this lovely older 3-bedroom brick home with a 2-bedroom apartment upstairs to help pay for it. Beautiful yard with outdoor fireplace. Must be seen to be appreciated.

HAPPINESS RECIPE
Take a 3-bedroom split home ADD 2 baths. MEASURE a main floor family room with fireplace, ENHEAD a Hollywood kitchen, SEASON with love and care, GARNISH with neatly-kept yard and oversized patio and this home will serve you with good taste.

WHERE ELSE
can you get homes like these with $1500.00 to $2000.00 down to a first mortgage? We have a new 3-bedroom bungalow and 2 split level homes being built this summer with occupancy in September. We will be pleased to show you the plans if you drop into our office.

WHO LIKES CHILDREN ?
Nearly everyone. So if your future is tied to several you should look into the Quinte area where low taxes, excellent transport to schools, churches and Quinte Mall. Large back yard is completely fenced. Call tonight for further particulars.

'First Detailed Account'

Fifty Watched Five Soldiers Shoot Girls

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter) — The Johannesburg Star published today what it said was the "first detailed account of what really happened" when two Canadian girls were killed by Zambian gunfire at the Victoria Falls centre this month.

The front-page story, which the newspaper said was the result of a week's investigation, said that "about 80 people watched in horror" while five Zambian soldiers shot dead Christine Sinclair, of Guelph, Ont., wounded American John Crothers "and then aimed for nearly two hours at Marjan Dr0jber hiding behind a rock in the Zambezi River gorge. A mission connected with a threat to Zambia's security, the report said the sentry on duty could not have taken these steps to be innocent. His duty was to defend the power station."

The report also said it deeply regretted that the shooting had led to the death of innocent people, but added that they should have been warned about areas which were not safe to visit.

Last Friday, Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda went as far as to hold a gathering that he told Canadian officials had been "sheep herded to their deaths" by Rhodesia for their purposes.

According to the report in today's Star, all witnesses to the incident had been "ordered into silence" and "indications in Lusaka are that the Zambian Government has had the truth deliberately kept from him by officials and forces with the connivance of members of his cabinet, including Mr. Grey Zulu, minister of defence."

Nussey, whose story did not contain any direct quotes by witnesses, said he had only covered half-a-mile of the people who saw the incident "shouted angrily at the troops to stop shooting."

"One grabbed a soldier by the shoulders and shook him in fury, but was forced to let go by a gun barrel to the head."

"Marjan Dr0jber was finally hit by a burst of machine-gun fire when the troops moved to a better vantage point. She screamed and was carried away, appeared dead, by the flooding Zambezi River while the troops continued to shoot at her.

"During all this, several Zambian policemen and intelligence officers looked on in silence," the report said.

At one point, The Star added, one of the soldiers noticed that the one Israeli would thunder into the river when the shooting began was a woman (Miss Dr0jber) and told the others to stop firing at her.

But, The Star said, a man in plainclothes looking on remarked that the Arab Black September guerrilla organization had used women to blow up Israeli airliners.

"During all this the Zambian troops were in a state of near agitation, sweating profusely. They had been seen before to arrive on duty carrying bottles of beer, but there was no indication whether they were drugged or drunk on this occasion.

"The following night the five who fired were removed from the area and replaced by 50 to 60 fresh troops," the report said.

Nussey added that Zambian police had warned witnesses, most of them Africans, that they faced "dire penalties" if they talked about the tragedy.

However, he said, his story had been "built through certain although all the witnesses have been cowed into silence."

In its detailed account, The Star said that people around the junction of the third and fourth gorges, where the tip of a long Rhodesian promontory lies opposite what is called the Silent Pool and the power station, first heard shots through automatic weapons at shortly before 4 p.m. May 18.

"When the Zambians opened fire they killed Christine Sinclair almost immediately and wounded John Crothers, who fell into a niche behind a rock with his feet towards the power station and lay unmoving.

"Mr. Crothers lay just around the tip of the promontory in the fourth gorge. While echoes of automatic fire continued, the onlookers saw another person appear in the fast-running water at the edge of the fast-running water.

"Some of the watchers were on the edge of the gorge about 100 metres (30 yards) above the river and others right behind the troops on the Zambian side where there is part of the power station complex guarded by a bulletproof or 'trolley.'

"From behind the cover of the trolley, the troops fired machine-gun bursts at the figure, which appeared to be a woman, and then aimed for nearly two hours at Marjan Dr0jber hiding behind a rock in the Zambezi River gorge. A mission connected with a threat to Zambia's security, the report said the sentry on duty could not have taken these steps to be innocent. His duty was to defend the power station."

The report also said it deeply regretted that the shooting had led to the death of innocent people, but added that they should have been warned about areas which were not safe to visit.

More Increases Sure

OTTAWA (CP) — The newly-appointed chairman of the government food price review board warned Monday that price increases will not stop just because the board exists.

Beryl A. Plumptre said there will be further price increases in the near future and implied that while the board can study them and suggest solutions, it has no power to force retailers and processors to hold the line on rising food costs.

At a news conference with Consumer Affairs Minister Herb Gray less than an hour after the board membership was tabled in the Commons, Miss Plumptre said she envisages the board analyzing in depth the reasons for rising food costs. And Mr. Gray, she said, has assured her a budget adequate to fulfil the board's responsibilities.

Mr. Gray explained the absence of retail or food processing representatives on a government desire "to avoid putting people in awkward positions by appointing people not directly linked with the food industry."

Miss Plumptre said she considers the board to have "very wide powers" to do whatever is felt necessary to get to the bottom of the food price question, be heard and will direct its recommendations back to the government in "published reports."

Mr. Gray said the government has a contingency plans for wage and price controls. These would not be made available to the board, he said, "to preserve its independence from government."

Information Control Centre

This is the central control room of the Canadian Police Information Centre operated by the RCMP in Ottawa. The idea is for police forces across the country to have virtually at their fingertips information needed to help them at their work. At present there are 2 1-0 "terminals" between Ottawa and Vancouver where police can plug into the central computer network. The system is being extended into the Maritimes and by 1974 there will be some 800 of these terminals across the country. (CP Photo)

Doctors Said Hostile To Preventive Medicine

TORONTO (CP) — New Democratic Leader Stephen Lewis said Monday that Ontario doctors are hostile to preventive medicine and that the emphasis is on acute treatment.

Mr. Lewis made reference to a report by a committee established by the Ontario Council of Health that recommended that a number of procedures be taken out of the provincial health insurance plan.

He said it was "questionable, fatuous, self-defeating and indicative of a rigid medical mind" to dally to cut back in the area of cancer detection tests, mammography or pap smears as well as Papp smear."

Health Minister Dr. Richard Potter said it had been demonstrated that an annual checkup was of questionable value.

Dr. Potter said the recommendations were not to put certain procedures completely but suggested not to make them routine.

"... is it not rather a matter of the medical profession in Ontario being hostile to preventive medical practice, both in its organization and in its discipline, that we are constantly left with the emphasis on acute treatment and that is what the report shows?" sal Mr. Lewis.

Dr. Potter said the charges were ridiculous and noted that Ontario doctors have gone a long way in developing preventive procedures.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Prices on the Toronto stock market moved moderately lower in fairly active mid-morning trading today.

The industrial index, considered a fair major indicator of market trend, fell .50 to 211.45, base metals .49 to 97.15 and western oils .84 to 218.61. Golds, however, rose .46 to 274.46.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 702,000 shares compared with 416,000 at the same time Monday.

Despite the market decline, advances outnumbered losses 152 to 85, while 181 issues were unchanged.

Steel, industrial mining oil refining and merchandising stocks were lower while banks, food processing, general manufacturing and paper and forest issues were higher.

IU International fell ¼ to 2¼, Inco ⅝ to 25¾, Canadian Fire ⅛ to 5⅝ and Alcan ¼ to 22¾.

B.C. Forest rose 1¼ to 31¾.

WCI Canada ¼ to 17⅛, Toronto Dominion Bank ½ to 53¾, Canadian Imperial Bank ⅛ to 23¼ and Moore ½ to 37.

NATO Gets Cod War Demands

BRUSSELS (CP) — Iceland took its cod war fishing dispute with Britain to NATO today, and the Western alliance immediately appealed to both sides to exercise restraint and try to reach a negotiated solution.

Representatives of the 15 allies held a preliminary discussion Monday of the fishing dispute, which threatens the alliance's base in Iceland from which it keeps tracks of Soviet submarines in the North Atlantic.

Prime Minister Olafur Johannesson's leftist government said Monday that it had "demanded" that NATO see to it that "British warships immediately stop protecting illegal fishing by British trawlers within the fishing limits of Iceland or that the warships be withdrawn."

Grumbles Galore

TOLWORTH, England (CP) — John Humphrey has set up as Britain's first professional grumbler. For an annual $3,000 he'll complain on anyone's behalf to electricity boards, railway authorities and the like—the subscription buys its own person often enough for a first refusal, I consider myself rebuff-proof."

Prison Guards Said Lacking in Training

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand told the Commons Monday he would look into a charge that some prison guards were not trained before they assumed duties at the British Columbia penitentiary in New West. minister.

Stuart Legatt (NDP—New Westminster) said two guards involved in a recent escape had been on the job only three months and were without training.

And, he said the average turnover time for staff at the penitentiary is three months.

Mr. Allmand replied that, to the best of his knowledge, all correctional officers are "supposed" to be trained. He said one guard involved in the escape has been suspended pending an investigation.

Replying to Sean O'Sullivan (PC—Hamilton - Wentworth), Mr. Allmand said he "will look" into an announcement to make later this week" about the temporary have program for prisoners.

Mr. O'Sullivan said a prisoner escaped while on leave from the Collins Bay penitentiary near Kingston, Ont., and the solicitor-general had assured him Community liaison officers would be placed on prisoners out on temporary passes.

Farm Costs Up 6 Percent

OTTAWA (CP) — The cost of operating a farm jumped 6.1 per cent in the first three months of this year, Statistics Canada reported Monday.

By comparison, food prices rose 3.5 per cent in the same period, from the end of December to the end of March. And the March increase in food prices was 2.6 per cent.

Statistics Canada reported that the 6.1-per-cent increase largely was due to price increases of 18 per cent for livestock feed, 15.5 per cent for feed grains and 12.4 per cent for seed.

Costs for western farmers rose went up 4.4 per cent while those for eastern farmers rose 7.8 per cent.

The increase for the year ending March 31 was 5.6 per cent nationally, 12.4 per cent in the east and 7.7 per cent in the

Feathered Friend

WORCESTER, England (CP) — A woman patient who turned up an hour late for an appointment with her doctor explained: "My budgerigar was laying an egg and I didn't think it was right to leave my pet alone."

Sharp Receives Letter of Regret From Zambian

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Monday he has received a personal letter from Zambia's foreign minister regretting the recent shooting of two Canadian girls on the Zambia-Rhodesia border.

Mr. Sharp, in a Commons reply to Alfred D. Hales (PC—Wellington), quoted from the letter in which the Zambian minister said:

"I deeply regret the deaths of these innocent Canadian nationals. ..."

The Canadian tourists—Miss Jan Diana Dr0jber, 19, of Rockwood, Ont., and Christine Louise Sinclair, 21, of Guelph, Ont.—died after shots were fired from the Zambia side of the border while they visited the Rhodesian side of Victoria Falls.

Only Miss Sinclair's body has been recovered. The other girl is reported to have fallen or jumped into the crocodile-infested Zambezi River.

Mr. Sharp, pressed by Mr. Hales, said again that Canadian officials "are pursuing our own inquiry and we are expecting a much fuller explanation" of the shootings.

He told the Commons last week the government "will not be satisfied" with Zambian explanations and he had asked the Canadian High Commissioner in Lusaka to "make it clear that we are treating this matter very seriously indeed."

Mr. Hales asked Mr. Sharp to table the letter from the Zambian foreign minister but Mr. Sharp said he preferred to get the Zambian minister's approval because it is a "personal" letter.

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux said that as far as he is concerned, parliamentary rules require the letter, if quoted in the House to be tabled.

Mr. Sharp and Mr. Hales were to discuss the rules of order inside the House before a decision was made.

Most Jobs Are Taken

TORONTO (CP) — Most of the 7,000 summer jobs offered by the federal government in Ontario government's Experience '73 program have been filled, a month before the closing date for applications.

Margaret Birch, minister in charge of the new Youth Secretariat, the program organizer, said interviews at the start of the 17 programs in Experience '73 were completed by last week and successful applicants will be told soon.

The application forms state that the deadline is May 31.

Mrs. Birch said the province has received 10,000 applications for the 7,000 jobs. All the forms were taken and about 30,000 submitted. Some were still coming in.

She estimated 300,000 young Ontarians are looking for summer jobs this year and said the department is hopeful it will find one.

If a person is "willing to look around, it will be available," she said. "I think things look really good this year."

But Jane Brisbin, a 19-year-old Toronto Grade 13 student, said she has encountered a lot of job since March and has tried the departments of the environment, industry and tourism, and Ontario Place, without success.

Trudeau Says Talks Helpful

OTTAWA (CP) — The three-day federal-provincial conference last week made "considerable progress towards harmonizing" the goals and provincial government objectives, Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons Monday.

He welcomed a better mutual understanding of goals that would benefit all Canadians, he said.

But opposition spokesmen said they saw the conference as a virtual washout that achieved next to nothing and which ignored all major problems unsolved.

Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said he found "if any conference for a good many years . . . achieved so little in concrete results."

He said no major agreements reached were predictable. These included provincial acceptance of higher family allowances and federal offer for greater provincial flexibility in health-care programs.

Tommy Douglas (NDP—Moosamo-Cowichan-The Islands) described it as "another ho-hum conference" and blamed the outcome on the quality of federal leadership.

Social Credit Leader Real Caouette said the conference had some disappointed because negotiations never went to the heart of the one real issue—money.

Capital Punishment Decision Draws Near

OTTAWA (CP) — The atmosphere on Parliament Hill was charged with anticipation today as MPs approached one of the most controversial and contentious votes in many sessions.

The dramatic issue is whether capital punishment bill was scheduled for 10 p.m.

Passage of the bill on second reading would send to committee the bill that would repeal a partial ban on capital punishment—except for the killing of police officers or prison guards.

Similar legislation, imposed for a five-year period, lapsed Dec. 29.

Passage of the bill on second dicipated, though by a small margin, as many members—even those who support capital punishment—are eager to get the legislation into committee where they hope to make changes before returning the bill to the House for another free vote, or even defeat it.

Defeat of the legislation would mean the return of the position it held before 1967—any person found guilty of murder would be sentenced to death by hanging.

In the free vote, every member is released by his party to vote on the issue according to his conscience without regard to his position in the party. Ordinarily, members are expected to support the general stance of their party on any bill.

Killed Woman Who Looked Like Mother

TORONTO (CP) — A 40-year-old Toronto man testified Monday that he beat a woman mental patient to death last September because she resembled his mother and he treated him badly as a child.

Noble Frederick White was charged with the non-capital murder of Annette Joudrey, 34, a patient at the Queen Street Mental Health Centre where White was an in-patient.

White pleaded not guilty to the murder charge but guilty to manslaughter and Crown counsel James Crossland accepted the plea.

Mr. Justice Thomas Callon adjourned the case until June 1 so further material can be obtained.

Det.-Sgt. James Majury told court that Mrs. Joudrey, a divorcee, had been attending group sessions at the centre.

She spoke to White last Sept. 13 and they left the hospital. Mrs. Joudrey bought a bottle of gin which she and White drank with pop on grounds at the rear of the centre near construction sheds, said Sgt. Majury.

When Mrs. Joudrey spoke about her children, in the custody of her former husband in Western Canada, it angered White said the sergeant.

"He saw his mother before him," testified Sgt. Majury. "He battered the deceased with a piece of concrete."

The next day, a group of boys gathering chestnuts found the body. She died of facial and skull fractures.

Sgt. Majury said that five days later White led him and a detective to the scene and said:

"The more I drank, the more she (Mrs. Joudrey) appeared like my mother—she used to punish me terribly.

"When I drink, I get dreams of my mother beating me up all the time."

"Annette called me a bastard. I must have used my hands. I have tremendous strength when I'm angry."

Psychiatrist Irving Wayne said White was admitted to the centre three times in 1969 and once in 1972. He and another doctor considered him extremely dangerous to others.

"In my opinion, he can't be at large without representing a serious danger to the community," Dr. Wayne said.

Greater Provincial Control Of Health, Cable TV Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — An Ontario cabinet minister argued in favor of greater provincial control of health plans and cable television Monday, saying the provinces are more aware of local needs than the federal government.

Resources Development Minister A. B. R. Lawrence was speaking to about 300 delegates to the annual convention of the Ontario Chamber of Commerce.

Notes for his speech were released before delivery.

He said the provinces relied on the federal government for leadership in the areas of world trade, basic fiscal policy, unemployment, inflation and other areas needing a national outlook.

But on the other hand . . . Ottawa having established a universal health care plan and having established certain standards should keep its policy fingers out of the field of health care and delivery.

Protest Photos

TORONTO (CP) — Two New Democratic Party members of the legislature lashed out Monday at the increasing use of cameras by police in strikes and demonstrations.

Fred Young (NDP—Yorkview) said the use of cameras in strike situations smacked of intimidation and might prevent people from joining a picket line.

James Renwick (NDP—Toronto-Riverdale) said plainclothes policemen had photographed demonstrators when they protested the military government of Greece. He said Metropolitan Toronto policemen had even taken head and shoulders pictures of Greek-Canadians as they marched in an orderly demonstration.

The demonstrators, he said, feared the pictures would be relayed to Greece, where repercussions might take place.

Refuse Water

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — Council voted unanimously Monday to refuse to supply water to Multi-Malls Inc. for its plaza on the edge of the city unless the property is annexed from Chatham Township.

City Appeals

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — Two members of the Ontario police commission reserved decision Monday on the city's appeal against a $1.6-million Sarnia police budget.

Commission chairman E. D. Bell and commission member H. A. Sparling heard evidence from Police Chief Robert Cook and deputy city manager M. C. Engels. The commission said it expects to have its written decision prepared within 10 days.

Man Not Head

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. Justice Darrel Heald, an umpire for the Unemployment Insurance Commission, has ruled that the commission no longer will regard a man as automatic head of a household.

The decision decided that a man who follows his wife to another town for her career advancement can be regarded as quitting his own job for just cause.

Confusing

OSHAWA (CP) — The overlapping of federal and provincial jurisdictions has created a "ridiculous system" which allows a person convicted on an impaired driving charge to come right back on the road with a restricted licence, R. H. Humphries, Ontario registrar of motor vehicles, said Monday.

Drivers convicted under the Highways Traffic Act face a mandatory licence suspension.

The Criminal Code gives the judge the right to use his discretion in issuing restricted licences to those people to whom the use of a car is essential.

This overlap causes confusion in enforcement.

"To a policeman, the law concerning restricted licences is totally unenforceable, as he can't know whether a man is going to work or just what he is doing," Mr. Humphries said.

Protest

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — A sit-in by 750 French-speaking students was held Monday afternoon at a Cornwall high school as a protest against the proposed dismissal of two teachers.

The two teachers, Jacques Boyer and Rev. Paul Benoit, were accused of unprofessional conduct for their connection with an eight-day, student-run boycott of classes which was organized two months ago to de-

Cut Ads

OTTAWA (CP) — Starting June 4, CBC radio begins an experiment on a local show that may spell at least a partial end to commercials on the publically-owned network.

The CBC announced Monday that the daily radio show, CBC Morning, will broadcast for eight months without commercial announcements. Commercials will be scheduled on the station during the rest of the day.

In Montreal, Laurent Picard, CBC president, in a release issued through his office, said:

"I think that by January any problems which arise will be solved and that we will be able to begin the final process of returning CBC radio to its original non-commercial status on all our stations."

Canadians Returning

Truce Task Ends in July

Mitchell Sharp

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp announced Tuesday that Canada will quit the Vietnam ceasefire commission by July 31, six months after its inception.

He told the Commons the government still hopes for peace in Vietnam and has sought to make the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) a success.

"We have come to the conclusion, however, that the Canadian concept of the functioning of the international commission has not been accepted and that it would be in the interest of all concerned if we were now to withdraw."

The 250-man contingent—240 military and 10 civilians—went to Vietnam Jan. 27 after the ceasefire agreement was signed by Washington, Saigon, Hanoi and the Viet Cong.

When the initial 60-day commitment ended March 27, Mr. Sharp announced a further two-month involvement ending May 31—Thursday. He added another 30 days during which a replacement country could be found to join Indonesia, Hungary and Poland on the ICCS.

He said Tuesday that deadline has been extended to July 31 to avoid complicating negotiations between Washington and Hanoi aimed at winning stricter adherence to the much-violated ceasefire agreement.

Mr. Sharp said outside the House that U.S. presidential assistant Henry Kissinger, principal U.S. negotiator, telephoned him Friday and said extension of the deadline "would be helpful."

"Canada's decision to withdraw is firm and definite," the minister told the Commons.

But he left open a slim possibility that Canada might return to Vietnam to help supervise an election as called for in the ceasefire agreement.

"I am not convinced that there is much chance that an election will take place as provided for in the agreement," Mr. Sharp said.

"But if it should (and we would want to examine it carefully to make sure it was this kind of election), and if no replacement had been found for Canada, we would consider sympathetically a request to return temporarily to the ICCS for this purpose in the light of the circumstances then prevailing and our assessment of the chances for effective supervision."

His announcement was welcomed in the Commons by spokesmen for all three opposition parties.

Defence Minister James Richardson refused to confirm or deny reports that he had opposed the decision to withdraw while it was before cabinet.

Mr. Sharp said precise timing of the withdrawal has not been established. It would depend partly on the availability of a replacement.

He told reporters the decision was based on the apparent uselessness of ICCS, rather than on the continuing fighting in Vietnam.

"We see no evidence that it is effective."

And, in contrast to the period before the March 27 announcement to renew participation for another two months, little pressure had been exerted by other countries on Ottawa to stay on the ICCS.

Mr. Sharp confirmed recent reports from Saigon thatHungary and Poland "looked upon themselves as advocates and friends" of North Vietnam and the Viet Cong.

That difference in viewpoint between those two members and Canada and Indonesia has led the ICCS to paralysis in recent weeks.

The commission's failure was also due to refusal by the contenders to use the ICCS to help quell the fighting.

The minister told reporters the ICCS had won some success—monitoring prisoner exchanges, for example.

Canadian withdrawal will not necessarily doom the ICCS or the chances for peace, Mr. Sharp said.

Fire Halts Trains

NEW YORK (Reuter) — About 60,000 New York commuters faced a transportation snarl today as the result of a stubborn fire Tuesday night in a railway tunnel under Park Avenue. The fire cut off all traffic into Grand Central Station and railway officials were unable to say when service could be restored.

Yorty Defeated

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — Thomas Bradley, the son of poor black Texan sharecroppers who migrated to Los Angeles in 1924 to get a better life for their family, has been elected the first black mayor of the city's history, claiming victory early today over incumbent Mayor Sam Yorty.

Vote in Ulster

BELFAST (Reuter) — The British Army stepped up security operations across Northern Ireland today to prevent both Roman Catholic and Protestant extremists from disrupting the British province's first local council elections since 1967. Hardliners on both sides oppose the elections, postponed twice because of violence.

Drug Firm Charged

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — A major pharmaceutical house was charged Tuesday with 60 violations arising from the use of a contaminated intravenous solution which allegedly led to 50 deaths in 1970 and 1971. A federal grand jury in Raleigh, N.C., brought down the indictments against Abbot Laboratories of Chicago.

Iceland Expels Briton

REYKJAVIK (AP) — The Icelandic government decided today to expel British diplomat Michael Elliott on grounds that he divulged secret information on the movements of Icelandic ships.

Gold Price Is Record

LONDON (AP) — The price of gold hit a record high in London today as the U.S. dollar plunged toward new lows across Europe. The metal sold at $113.25 an ounce this afternoon.

Mexico, France, Italy May Replace Canada

SAIGON (AP — Mexico France, Italy and Scandinavian countries were among those mentioned today to replace Canada on the Vietnam ceasefire commission. But the chief of the outgoing Canadian delegation recommended an Asian country.

Michel Gauvin, chief of the Canadian delegation to the ICCS, said the peace-observing force has been "observing a war, not a ceasefire," since the truce went into effect four months ago.

He recommended that another Asian country join Indonesia on the four-nation commission to strike a balance with the two East European members, Poland and Hungary.

An Indonesian spokesman suggested that Malaysia replace Canada because "Vietnam is a Muslim and foremost a Southeast Asian problem."

The new member must be acceptable to the four signers of the Paris ceasefire agreement—the United States, North and South Vietnam and the Viet Cong.

Plan Rejected by Hoover Believed Eventually Used

WASHINGTON (CP) — A secret White House plan to spy on domestic radicals, rejected once at the insistence of former FBI director J. Edgar Hoover, later was put into practice, say sources close to the Watergate investigation.

In New York, Reuters quoted The Daily News as saying the plan included a proposal to break into the Canadian embassy in Washington "to determine what said, if any, the Canadian government was providing to American draft resisters."

However, the newspaper said, the plan was never carried out.

In Ottawa, an external affairs spokesman said he had no knowledge of such a break-in plan. He said external affairs officials would examine the report before deciding what action to take, if any.

The Washington sources, one of whom said he had seen the over-all spying plan, described it as providing for an undercover team made up of representatives of various federal agencies who had access to "virtually all agencies of government."

They said the "secret agents intercepted mail, tapped telephones, audited income-tax returns and planted informers.

The top-secret text of the plan was locked in a safe-deposit box by ousted White House counsel John Dean and later turned over to a federal judge.

Asked about the domestic intelligence plan, deputy press secretary Gerald Warren would not say yes or no to a statement in which Nixon last week discussed the Watergate scandal.

In that statement, Nixon said he had withdrawn a plan to spy on radicals in July 1970 after Hoover objected to it.

An intelligence evaluation committee was established the following December "to improve co-operation among the intelligence community and to prepare evaluations and estimates of domestic intelligence," Nixon said.

The sources said they couldn't confirm whether or how long the group performed that function. But it soon became a cover for a secret police operation," the sources said.

Stanfield May Support Revised Tax Cuts Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — Prospects for Commons passage of controversial proposed corporation tax cuts improved dramatically Tuesday as the government presented its tax measures and Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield indicated he may support them.

But the worries of the manufacturers and processors who have been wailing a year for the tax cut are not over. Under the government measures, the Commons will get a chance next spring to change its mind if it passes the tax cuts now.

Finance Minister John Turner made it clear to reporters that the second look is being provided to get the tax measures through the minority Commons and that if the Liberals had a majority there would have been no such qualification.

The qualification "adds a certain element of uncertainty that I probably would have liked to have avoided," but he had a duty "to try to get the measures through in as permanent a form as I can."

"Hell, I think that's a reasonable and a sensible compromise."

Mr. Turner said businessmen can be confident the tax cut will not be withdrawn next spring, provided that they use it, the right way and not simply to increase profits.

"If they respond to this by expanding production, by increasing employment, by moderating prices, then they have nothing to fear."

With the New Democrats dead against the corporate tax cuts, the government needs Conservative support to get them through.

Mr. Stanfield said earlier this year his party would support the proposed cuts if they were limited to 1973. Mr. Turner gave that proposal a cold shoulder, saying the measures have to last longer to be effective.

Tuesday, Mr. Stanfield greeted the government announcement by saying Mr. Turner has in effect decided to adopt the Conservative proposal.

Mr. Stanfield, however, did not specifically say his party would vote for the tax measures. He said he has no faith in Mr. Turner and will examine the announcement closely to see whether it is "some kind of a ploy."

The corporate tax cut, first proposed in the May 1972 budget, would lower the tax rate to 40 per cent from 49 for manufacturers and processors.

Mr. Turner told the Commons that another May proposal, fast write-off for new machinery, would be enacted by regulation but that MPs could discuss the write-offs during general debate on the tax measure.

Canadian Firms Say Gas Ample

TORONTO (CP) — Gasoline shortages have hit parts of the United States, but Canadian oil companies insist there will be no under-supply this summer in Canada because of any exports that may go to the U.S.

Spokesmen for major companies said Tuesday they know of no cases where Canadian supplies are being affected by shipments to the U.S.

"The only gasoline we would consider exporting is surplus gasoline and we haven't had much of that lately anyway," an official of Imperial Oil Ltd. said.

A Shell Canada Ltd. spokesman said:

"Shell is committed to providing the supply of motor gasolines, diesel fuels and heating oils to its existing Canadian customers—whether branded retailers, commercial accounts, municipalities or resellers."

Energy Minister Donald Macdonald has told the Commons that if the petroleum industry "finds it impossible" to restrict exports of gasoline, the government will impose controls as it did earlier with crude oil exports.

Skylab Stays Hot

HOUSTON (CP) — It's going to be a long hot stay in orbit for the Skylab astronauts as they study earth resources and continue solar research.

Officials said Tuesday night that the temperature will probably stabilize at 80 degrees Fahrenheit or 70 as originally predicted after the sunshade was erected over the space station.

They said the 10-per-cent loss of protection, where the sunshade wrinkled due to folds in the material, may be the reason for the higher temperature.

The expensive telescope mount, an array of six complex telescopes, was turned on Tuesday afternoon by Kerwin, who initially had trouble zeroing in on the sun.

Princess Anne to Wed Soldier

LONDON (CP) — Sporting a sapphire-and-diamond engagement ring and a happy grin, Princess Anne stepped off the overnight train from Scotland today after springing what one London commentator here called the best-kept royal secret in years.

The Queen's 22-year-old daughter and Lieut. Mark Phillips, 25, had been engaged since Easter but after all the earlier speculation and firm denials by the couple, even close friends were taken by surprise when the official announcement finally came from Buckingham Palace Tuesday.

The wedding is expected to be in mid-November, either at Westminster Abbey or St. George's Chapel, Windsor.

A palace spokesman said that at the time of the denials "they really had no thought of getting married."

"It was only decided over the weekend after the Badminton horse trials."

On that occasion, equestrian star Phillips, an Olympic gold medallist, who has been in keen rivalry with champion horsewoman Anne, got a soaking when his horse threw him at a water-jump and had to retire from the field.

The engaged couple were to lunch later with both sets of parents at Buckingham Palace. Phillips then is due to rejoin his regiment, the Queen's Dragon Guards, in West Germany.

The regiment is on standby later this year for passing to Northern Ireland, but it is understood Phillips will not go with them. Early next year he will be posted to Sandhurst military academy as an instructor with the acting rank of captain.

It is expected he will be urged to accept an earldom, as did Anthony Armstrong-Jones, who married Princess Margaret. Angus Ogilvy, the businessman husband of Princess Alexandra, declined a title but the husband's of sovereign's daughters usually are expected to take a hereditary peerage.

The Phillips family is modestly wealthy and Mark, though a commoner like Armstrong-Jones and Ogilvy, has severe aristocratic among his relatives His aunt is a sister of the Duke of Norfolk, the Earl Marshall of England, and he also is related through his mother's banking family, the Tiarks line, to the Duke of Bedford.

Engaged

The above picture shows Princess Anne and Lieut. Mark Phillips at the Badminton horse trials in April, after which, a palace spokesman says, they decided to wed.

Nursing Homes Invite Visitors

This is nursing home week in Ontario, when the public is invited to visit and share the life of the community with residents of the homes.

"To retain the dignity of community life, the participation of the community is needed — it takes participation by the public to make nursing homes truly homes within the community," says the Ontario Nursing Homes Association.

Nursing homes are now funded by the Ontario government as part of the total health care plan.

Nursing homes in Belleville are Belcrest Villa, Prindle Convalescent Home, Maple Haven Nursing Home, Montgomery Lodge, Sheppard Nursing Home and Woodcock Nursing Home.

Fined $100

Phillip Joseph Allore of RR4, Tweed, who admitted grabbing a police officer by the arm and shoulder while attempting to intervene in the arrest of a friend, was fined $100 in Provincial Court Tuesday.

Mr. Allore, 27, was said to be shouting "Let him alone, he's not hurting anyone," as he stepped in during a May 16 disturbance at the Sun Valley Motor Inn.

He pleaded guilty to a charge of obstructing an officer before Judge J. L. Clendenning.

Girl Bitten

MARMORA (Special)

Miss Judy Neal, 6 McGill St., Marmora, was bitten by a collie dog last week as she and three friends were riding their bicycles on Madoc St. near the Marmora Senior School. No charges have been laid, but the owner of the dog has been ordered by Ontario Provincial Police to keep the animal tied.

Honor on Retirement

Consumer Education Course to Be Offered

Loyalist College will offer an evening extension course in consumer education beginning next September.

Course coordinator Rick Williams said the course will touch all areas of consumerism including legal and insurance involvements.

If the 15-week course works out well, it will become a full credit course in the spring.

Sparked by a current Local Initiatives Program dealing with consumer education, the college program will use a publication Dollars and Sense as part of the course foundation. This publication was produced through the local LIP program.

Mr. Williams said guest lecturers will teach the course including members of the LIP program who have spent the last few months researching the local situation.

To Get Advice

TRENTON — Members of the Mesport race track fire-fighting team will be receiving some expert training on how to handle crashes this Saturday.

They will be the guests of the CFB Trenton fire department.

A spokesman for the fire department said this morning Environment Canada has been advised of the clouds of dense smoke that will rise above the base at about 1 p.m. when the training sessions are scheduled to begin.

Extensions Cut Off

Because of the current strike of Northern Electric Company employees, Bell Canada has placed an embargo on the installation of extension phones.

The cutback in phone installations was put into effect Monday of this week.

The move was made necessary due to the strike of Bell's wholly-owned subsidiary, Northern Electric, which produces the pieces for Bell.

A spokesman at the Bell office in Belleville said that a single phone installations in any color could be made to subscribers but no extensions could be installed.

City Automobile Dealer Is One of 13 Honored

John J. Trudeau of Belleville has been chosen by the Automobile Dealer Association of Ontario as its winner in the TIME Magazine Quality Dealer Awards program for 1972.

The 13 award winners from across Canada are judged by their achievements as active citizens in their communities and their performance as automobile dealers. Mr. Trudeau will be eligible to compete with the other 12 regional winners for the national award to be presented in Quebec in October.

Mr. Trudeau has operated Trudeau Motor Sales in Belleville since 1970 and also owns agencies in Tweed and Picton.

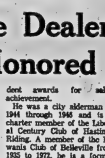
He began his career in 1917 in the parts department of Felix Rashotte, Ford dealer in Tweed, and became service manager in 1919. Following a special auto mechanics' course in 1921 he became truck foreman for John Labatt Brewery in London, Ont. and joined General Motors Ltd. in their final test department. From 1921 to 1924 he was employed as service manager for Maxwell and Hawley in Bancroft and Taylor and Bredon in Keene.

In 1924 he founded Tweed Garage and Machine Shop and in 1953 his Belleville company assumed the General Motors franchise in Belleville and Tweed.

In 1941 Mr. Trudeau became one of the charter members of the Federation of Automobile Dealer Associations of Canada. He was a director of FADA and president of the Belleville Automobile Dealers for several years. He is also a former president of the Garage Operators of Belleville and a former director, vice-president and president of Garage Operators of Ontario.

In 1970 through 1973 Mr. Trudeau was annually awarded the General Motors Proficient awards for sales achievement.

He was a city alderman in 1944 through 1946 and is a charter member of the Liberal Century Club of Hastings Riding. A member of the Kiwanis Club of Belleville from 1935 to 1972, he is a former director, president and district chairman in charge of agriculture for Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes, chairman of the building fund and chairman of membership, finance and publicity.



J. J. TRUDEAU

Mr. Trudeau was founder of the Belleville Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic in 1942 and worked for five Hasting County Victory Loan campaigns as general sales chairman during the war.

Among Mr. Trudeau's other achievements are director from 1965 to 1970 of the Belleville Exhibition Association, five years as chairman of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board, director of the YMCA and of the Belleville Agricultural Society.

He is a member of the Kinsmen Club of Belleville, Belleville Club, Quinte Curling Club and Belleville Lawn Bowling Club.

Among his community service awards are the honorary life membership award of the Tweed Club and a long service award from the Bay of Quinte District High School Board.

Marmora's Clock Is Running Again

By RUBY McCoy
Special Correspondent

MARMORA — When The Village clock in the Memorial Building is once again ticking away the moments after standing still at 3 o'clock for the past eight years.

Paul Burke of Killaloe has repaired the 73-year - old clock so that it tells the time but it no longer strikes the hours.

Mr. Burke's services were secured by the village council following an appeal by the ladies of the New Century Organization to have the clock fixed and a recommendation that Mr. Burke be contacted to do the job. The cost of hand made parts and labor amounted to $427, reported Reeve Jack Reynolds.

The man who looked after the maintenance of the clock for 35 years at the large salary of $1 a month, Jim O'Sullivan, gave the following details on the clock.

In 1928 the members of the Marmora Women's Institute raised $1,800 to purchase the clock and have it installed. It was ordered by Percival Ingalsbe, the maker of special clocks, the Synchronome Company, and installed by a man named Bond, who died about 16 years ago, according to Mr. O'Sullivan.

It is battery operated. The master clock in the Library, another one in the Senior Citizens' Clubroom and the large clock up on top of the building have to be synchronized in order for it to work. Mr. O'Sullivan said the clock case is an unusual piece of equipment but it is fairly simple. The clock has struck 200 lbs. and could be heard over a large part of town when it struck the hours.

When The Village Clock O'Sullivan was looking after it he said he had either to climb up a long ladder into the roof or squeeze through a hole barely big enough for a man, in the ceiling of the south second floor apartment, cross the attic and through another hole to reach the roof.

He said he tried to keep an eye on it and adjusted it perfectly. Mr. O'Sullivan recalls the time when it struck 40 times before he managed to get to the clock and stop it. He said that the clock quit running in 1965, Mr. O'Sullivan said he had recommended to the council of that period that certain repairs were necessary but the council had not seen fit to do anything about it until now.

The clock is a very special landmark in our village and it is great to see it operating once more. It would have been nice to hear it strike the hours as well as see it tell the time but perhaps nearby residents would not care to be awakened from their sleep, though no doubt they would get used to it.

New Plant In Trenton

TRENTON — In a committee of the whole meeting following a regular session this week, town council gave approval for sale of three acres of land on Davis Street for a new small industry.

Few details are known about the new plant.

However, town clerk, O. W. Larry told council the two Trenton businessmen involved will construct a 5,000-square-foot building on the site north of S. H. Camp Company property.

Initially the firm, Domtech Ltd., will employ five to 10 workers.

The men have developed a speedometer cable they hope to manufacture and distribute throughout Canada.

Council was hesitant in passing a resolution to sell them the land at $1,000 an acre plus paying a preliminary fee for 250 feet to the site. Mayor Duncan McDonald said it would "only take a matter of a day or two to make the decision."

Councillor John Byrne, chairman of the industrial committee, apologized for not having further details. He said he had been given new facts on this case but "this is only a small venture — not a $1.5 million industry.

"I didn't think it was going to be that big a problem. I'd like to see it get going," he said.

Councillor Ronald Price said he wanted more information before a decision to grant sale was made. However, the matter was parsed during the closed meeting that followed council.

Brothers Held For Fall Trial

Two Frankford brothers, James Adam Sweet , 28 and William Earlton Sweet, 23, will stand trial at the fall assizes of the Supreme Court of Ontario on three charges each of abduction and one charge each of rape.

The brothers were committed for trial by Provincial Judge J. L. Clendenning following a preliminary hearing Friday. The pair elected trial by judge and jury.

The charges rose following an incident April 20 when the brothers picked up three hitchhiking juveniles at Bayside, and held one for nine hours. The elder Sweet brother was represented by Joseph Dewhurst of Brighton while the younger brother by Peter Girard of Belleville.

The brothers are being held in custody at the Napanee Regional Detention Centre until the trial.

IN MEMORIAM

HOUSE — In loving memory of our dear father Warren House who passed away May 30th, 1972.
Sadly missed when I think of you,
Quietly remembered day by day,
Memories of you I treasure,
Held in our hearts forever more,
There.
Always remembered and sadly missed by son Fred and daughter-in-law Doreen.

CARDS OF THANKS

A sincere thank you to all our friends, neighbours and relatives for the many acts of kindness, expressions of sympathy, floral tributes and donations to the Heart Fund in memory of our dear husband, father and grandfather. Special thanks to Rev. Gerald Kemp of Harmony.
Sincerely, Mrs. Abbie Mundy.

I wish to sincerely thank all my friends, neighbours and friends for remembering me with visits, cards, gifts and flowers during my stay in the Extended Care Unit of Belleville General Hospital. Special thanks to Dr. Sackfield, Dr. Hutchinson, Dr. Allore, all the staff on the 4th floor, Rev. Gerald Kemp of Harmony, and Rev. Gerald Kemp of Harmony.
Sincerely, Mrs. Abbie Mundy.

Area Highway Projects Now Mainly Under Way

Provincial highway construction in the Bay of Quinte — Hastings district this year will be limited mainly to completion of projects already under way and to repaving operations.

This is indicated in the 1973-74 construction program of the Ontario Ministry of Transportation and Communications.

Two of the major projects already under way and scheduled for completion this year are the reconstruction of Highway 2 from the Canadian Forces Base at Trenton to the westerly city limits and a new bridge structure over the Trent River and Trent Canal at Frankford.

The reconstruction project on Highway 2 between Trenton and Belleville includes the overpass at what is known as the Cemetery Crossing just west of Belleville.

North of Foxboro, 10.1 miles of Highway 62 are being repaved with the work now in progress, while on Highway 14 north of Stirling, clearing operations are scheduled for 7.2 miles of roadway, preparatory to reconstruction.

In the Deseronto area, Highway 2 from Napanee to the Junction of Highway 49 west of Deseronto is to be resurfaced.

Inside the town limits of Deseronto, 1.4 miles of Highway 2 will be rebuilt and paved under a construction agreement with the municipality.

Also under a construction agreement with Belleville, reconstruction of Dundas Street West from Holden Street to the western city limits is being completed this year.

Another structure to be completed this year in the Deseronto area is the CN overpass on Highway 502 between Napanee and Marysville.

Across Ontario the Ministry of Transportation and Communication proposes spending a total of $317.6 million in capital construction. Of this total $224.1 million will be spent in the current year.

The program proposes work on a total of 691 miles of the provincial highway network with most of the work on two-lane highways. Included is the construction of 95 bridges.

Also included in the year's program is the new widening of four new railway grade separations. The number of such grade separations in the King's and Secondary Highway System is now 75.

Under construction agreements with the municipalities, the ministry pays from 75 per cent of the cost of eligible items where work is carried out on designated highway connecting links.

The ministry's contribution is: 75 percent of the cost of eligible items in cities and separated towns; 90 per cent in towns, villages and townships over 2,500 and 100 per cent of eligible items in towns, villages and townships under 2,500 population.

Music in Schools Won't Be Cut Back

It all started with a massed band and choir concert of county school children that in Bellville Arena brought a standing ovation from the audience.

Since then "we've been taking our kamoos on music", said director of schools, Erik Runacres Monday night.

He made his remarks at the regular board meeting held in Frankford Public School.

Mr. Runacres said that, contrary to rumor, the music program in the schools will not be cut back next year. The board is now spending money per pupil on music than it did before formation of the county board was completed.

Later, he said some principals had failed to compensate for withdrawal of itinerant music teachers by hiring music specialists for their staffs. The travelling music teachers were withdrawn when it was shown they spent about 40 per cent of their time on the road. Principals without music specialists on their staff are now remedying the situation, he said.

A steering committee is now looking at increasing the music program, said Mr. Runacres.

"It's a matter of priorities because music is a complex, expensive program."

Council Votes Itself Raise

TRENTON — In setting this year's budget, town council voted itself a raise in pay.

Mayor Duncan McDonald's annual salary will increase from $3,000 to $3,600. Each of the councillors, George Greer, Dr. John Bonn, Dr. Robert Patrick, Edward Todd, Peter DeGroot and Ronald Price will receive $300 more than their former $1,500 annual pay.

Legality of Licensing Questioned by Lawyer

TRENTON — Town council may be collecting double annual licence fees from the owners of the Skyview Trailer Court illegally, Belleville lawyer J. Stewart Robertson says.

In a letter to council, Mr. Robertson says he has reviewed the town's controversial bylaw, the subject of mitch debate and political wrangling before it was approved. He writes where does not appear to be adequate legislative authority to permit the licensing of a trailer camp owner or operator in the nature of the licensing contained in the said bylaw."

Mr. Robertson said the Municipal Act does allow for licensing of trailers as such rather than permitting the collection of individual trailer licensing fees by a trailer camp owner or operator. "It appears . . . as though the statute is being stretched abnormally when the town expects a trailer camp owner or operator to collect the ... fees."

The lawyer further said that the legislation under which the town drafted its bylaw "does not refer to licensing of trailer lots and it is doubtful whether a municipality can demand a licence for each individual unit or part of the whole trailer camp under the guise of licensing a trailer camp owner or operator."

Because he considers by his investigation, the bylaw "would appear to be invalid in its current form," Mr. Robertson has advised Skyview Trailer Court owners Ralph and Betty Thompson to stop paying the fees.

Council will leave the matter of the bylaw and fee collections in the hands of town solicitor William Wenton.

Society's Awards Top $1.3 Million

The Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society has announced $1.3 awards totalling more than $1.3 million for the society's 1973-74 research program.

"Through the stimulus of the society there are many minds adding to our knowledge of arthritis and other rheumatic diseases," said Dr. H. A. Smythe, chairman of the society's medical and scientific committee.

Thirty - seven awards were made to established researchers at Canadian medical schools to enable them to acquire the technicians, equipment and supplies necessary for research.

Awards were made to 13 medical schools to help them develop Rheumatic Disease Units. There are now RDU's in 13 of Canada's 16 medical schools and by 1975 the society hopes to have a unit at every medical school.

Seventeen awards were given to medical schools to meet the salaries of career teachers - scientists in rheumatology.

Diving Club Is Formed

Outgrowth of the underwater diving classes initiated by the Quinte Kiwanis Club at their Community Pool, the Quinte Skin and Scuba Club has been formed with the signing of a constitution and the election of officers.

Elected to the executive were Fred Nelles, president; Barry Clements, vice-president; Betty Ulrich, secretary-treasurer; Tim McLaughlin, training director and Paul Neil, membership director.

Minutes of the founding meeting will be sent to the Ontario Underwater Council by way of seeking membership to the OUC.

The pool course winds up with an open water test at Oak Lake. Students will be taken into the chilly water 25 feet below the surface for a series of exercises to gauge their reaction.

Quinte Skin and Scuba Club president Fred Nelles said he expected to see another 20 students take the next course to be held in the fall. "From the interest I'd say there will probably have to be a couple of courses in the Fall," he said.

Pistol Pointing Incident in Picton

PICTON — Picton Police Chief George Pitt today said an air pistol has been confiscated in connection with a pointing incident here last weekend.

Wet Weather Slows Seeding

PICTON — Unless weather conditions in the Quinte area improve within the next week, farmers could be faced with serious seeding problems according to crops and soil specialist Grover Smith.

Mr. Smith, employed with the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food here, said frequent rains have lowered corn, tomato and canning pea planting.

Although records show the volume of rain during May, 1972, was greater in fact 1mm it has been this year, a difference in pattern has affected farmers. Last May's rainfall was not as steady as the rainfalls of this month.

Mr. Smith said seeding has become a serious problem for the farmers working heavier soils such as clay. Cool weather has slowed passive growth as well.

The crops specialist said corn should be planted by the first of June and later seeding could entail some risk, depending on the seed varieties planted.

Prince Edward County does not have much clay soil acreage but it is present to a greater degree in Frontenac and Lennox and Addington counties.

In Prince Edward, Mr. Smith estimated that 50 to 60 per cent of the corn crop is planted.

The high water levels this spring have created additional problems for the farmer since there is still much acreage under water that cannot be put into production.

Chief Pitt said no charges have been laid as yet against the two Ottawa men involved. He said he did not consider the incident serious and added that the air pistol could be reclaimed by its owner from the police office at any time.

Chairman of the Picton police Commission, Jesse Mason said he had been informed of the incident and observed, "I would take it to be serious."

It is rumored locally that the air pistol was pointed at a woman motorist at the intersection of Main and Rose Streets. Chief Pitt refused any information to the press. Commissioner Mason has confirmed that a woman is involved and police are seeking her identity.

Seven Months On 3 Counts

Alan Aubrey Brooks, 23, was sentenced to seven months in prison last May 22 for two counts of theft and one of failing to appear in court.

Brooks, of RR2, Ameliasburgh, who earlier pleaded guilty to the theft charges, was given six months concurrent for each by Judge J. L. Clendenning. He was sentenced to an additional month for failing to appear in the Provincial Court, April 10.

Mr. Brooks admitted that last Dec. 31, he stole the battery out of one car and from another, he netted a tape deck, 17 tapes, two speakers, a pair of gloves, cigarettes, a radio, three deodorants and a bottle of gin. The goods, valued at under $200 from each car, were all recovered.

His record dates back to 1968 and included suspended sentences for two theft convictions, two convictions for false pretences and one day in jail plus a $200 fine for two break, enter and theft convictions.

Bellringer Returns

Edward Sayers of Picton used to earn 50 cents a month by ringing the bell at the old Church of St. Mary Magdalene, now converted to the Prince Edward County Memorial Museum. He called the days when he helped his parents with caretaking chores during a visit with curator Mrs. Jack Welsman. The Sayers family looked after the church in the early 1900s.

Museum's Days As Church Recalled By Bellringer

PICTON — "A real bellringer," Edward Sayers of Picton used to receive 50 cents a month for pulling the bell rope of the Old Anglican Church, now converted as a county museum.

Mr. Sayers, whose parents were church caretakers in the early 1900s, can recall ringing the bell for funerals on cues from his sister, Sarah.

Sarah would stand near the county courthouse signalling when she saw the funeral processions approaching. Mr. Sayers could see her from the windows high in the belfry and would begin to toll the bell. This same bell now serves the new Church of St. Mary Magdalene here.

Mr. Sayers' father, James, was the last person to be buried in the graveyard of the old church and his brother, George used to pump the bellows for the organ while his mother, Annie, swept the church for $10 a month.

The former bell ringer can recall cleaning coal oil lamps at the church and cutting wood for the four stoves that heated it. On extremely cold Sundays the stoves would be lighted at 5 a.m. to warm the building in time for services. The firewood and a privy were located across the street in a soggy shed built where a modern bungalow stands today.

Mr. Sayers cut the wood, then piled it in a woodbox just inside the front door of the church. There were stoves in three corners of the church and one in the tiny vestry on the south side of the choir. Stove pipes ran overhead through the body of the nave. Some of the hooks from which the choir gowns and vestments hung still can be seen in the vestry.

A deep cupboard discovered in the south wall of the vestry was used to store the communion wine, according to Mr. Sayers.

He recalled that the choir used to dress in the vestry, then walk around the outside of the church, even in the bitterest winter weather to proceed with the rector from the front door of the church to the chancel.

Hay in the churchyard was cut once a year and hauled away to feed the sexton's cow. At one time the churchyard was completely surrounded by a wood and wire fence, presumably to keep out cattle.

A Downtown Mall

The $4 million Nicollet Mall in Minneapolis is a shopping complex with a difference — it is downtown and occupies an eight-block long hub of that district.

According to The New York Times, delegations of city merchants from other centres, worried about the flight to the suburbs, have descended on Minneapolis to see how they are doing things there.

In addition to the usual department stores, the mall — believed to be the biggest in the United States — includes several plaza accommodating art, music and dance shows.

As a bonus, existing stores in the vicinity of the downtown complex, are benefiting from its presence. But its biggest appeal may lie in its comparative safety for the public, a factor of no mean concern considering the awesome extent of urban crime in the cities of the U.S.

Downtown Parent ...store manager of an apparel shop at the corner of 6th Street and Nicollet Ave., a recent arrival from Cleveland, put it this way: "My wife and I walked the length of the mall, a distance of ten blocks, from 6 until 8.30 in the evening. What impressed us was all the window-shoppers.

"I don't have to tell you that window-shoppers are potential customers. In Cleveland you don't dare go downtown at night, but here there were people milling around, looking at windows."

Urban planners and students of downtown problems generally, the evident success of this Minneapolis venture is food for thought — and action. Here is one big city which is turning its back on lack of urban decay and the decline of downtown rot. In fact, it is an initiative many American cities are undertaking, in one form or another. In Minneapolis especially it appears to have met with singular success.

Give Them an Inch...

Somehow, in all the feverish preparation for conversion to the metric system, we Canadians have apparently overlooked a critical aspect of the changeover: the spelling.

And Albert J. Metiler, secretary of the Canadian Metric Association — (CMA, but only affiliated with the Canadian Medical Association insofar as dealing with inclusion lengths is concerned) — is getting his two decimal points in before the official transition from feet and pounds takes place.

Mr. Metiler's prime concern is that there seem even to be a plot afoot in this country to keep the "e" from its rightful place before the "r".

"The languages with the spelling "metre" account for no more than 200 million speakers," he tabulates, "whereas the languages and countries with the spelling "meter" total around 460 million population."

(Of course this does not take into account the 20 million misguided Yugoslavs who say "metar").

Honing in on the opposition, Mr. Metiler notes that the spellings "metre" and "litre" occur only in French, Turkish, and British English, where, he hastens to add, "it is a variance with the pronunciation."

In further evidence of his position, Mr. Metiler points out that several "progressive" British authors dropped the "me" from "gramme" as early as 1969. Surely it would not now be too much to ask these same semantic creators to put the "e" in its proper metric place?

An unfortunate complication is the fact that most Canadian packaging has both English and French labels. This would mean that both "litre" and "liter" could conceivably appear on the same jar of pickles.

All Mr. Metiler can do is pray that Canadians see the error of their weighs before M-day.

"It may be true that the English language has many peculiarities which appear to be illogical or inconsistent," he summarizes. "All the same, the spelling for the names of the main metric units should be as logical and simple as the metric system itself."

Bear that in mind the next time you look at your bathroom scales.

Sexual Equality

Here and there the fair sex are showing up as mailmen. Both Cobourg and Sault Ste. Marie have been employing young women to deliver mail of late. As yet there have been no complaints from the public — indeed, why should there be if the job is done properly — no holdouts of male chauvinism. Perhaps we shall see the trend spreading here. And we have a couple of policewomen, so why not have one or two gals hauling the mail too?

Overcame Rocking Chair Fears

Cardiac Victim Recovered Enough for Marathon Run

Bell News

Harold Lawrence was at 489 University Ave., Toronto in Equipment Engineering when his story about health and mail life after a heart attack was told in the April 18 issue of Bell News Western edition. Since then he has become an Engineering instructor at the Bell Training School in Belleville. The following is Harold's personal account of his recent run in the Boston Marathon.)

BELLEVILLE — When Ernest Bleasdell wrote the story of how, after a heart attack, I had overcome the fears of a "rocking chair" life, I agreed to write a brief account of my experiences which I and seven other cardiac rehabilitees had in Boston while taking part in the world-famous Marathon.

A perusal of that article will remember from the previous article, I have the good fortune to belong to an ever - increasing group of ex - cardiac patients who have participated in a rehabilitation program conducted by Dr. T. Kavanagh at the Toronto Rehabilitation Centre since 1968.

About two years ago, several of us had "done our thing" on an indoor 440m meet at the Coliseum Building at the CNE. After the run, we jokingly declared that, for an encore, we'd aim next for the Boston Marathon.

It wasn't until last summer, however, that we though at all seriously about it and at that time our "long" jogs had reached 10 miles.

During last winter, our plans firmed up and we got down to serious training which included increasingly long slow runs to build up our endurance, all carefully controlled and monitored by Dr. Kavanagh.

The Marathon itself was an experience I would not have missed.

The weather was a little warm for running — 71 degrees — but beautiful for the spectators.

The route, which is traditionally 26 miles and 385 yards long, starts at Hopkinton and passes through the towns of Framingham, Natick, Wellesley and Newton finishing at the heart of Boston at the Prudential Centre.

It is somewhat like running from Oshawa along Highway 2 to the Toronto Dominion Centre in downtown Toronto.

At the start about 1,500 runners assembled in the village square at Hopkinton. At 12 noon the official starter of the Boston Athletic Association (the organizers of the race which has been held annually since 1896) fired his starting pistol and the pack was away.

Our group stayed well to the rear so that we could set and maintain the relatively leisurely pace which we had developed in training. Our task was not to race but to meet our individual goals and ensure a safe finish.

Our aim was to show the world that cardiac patients can be rehabilitated and can undergo relatively heavy strains.

For the first 10 miles or so we ran at a good pace, then paced, and it wasn't long before we began to pass stragglers, who had not planned to regulate their efforts as we had done.

Then the stronger members of our group began to pull ahead and two or three dropped back to conserve energy. Soon I was on my own somewhere in between.

As my own objective was a demi-marathon (21.1 kilometres) was already getting close to my goal, Wellesley, where we would all be checked over by Dr. Kavanagh who had set up the first of three planned check points.

After the check, which consisted of a weigh-in, blood pressure and ECG using a portable cathode-ray tube monitor, the remaining seven were away for the second half.

I ass had a blood test, which the others would have when they finished. All the tests were to ensure that no harmful effects had been suffered and also to add to the mass of data Dr. Kavanagh already been compiled on us as a group.

Crowds lined the route the whole way and even though our group dragged across the finish line some 2 to 3 hours after the leaders finished, the people were still giving them a big boost as they trudged toward their goal.

My seven fellow team members finished in times between 2 hours 20 minutes and 5 hours 15 minutes.

That was no record for the race, but we feel it was an achievement for a brain that distance and show that a heart attack need not be a deterrent to strenuous activity.

The most important point that should be made is that the level of activity was reached only by a long, medically controlled exercise program.

I can't stress too highly that this degree of exercise must not be undertaken without medical control. We have had the advantage of the best of attention with extensive quarterly tests to determine our fitness levels.

All this has been part of an extensive program to establish data to utilize that exercise is an effective way of rehabilitating cardiac patients.

All of us who have been in the program are positive about the effectiveness. We want to get the message across to all cardiac patients.

Don't just read — talk to your doctor! If it is at all possible, participate in one of these programs.

Don't forget — this is a beginner.

Hitler Cult Emerging with Flourish

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Is there a Hitler cult emerging? In Toronto, a showing of the newest film on Hitler will Alec Guinness in a terrifying and exact portrayal of the Fuhrer included Nazi-style Heils from young viewers dressed in crude Nazi uniforms.

The kids, about 15 years old, weren't kidding. They were there to enjoy the film and delighted Hitler's sad end. Their outfits were replete with the once-familiar a swastika arm bands, replica Iron Cross medals and medal ribbons.

This film "The Last Ten Days of Hitler," is only one of several Hitler films making the rounds in Britain, Europe and North America or about to. Other cities in other countries, most curious of all in Britain, report the same weird phenomenon, youngsters with no memories of World War Two or Nazism cavorting admiring Hitler films to crude Nazi uniforms.

If there isn't a cult, someone here and overseas is making a lot of money from the following. mass production of Nazi German medals, orders, the pandy of ladies, crests, arm bands, the various military and paramilitary organizations of Hitler's apparently dead Third Reich.

Add books, endless supplies of pictures, mainly wartime showing Luftwafe and U-boat aces complete with full dress regalia, usually in some dashing pose like leaning against a fighter plane or looking seawards from the bridge of a returning and presumably victorious U-boat.

In New York a few years ago, a bookstore-cum-regalia boasted advertised Afrika Korps-style caps (without its insignia) delivered post paid, in all places from the pages of the Wall Street Journal!

And then don't forget the hordes of war movies, or the reels old ones from wartime, new ones released by various government archives, authors, the supreme obscenity for anyone who was a German prisoner of war, the TV series "Hogan's Heroes."

All this surely adds up to something evil. That something has to be nasty, depressing and foreboding. The best assessments made to date, again in Britain where a Hitler cult appears to be in existence, is that certain people in our society, chiefly the young, are looking for a leader with black and white answers.

Their conviction they can no longer cope with the confusing modern world and that a strongman spewing out the answers as Hitler did to the Germans and others who believed in him, has the ultimate solution, is given as the chief reason for a Hitler cult.

The sheer tragedy of the young — and some are so young — turning to Nazism, is that they never have experienced, or refuse even now to believe that the supreme dehumanization of all times, perhaps even more than Stalinist Communism, was the Third Reich and all its works.

The panoply of Nazism which they now wear in its sick, artificial, new glitter, was created by Hitler, Goebbels and their Nazi propaganda mechanisms to do what the new generation of "Hitler lovers" say our world is doing—corrupt them completely.

Canadians have now been through the first complete program which came into effect May 27, and they have information as to the size and the amount of each cut rationed. There has appeared in Canadian newspapers "the story behind the rationing of meat." In this the people are informed that meat is a weapon of war and that after all the special wartime demands are provided for, there will be only one half of the meat produced in Canada which will be available for ordinary domestic consumption. This is not unnatural. Members of the armed forces must have ample meat supplies guaranteed for it is one of the most potent of foods. There also the people of Canada are pleased to help supply the people of Britain with meat.

Deacon's Hat First in Ring

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's
Queen's Park Bureau

Donald Deacon, MPP for York Centre, is the first candidate officially to declare himself for the Liberal leadership.

This was not unexpected.

For the past year it has been known that Mr. Deacon was planning to run. And it was assumed that unless something extraordinary happened he would probably lead the contenders into the field.

This 53-year-old former stockbroker, and man of independent financial means, is really not given much chance to take the prize.

Around here it is still felt that Premier Davis when the convention arrives presents leader Bob Nixon will be a candidate and that if he is he certainly will be the man to beat, and perhaps be unbeatable.

But at the same time Deacon should not be dismissed.

Deacon has three things going for him.

One is that he is a dedicated politician.

The second is that he has a good intelligence.

The third is that he is an exceptionally good organizer.

It is that third point most important in weighing his chances in the leadership contest.

It is assurance that this member from the outskirts of Toronto has been a considerable strength when he faces the convention.

First elected in 1967, a good deal of his time since has been spent in visiting through the province, looking for potential candidates for the party and bolstering local riding associations.

He now has good connections right across Ontario. He is known.

And this can pay off when a man runs for office.

He will go into the convention with a base of support.

On the other hand Deacon's run, if perhaps even if he does, he must be given a chance.

One other point in his favor is that he does have a well-organized campaign.

The big strike against him is that he has no impressive public speaker and will not take many votes on an emotional basis; a factor which is important at most conventions.

Education Suffers

Your figures on Hastings county are accurate and this gives the board a total increase in its ordinary budget of 8.8 when it needs a 12 percent increase to even maintain the present quality level in education. Further, the weighting factor is actually discriminating against Hastings county board.

The government's assumption of 60 per cent of cost of education was necessary. However, as long as the government continues to tax the poor and relieve the rich — cutting corporation taxes but increasing the sales tax — there will always be a problem. The other side is that, as long as the government's looks on education from the point of economic asset, it will never achieve quality in education because it will always sacrifice quality to economics.

When the taxpayers become fully aware of the paradoxical disaster the ceilings are creating, the resultant fracture will be the most unpleasant for the government; and the public will become aware.

I agree that spending can be adversely affecting the quality of education. The plain fact is that you have not found the method of achieving that very desirable end. I suggest again that you include in the ceilings an allowance of the increasing costs over and above the percentage increase already allowed.

Phony Pavers In Season

Brockville Recorder and Times

It's that time of year again . . . when the phony repair men and driveway pavers call on the elderly and unsuspecting throughout the land. Brockville and area has had its unfortunate experiences with these types of operators over the years and many an old person's life savings has been unwisely and sadly depleted because he or she took the word of a fast talking, flim - flam artist. They're smooth and they sound sincere and they make them seem like "nice fellas", as one elderly woman put it. They look 'her' in the eye, tell her of the "mortar mice" in her basement foundation.

That may sound incredible. It isn't. Police could reveal many a sad, and incredible, tale of how people have been separated from their money in the springtime by racketeers posing as repairmen.

In the very last week was the sad case — of an elderly Hamilton woman who fell for someone using a slightly new twist. At least it is new to this area, as it is known. It involves a man telling two elderly people their house had to be repaired in the city would to year it down under a minimum standards law. The fact that the city may or may not have such a law didn't occur to the old folks. It cost them about $2,000 for unnecessary repairs.

Another of the rackets exposed in past years is the phony aluminum siding swindle. There are phony bank inspectors too. But the most popular of all swindles is that involved in the repair of chimneys.

The most important point that should be made is that the level of activity was reached only by a long, medically controlled exercise program.

I can't stress too highly that this degree of exercise must not be undertaken without medical control. We have had the advantage of the best of attention with extensive quarterly tests to determine our fitness levels.

All this has been part of an extensive program to establish data to utilize that exercise is an effective way of rehabilitating cardiac patients.

All of us who have been in the program are positive about the effectiveness. We want to get the message across to all cardiac patients.

Don't just read — talk to your doctor! If it is at all possible, participate in one of these programs.

Don't forget — this is a beginner.

Feldspar From Garden

ULSTER COMMENTARY

Well over a century ago, a cadet on the Castle Caldwell estate on the shores of Lough Erne, Co., Fermanagh, found a translucent stone on the bed bottom of his garden. Deciding it was just the thing with which to brighten his home, he carried it paint his cottage! The result — a shimmering wall in which gleamed in the lovely honeycomb.

This attracted the attention of John Bloomfield, proprietor of the estate, who investigated curiously the nature of the material. It was identified as feldspar, white mineral, which also comes in other colors such as flesh-red.

All that was in 1852. But it was the initial beginning of one of Northern Ireland's most famous industries, the Belleek Pottery. The cottage with its translucent porcelain which is world famous, is preserved as a course an important ingredient in the pottery.

The story of the pottery is told in an attractively produced publication issued under the imprint of the Ulster Museum and bearing the modest title of "Belleek" by Mc-Crum. Slim though the volume may be, it has clearly involved a great deal of research and Mr. McCrum has produced a useful history for devotees of this nearly-unique ware.

The tradition of painstaking handicraft established by the Belleek pottery dates back to the Victorian era, when royal and even Royal patronage made these expensive pieces a viable proposition. Queen Victoria, when seeking a suitable gift for the Empress of Germany, chose a Belleek tea service.

The output of the Belleek factory has not always been fine porcelain, however. During the early earthenware was produced on an industrial scale, but in very fundamental nature. This book will tell most people something they did not know about Belleek, and may indeed convince many that it is very much worth knowing about.

Most of the photographs are by Patrick Garmonsway, Curator of Decorative Art at the Ulster Museum and is available by post for 65p, including postage.

Differences in Hydro Bids Are Described as Marginal

TORONTO (CP) — A select committee of the Ontario legislature was informed Tuesday that Ontario Hydro analysts considered there were only "marginal economic differences" among four developers' bids for the commission's controversial $46-million headquarters.

The commission, inquiring into whether political influence affected the awarding of the contract to a friend of Premier William Davis, was told that the analysts favored the winning firm on grounds other than dollars and cents.

Gerhard Mrog's Canada Square Corp., it was shown in commission calculations, submitted an original bid early in 1973 that was the third lowest of four firms tendering on a lease-purchase arrangement proposed by Hydro.

On the basis of Hydro's suggested construction cost of $34 a square foot, commission specialists listed Canada Square's net annual rental rate at $4.92 a square foot compared with $5.36, $5.04 and $4.82 by other bidders.

In a submission for Hydro members leading up to their final selection, commission architect Kenneth Candy and financial planner T. J. Milnik said they believed Canada Square would "best meet the requirements" and listed "handicaps of its competitors."

The main objection to all three was that they had either limited experience or none with the complexities of financing lease-purchase agreements such as the one in which Hydro will rent from Canada Square and get possession of the property for $1 after 30 years.

They also commended Canada Square for having delivered the best-documented presentation, a statement that Ian Dennis (NDP—Wentworth) termed "most unusual" in view of the history of the project.

There had been previous evidence that Canada Square revised copies of plans, which had been drawn up for Hydro at cost of $1.3 million in 1969 and later scrapped, in advance of competitors.

A commission document introduced as evidence Tuesday showed that Ellis-Don Ltd. of London, Ont., one of the bidders, had been refused a meeting with Hydro officials early in 1972 when it wanted to discuss the project.

A hand-written notation on the company's letter by H. J. Sissons, hydro assistant general manager, said that "the matter is in the chairman's hands" and "this is not exactly their dish of tea."

Hydro chairman George Gathercole, who was on the witness stand for the fourth consecutive day, said he did not know what was meant by "in the chairman's hands."

James Renwick (NDP—Toronto-Riverdale) wanted to know why Ellis-Don had been given only two weeks, as it's dicated by other documents, to submit a proposal.

"We had made a mistake in preparing the original plans," Mr. Gathercole said, "and we were saying, 'Don't prepare any elaborate plans'."

Ruling's Effect Limited

TORONTO (CP) — Justice Secretary George Kerr told the legislature Tuesday that a Supreme Court decision involving Multi-Malls Inc. of Toronto would not likely affect other government land-freeze orders.

The Supreme Court decision allows Multi-Malls to go ahead with a shopping centre in Oxford County even though the area is under a provincial government land freeze.

Denturist Society Maintains Cheap Denture Plan Flops

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Denturist Society told Premier William Davis Tuesday that a low-cost denture program undertaken by dentists across the province has not been successful.

The denturists also asked for an amendment to Bill 246, as yet unproclaimed, to allow them to fit false teeth without supervision by a dentist. patients who have a certificate of oral health.

Gordon M. Smith, representing the society, quoted reports from society investigators and citizens in the province to back the contention that the denture program is not working out.

The program undertaken by the dental association says member dentists across Ontario were to volunteer to provide low-cost dentures for a maximum of $180 for upper and lower teeth.

However, Mr. Smith said:

"Our findings indicate that the program sponsored by the Dental Association is not working well in most areas and in several areas, such as Niagara Falls, it is virtually non-existent."

Mr. Smith said the society's survey included the Niagara Peninsula, Simcoe, Victoria and Haliburton counties, Peel-Halton and Sudbury, Oshawa and London.

A report on Victoria and Haliburton counties stated that only two dentists were found "who purport to provide low-cost dentures in accordance with the commitment. . . ".

Eight dentists were listed whose prices ranged from $200 to $300 for a complete upper and lower set, Mr. Smith said. One required examination before an estimate of price.

MacDonald Thinks Gas Dealers Deserve Help

Donald MacDonald (NDP—Toronto-York South) made the statement after learning that

Apps Defends Leave Program

—TORONTO (CP) — Correctional Services Minister Syl Apps told the legislature Tuesday that his ministry's temporary absence program for prisoners has proved a success.

Speaking during the introduction of his spending estimates, Mr. Apps said there has been a careful screening of prisoners involved in the program, with public safety the prime consideration.

April exports to the U.S. of gasoline refined in Ontario equalled the total for 1971 and was 10 times greater than the total for all of 1972.

Figures compiled by the gasoline sales tax branch and released by Revenue Minister Allan Grossman revealed that there were no exports of gasoline refined in Ontario to the U.S. for the first three months of this year but in April the total jumped to 4,173,000 gallons.

This compared with exports of 10.1 million gallons in 1969, 2.8 million in 1970 and 4.3 million in 1971 and 360,000 gallons in 1972.

On Monday, Mr. MacDonald said that supplies to independent, off-brand dealers may dry up by the end of June.

Mr. Grossman said the government will take whatever action it could to protect independent retailers but the export of gasoline is primarily a federal matter.

Potter Says Health Suggestions Not Sound

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister Dr. Richard Potter said Tuesday the province could save $18 million if it implemented all the recommendations of a committee set up by the Ontario council of health.

But he told Opposition Leader Robert Nixon in the legislature that he was not prepared to implement all of the recommendations because some were not logical.

The health council committee had suggested that a number of procedures be omitted from the Ontario Health Insurance Plan (OHIP) to cut back rising medical care costs.

These included suggested cutbacks in preventive measures such as cancer detection tests, mammography and thermography.

Dr. Potter said he will make a statement "very soon" that will combine recommendations from the committee and those from within his ministry.

He added that many of the committee's recommendations would be accepted.

Ontario Will Tighten Car Fitness Controls

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario does not have the power to block increased interest rates proposed for department store revolving charge accounts, John Clement, minister of consumer and commercial relations, said Tuesday.

He was replying in the legislature to Ian Deans (NDP—Wentworth) who asked what action the minister would take on the announcement by Simpsons Ltd. that charge account interest rates will be increased.

Mr. Deans said the department store declined to impose the increase in Quebec because the provincial government there would have forced the company to rewrite all contracts with charge-card holders.

Mr. Clement replied that interest rates come under federal jurisdiction and a constitutional battle could result if Ontario asserted itself in this field.

New Handbook Published

Helping Pre-schoolers Play

If a child lives with acceptance and friendship, He learns to find love in the world.

It's the closing phrase of a poem, and the introduction to a new handbook published by Belleville's Central volunteer Bureau.

Called Early Childhood Development, the book was financed by a Local Initiatives Program grant.

The book, published this week, is a guide for volunteers working with pre-school children, parents of young children who need guidance and, as the book says, "all those who, on occasion, are entrusted with the care of pre-school children.

The 106-page book includes chapters on how to set up nursery schools, five precautions including five drills for children, normal child expectations, and play timetables for nursery schools.

Play areas and how to establish them, teaching science to young children, storytelling and music, as well as themes and ideas for seasonal play are all part of the book.

Indoor-outdoor play, food and play material are included.

There are even chapters on discipline, health and safety and first aid.

Betty Exelby, director of early childhood education at Loyalist College, was special consultant for the project. Linda Stockwell and Diane Zebedee, early childhood education graduates, researched and illustrated the book.

Ruth Burrows, executive director of the volunteer bureau, who co-ordinated the project, says the book will be available to parents at a cost of $1 to defray printing expenses for a second press run or at no charge if the parent would like a book, but cannot pay. Copies may be obtained by visiting the office at 340 William Street; they cannot be mailed.

The book will be distributed not only to Central Volunteer Bureau volunteers who supervise pre-school children in pre-kindergarten and other projects but to church nursery school volunteers and pediatrics volunteers at Belleville General Hospital.

Mrs. Burrows says the handbook will also be used to train volunteers in a course offered at Loyalist College.

MR. AND MRS. RONALD CASEY

Casey – Hamill

Pennie Marie Hamill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Hamill, Belleville and Ronald Horace Casey, son of Mr., and Mrs. Horace Casey were married recently in College Hill United Church by Rev. Roy Veasey.

Organist, Mary Jean Field, accompanied soloist Trevor Burt.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an antique satin bridal gown with Bishop sleeves and Alencon lace applique on the bodice, waistline and front of the A-line skirt. A cathedral length nylon illusion veil fell from her Juliette cap.

Susan Burt attended the bride, wearing a yellow flowered cotton empire - waisted gown. She carried a basket of yellow daisies and miniature mauve carnations.

Bridesmaids Nancy Gardner and Paula Wilson were also attired in yellow.

Larry Stoliker was best man. Ushers were Kent Hamill, brother of the bride and Kevin Pound, brother of the bridegroom.

A reception was held at the Belleville Shrine Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Casey will reside at 400 Bleecker Ave., Belleville.

Engagements

Mr. and Mrs. Keith Johnson, Stirling are pleased to announce the forthcoming marriage of their only daughter, Judith Ann, to John Richard Rolston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rolston, RR1, Hillier. The wedding will take place Saturday, June 30, 1973 at 2 p.m. in St. Paul's United Church, Stirling.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Delbert Morgan, Belleville, announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Suzanne Marie to Robert William, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Calbury, of Belleville. The marriage will take place Friday, June 29, 1973 at Christ Church, Belleville.

Ruth Burrows co-ordinated the publication of the Central Volunteer Bureau's new handbook for volunteers, Early Childhood Development. It's available to parents, too.

Bishop Says 'No Women' For Anglican Priesthood

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Bishop J. B. Creegan today expressed opposition to the principle of ordination of women to the priesthood in he spoke to the synod of the Anglican diocese of Ontario.

In his charge to the synod, which opened in Kingston today, the bishop was responding to the recent decision made by the Anglican church's general synod in Regina to admit women into the priesthood for the first time in the church's history.

"I request to you that I voted against this motion," Bishop Creegan told delegates.

"My cannot as a bishop implement this decision in the diocese."

Every bishop in Canada reserves the right to refuse to ordain any candidate to the priesthood whom he feels unsuitable.

Despite the decision by general synod to approve in principle the ordination of women, it remains for each of canada's 28 dioceses to decide individually whether or not to implement the principle.

Bishop Creegan, along with Rev. Henry Hill, also of Kingston, led opposition to the ordination of women at the synod meeting three weeks ago in Regina.

"It appears to me quite open to question as to whether after two hours of debate a general synod has the right by resolution to change a tradition of the church which has been in existence for nearly 2,000 years," the bishop said.

Concern has been expressed by some Anglicans that the decision to allow ordination of women may have the effect of splitting the church.

"I have been greatly distressed since returning home (from Regina) to have had no less than four of our priests inform me that if the principle becomes a fact they would have to consider very carefully as to whether they could remain by within the folds of the Anglican church."

Learning to Eat in Italian

Ethnic eating gives the cook a chance to try something different and the family an opportunity to broaden tastes.

Crack out the checkered tablecloth and a bottle of Chianti and enjoy

Meat-filled Ravioli

Homemade Pasta (Read recipe through before beginning!)

1¼ tsps. melted shortening
½ tsps. salt
1 egg yolk, slightly beaten
½ cup lukewarm water
About 2 cups sifted flour

Melt shortening and combine with salt, egg yolks and water. Beat in about 2 cups flour, a little at a time, to form stiff dough that does not stick to your hands while kneading. Turn onto floured board or pastry cloth and knead until smooth. Cover with a warmed bowl and let stand about 1 hr. (Do not omit resting stage.) Roll dough into 16 x 20 inch rectangle — dough will be very thin. Brush ¼ dough with well beaten egg white, combined with ¼ tsp. salt. Let stand 30 min. Arrange 1 rounded tsp. filling (recipe follows) over dough you brushed with egg white at 1" intervals. Cover with remaining half of dough. Beginning in centre, press dough around filling expressing all air. Puncture, if necessary, with a toothpick. Cut into squares with ravioli or pastry wheel. Pinch with fingers where necessary to close ends. Place on lightly floured waxpaper and cover with lightly floured tea towel. Turn occasionally. Allow to stand at least 1 hr.

When ready to cook, lower ravioli into 5½ - 3 gal. rapidly boiling water to which 1 tbsp. salt has been added. Cover pot with a wet towel and boil gently about 20 min. more or less, depending on size and thickness of dough. When cooked, pour a little cold water into the pot. Remove ravioli with slotted spoon. Drain thoroughly. Arrange on plates and cover with tomato sauce (recipe follows) and grated Romano or Parmesan cheese. If you wish to prepare the ravioli a day a head, cook only 10 min, cool quickly and thoroughly in cold water store in single layers in refrigerator. Heat in simmering salted water for 10 min. Makes 24 med. ravioli. Serves 4-6 persons.

Meat Filling

¾ lb. ground beef
2 tbsps. oil
½ cup cooked spinach minced very fine
¼ cup parsley
1½ tsps. salt
2 tbsps. bread crumbs
½ tsp. nutmeg
¼ tsp. pepper
1 clove garlic minced
1 minced onion
2 tbsps. grated Parmesan cheese
1 large egg

Brown meat in oil for 10 min. Add remaining ingredients except egg and cook over low heat several minutes, stirring to blend well. Add egg and beat thoroughly. Cool. Enough filling for 24 ravioli.

Italian Tomato Sauce

Cook garlic, can tomato juice 1 small can tomato paste 1 clove garlic, minced 1 large onion chopped ¼ cup chopped green pepper ½ cup sliced mushrooms, fresh or canned 2 tsps. oregano 2 tsps. basil 2 tsps. sugar 1 tsp. pepper 1 tsp. salt meat (see note)

Note: Many kinds of meat may be used to make tomato sauce but it is always preferable to have some or all pork for a fine sauce. About 1 lb. is sufficient. Suggestions: meatballs including ground pork; ground meat including beef and pork; spareribs (2 lbs.) round steak cut in large chunks with pork underloin; sausage. Chicken breast may be used for an unusual sauce.

Combine all ingredients in a large saucepan with about 1 cups water. Do not precook meat, except spareribs; steam ribs 20 min. Simmer over low heat at least 3 hrs., stirring occasionally. Skim fat from sauce as necessary. Remove meat to serve along side ravioli.

Serving Suggestions: Ravioli filled with meats and served with sauce and meat may be preceded by antipasto and followed by a salad and topped off with a light dessert. Antipasto can include sweet fennel, green onions, black olives, Mediterranean tuna, celery, hard boiled eggs, salami or prosciutto slices, mozzarella and/or romano cheese, hot peppers or pickled vegetables.

Salads are served after a meal if you're eating Italian style. Plain tomatoes can be marinated in a mixture of oil and oregano and salt for several hours.

For a light dessert, purchase Italian soumoni ice cream and serve with cookies.

'Tidying in the Attic' Needed

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — The Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire (IODE) is not in need of a completely new structure, just a little tidying in the attic, says Mrs. R. Bruce Craik of Dundas, Ont.

Mrs. Craik is chairman of a committee looking at ways to streamline the operation of the 73-year-old order.

In an interview at the annual meeting she said she hopes some changes will be effective by 1975, the IODE's 75th anniversary.

The three-day meeting opened Monday with about 500 delegates attending, representing 20,000 members.

Mrs. Craik said, "Like everybody else, you accumulate things and you don't housecleaan, and I think that's what's needed—not a drastic change.

"Many things can be done with just a change in attitude, by interpreting the constitution in a slightly different manner."

The IODE, in common with other traditionally-voluntary groups, has been concerned with falling membership and with making changes to adapt to changing times.

Mrs. Craik, a former Ontario chapter president, says she does not worry about membership numbers.

"I don't think there's anything wrong with the organization. There are very vibrant organizations that have never been big. We once had 60,000 members but it's not necessary in this day and age for a membership to be that big.

"Our constitution says we are an organization maintained to register prompt and efficient service in an emergency, and I feel we could."

Half A Million Buys...

The $494,000 spent by the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire (IODE) on services including the purchase of a $15,000 cancer detection machine, plus donations to a library clock, a girl's band, a miner's museum and an educational film on venereal disease.

Mrs. Peter Douglas of Toronto, IODE services secretary, was one of several presenting reports at the three-day annual meeting of the IODE that opened here Monday night.

Mrs. Leonard May of Toronto said the IODE has added 500 new members and six new primary and six junior chapters in the last year. She called the addition reassuring at a critical time in the life of a women's voluntary organization.

Education secretary Mrs. Dallas T. Miller said $334,000 was spent on education, about $130,000 of it on direct financial aid to students.

ELIZABETH KATHLEEN KUGLIN, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Basil Kuglin, of Pinkney received her Bachelor of Arts degree (Honors English) from Waterloo Lutheran University, May 20. Miss Kuglin, who attended Quinte Secondary School, has been accepted at Osgoode Hall Law School, York University.

Housewives to Firemen — They Can Do the Job

LIONS BAY, B.C. (CP) — Think of red fire engines, blaring sirens, billowing smoke and night emergencies and the red fireman comes to mind.

But in this community 10 miles north of Vancouver, the operative word is firefighter as five women now constitute the day squad of the volunteer force.

The women, all housewives in the area, joined the force for basically the same reasons. When the men trained as volunteers were off at their regular jobs the area was left without competent firefighters.

"When the men went to work we were left without anyone to protect our property," said firefighter Marlene Fleet. "One day I thought to myself there was no reason why I couldn't come down here and learn the job myself."

The women have learned to deal with the equipment, which includes a rickety 1943 model fire engine, and the hazards of fire.

"The truck is so old it'll go down the hills all right, but we're a bit slow getting it back up again," Mrs. Fleet said. "But still, when we're called, we can assemble for a fire in five minutes."

Sharon Dalrymple, captain of the squad, said it's not really an enjoyable job.

"It's just the that has to be done and done in the best way possible. . . . We're fully competent to handle the chores."

Volunteers are required to take a training course from the Vancouver training master before tackling any fires. But the women say no matter how much preparation you've had, the first fire always comes as a shock.

Mrs. Fleet, describing her first firefighting experience, said:

"I heard there was a fire and I said to myself, 'Oh no, what am I ever going to do?' You go in the course and everything, but never quite think it's going to happen.

"But I got there, and even though I hadn't thought about it since, I took the course, I remembered what we were told about there being more breaks in the air near to the floor. So I flopped down and started breathing there like mad."

Fire Chief Gary Ingram says the women have proved they can be good firefighters.

Added Mrs. Dalrymple: "The men have laughed at us in the past, but I don't think they're laughing now."

WOMEN VOLUNTEERS — When fire breaks out at Lions Bay, B.C., 10 miles north of Vancouver, it's five women firefighters who answer the call. Volunteer squad goes through regular training session to maintain their facility with equipment. Women formed squad to protect community during the day when men are away at work. (CP Photo)

They Wouldn't Let Her Study Economics — Today She Heads Food Prices Board

By ROBERT BENTLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Beryl Plumptre found the going difficult as a girl trying to get into the predominantly male study of economics at university.

But Monday, at age 61, she was named to head the Canadian government's food prices review board.

"I suppose I might consider it the culmination of several years' work," she said later in an interview at her Ottawa home.

Those several years total more than 40 associated with the field of economics and more than 20 actively involved in consumer affairs.

Her new appointment is a far cry from the late 1920s when she was trying to pursue economics studies at the university in her native Melbourne, Australia.

"There were only four of us girls and the only way they would let us in to study economics was through a bachelor of commerce course," she said. "Things are a little different today."

The prices review board, one of the recommendations of a special Commons committee which investigated food prices, has been given "the widest possible powers," said Mrs. Plumptre, former president of the Consumers Association of Canada and president of the anier institute for the Family.

"One of the board's noteworthy characteristics is that we shall be issuing quarterly reports directly to the public, rather than the government.

"This means that we can involve the consumer more closely in what is happening to prices and why. And once the public becomes involved, better informed and make their opinions known, the more likely is government to be influenced in its policy making."

Mrs. Plumptre, whose Canadian husband Wynne is a former assistant deputy minister of finance in the Canadian government, a former principal of the University of Toronto's Scarborough College, and now associated with Carleton University, Ottawa, said she is not sure how the board will function until she has a chance to discuss policy with the other members.

Four others were named Monday by Consumer Affairs Minister Herb Gray. The board will have power to summon witnesses, demand evidence under oath and demand documents they deem necessary to their work.

Mrs. Plumptre said that in addition to the quarterly review of food price trends, the board will also issue the results of special inquiries into particular products.

"We have extensive terms of reference," she said.

Mrs. Plumptre first became involved with the consumer movement in Canada in 1950, 12 years after she came to this country with her husband, whom she met when he was her tutor during a postgraduate economics course at Cambridge University, England.

She became a member of the Canadian Association of Consumers, later the Consumers Association of Canada, of which she was president from 1961 to 1966.

And since 1950 she has worked closely with consumer affairs, interrupted for only two years when her husband was posted to Paris in 1962 to head the economic and financial department of the permanent Canadian delegation to NATO.

Hoop Skirts and Long Hair — Teenagers Follow Fashion

By DORIS CLARK

Long hair is a bone of contention in many homes these days. Yet parents would be wise to remember that it's a fashion, like the hoop skirt and the picture hat, and the ladies continue to indulge themselves in whatever is the current trend. Why not our young males?

One mother, hoping to be tactful, pointed out to her 15-year-old son that men's hair styles are shorter this year.

"That's fine, Mom!," the son replied. "But I'm a teen-ager; not a man yet. Teenage hair styles are still long. When they change, or I grow up, then I'll be glad to wear my hair short again."

Pretty straight talk from a teen-ager!

Nagging by parents only forces our boys to defend the long hair that they will some day willingly give up on their own. Meanwhile, it can make regular family arguments out of haircuts! Try relaxing and purchase a three cheers when your teen capitulates to a trim, a shave and a shampoo! — Dorothy Turcotte.

Dear Doris: I have been going out with a girl for two years, the relationship was off and on and not steady. We went out once or twice a month. Now I'm persuaded my mother to let me do things I like before I get bored right out of my mind? — Daughter In Darkness.

Dear Daughter: You mean not even a church-sponsored picnic? Your mother doubtless thinks she is protecting her 13-year-old baby from all the social problems teen-agers have to face today. And, in a way, she is.

But you'll have to face them eventually, won't you? I don't go for couples dating alone, at 16, but some sociability between the sexes is surely natural. Ask a teacher or a close friend of your mother's to carry a torch for you and remind your mother that you need practice in human relations. Having a grown-up on your side may make all the difference!

Ann Landers
Hubby Loves Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I can see how middle-aged couples might still be attracted to one another — physically, that is — if they have managed to keep their looks. But my husband and I are not in that category and we don't try to kie ourselves.

Neither of us was much to look at to begin with. Now he has a double chin, a balding dome and a pot belly. After four children, I have varicose veins, extra pounds on my hips and I'm a tired-looking old bag. When I see myself in a full-length mirror after a shower I know, too well, that when he makes a pass at me, it means his basic instincts are stirred — taken over and he is desperate. I have nothing that would turn anybody on.

Am I placing too much stress on physical appeal? If so, how do I get the comical picture of him out of my mind? How do I rid myself of the feeling that he is just venting his sex needs on me? I wish I could do both. Signed — Patting In My Time In Des Moines

Dear Des Moines: Somewhere along the line you picked up the cockeyed notion that the only turn-on is looks. Wrong. Wrong. Wrong. The Real erogenous zone is between the eyebrows and the hairline.

The serperts say a woman doesn't reach her full bloom until she's 40. And it has very little to do with looks, dearie. As for the "comical image" of your husband — psyche yourself out and enjoy the last of life for which the first was made.

Dear Readers: If any of you are chomping on gum, with a frowsy, dumbbell look on your face, please stop it. And won't you please dispose of your gum by wrapping it in a piece of paper first and not just throw it where another nice reader might step in it? Thanks, chums.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 29, unmarried, good job (executive capacity) and considered attractive and interesting. My problem? I am not sick but I am not well, either. I've been x-rayed from head to toe twice in two years. Nothing wrong. Yet I get terrific headaches, and then the pain goes to my back. The following day my feet hurt. Today I have an earache. I'm fed up with doctors saying, "You're not sick." Can you help? — Well Invalid

Dear W.I.: A person who has "traveling pains" should consider the possibility that the trouble might be in his head. I'm not saying your pains are not real. They are — but what is causing them needs investigation. I suggest an evaluation by a head-doctor.

18-year-old Swim Enthusiast Makes Safety Week Possible

Water Safety Week will be celebrated across Canada June 3 - 9 but it might have passed under the bridge in Belleville were it not for the efforts of one aquatically - inclined instructor.

Susanne Foster, at 18, qualified to teach swimmers of all levels, says she was surprised to learn six weeks ago that the city had nothing planned for Water Safety Week.

"I just decided it would be a good idea," says Susanne, looking over a six-day program that covers everything from water survival courses to a display of scuba diving. "Everybody should know how to swim."

As a water safety teacher with the Hastings County Board of Education for the past four months, Susanne came in contact with many swimming instructors in the community. So, calling friends at the Ontario School for the Deaf, Belleville Family YMCA and Quinte and BCI Secondary Schools, she soon gathered a small group dedicated to making the week a success.

The program has timely significance.

"I read an article in the Red Cross water safety paper recently about the increase in drowning deaths," says Susanne. "More and more people are buying boats but they don't know how to swim or drive them properly."

As a result, plenty of time is being devoted to learning and practising swimming.

OSD and the Rkwanis (Black Hawk Motel) pools are both available for hours of free public swimming during set hours. In addition, the survival swimming courses Monday evening and Tuesday morning feature three hours of teaching and testing in such subjects and drown-proofing, completion of which earns the participant a Red Cross badge.

Grade 5 students are taking part in a water safety poster contest with firemen as No. 2 hall judging the winners Tuesday. Top entries will be on display Thursday and Friday along with a St. John Ambulance display at the Quinte Mall.

A team of synchronized swimmers from Kingston will highlight a show at the OSD pool Thursday at 7 p.m., joined by a display put on by OSD youngsters. Following

A Whole New Scene

The Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority has received a $28,000 SWEEP (Students Working for Environmental Enhancement Projects) grant. Work will get under way on a 15-acre stretch of authority property that runs from the Glen Miller Bridge almost to Highway 401. Here, authority secretary-treasurer, Bill Lawson, conservation board chairman Russell Sills and immediate past-chairman Cy Macdonald, make use of a log to envision the improvements to this picturesque portion of the Trent River shoreline.

$28,000 Grant Will Transform Riverbank

TRENTON — The Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority has received a $28,000 grant for a Students Working for Environmental Enhancement Projects (SWEEP) at a 15-acre site at Glen Miller.

Ground clearing machinery has been clearing the site just south of the new Glen Miller bridge on the Trent River and within a matter of weeks, 21 SWEEP students will begin work on the shady site.

When they finish, the scrubby brushland will have been transformed into a beach, day camp and picnic area.

The students, 16 boys and five girls, will be hired following interviews in Campbellford tomorrow and in Trenton on Friday at the Canada Manpower offices.

LTRCA secretary-treasurer Bill Lawson said enthusiastically for every job vacancy, five applications have applied. Selection will prove difficult.

Last year, only seven SWEEP students were employed by the conservation authority.

The area to be developed is situated along one of the most picturesque sections of the Trent River and is now a popular spot for fishermen and picnickers. But, because of construction of the new bridge, a great deal of rubble remains to be cleared away.

The students will be making $2.25 to $2.90 an hour.

Some will be employed for 10 weeks, others for 15 weeks, and senior superintendent and technician for 20 weeks.

Business and Industry Asked To Help Cope with Leisure

Business and industry must be a more active part in sporting and providing leisure time facilities in urban municipalities.

This was the consensus at the Ontario Municipal Recreational Association conference

Steak House Sells Tons

The Ponderosa Steak House on North Front Street expects to sell a quarter million steak dinners during its first year in operation.

The steak house opened last fall, and, says manager Peter Veltheer, will go through 50 tons of beef by its first anniversary.

"Our prices are close to what the same meal would cost to prepare at home," said Mr. Veltheer, explaining the success of the new eating spot. "With women already making up one-third of the local work force, families are not spending as much time together at the family dinner table."

Since the majority of Canadians still prefer beef to any other food it's easy to see why Ponderosa's "steak at a price" has become a formula for success. The restaurant's no tipping policy and free seconds on coffee and soft drinks is also a drawing card.

The steak house chain is owned and operated by Food-ex Systems Ltd., a public Canadian company that has opened 28 steak houses in Ontario since the fall of 1971. By January, 1974, there will be 38 locations in Ontario and five in Quebec.

held this month at Chatham.

Mrs. Joan Guthrie, member of the Belleville Recreation-Arena Committee was a local delegate to the convention and reports that it could be the responsibility of recreationists to convince business and industry of the need for their involvement in the provision of recreational facilities.

At the conference there was much emphasis on the trend toward more leisure time with a 10-hour work week not outside the realm of eventual possibility.

It was the duty of recreationists, Mrs. Guthrie said in her report, to prepare the populace mentally to enjoy this leisure time, not just to endure it.

This could not be done by organizing and programming alone.

Mrs. Guthrie said recreationists must teach the populace to "want to do for themselves" in the leisure area.

A common cry raised at the conference was the lack of funds to provide recreational facilities and the Belleville delegate listed some novel fund - raising ideas used by some communities.

At Peterborough, for instance, council recently approved a bylaw calling for developers to pay an additional $250 per housing unit at the time the building permit was issued.

This money is to go into a special fund set aside for the development of parks and for recreation.

At Mississauga, developers must pay $50 per capita toward recreation with the application for each new single, multi-family or multi-storey building permit.

And at Newmarket, building permits are issued to developers only after they have agreed to provide a community recreation facility as their contribution to the area.

In this way Newmarket has attained a swimming pool, rink and community centre, at no direct cost to the municipality. Also at Newmarket, the municipality charges $15 per house to go toward provision of playground equipment.

Also, it was reported, many recreation boards make regular inquiries to trust companies regarding the availability of monies left in wills or estates in trust.

Special projects in some municipalities have reached their financial goal by staging of walkathons, payroll deductions — industry will occasionally match their employees' donations — and service group involvement.

Mrs. Guthrie said that planning was also listed as a very important part of success.

There must be good liaison between recreation staff and city hall staff so that municipal projects do not compete with one another.

Theatre Guilds' Season To End on Happy Note

Tonight marks the beginning of the end of this year's theatre season for the Belleville Theatre Guild.

Teahouse of the August Moon opens at the Pinnacle Playhouse this evening with curtain at 8 p.m. The last play of the season, it is appropriately light and easy — a good play to round out the guild's successful winter program.

The play centers about a small Okinawan village and deals with the problems of both the natives and the United States army which is trying to bring democracy to village. Plans do not follow strictly to army style but even the conflicts in the two-and-a-half-hour play have a musical, humorous tone.

As in all fairy tales, everyone lives happily ever after.

With little exception all the earlier pieces done by the guild. Teahouse will not present deep thoughts or tantalize wild images, but entertain. Happy is the word for the play.

Though the play has the veneer of a light, simplistic piece, apart from the guild's last production of Chalmer Courage, Teahouse might well be the most artistically demanding play of the year.

One of the intriguing facets of the play is that most of the actors speak an oriental dialect including the female lead Lotus Blossom, played by Inge Proulx.

While the guild is saying goodbye to audiences with one hand, it is saying goodbye too, to director and guild president Ted Bairstow.

Mr. Bairstow said at last night's final dress rehearsal he was stepping down from the guild and that he had decided to make way for other great scenes.

Mr. Bairstow came to the guild two years ago employed as the full-time artistic director of the guild. At that time he has become a staff member at Loyalist College and last year was elected as president of the guild. "I might take some similar acting part next year, but that is all," he said.

So in this way Teahouse of the August Moon is a double farewell under the direction of Mr. Bairstow.

Reservations have filled more than half of tonight's opening house. For complete ticket information call the playhouse at 967-1412.

Retirement Party Policy Established

Hastings county board of education has adopted a policy of honoring retiring teachers.

"There has been no co-ordinated approach to the manner in which members of the board, corporately, can pay their respects to retiring staff members," said Donald Williams, chairman of the staff-board relations committee in suggesting the policy. "In the past trustees have found it difficult to attend the variety of retirement banquets arranged by school staffs or local federation affiliates."

The new format calls for an informal reception at Centennial Secondary School June 27 from 8 to 10 p.m. with music and light refreshments. Cost will be $500 this year and from 16 to 18 retiring teachers are expected to be honored.

The men and women teaching federation are planning their own banquet to honor retiring elementary school teachers June 18 at the Legion Hall in Belleville when about 30 teachers will be recognized.

Restaurant Broken Into

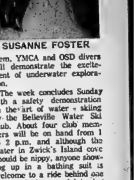
TRENTON — Thieves who broke into the Dairy Queen on Highway 2 overnight retired approximately $100 and a stereo unit after forcing a rear door and prying open the safe.

Provincial Police, who discovered the break-in at 5.30 a.m., said most of the loot stored in the safe was in change. The thieves apparently brought along their own tools since none were available at the restaurant.



SUSANNE FOSTER

them, YMCA and OSD divers will demonstrate the entertainment of underwater exploration.

The week concludes Sunday with a safety demonstration on the art of water - skiing by the Belleville Water Ski Club. About four club members will be on hand from 1 to 2 p.m. and although the water in Zwick's Island cove should be nippy, anyone showing up in a bathing suit is welcome to a ride behind one of the club's powerful towing boats.

Only cost to the public is 75 cents for the survival swimming courses. Information about times of events can be obtained at 968-3122.

Church to Mark 60th Anniversary

St. Alban's Anglican Church Ameliasburgh, celebrates its 60th Anniversary Sunday June 3 with a commemorative service and reception.

The original congregation built the church slowly with their own hands, paying it off with a series of amateur shows. They incorporated into the church an unusual patterned wooden ceiling carved by Solomon Loft, an Indian carver from Deseronto.

The service, conducted by the rector Rev. Dave Hawkins, is to begin at 2:30 p.m. Former rector, Rev. Alexander Wakelin, is to preach. Rector from 1960 to 1967, Rev. Wakeling is now chaplain at Royal Roads Military College, Victoria, B.C. The choir from St. Andrew's Anglican Church, Wellington, will also be at the service.

Area Anglican Church Women groups are catering for the reception to be held at the Town Hall following the service. Preparations include a special 60th anniversary cake.

The anniversary is being accompanied by a program of church cleanup and repairs.

Camp Opens On July 3

The first session of day camping sponsored by Belleville's Family YMCA and the city recreation - arena committee is scheduled for July 2.

Registration is expected to be completed by June 16. Complete information is available by calling the Y at 962-9245.

More Geese For Lake

TRENTON — Within the next few weeks, two giant Canada geese will be released over to the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority by the provincial natural resources ministry.

Paul Trips, director of public relations for the LTRCA said the geese will be released on Treenmur Lake near the Wooler Road. The birds are loaned to the town's water reservoirs, a man-made lake. Mr. Trips says one pair have returned and are nesting.

Recruiting Is Small-Business

Plenty of jobs on the outside was Capt. Al Laidington's explanation for few applicants to enlist in the armed forces following a recruitment session yesterday in the Four Seasons Hotel. While great cutbacks have been made in military spending, the Canadian Armed Forces is recruiting men to maintain a home force of 83,000. Looking for more information are Bayside Secondary School students Don Salgie and Paul Barrs. Recruitment sessions are held every two weeks at the hotel.

The Final Test

When it is found that brandy is a chief product of local natives, American occupation forces — destined to bring democracy to the village following the war — are a little uneasy about tasting the potion. A neighborhood goat, showing no ill effects after sampling the drink, was the ultimate test for quality. Handling the feeding are Mike Hanley, as Capt. McLean and Steve Forrester, playing Capt. Fisby. The play opens tonight at the Pinnacle Playhouse beginning at 8 p.m.

Regularity Is Important Key To Effective Care of Carpets

Carpet care can be simple, if practised regularly.

It can also be crucial to a long life for any carpet.

Robert Michaud Ltd. — one of Eastern Ontario's largest carpet centres — offers this advice:

Basically, what is needed is light daily care; regular weekly vacuuming; seasonal cleaning; professional cleaning every one to two years.

But one of the most important household tasks is regular weekly vacuuming of carpeting. The type of vacuuming — and machine — depends on the type of carpeting in the home.

For instance:

— For a carpet with fibres lying flat, a thorough weekly vacuuming is needed, using a machine that has a brush and beater bar. Canister - type vacuums can be used if extra care is taken.

— Plush, twist, loop-pile carpets should be vacuumed each week with a vacuum with brush and beater bar. Move the machine slowly to give dirt particles time to be shaken loose for suction pickup.

— For shag carpets, suction only is recommended. One method is to use the attachment hose instead of the vacuum head on the machine. This avoids fraying the yarns with too much beating — which could cause them to bloom out and lose the shag appearance.

Even with regular daily and weekly cleaning, a carpet may become dulled as dirt particles accumulate. The appearance can often be improved by home-cleaning methods. But these are no substitute for a professional job.

There are three home-cleaning methods:

(1) Dry — The method recommended by the Canadian Carpet Institute for most households. There are a number of powder cleaners available and directions should be followed explicitly. Although not as complete a cleaner as the wet method, it has some advantages — less texture distortion, better removal of greasy soil, less drying time.

(2) Wet — Suitable for all types of carpet, but resoiling problems can occur and directions should be followed explicitly. It's advisable to remove furniture, but if this is not practical, thick plastic film or aluminum foil should be placed under furniture legs until dry.

This prevents rust or other stains.

(3) Foam Spray — spray this layer on carpet and vacuum when dry. Work in small areas until entire carpet is cleaned. Without proper care a streaky appearance could result. There's the same possibility if carpet is heavily soiled.

For thorough cleaning use the services of a reliable professional firm. Most effective method is to have it done in the plant, although this may often not be practical. An exception is wall-to-wall fitted carpet. This should be cleaned in the home to avoid shrinkage.

Colorful History of Carpeting Parallels World Civilization

A visit to the newly-expanded store of Robert Michaud Ltd. gives some idea of what modern technology has achieved in carpet production—one of the world's oldest industries.

"When I first started in business broadloom was a luxury," recalls Robert Michaud. "It was produced by about three manufacturers. It was a very limited range."

Today, there are about 23 manufacturers in Canada turning out products that represent hundreds of choices in color and textures.

What revolutionized the business in modern times was the invention of man-made fibres and electronic machinery, says Mr. Michaud.

It was probably the most significant step in an industry thousands of years old. It dates from the time man began to wrap himself at nights in the ancient equivalent to the horse blanket.

From there cloth was used to protect sandaled feet from cold stone flooring.

As civilization advanced, the material was made finer and embellished with colors and designs. The art progressed swiftly in the cold mountain districts of western Asia — Turkey, Persia, Syria. Natives of the region had time, patience and a penchant for beautiful products. As a result, they produced fine results with wool, camel's hair or goat's hair, combined with a flaxen warp. Work was laboriously by hand on crude looms. Such fabric of the best sort is almost indestructible with ordinary wear.

It's not easy to tell when woven floor coverings were first used by man. Egyptian excavations have indicated such use as early as 3,000 B.C. In North America there have been samples of native workmanship that compare favorably with Oriental products. The Navajo Indian produced a colorful, hardy hand-woven carpet.

When Cortez conquered what now is Mexico, he found the palaces of the native king, Montezuma, covered with spectacular rugs — many of them made of the skins of tiny hummingbirds painstakingly sewn together.

In the Western world, probably the first carpetings made on a large scale was in France in the early 17th century. Enforced emigration because of religious conflicts sent many of the weavers to other countries, including England where manufacturer of the famous Kidderminster carpets was established.

The techniques were brought to North America by colonists settlers.

The first big revolution came in Boston in 1841 when the power loom was perfected.

Fast Work Is Needed On Stains

There's one basic rule to follow when stains hit the carpet: Immediate action.

Promptness helps reduce damage. If the spot is solid, be careful not to rub it into the fabric. If it's fluid, soak up as much as possible with clean cloth or tissues. Work inward toward the centre.

Water-based stains — Juices, drinks — should be sponged gently with clear water. If it lingers use water with detergent, and rinse. But take care not to wet carpet's backing.

Oil-based stains — fats, cosmetics, — should be tackled with solvent applied to clean cloth.

There are also stains that have a combination of both bases — gravy, soup being among the more common. These should be sponged with clear water. If persistent, a gentle mix of water and detergent should be used and spot remover if necessary.

However, some stains and spots may resist careful efforts in the home. If so, professional treatment will be required.

Printing Adds New Excitement

New developments in printing carpets may do for interior decorating what the printing press did for publishing.

It has given carpeting a new dimension that Canadian manufacturers are exploring. Up to seven different colors are possible in dyes. Usually in sharp, boldly contrasting colors, prints abound in motif, from Spanish tiles, to abstracts.

Compared with woven patterns, economic benefits to the consumer are estimated at up to $4-$5 less per square yard. Available and incoming patterns reduce decor problems since the multi-color patterns offer a wide choice of decorative schemes.

CP News Roundup

Pelletier Prefers Agreement

OTTAWA (CP) — The current dispute with the provinces over communications issues is a two-headed problem, legal and political, says Communications Minister Gerard Pelletier.

He told the Commons communications committee he would prefer to negotiate a settlement with the provinces about regulatory authority over communications. But the government is ready to take court action against Quebec over cable television, he said.

"You can't negotiate with someone who makes gesture after gesture without consultation of any kind."

Mr. Pelletier said he expects to meet with Quebec Communications Minister Jean-Paul L'Allier in early June to discuss their differences. He said Mr. L'Allier has been out of the country since the federal government announced 10 days ago that it was willing to take action to prevent Quebec from licensing cable television systems.

The Quebec government has issued temporary licences to existing cable systems in Quebec and has called for applications for permanent licences.

The Ontario government said it will negotiate the jurisdictional dispute with the federal government.

Free Lunch

OTTAWA (CP) — It appeared a bit of a shock to rancher Bert Hargreaves (PC—Medicine Hat) when he was told in the Commons Food price committee Tuesday that some people eat their lunch while they shop.

While the practice may seem harmless enough on the surface, he was told by store owner Jack Bastable of Winnipeg that it helps drive up food prices.

The lunches, you see, are provided free, but without consent, from stores.

It happens all the time, Mr. Bastable said. People grab a "chocolate bar, an apple, potato chips, drink a drink. . . they eat their lunch while they shop."

Teachers Fired

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — Two teachers were formally dismissed by the area school board Tuesday night for "unprofessional conduct" in taking part in a recent student demonstration.

The board also decided to keep a file record on three other high school teachers including principal Jeannine Seguin.

The dismissed teachers are Rev. Paul Desorcy, a Roman Catholic priest, and Jacques Boyer. The board ruled they had been active in a boycott two months ago by 750 students seeking a French-language high school.

Strike Threatens

TORONTO (CP) — Albert Roy (L—Ottawa East) told the legislature on Tuesday that French-speaking high school students in Cornwall were threatening to strike over the dismissal of two teachers.

Opposes Prints

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario should have legislation to prohibit the taking of fingerprints in credit transactions, Albert Roy (L—Ottawa East) told the legislature Tuesday.

He was speaking during debate on second reading of a government bill that would regulate credit reporting agencies.

GORDON CURTON

Hitch-hiking May Be Banned

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario government is giving "serious consideration" to banning hitch-hiking on all roads in the province, Transportation Minister Gordon Carton said Tuesday night.

Mr. Crton told delegates to the Ontario Traffic Conference (OTC) annual convention that hitch-hiking is a "dangerous practice" and the province may amend the Highway Traffic Act to prohibit it.

Heads Council

EDMONTON (CP) — Bruce J. Legge of Toronto, chairman of the Workmen's Compensation Board of Ontario, was re-elected president of the Canada Safety Council for a second term.

Plan Seminar

TORONTO (CP) — Jack McVei, minister of colleges and universities, announced plans Tuesday for a government sponsored seminar on development and co-ordination of post secondary school education.

He told the legislature that about 400 delegates from a variety of backgrounds would attend the three day seminar beginning June 11 at the University of Toronto.

Newspapers Paid Why Not Premier?

TORONTO (CP) — The legislature's public accounts committee wants to know why the province could collect money from newspaper men for flights on government aircraft but not for the personal flights of Premier William Davis.

The committee learned Tuesday that two newspapers, the Toronto Star and The Globe and Mail, paid for any flights on government planes taken by their staff on assignments.

The money was deposited as miscellaneous government revenue.

At the same time the committee received a letter from Premier Davis saying that in 1971-72 he made 10 personal flights on government-owned or leased aircraft.

The premier said he intended to pay the equivalent of commercial fares for himself and those who accompanied him on these personal trips.

The problem is that at present there is no legal way for the premier to pay the province for the flights.

Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier, responsible for operations of the province's air craft, told the committee that federal charter rules for the planes permits payments only for energy flights, but he is not told the reason for flights by ministers.

He agreed with opposition members that the charter had been violated by accepting money for flights from the newspapers.

Houses Encroaching On Needed Farm Land

WINNIPEG (CP) — Legislation, to control rural development has been of the finger-in-the-dike variety, J. W. Egerton of London, Ont., former president of the Appraisal Institute of Canada, said Tuesday.

Demand Rises

OTTAWA (CP) — The energy-hungry United States took substantially more gasoline, natural gas, fuel oil, electricity and other energy materials in the first quarter of this year than it did in the same period last year, Statistics Canada reported Tuesday.

Canada provided the U.S. with 2.3 million gallons of gasoline, up from 400,000, and 372.1 million gallons of fuel oils, up from 318.4 million. Electricity exports to the U.S. rose to 3.2 million kilowatt-hours from 1.7 million.

Will Resign

TORONTO (CP) — Albert Campbell, chairman of Metropolitan Toronto council since 1969, announced Tuesday he will resign the post July 31.

PC Director

OTTAWA (CP) — John Gordon Laschinger of Toronto has been appointed national director of the Progressive Conservative party. The announcement was made Tuesday night by Donald Matthews, national president.

Doctor Dies

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Herbert K. Detweiler, 86, who taught for more than 40 years at the University of Toronto medical school, died at his home here Tuesday following a long illness.

JEAN MARCHAND

Study Airport

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is reassessing plans to expand Mount Hope airport at Hamilton and Transport Minister Jean Marchand said he expects to report to the city council there "in a short time."

Controls Urged

TORONTO (CP) — Donald Deacon (L—York Center) called Tuesday for the introduction of provincial legislation to empower police to prosecute cases of improper insider trading on stock exchanges.

Will Process Garbage
Ontario Will Build Reclamation Plant

TORONTO (CP) — Environment Minister James Auld said Tuesday the province will build a reclamation plant to recover solid wastes from common garbage.

Mr. Auld made his announcement at a session of the standing committee studying estimates of his department.

In an interview following the session, Mr. Auld said the plant, the site of which has yet to be decided, is at least a year away from operation.

"It will be more than a five-year deal," he said, expressing hope that initial success will allow the project to become permanent.

Mr. Auld said the plant would be close to Toronto and would be adjacent to either rail or road lines to facilitate transportation of garbage to the plant and movement of the reclaimed materials to commercial centres.

He said the exact nature of the reclaiming processes to be employed at the plant would be determined by the commercial market for the reclaimants.

Mr. Auld's announcement followed persistent questioning by Bernard Newman (L—Windsor-Walkerville) as to whether the minister had any plans for both disposal and reclamation.

Mr. Newman cited the example of a Franklin, Ohio, plant that processed 150 tons of garbage a day and reclaimed glass, metals and fibres while employing only four men.

The Windsor member also criticized the failure of the province to take action against a United States chemical firm that he said was dumping tons of liquid waste on a Canadian island in the Detroit River.

Wyandotte Chemicals owns Fighting Island but the land lies within Canadian territorial waters.

Mr. Auld said that to stop the pollution, Canadian interests would have to buy back the island.

Mr. Newman disagreed, saying the pipeline the company uses to transport the waste to the island is leased from the ministry of natural resources and the province needs only to terminate that lease to halt further dumping.

Mr. Auld said he would investigate the situation further.

School Bus Stops Seen Hazardous

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Too many people are being hurt while trying to comply with present provisions of the Ontario Highway Traffic Act (HTA) applying to school bus operation, the traffic co-ordinator for Sarnia, Ont., said Tuesday.

Speaking to representatives at the Ontario Traffic Conference, Ross Gillette said the driver of a car often doesn't have enough time to stop for a school bus because he is unable to see the flashing lights from far enough away.

He said a vehicle travelling at 60 miles an hour must see the flashing lights from a distance of 600 feet to stop in time, while the HTA stipulates flashers must be seen from only 500 feet away.

Mr. Gillette said a serious hazard potential is created when school buses stop at inopportune places when discharging children.

"There can be no excuses for obstructing other traffic on the roadway with a system of portable stoplights on the school bus."

Mr. Gillette also called for continuing study of interior school bus design, compulsory implementation of school bus safety patrols and a less trigger shoot bus-stopping law.

Bill Bolton, traffic co-ordinator for the Toronto borough of Scarborough, criticized the HTA for its treatment of bicycles and cyclists.

He said bicycles are treated as ordinary vehicles in that riders are required to ride in the same direction as motorized vehicles. They are also forced to remove one hand from the handlebars when signalling their intent to turn or stop.

Mr. Bolton said about 85 per cent of all bicycle deaths involve motor vehicles and the sales of bicycles in Canada are expected to reach 1.3 million in 1973.

Gold High

The price of gold in London remained near $110 per ounce as dealers said the lack of any consistent trend indicated continued uncertainty in the market. Dealers blamed the switch from dollars to gold in the last two weeks on concern that the Watergate scandal will hamper President Nixon's efforts to check inflation in the United States and solve other economic problems. Graph traces the free market price since it started in 1968 and the official price of gold. (CP Newsmap)

U.S. Not Impatient About Trade Talks

WASHINGTON (CP) — A senior White House official said Tuesday he couldn't predict when bilateral trade negotiations will resume with Canada, but added that the United States is not impatient about the long gap in talks.

Peter Flanigan, executive director of the President's Council on International Economic Policy, dealt tersely with the subject in answer to questions at a press briefing.

Asked about a "schedule" for resuming bilateral negotiations with Canada, in suspense for more than a year, he said both governments "have indicated an interest in seeing if they can't deal with some of the irritants" in their trade, "but I see no schedule" for future talks.

Was there any American impatience with the delay? he was asked.

"We'd like to get at all our problems. But I think 'impatience' is too strong a word," Flanigan replied.

He told the briefing that President Nixon's wide-ranging trade-reform legislation, being studied now by Congress, has encountered "a surprising lack of incendiary rhetoric" from opponents of some of its provisions.

One reason, he said, was that economic pressures which led to the protectionist Burke-Hartke proposals in Congress have "diminished" as the U.S. economy revived and as the public became aware of the "fundamental errors which underly" the Burke-Hartke bill.

Davis Opposes Ending Import Tax on Cars

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis has opposed any suggestion that Canada's 15-per-cent duty on cars imported from the United States be dropped.

"In our view, complete free trade in new and-or used cars should not be implemented," the premier told the annual convention of the Automobile Dealers of Ontario Tuesday.

Recent reports have indicated that removal of the Canadian duty may be a condition by the United States for continuing the auto trade agreement, signed by the two countries in 1965.

Mr. Davis said the viability of the Canadian auto industry must be ensured. It had not been established that the industry in this country was as efficient as that of the United States.

Student Charter Flights Will Not Be Cancelled

TORONTO (CP) — Charter flights to Europe organized by the Association of Student Councils will leave from Niagara Falls, N.Y., if they are not allowed to leave from Toronto, an association spokesman said today.

The flights will not be cancelled," said Jessica Constantelis, travel secretary for the association which represents the student councils of 54 Canadian universities and colleges.

The flights, involving about 1,400 students, have been disallowed by the federal government because of new regulations abolishing the right of affinity groups to organize charters at fares negotiated by the group and the airline.

The association already had set its 1973 program when the regulations were passed in December and have continued to sell tickets at prices up to $72 lower than the minimum fare of $330 established by the government.

One must book 90 days in advance for a flight under new regulations.

"Our view is that a student cannot decide 90 days in advance. Whether or not they can go depend on exam results and the job situation," said Miss Constantelis. "We're filing for an exemption on flights leaving after June 30.

Shaggy Dog Tax

LONDON (CP) — With most second-hand goods now carrying a 10-per-cent sales tax, Battersea Dogs' Home has started "motherhood and apple pie" charging it on second-hand dogs.

Firmer Action Is Sought To Conserve Resources

OTTAWA (CP) — The Ontario Chamber of Commerce closed up shop at its annual convention here Tuesday after considering more than 100 policy items for presentation to the Ontario government.

Some delegates questioned passage of several items, particularly in the field of natural resources, saying they were not specific policy proposals but "motherhood and apple pie statements."

Consideration was given to policy proposals in the areas of labor relations, the treasury and economics, revenue, transportation and communications and activities administered by the attorney-general and solicitor-general.

The chamber will present its recommendations to the Ontario cabinet June 13.

Policy recommendations for natural resources came under close study and several were sharpened to urge firmer provincial action to conserve energy resources and control the domestic price of energy.

John Walker, a Sault Ste. Marie delegate, argued against a proposal asking that strikers picketing "and other forms of intimidation" surrounding labor disputes be declared illegal.

"If the chamber doesn't stop making motions and unrealistic recommendations, we're going to lose any force and effect that we now have," he told delegates.

WELL INSURED

At the end of 1970, Canadians owned more than $121,000 million worth of life insurance.

Ontario Cannot Block

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario plans legislation to tighten controls over the mechanical fitness certificate system for motor vehicles, Premier William Davis said Tuesday.

He told the Automobile Dealer Associations of Ontario that the legislation would be intended to overcome fraudulent issuance of mechanical fitness certificates and place greater emphasis on the control of inspections.

"It will ensure that inspections are of high quality and that there is a uniform standard of inspections across the province," he said in a prepared speech.

The certificates are necessary in the sale of used vehicles or vehicles that are registered in Ontario from other jurisdictions.

He also told the car salesmen hat the government has been reening Ottawa for 18 months o proclaim legislation making illegal to roll back automobile dometers.

Freight Rates Attacked

New Kind of Militancy Evident Across West

EDMONTON (CP) — A new kind of militancy is being expressed across the Prairies over a 90-year-old problem that the West blames for many of its troubles.

The issue is freight rates — for the West a problem as old as the laying of the first railway track across the Prairies.

More than anything else, say the Western premiers—as premiers before them have said—freight rates have been a curse for the West. They have blocked its development with discriminatory rates that favor the already - rich industrial triangle centred on Toronto.

The problem of discriminatory freight rates "goes far beyond the question of economics," said Senator Ernest C. Manning, former Social Credit premier of Alberta.

Higher freight rates not only were retarding industrial growth in the West but also were contributing to feelings of alienation among Westerners towards the rest of Canada.

Premier Ed Schreyer of Manitoba said there is "an amazing difference between the cost of shipping processed food as opposed to shipping commodities such as livestock.

"Western Canadian freight rates are riddled with inconsistencies and we want to get most of these, if not all, removed. Every one of them militates against industrial formation in Western Canada."

The leaders detailed these "inconsistencies."

Structural steel sent from Hamilton to Calgary cost $2.46 per 100 pounds in railway charges. It only cost $1.64 from Hamilton to Vancouver.

Livestock could be sent live from Edmonton to Vancouver for 19 cents per 100 pounds. But frozen meat processed in Edmonton cost $1.30 per 100 pounds to make the same trip.

Rapeseed grown on the Prairies could be shipped to Montreal for 81 cents per 100 pounds. But if processed on the Prairies into oil, it would cost $1.22 per 100 pounds on the same trip.

"It simply makes no sense at all," said Premier Peter Lougheed of Alberta.

For the first time, all four Western premiers have united to make freight rates their top priority in discussions with the federal government.

"We are suggesting in the firmest possible terms that perhaps the best vehicle for remedying regional disparities is the transportation system of Canada," said Premier Allan Blakeney of Saskatchewan.

"We want to make sure that from now on, this nation grows on a much more balanced basis," said Premier Lougheed.

Freight rates have been "perversely applied" and represent a deterrent to further industrialization of the West, said Premier Schreyer.

Premier Dave Barrett of British Colombia is less concerned with freight rates since his province already receives some concessions and can receive and ship goods by sea. Nevertheless, he has supported the demands of his colleagues, stating that changes will help B.C. "in the long run."

The minority Liberal government in Ottawa, which received little Western support in the Oct. 30 election, appears receptive.

The election, Prime Minister Trudeau has indicated, showed it is time to search for answers for the West, just as the government looked for answers for Quebec.

The throne speech suggested a conference of the federal and four Western governments on "Western economic opportunities."

It specifically proposed discussion of "improvement in the total transportation system, so basic to overcoming the problems of distance in the region, from other parts of Canada and from ocean ports."

Senator Richard J. Stanbury, president of the Liberal Federation of Canada, said freight rate revisions are being seriously considered by the federal government.

The West's case for freight rate revisions is to be the primary topic at the conference on Western economic opportunities. It will be held at Calgary July 25.

As a preliminary step towards the conference, the Western premiers gathered in Winnipeg last month and brought British Columbia into what previously had been only a loose alliance of Prairie premiers.

The result, the premiers said, was the creation of a "western bloc" with more clout than ever before.

Dr. Martin Collis attaches sensors to volunteer Nancy Chamberlayne as part of a test in Project Man Overboard. After two years of testing the project has found that vigorous sweatingonly defeats the body's natural safeguards against prolonged immersion in cold water and leads to death by hipothermia, the medical term for dangerously low body temperature. # Tiger Population Down 95 Per Cent

By HUGO ANSON

MORGES, Switzerland (Reuter) — The global population of tigers has fallen from 100,000 to about 5,000 since the end of the First World War and the species is in danger of dying out, says the World Wildlife Fund.

Man has already exterminated more than 100 species of mammal and experts fear the tiger may be next on the list.

The fund estimates that less than 80 years ago there were 100,000 tigers roaming in Asia, from the Caspian Sea to Vladivostok and south to the foot of India, Malaysia and Indonesia.

But man has cut down the forests in which the tigers live, killed off the deer and pig on which they feed and hunted them ruthlessly.

In recent years governments have attempted to halt the slaughter, but the poachers too have become more skilful and determined, attracted by the money to be made from selling the tiger's skin to make coats and rugs.

Experts say one of the greatest problems is that the few tigers left are scattered in small pockets over a vast area, whereas tiger sanctuaries need to cover 3,000 square miles to be really effective.

This is because a tiger needs 10 square miles of territory and to maintain the full genetic variety of the species at least 300 of them must be able to mix freely for breeding.

The existing sanctuaries of India, Nepal and Bangladesh are much smaller than the 3,000-square-mile minimum and furthermore they are located from one another.

These three countries have banned hunting of the big cats, except declared man-eaters. The export of their skins has also been banned.

But experts say the main requirement is to ensure the conservation of adequate forest habitats for the animals, with plentiful prey species. This in fact means conserving whole ecosystems.

Slaughter of the tiger is specially well documented in India where British soldiers and administrators and Indian princes killed them by the hundred. Several individuals boasted of having shot more than 1,000 tigers each.

World Wildlife Fund experts say one of the most important tasks now is to ensure that the tigers in the Sunderbans region of the Ganges and Brahmaputra rivers in Bangladesh are not wiped out.

A German specialist, Dr. Hubert Hendricks, spent three months in the Sunderbans two years ago to study the causes and frequency of man-eating. He found its incidence was linked to the salinity and high levels of water in the region which diminished varieties of vegetation and prey species.

More than two-thirds of the Sunderbans tigers follow the normal pattern of only attacking man if molested or surprised in difficult situations, Hendricks concluded.

He suggested it should be possible to wipe out the confirmed man-eaters and to turn the areas inhabited by the fiercer tigers into sanctuaries only exploited by man for tourism.

The government of Bangladesh, which has chosen the tiger as the symbol of its coins, is eager for the studies to continue. Prime Minister Sheik Mujibur Rahman has declared his determination to conserve the Sunderbans tigers in a national park which might be a profitable tourist enterprise.

Bermuda Is Young

HALIFAX (CP) — A Dalhousie University scientist says Bermuda is about 100 million years younger than he had anticipated.

Dr. Fab Aumento says analysis of rock samples he obtained last spring indicates that the mid-Atlantic islands were formed some 38 million years ago. The age of the ocean floor around them has been established as about 130 million years and he had expected that Bermuda would date back to the same era.

A team of workers under Dr. Aumento obtained the samples last April and May by drilling to a depth of more than 2,600 feet on the islands, 850 miles south of Halifax.

He says his research indicates that the islands were formed, possibly by a volcanic eruption, within 100 or 200 miles of their present location and did not drift westward from the mid-Atlantic ridge.

Dr. Aumento says there is no danger of any further eruptions on the site. His analysis showed the volcanic quality of the rocks was completely dead.

Popular for A While

Canadian pop music has been losing ground in the United States for the past couple of years. # Coach Confident Team Has Shot At First

Despite the rumors and the uncertainty involved in raising the nine teams in the Kingston and District Soccer League this year, Quinte Help Rovers' Fund playing coach Bob Watson sees the fight for first place as being between his club and the Portuguese Falcons.

Watson rates the Falcons higher than the Italo Canadians, the team the Belleville club defeated for the league championship last year.

Believing that the Greek Olympics lured a couple of players from last year's team, Watson does not see them as being able to match the first place spot they had with the QHP Rovers at the end of last season.

"I can't see Ottawa fielding a weak team," says Watson of one of the newest entries into the league. "they're drawing from a larger area and they seem to have money available; But that's only an impression. They're the unknown quality in the league."

Though it is difficult to tell from first impressions, QHP Rovers club secretary Fred Jones feels that Prescott, the KDSL's other new team might not be difficult competition. The QHP Rovers drummed Prescott 5-0 in their only league exhibition in civic.

Whatever the calibre of the competition, Watson observes, "I see sign the players that we had plus the four new ones, it's going to make a difference. We'll be stronger in the forward line.

"If the four new guys fit in, and so far it looks like they will, coupled with the experience of the other members of the team, we should be 30 per cent stronger than the one we were last year."

Though the player is short, Watson picked George Dei Grosse as one of the most valuable acquisitions. Fiction's Sandy Duchart will provide further strengthening of the defensive alignment while Stu Mitton and Chris Johnston will be bolstering the forward scoring combinations. Johnston will be the first pitch for the QFH Rovers' first regular season game against the Greek Olympics however. The forward tore shoulder ligaments playing for the under - 21 - year - old Belleville Selects against Peterborough Sunday, and will be sitting out.

As player coach, who has been associated with the team for four years, is pleased with the man they've got in goal — Gary Donovan. "For his size, he's the quickest kid I've seen," said Watson, "though he needs more experience in goal, he's comparable to only one other goaltender in the league. He's with the Greek Olympics."

All told, the Rovers are elected to sign 18 players by the Ontario Soccer Association, but the Belleville club will go with a roster of 16. "It's not fair to sign 18 and have four players riding the bench" said Jones, "it's not good for team morale. It's bright to have that back up strength, but in soccer it is not really needed."

With the QHP Rovers going into their first game of the season Sunday, Watson made a prediction, though he cautiously added a condition to it.

"We'll end up in first place if we sign all the players that we've asked, but if Ottawa sends out some all-star team, I may have some trust in my face. We'll place second or third if we don't sign a full complement of players."

Watson Taking a Look

QHP Rovers playing coach Bob Watson looks over the likely prospects for Belleville's Kingston and District Soccer League entry at a recent practice at Zwick's Island. Stu Mitton (left) has now signed with the Rovers while Eric Johnson will be playing in the Bay of Quinte Soccer Association this season.

Two Late Rallies In Industrial

Down 13 - 7 goingin into the seventh inning of play in the Industrial Softball League (ISL) Tuesday, ADCO had a long way to go to maintain their no loss record against Mead Johnson. But they did it.

A seventh inning rally of eight runs off Mead's pitcher Sonny Holeway earned ADCO a 15-13 win in the league's 3-0-3 won - loss - tie record in the early part of the ISL season.

Harold Wilkinson and similar trouble with the ADCO batters in the second inning allowing seven runs while hurler Wally Hull, going the distance for ADCO, allowed 14 hits with three being touched and a single batter struck out.

Mead's catcher Reg Bennett took three hits off ADCO pitchers as did Bill Sopha while Mark Reid bit two, Doug Boomhower was the only ADCO batter to reach first twice.

Canadian Tire also came up with eight runs in the top of the seventh, but they gave the Industrialism team a 17-15 win over Post Office for their fourth of the season.

Ken Trice, pitching five and two thirds innings, earned the victory with a single run allowed over seven hits, four walks, and five batters knocked down with batted balls.

Losing pitcher Ken Williams allowed seven runs over eight hits during the six innings he spent on the rubber. Gerry Genereaux showed two runs on two hits.

In the only other ISL game Tuesday, Brooke Bond scattered six runs over six innings to shade Bakelite 6-5 for their third win this season.

Tom Sine, Brooke Bond's skimpy four hits to the Lenens while striking out six and walking a single batter as Lenens' pitcher Mark Sheridan allowed seven hits for the loss.

Though few in number, Brooke Bond hit had telling effect. Al Cobbin scored two rounds with a home run while Jack Webb hit a triple and single. Singles also went to St. Jakes and Brian Boyle. Ron Stratton saw first twice.

Golden Gaels' Coach Guest Speaker Here

Frank Tindle, coach of the Queen's University Golden Gaels football team, will be the guest speaker at the first annual Centennial Secondary Athletic Awards Banquet to be held Thursday.

The coach not only has spent 25 years behind the benches of the football field, but has also coached the Gaels' basketball team, though he said it has been some where near as successful as the football team.

Between 1960-70, the Golden Gaels fought their way to the Ontario University Athletic Union gridiron championships. Last year however, the Gaels were knocked out of the sectional finals.

Along with showing football footage which Tindle said would be unusual to anyone who has either played the game or knows about it, the coach will basically be speaking on "the value of sports."

"I'll try to keep it short and keep it on the right side," said Tindle, "I have the great misfortune of both."

Dave Trent, Intermur - Astociation president, and one of the co-ordinators of the banquet, said the awards presented will be "to recognize those people who have made contributions to athletics in the school. They need not be athletes either.

"It's the first year that we've had a full intramural program with the awarding of points," said Dent, "and only are points carried by making the inter-collegiate teams and participation in individual sports such as wrestling, but administrative merit points were awarded for organization and co-ordination of the intermural program."

Ethier Blanks Auger's Waite Extends Streak

An unearned run in the bottom of the ninth inning gave Howard and Robert Printing its first win of the Commercial Softball League season Tuesday and broke up a pitching duel between Trenton Augur's Men's Wear right-hander Scott Reid and the winner, lefty Bob Ethier.

It was the first extra-inning game of the season. And it was Auger's first loss after posting a pair of shutout wins.

In the second game of the twin bill, Rollins Construction kept the opposition scoreless for the third time in as many starts, blanking Ellis Juniors 3-0. The win gave Rollins undisputed possession of first place in the standings.

Moe Hunter carried home the only run of the game in the Howard and Robert win. He reached first on an error leading off in the ninth and after Reid got Ethier on strikes and Trenton error put Paul Paddon aboard.

Reid came right back to get Rusty Garnie on an infield out with the runners - holding but Pat Hastings scored on a fielder's choice deciding hit. His two-out single scored Hunter and, that was the ball game.

Ethier finished up with a strong mound performance, allowing Auger's only four base hits while striking out nine and walking three. Four times the Trenton squad had runners in scoring position but on each occasion, Ethier came through in the clutch to get out of trouble.

Touched for seven hits, Reid fanned three and walked a pair. Assisted by the two singles to lead the winners' hitters, Paddon doubled with one single each for Larry Potter, Dwight Rathwell, Hunter and Ethier.

Ted Waite pitched a solid two-hitter for Rollins. He retired every man he faced except for Ellis infielder-outfielder Jim Richardson who connected for a triple in each of his two plate appearances.

Richardson slammed his first with two out in the second and duplicated his feat with one away in the fifth. But each time, Waite had the answer, coming up big when he had to.

Over the seven inning route, Waite put third strikes past 13 batters and did not walk a man. His mates got to Ellis starter Garry McMurray for a pair of runs in the fourth, making the most of an error, a walk and a wild pitch plus a pair of sacrifice flyballs.

Dave Howood came on in relief with two gone in the fourth and after walking the first man he faced, got out of the inning by getting Ralph Plaze on a pop to second. Paul Richardson allowed second for the third Rollins run when he led off the fifth with a homer.

Howood added a single to go with his home run and Waite checked in with a pair of singles. - Wayne McTaggart doubled and Doug Defoe knocked out the winners' hitting with a single.

In three innings play, Mc Murray gave up five hits. He fanned none and walked two. Howood allowed just one hit, the homer by Goodfellow. He struck out one and walked two.

Yankee Power Back Four Homers Crush A's

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

That long - absent Yankee power exploded in New York Tuesday night, battering Oakland A's 7-4 with four home runs, two of them by Graig Nettles.

Roy White and Bobby Murcer hit the other Yankee homers and Ron Blomberg, baseball's leading hitter, raised his average to .404 with two hits.

It all made manager Ralph Houk's post-game cigar taste terrific.

"Our offence has reached the point where it scares people, especially right-handers" said Houk, grinning.

Elsewhere in the American League Tuesday night, Boston Red Sox edged California Angels 2-1, Baltimore Orioles trimmed Kansas City Royals 3-2, Minnesota Twins shut out Milwaukee Brewers 1-0, and Cleveland Indians outslugged Texas Rangers 9-7. Detroit Tigers game vs Chicago White Sox was rained out.

Vida Blue was the out to check the Yankees bats at Oakland tonight while Cleveland visits Texas, Kansas City entertains Detroit, Detroit is in Chicago, Minnesota at Milwaukee and California at Boston.

The offensive show against the World Champion A's raised the Yankees' team batting average to .268, third best in the league. Besides Blomberg, the Yanks have Jim Ray Hart .323 and Thurman Munson .305 among the top 10 batters.

New York's attack is so potent that Blomberg and his fat average can't get regular work.

"There's no way Blomberg will play against left-handers," said Houk. "I've never even given it a thought."

Part of the reason for that is that the Yankees' righty swinging first baseman, Felipe Alou, is hitting over .300 against left-handers.

Nettles, two-run shot in the second inning ended a 27-inning shutout string for Catfish Hunter. An inning later, White's two-run homer, a solo shot by Murcer and Blomberg's double finished Hunter. Nettles' second homer greeted reliever Paul Lindblad and Felix Peterson coasted after that on a five-hit pitching.

Boston's designated hitter, Orlando Cepeda, spoiled a five-hit, 10-strikeout show by Nolan Ryan, homering his seventh homer to beat California's fire-balling right-hander.

Cepeda connected in the second inning after Reggie Smith drew a walk. The lone Boston homer wiped out a 1-0 Angel lead and centre fielder Smith protected the slim edge by cutting down Ken Berry trying to score the tying run in the seventh.

Baltimore squeezed past Kansas City with Brooks Robinson singling home Paul Blair with the deciding run in the eighth inning.

Bobby Darwin boomed a lead-off homer in the seventh inning and that was all Bert Blyleven needed to pitch Minnesota past Milwaukee.

Plyleven allowed just six hits and pitched his way out of a jam in the bottom of the ninth.

Cleveland outlasted Texas in a slugfest. George Hendrick had three hits and drove home batted in for the Indians while Alex Johnson had three hits for the Rangers, who lost their 10th game in the last 22 starts.

Cardinals are Flying After Being Grounded

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

April brought nothing but showers for St. Louis Cardinals. But seven days in May have the Redbirds flying high again.

The Cardinals, who dropped six of their first 13 starts and left April with a 3-15 mark and a solid hold on last place in the National League East, ran their winning streak to seven games Tuesday night with a 2-0 victory over Cincinnati Reds as Scipio Spinks and Diego Segui combined for a 13-strikeout five-hitter.

It also was their 18th triumph in 21 games and lifted them out of the cellar for the first time since April . They climbed one-half game ahead of Philadelphia when Los Angeles Dodgers whipped the Phillies 5-3.

Elsewhere, Tom Seaver fired a three-hitter and struck out 18 as New York Mets downed San Francisco 5-2 and cut the Giants' lead to one-half game and Los Angeles in the West Division. Chicago Cubs trimmed Expos Leo Durocher's Houston 7-1 and Pittsburgh Pirates beat Atlanta Braves 6-1 in other games.

Chicago put its five-game Eastern Division lead on the against Houston while San Francisco entertained New York in another afternoon contest. At night, Atlanta is at Pittsburgh, Cincinnati at St. Louis, Philadelphia at Los Angeles and Montreal at San Diego.

Manager Red Schoendienst attributes the Cardinals' recent surge to "relief pitching and defence, plus timely hits. . . ."

"If you make the plays defensively, your pitchers are going to be better."

The bullpen has saved four games during the current streak and the last 17 relief jobs have produced 12 1-3 scoreless innings with a yield of only nine hits.

An unearned run, which scored on Joe Morgan's throwing error in the eighth inning, made a loser of Reds' starter Clay Carroll.

Joe Ferguson drove in four runs with a pair of two-run doubles, leading a 15-hit attack as the Dodgers whipped Philadelphia for their fifth straight victory.

Bill Robinson homered in the second for the Phillies but Preacher, the league's REI leader with 41, doubled home two runs in the third. In the fifth he doubled in two more and then scored on a double by Bill Russell.

Felix Millan's tie-breaking two-run single highlighted a four-run rally in the ninth being that lifted the Mets over the Giants.

Reliever Randy Moffitt walked Wayne Garrett to force in the tying run and Millan then ripped a single past third.

Jon Carleseal and Randy Hundley hit two-run singles in a four-run first inning and Rick Reuschel scattered five hits in the Cubs' triumph over the Astros, spoiling the first Chicago visit of rookie manager Leo Durocher since he resigned as Cub pilot last July 24.

Luke Walker and Jim Rooker scattered seven hits and Willie Stargell's 13th home run of the season helped the Pirates beat the Braves. Pittsburgh lanced loser Carl Morton for an unearned run in the second and added two more runs in the third on a pair of walks, a run-scoring single by Stargell and an infield out.

Player's Scoring Notation

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Gibby Gilbert got himself disqualified in the second round of the Atlanta golf tournament last week-end. Gary Player came up with a new scoring notation. Gibby:

"What happened?" Gibby was asked in the locker room later.

"Just what Gary put on my scorecard," he said. "R.O.B."

Frank Beard and Fred Marti, who were listening, exchanged blank looks.

"R.O.B.?"

"Yeah," replied Gibby. "Ran out of balls. I started off with six, and loaned three of them to Gary. By the time I got to the ninth hole (his 18th of the day) I was down to one.

"I hit it into the woods up on the hill on the left. I got up there to look for it and found a dozen balls—none of them mine. I was gonna miss the cut anyhow so I said, 'to hell with it,' and walked in."

Toronto Blue Jay Wallace Sid Tuesday night to post the only shutout game in the new Ontario Football League.

Jim other games, Niagara Falls edged London 2-2 and Woodstock downed Oshawa 4-2.

At Welland, the Flyers struck out 17 Welland players and gave up two hits. His no-hit bid was spoiled in the ninth inning.

Don Lee, Toronto's first baseman, had a triple, two singles and three runs batted in. Marty Twerman batted Lee with a double and a single.

Ted deBrigger was the losing pitcher, going 6 1-3 innings and giving up four runs on seven hits. Ken Rhora finished the game for Welland, allowing one run on two hits.

At London, third baseman Frank Falzone hit home two runs for Niagara Falls in the second inning. Robbie Rott hit a bases-empty homer for the visitors in the third.

Catcher Ted Morrison was London's leading slugger with three hits. Centre fielder Dave Steele had two hits for Niagara Falls.

Starting pitcher for Niagara Falls was Wally Szeplewski. He was relieved in the fourth by Jake Neufeld.

Joe Adamo, London's starting pitcher, took the loss. He gave way to Ivan Herrington in the fourth. Herrington didn't allow a hit in his five innings.

At Oshawa, Dave Lain and Bill Fidlin both singled and Terry Lamb managed a double for Woodstock.

Oshawa scored both its runs in the third inning on a triple by Daryl Hodgin and singles by Dave Stewart and Phil Solomon.

Woodstock tied the game in the fourth with Jack Farmer's triple scoring two runs.

Winning pitcher Fidlin allowed seven hits while striking out four batters and loser Barry Fraser gave up nine hits and struck out eight.

500 Postponed Again Rescheduled for Today

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A steady drizzle Tuesday washed out the Indianapolis 500-mile race for the second straight day—the first time in the 57-year history of the event that it has happened.

It was rescheduled for 10 a.m. EDT today.

Thirty-one of the 33 remaining cars in the starting field managed to get in a parade and pace lap before the rain returned.

One of the original starting field of 33, David (Salt) Walther's No. 77, was missing from the lineup. It was the car that damaged seriously in Monday's multiple-car wreck.

Walther was seriously injured in the accident not nine seconds after the false start of the race.

Speedway officials and drivers were apprehensive in their remarks about the second workout.

Chief Steward Harlan Fengler told the second-day crowd of more than 175,000 that he waited for 4½ hours before calling the race, hoping conditions would improve. They didn't.

"We have a very dangerous situation here. The track is not safe," Fengler said. The powerful, turbocharged champion ship cars cannot run safely on a wet track.

A. J. Foyt Jr., a three-time winner at Indy, apparently was a better judge of weather than the race officials. He changed cars of his driving uniform and left to eat a meal at the nearby Speedway VIP suites reserved drivers before the official announcement was made.

Foyt was one of three drivers fined $100 each Tuesday for improving their positions before Monday's aborted start. The others were Steve Krisiloff and Peter Revson.

Fengler handed out the fines and also recommended that the U.S. Auto Club impose a stiffer fine against the three. The maximum fine now could impose, however, was $100.

"It may be that I passed over the cars before the starting line." Foyt admitted. "I passed most of them after the starting line. But, they (the officials) are in better position to see than I was. It's their decision and I'll accept it."

None of the three was directly involved in the spectacular wreck.

The first rain delay Tuesday wasn't bad for everyone.

A brake hose on John Martin's McLaren had been seared in the Monday wreck and gave out on the parade lap Tuesday. Martin had to go into the pits and would have missed the start of the race. The repairs were made with the help of polestter Johnny Rutherford's chief mechanic, Hagbie Mosely, and some USAC officials, who helped Martin's crew get a new hose.

Martin was asked whether the delays made him edgy. His reply apparently expressed the sentiment of many of the drivers, some of whom sailed a Frisbee in the pit area or napped during the long wait.

"I don't get nervous," Martin said. "I just get sleepy."

Rangers' Vickers NHL's Top Rookie

MONTREAL (CP) — Steve Vickers, a 20-goal scorer in his first National Hockey League season, was named Tuesday as the winner of the Calder Trophy, awarded annually to the NHL's top rookie.

Vickers received 103 points compared with 74 for runner-up Bill Barber in voting conducted by representatives of the National Hockey Writers' Association in the 16 NHL cities.

Right winger Bill Harris of New York Islanders received 62 points; Jim Schoenfeld, the rugged Buffalo Sabres defenceman, was next with 46 and Daniel Bouchard, a goaltender with Atlanta Flames, got 42. In all 15 players, representing 12 NHL teams, received votes. Points were awarded on the basis of five for a first choice, three for a second and one for a third.

Vickers was in the Calder voting marked the first time in 15 years that a member of the Rangers has been recognized as the NHL's top rookie. Camille Henry was named in 1954 after scoring 24 goals in his rookie season with New York.

In 62 games this season, Vickers scored 30 goals and 23 assists for 53 points, the most ever scored by a Ranger rookie, surpassing by six the total recorded by Henry in 1954.

One of the things Vickers did in his rookie year was score three goals in consecutive games against Los Angeles Kings Nov. 12 and Philadelphia Flyers Nov. 15. It was the first time that feat had ever been performed by a first-year player in the league.

He was injured in a game against Pittsburgh as engineer Defenceman Darryl Edestrand nailed him with a solid check. The resulting leg injury kept him out of action until Dec. 24.

Vickers, who stands five feet 11 inches and weighs 190 pounds, played his junior hockey with Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series. In his final year with the Marlies he scored 107 points and was New York's first draft pick in the NHL's draft of overage juniors in 1971.

In 1971-72, Vickers scored 36 goals and 23 assists while playing with the Rangers affiliate at Omaha in the Central Hockey League.

Vickers, 5Th holder of the trophy, will get $1,500. Barber will get $750 as runner-up.

Following are the complete voting results:

EGAN HAS NEW PACT

HOUSTON, (A) — Johnny Egan has signed a three-year contract as head coach of Houston Rockets of the National Basketball Association, Ray Patterson, president and general manager of the team, announced Tuesday. Egan, 34, succeeded Tex Winter as head coach last year.

7 Teams Involved In Player Trades

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

"Right in the middle of lambing season, too," Bill MacMillan said Tuesday night from his farm at Southport, PEI. He was was referring to the National Hockey League trade announced earlier in the day that sent him to New York Islanders from Atlanta Flames. It was 24 hours after Flames' general manager Cliff Fletcher had called him to tell him of the impending announcement so he had had an opportunity to consider his future.

"I'm not too disappointed now," said the rugged 30-year-old left winger who has found himself the surprised man on the move several times in many years. "I enjoyed Atlanta, but I'm really looking forward to New York.

"The only place to go is up," MacMillan went to the Islanders to complete a Feb. 13 trade in which the Flames received defenceman Arnie Brown for another left winger, Ernie Hicke.

"Sure I was surprised when I got the call. I'm one of the trade," MacMillan said. "I just thought to myself, 'What kind of deal is that' two-for-one."

It was almost a year ago, at the June draft meeting, that the treat. that MacMillan, laid up in Toronto with whiplash received and he had been taken by Atlanta in the expansion draft.

Montreal Canadiens, meanwhile, continued to insure their future by trading off talent—proven players to have-hot teams for unnamed players and future considerations.

Shortly before the Tuesday midnight trading deadline, the Stanley Cup champions unloaded defencemen Bob Murdoch and minor leaguer Randy Rota to Los Angeles Kings for a player to be named later plus a future amateur draft choice.

In another deal, the Canadiens sent defencemen Dale Hoganson and Bob Murray along with right winger Chuck Arnason to Atlanta. In return, they got a player to be named later and future considerations.

Hoganson already signed a contract with Quebec Nordiques of the WHA, who sponsored the 1972-73 season on the Montreal bench.

Earlier, the Canadiens traded minor leaguer Tony Featherstone to Minnesota North Stars for a player to be named later.

Rota and Featherstone played on Atlanta's affiliate American League farm team, Nova Scotia Voyageurs.

Several other trades were announced during the day. This year's draft at Montreal starts June 10.

Toronto traded defenceman Larry McIntyre, 25, and minor league forward Murray Heatley to Vancouver Canucks for goaltender Dunc Wilson.

The Islanders also completed a March 4 trade with Philadelphia by acquiring defenceman Glen Irwin, 22, from the Flyers' AHL team, Richmond Robins.

The March trade sent centre Terry Crisp to Philadelphia in return for defenceman Jean Potvin whose brother, Denis, was the No. 1 selection in the NHL's recent Junior draft.

The Toronto trade was included at a news conference in which the Leafs announced the signings of their second and third selections from the recent Junior draft—defencemen Bob Neely and Ian Turnbull.

Neely, with eterborough Petes and Turnbull from Oshawa GTs of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, were 19th and 15th picks respectively in the junior draft.

Jackson and Lewis Enter Hall of Fame

HAMILTON (CP) — Russ Jackson, Leo Lewis and Mac Lieberman have been elected to the Canadian Football Hall of Fame, it was announced today.

Jackson and Lewis, two of the biggest names of the day, were elected to the player's section while Lieberman was elected to the builder's section.

Jackson, now a school principal and television commentator, was one of the most brilliant Canadians ever to play the game. As quarterback for the Ottawa Rough Riders he was named the top player in the game three times.

His ability to run the ball made him one of the most exciting performers anywhere. And when his running was cut off he bant the opposition with the pass.

As well as being a superb football player, Jackson, 36, was a bright boy in the classroom. In his last year at McMaster University he declined a nomination for a Rhodes Scholarship.

He turned to professional football and led Ottawa to the playoffs in the Eastern Conference in all 12 seasons with the club. They won the Grey Cup in 1960, 1968 and 1969, the last time he played and the last time Ottawa made the final.

Lewis, nicknamed the Lincoln Locomotive, played 11 seasons with Winnipeg Blue Bombers, making all-star six times. He twice gained more than 1,000 yards in a season.

He was nominated as Canada's outstanding players five times, but never won the award.

The slashing runner still holds the Canadian Football League record for kickoff returns with 107—there's no one even close. The second player in the list is Harvey Wilke who has 151 and he hasn't played for years. Lewis's average of 29.1 yards is also unchallenged.

Born in Des Moines, Iowa, Lewis attended college in Lincoln, Missouri.

Lieberman, a lawyer, was born in Kingston, Ont., but played his football in Western Canada—for University of Alberta and Edmonton Eskimos, retiring in 1921.

However, he's been associated with the Eskimos through the good and bad years and was club president in 1955 and 1956 when the club won Grey Cups.

He's now a prime mover behind the Eskimos' annual $100-a-plate dinner that helps keep the club in the black.

WINS BUGGER GAME

OTTAWA (C) — Jake Ryan scored a try with less than two minutes remaining Tuesday as an Ottawa select side defeated a Bermuda touring team 18-16 in exhibition rugby.

Jake Gaudaur: CFL Not Dead In Montreal

OTTAWA (CP) — Jake Gaudaur, commissioner of the Canadian Football League, said Tuesday recent moves by owner Sam Berger of Montreal Alouettes could return the club to the respectability it enjoyed 20 years ago—both on the field and at the box office.

He said he could not agree with critics who maintain that the CFL brand of football is on its downward trend.

Gaudaur was speaking following the opening-day sessions of the league's semi-annual meeting.

Tuesday, and again today, the general managers of the nine CFL teams meet to prepare proposals to present to club owners for ratification Thursday and Friday.

Included for ratification will be the final draft of the 1974 league schedule. Next year the four - team Eastern Football Conference will move to a 16-game schedule for each team from the 14 contests of this season. The five-team Western Football Conference now plays 16 games.

"To a greater degree than any other man in the CFL, Sam Berger has put his money where his mouth is," Gaudaur said. Berger moved his football interests from this city when he purchased the Alouettes for a reported $1.2 million late in 1969. Despite winning the Grey Cup in 1970—his initial season as Alouette towner—Berger has failed to draw fans to the 33,000-seat Autostade or to the 20,000-seat McGill University park. He moved the club back to McGill's midtown Molson Stadium last season in an effort to regain the fans lost at the Autostade.

"This year he's moving back to the Autostade despite his previous experiences there," Gaudaur said.

The commissioner said he had earlier undertaken a study of Alouettes fortunes through the last 20 years and found that football interest in Montreal remains "all just under the surface" and ready to emerge "if they produce on the field."

Gaudaur said every team needs a personality, and agreed that last week's signing of Hairman Trophy winner Johnny Rodgers from Nebraska could be the turning point for the Alouettes.

Jackes Applauds Swedes

OTTAWA (CP) Gordon Jackes was gratified Tuesday that the Swedish Ice Hockey Association was following Canada's lead in pulling out of Olympic competition.

The announcement was made by Helge Berglund, Swedish association president, in a letter to an International Olympic Association ruling that set the amount an athlete could earn from athletics.

He said most of the top Swedish players earned more than the limit.

Jickes, executive secretary of the Canadian association, said:

"It's nice to see them (Swedes) put their sport on the line, sort of.'

He said Canada had pulled out of Olympic hockey in 1972 because of the hypocrisy inherent in the Olympic oath whereby athletes are required to forswear any earnings as a direct result of sports.

"Sweden has always supported our position, even in Moscow last month," Jickes said. "I suppose Berglund is saying, too, that the Olympic oath is hypocritical."

Jickes said Canada has not yet decided on its position regarding the 1976 winter Olympics, but would do so well before the Games are held.

Gordie Interested 3 Howes for Aeros?

DETROIT (AP) — Gordie Howe, Detroit Red Wings legend, may be might be back on the ice next season along with his two sons, playing for Houston Aeros of the World Hockey Association.

"I have always said I would like to play at least one year with my boys," Howe, 45, said Tuesday night in a telephone interview with The Associated Press.

"The Aeros talked to me briefly, and I'm open minded right now. They seem quite interested in the whole family."

Howe's sons Mark, 18, and Marty, 16, were drafted by the Aeros recently and Howe said he and his sons will be in Houston next week to talk about the boys' contracts.

"We've had some preliminary conversations and while they were talking about the boys, they asked me how I'd like to get back on the ice," said the highest scorer in National Hockey League history.

"We'll be talking about the boys' contracts," he added. "And about the possibility of one for me?

"I don't know. There are so damn many ifs . . . but, I'm definitely interested."

The elder Howe was drafted by Los Angeles Sharks in the original WHA draft a year ago.

Howe retired from the Red Wings at the end of the 1970-71 season after 25 years with the club. During those years he made the NHL record book look like a personal testimonial.

Among the league records he holds are those for most seasons played, 25; goals scored, 76; assists, 1,023, and total points, 1,908.

IN THE REFERENCE ROOM

Time, 1923-1970; Scientific American, 1948 - 1971; Newsweek, 1948-1972; U.S. News and World Report, 1933-1972; Holiday, 1949-1970; Current History, 1941-1972; Globe and Mail, 1973; Financial Post, 1970-1972; Belleville Intelligencer, 1801-1900.

A selection of new pamphlets:

HOW TO PLAY BETTER VOLLEYBALL — ... includes history of the game, the players, fundamental skills, team play, and a glossary of common volleyball terms.

FOREST FLORA OF CANADA — Released by the Department of Northern Affairs and National Resources Forestry Branch. Forest Flora of Canada has been prepared to meet the demand for a visual guide to the more common plants found within the forest.

FOREST ENEMIES — Department of Rural Development. This booklet has been prepared to remind Canadians that although their forest resources are vast, they are by no means limitless — that in addition to cropping forests in a sensible manner, we must intelligently combat the ravages of disease, insects and fire.

PULP AND PAPER — Council of Forests Industries of British Columbia. The story of the pulp and paper industry from its inception and early history to modern methods and pollution control.

THE CLAM FISHERIES OF BRITISH COLUMBIA — Fisheries Research Board of Canada. Clams and other mollusks have long been an important source of food to the people of the Pacific coast of Canada. This pamphlet outlines the growth and development of the clam fisheries in British Columbia.

THE FISHERIES OF LAKE OF THE WOODS — Ontario Ministry of National Resources. Based mainly on the studies of the Ontario portion of the Lake which was begun in 1962, this is a five year study devoted to a historical review of the lake, physical features, chemical properties and status of fish population.

LET'S TEACH BECOME — V. K. Gilbert Guidance Centre Faculty of Education. An account of the implementation of the credit diploma in the secondary schools of Ontario.

HOOKED RUGS — Ontario and Food. Rug hooking is such a very accessible craft, it is not known exactly where it began. This booklet, well illustrated, is a boon to the beginner in this fascinating craft.

WEAVING FOR BEGINNERS — Director of Handicrafts Department of Trade and Industry, Nova Scotia. Man is a weaver by instinct and necessity. The information and instruction in this pamphlet touches only the principles — the ABCs of weaving. Once these have been learned, the weaver can proceed on his own into an unlimited field of creative activity.

COMMUNITY CRAFTS — Ministry of Community and Social Services. The Communikits project began in August 1970 in the Greage Park Community in Toronto. From June 1971 to January 1972, the community development branch in co-operation with the Ontario Craft Foundation provided a worker to act as an enabler for the group. This is a report by the worker.

Old Relics Embarrass Nuernberg

NUERNBERG, West Germany (Reuter) Three relics of Germany's Nazi past are provoking city authorities here with a headache.

The problem is what to do with a vast, roofless meeting hall, a crumbling rally stadium and an avenue the size of an airport runway.

The brown-shirted party members would stand along the wide alleyway from their camping grounds and assemble in the stadium where the swastika emblem waved above Hitler's podium.

The Congress Hall, an imposing neo-classical building shaped like a large letter U, would one day accommodate European delegates to Hitler's victorious meetings, according to the Fuehrer's plan.

But the plans, like the rest of Hitler's dreams, came to a shuddering halt in the Second World War.

Now Sunday afternoon strollers take the air in the stadium and motorists repair their cars on the avenue, or park them in the shell of the Congress Hall.

City authorities, embarrassed by these symbols of Hitler's power, have discovered that, purpose-built as they were, they have no possible function in modern West Germany.

And any attempt to blow them up would require so much explosive that nearby housing and office blocks might be damaged by the blast.

Building experts still recall that the West German armed forces had to use their most powerful explosives to destroy the 134 stone towers which Hitler had built in the area.

The rest of the group of buildings is just as tough. Hitler having intended it to last the 1,000 years which he promised his Third Reich would survive.

UN Plans 10-year War On Racism

GENEVA (Reuter) — A 10-year battle against discrimination all over the world will begin this year with the backing of the United Nations.

Drawn up by the UN Commission on Human Rights, the program awaits final approval by the General Assembly later this year before going into action.

Its aim is to combat racism in all its forms and to promote human rights and fundamental freedoms without any distinction of race, color or ethnic origin.

Under the program, the years 1973-1983 will be declared a "decade for action to combat racism and racial discrimination," with a world conference to be convened by 1978 as the salient feature.

The UN will call on all countries to draw up and implement economic, social, cultural and political measures to give individuals full equality without distinction of race, color, sex, language, religion or political opinion, and without regard to national origin, property or birth.

It will ask countries to abolish particularly all forms of discrimination in schools and colleges as soon as possible during the first half of the decade.

And it will ask them to abolish all discrimination in immigration policies by the second half of the decade at the latest.

Countries are asked to grant scholarships to young people from territories where racial discrimination prevails and to give increased contributions to the UN education and training program for southern Africa.

Plans Book

Prof. William Y. Smith, of the University of New Brunswick stepped down March 31 after a three-year-term as chairman of the Atlantic Development Council, as advisory arm of the federal department of regional economic expansion. He is planning to write a book about regional development and the "interplay between politics and economics". The 53-year-old economist will continue teaching. (CP Photo)

High Avalanche Toll Blamed On Carelessness

INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP) — They say outdoor life is healthy, but in Austria last winter, it brought the highest death toll in 14 years.

Sixty persons died under avalanches in the country's Alpine regions while skiing, hiking or just in a snowball fight.

Wastl Mariner, chief of the Austrian Mountain Rescue Service, says most of the deaths were due to "punishable carelessness" and not because of any hazards of outdoor life.

Some tourists fail to heed warnings by such institutions as the Avalanche Warning Service, seldom asking experts for advice or, as was the case of a group of 25 Bavarian mountaineers, overlooking a sign warning of extreme avalanche danger.

That overs ight caused 10 deaths.

Not only foreign tourists die.

In April, four Kleinarl ski instructors—all friends of Austria's triple Alpine World Cup winner Annemarie Proell—died in an avalanche.

The men were skiing down Mount Kraxenkogel near Kleinarl. A Salzburg province avalanche expert, Markus Schmuck, said the four probably were unaware of a shift in snow and how avalanches are formed.

Schmuck said he believed once the four cut into the avalanche's snow storage area, the snow started to move all at once over a 6,000-foot section.

People hardly knew that it is no concern whether they step off an avalanche on its top, bottom or centre. Once its pressure field is disturbed the avalanche in nearly all cases starts moving on its entire length.

Old Auto Tires Make Good Roads

NEW YORK (CP) — The New York state highways department has finally found a use for those discarded automobile tires that so often scar the North American landscape. They are ground up, mixed with asphalt and used to fill potholes.

State highway officials say the new mixture process, developed by a company in Vicksburg, Miss., produces a "far more durable and flexible" compound than the present asphalt sealant used to fill cracks and joints in roadways.

"The mix lasts twice as long as ordinary asphalt, penetrates deeper into cracks and doesn't get as brittle in freezing weather," said state highway Schuler. "It has proven particularly effective in sealing joints in bridge decks."

Constant expansion and contraction of road surfaces caused by weather changes frequently produces cracks and splits. During winter, water seeping into the cracks freezes and then expands, producing ruts and potholes that damage cars.

Normally, highways departments inspect and fill street and highway potholes annually, working with hot asphalt. Schuler said the new sealant is expected to last from two to three years, compared with the one-year lifespan of ordinary asphalt. It also does not mar as much from tires running over it.

Use of ground rubber raises the cost of the new sealant by one to two cents a running foot over pure asphalt but the longer life of the compound is expected to reduce costs in the long term.

New York plans to use the compound on its 14,000 miles of state highways.

Death Penalty Ban Approved By 138 to 114

OTTAWA (CP) — In a tense vote Tuesday night the Commons gave second reading, approval in principle, to legislation that would extend the partial ban on the death penalty for another five years.

The 138-to-114 vote, wider than many expected, left opponents of the death penalty jubilant and prompted Solicitor-General Warren Allmand to announce that the government may ask Parliament to abolish the death penalty.

"There's a point of view that we did something to tighten up parole the House would be ready to consider complete abolition," he said minutes after the vote was taken.

"I'm not saying we are definitely going to do it because we haven't made any decision."

The legislation, restricting the death penalty to murderers of on-duty policemen and prison guards, would renew an initial five-year ban that expired Dec. 28.

The bill now goes to the Commons justice and legal affairs committee.

Eighty-four Liberals, 25 Conservatives and 29 New Democrats voted for the bill; 21 Liberals, 77 Conservatives, one New Democrat, 14 Socreds and Roch LaSalle (Ind—Joliette) voted against.

Prominent members voting in favor included Prime Minister Trudeau and his full cabinet except absent Science Minister Jeanne Sauve, Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, NDP Leader David Lewis and former prime minister John Diefenbaker. Social Credit Leader Real Caouette was the only party leader to oppose the bill.

Mr. Allmand said he hopes return for third reading before the Commons summer adjournment, scheduled at the end of June. If it fails to pass in the current session, all-party agreement would be necessary to prevent it from going back to the starting line in a new session.

Mr. Allmand said about 10 Liberals voted for the bill in the hope tougher parole restrictions will be added in committee. They would vote against it at third reading if no changes occur.

Squatters in London

Quinte Vote

OTTAWA — Of Quinte area MPs two, Jack Ellis (C Hastings) and Flora MacDonald (PC- Kingston) voted for the bill extending the ban on capital punishment. Opposed were PC MPs George Hees of Prince Edward-Hastings, Allan Lawrence of Northumberland-Durham and Douglas Alkenbrack, Frontenac-Lennox and Addington.

Charlie, 23, a squatter in a row of houses on Elgin Street in west-central London, stands in a corner of bedroom-living room. The fact that the buildings will be reduced to rubble within a couple of years doesn't bother the squatters. They will simply move on to other derelict areas of London and start over again. ## Power Plays Feature Tri-level Parley

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Ron Basford called it a voyage of discovery in the consultative process but Ontario's first tri-level conference that ended Tuesday appeared to focus as much on power manoeuvres by the three governments as on urban planning strategy.

After two days of talks, federal, provincial and municipal leaders and their advisers, totalling about 200, came to no major conclusions in discussions on housing, transportation and the environment.

The only real unanimity among the three jurisdictions was that tri-level talks were worthwhile and should continue.

Mr. Basford, federal urban affairs minister, offered the only major incentive for tri-level action in his proposal to promote low-cost housing through new land-assembly plans. Part of it was an offer to make Crown land available for residential development, the only phase of his five-point program supported by the conference.

John White, the province's intergovernmental affairs minister, insisted Ottawa should turn over funds to the province to allocate and set its own priorities in housing. Mr. Basford said he did not come to Peterborough to talk money.

The 62-member municipal delegation, through chief spokesman Whitby Mayor Desmond Newman, appeared to side more with the federal power, fully embracing Mr. Basford's housing plans for major cities and for increased funding to relocate railway lines from property more suitable for housing or recreation.

The municipalities were lukewarm to Mr. White's commitment to give them and the public more input in planning and development through a new legislative framework to be unveiled next week.

They complained on the first day of the conference at Trent University that Mr. White's senior ministers are disdainful of "participatory process."

Mr. Newman's delegation prepared its submissions at caucus rallies during the noon and supper hour breaks of the conference.

There was a generally amiable mood when the conference closed as Mr. Basford promised to attend future quarterly meetings of the provincial-municipal liaison committee, starting with the next one in July, He had been cool to the idea earlier.

Frankford Personals

On Wednesday, May 23rd, pupils of Miss Yotsnyy's and Miss Cambell's classes of Frankford Public School went by bus to Picton to see a circus.

Each child brought their lunch to school and had lunch in the classrooms before leaving. There was much excitement, as many of the grade one and grade two pupils have never been to a circus and didn't quite know what they were going to see at the afternoon performance.

St. Francis of Assisi Church held their weekly Euchre party Monday evening with the following winners:- Ladies first - Mrs. C. Johnston, Trenton. Ladies second - Mrs. Mary Regan, Frankford, Men's first- Darren Johnston, Trenton. Mens second - Mrs. Jeffery, Trenton.

The door prize went to M. LeClair, Trenton.

MEMO FROM HELEN GAGEN
Consumer Advisor
The Miracle Food Mart
NEXT BEST TO SPARE RIBS
Some outdoor fans feel that nothing equals pork spareribs for a barbeque. But even when you can get them at an unusually low price, you must keep in mind the proportion of waste to side ribs. You need at least 1½ pound and up to a full pound per serving.
For the same flavor enjoyment but greater economy, consider shoulder pork chops instead. You can get up to three servings per pound, and give them the same flavourings and seasonings as the more expensive ribs.
To ensure moistness in either ribs or shoulder chops, simmer them gently for ½ hour in salted water, then drain and chill. At barbeque time, cook basting briefly over glowing coals—low heat, and baste often with a flavoring sauce while cooking until crisp and brown.
For a change from the usual tomato-based barbeque sauce, try this for pork: Combine and simmer together for 5 minutes 1 can (14-oz.) crushed pineapple, 2 tablespoons brown sugar, 1 tablespoon corn starch, ½ teaspoon powdered ginger, ½ teaspoon garlic salt, ½ cup soy sauce. Use to baste pork while barbecuing, and serve any leftover sauce with the meal.

Men with names like Maurice (Steamboat) Graham and Slowmotion Shorty Parker drank water from crystal and picked lumps of meat off gold-rimmed plates in the lushness of the Park Avenue hotel.

"Their fondest memories are the days they spent on the road," said Graham, a seasoned time mason.

"Nobody travels all the time anymore," he said. "Times have changed."

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS fired the president of its record group Tuesday and accused him of charging more than $50,000 worth of private bills to the company.

The executive, Clive Davis, president of CBS-Records Group, which includes Columbia Records, was paid $350,000 in salary and special compensation last year, CBS said.

The company brought a complaint in Manhattan Supreme Court accusing Davis, 40, of improper use of company funds, including billing CBS for renovation of his apartment and the cost of a bar mitvah.

CBS said he other employees of the CBS records division were dismissed earlier, following investigation of irregularities relating to Davis's discharge.

Davis had held his position since July, 1971.

LONDON (AP) — Angela Lansbury came home to London Tuesday night to star in the American musical comedy Gypsy and receive one of the most rousing first-night receptions here in recent years.

After a standing ovation and cries of Bravo from an audience of theatre business personalities, Miss Lansbury stepped forward to say a few words. The audience shouted her down and a voice yelled out: "Welcome home."

"Some of you know what this means to me," Miss Lansbury said.

"You deserve it," another voice yelled out.

Miss Lansbury, a veteran Hollywood and Broadway star, grew up in London but has worked almost exclusively in the United States.

Her performance in Gypsy was the first time she had appeared in a musical in London.

The audience included Joan Collins, Susan Hampshire, Alan Bates, Beryl Reid and Britt Ekland.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Thursday, May 31

Aries (March 21-April 19): Getting to the top of any group involves diplomacy. Appearances cloak mysteries better left unfathomed.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): A temporary spurt in financial affairs can work wonders. Reckless moods focus on strange contacts.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): More mysteries are created than are solved. Letting well enough alone becomes difficult, though important. Time out for prayer.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Theory falters as you do the natural things to advance yourself. Friends offer useful suggestions. Loved ones have a different view. Wait, then express feelings.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Be clear and simple in saying what you want so there's no mistake. Authority generally endorses you.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The line between your own life and that of others wavers a bit. Leave your work behind you at quitting time.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your energy and appetites rise together. Distant people and places assume an unreal glamor. Concentrate on reliability.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You'll find yourself on the move upward sooner than expected. Put an extra drive in all you do.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): No great thrill is promised. Yet whatever you are to buy before you close any deal or postpone large purchases. Patience is a virtue.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Speculation is out of bounds today. You're apt to forget something unless you make careful plans. Evening is good for music or reading.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Short-term situations catch you unprepared. Opt for the long-term gain even though frustrated now. Friends are not the best advisers.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Complex and subtle switches of conviction and opinion prevail. Haste is out of season today.

Tweed Personalia

Gerald Robert Danford, formerly of Springbrook, Ontario, was ordained a minister Wednesday, May 16th, at Sydenham Street, United Church, Kingston.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Danford, Mr. Danford received a bachelor of arts degree in sociology and religious studies from Waterloo Lutheran University in 1970 and a bachelor of divinity degree in theology from Queen's University this spring. He was one of eight candidates ordained at the Bay of Quinte Conference annual meeting Wednesday.

The new county museum in Picton, which is located in the former St. Mary Magdalene Church, will hold "Open House" this Sunday afternoon. (May 20th) in order to let the public view the alterations that have been made to the building.

Mrs. Ernest LeSage and Melvin LeSage of Tweed spent last weekend visiting with Mr. and Mrs. A. Abbamont and family in Burlington. They attended the First Communion Services of little Karen Abbamont on Saturday and a birthday party of Mr. Abbamont on Sunday.

To Your Good Health

Post-baby Blues Are Not Unusual

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My wife experienced a nervous breakdown immediately after child birth two years ago. We are expecting another child soon now. Is there anything I should know on this problem and any method of preventing recurrence. — J.N.W.

Some emotional disturbance call it a "nervous breakdown" if you wish, during the first days as some have called it—is not unusual in many instances following pregnancy. Still, another term is the "after-baby-blues."

The problem is more psychological than physical, although from the physical standpoint sheer exhaustion can play a big part. Mothers are going home a bit earlier after delivery than used to be the case, and it's understandable that a new mother can have difficulty in adjusting to her new responsibilities, coping with the baby and routine household chores.

It is hoepful if her mother or mother-in-law can give some assistance for a short time in getting the household routine running smoothly. I would inject the suggestion that they take pains not to be bossy or domineering for fear of aggravating any feeling of inadequacy which the new mother may have.

The emotional turmoil usually occurs from three to 10 days after the baby's birth, and can manifest itself in various ways —crying spells, a feeling of inadequacy or "I just can't manage everything," or even hostility toward the husband. After all, he didn't have the baby!

Discomfort from full breasts, stitches, bowel upsets can add to the psychological let-down. These fairly soon pass, but the new mother certainly deserves sympathy.

While some degree of depression may occur in any woman after delivery (although of course many do not) it is more common with the first child. mother is not so overwhelmed looking forward to the mysteries of labor and the birth process. I thoroughly recommend some prenatal counseling of both mother and father, since it at least, inactivity and brooding makes things worse. As for what kind of exercise, just walking is as good as any. And, weather permitting, wheeling the baby.

There are some instances in which the emotional upset develops into a severe "post-partum depression," but in the majority of cases formal psychiatric treatment is seldom necessary, as the depression usually is short-lived.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband had bad attacks of the chickenpox and was told no drinking. He hasn't for six months. The other day I caught him with a can of beer. He says one a day cannot harm him. Please, what are the facts? — Mrs. G.N.

Any alcohol (even less than a can of beer a day will harm such a liver. But it's a common excuse. When somebody with cirrhosis starts to feel better, he thinks he'll keep on feeling better, and starts nipping a bit. Presently he learns that he shouldn't have.

But it's very hard to convince anyone of that until he suffers the consequences.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Friends tell me one can have repeated attacks of shingles. How do you prevent future attacks? — M.M.

In rare cases it is possible to have a second attack of shingles, but this is the exception, not the rule.

The bidding:

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1♣ | Pass | 2♣ | Pass |
| 4♠ | | | |

Opening lead—king of hearts.

Let's assume you're in four spades and West leads a heart. You win with the ace and, let's say, enter dummy with a trump to lead a club to the king.

West, a foeman worthy of your steel, wins with the ace and returns a trump. You win and lead another club, but West takes it and plays still another round of trumps. As a result you eventually go down one, your losers consisting of three clubs and a diamond.

An unlucky lead, you might say, since the contract would have come home quite easily had East had the ace of clubs, or had the trumps been divided 3-3, or had West not defended in such a thoroughly unsophisticated way. His repeated trump leads prevented you from ruffing two clubs in dummy and so brought on defeat.

But when you examine the matter more carefully, you are forced to conclude that it's the person responsible for the unsatisfactory outcome was none other than you yourself.

It would have been far wiser to play a low club from your hand at trick two — in order to make certain of two club ruffs in dummy and so balance the contract.

The trump lead to dummy at trick two opened a Pandora's box that in turn permitted further trump leads from the enemy to frustrate your plans.

It may seem unnatural and self-defeating to lead a club away from the king instead of a club toward the king, but that is the kind of play you must sometimes make to insure a contract. The right play if the right play — even if it does seem unnatural.

Tomorrow: Diagnosis.

is L O N G F E L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

ON THE BAY — SOUTH SHORE

A very exciting listing. This lovely four bedroom home is comfortable luxury throughout. As you enter the front centre-hall door, you are impressed immediately with the lush wine carpets, decorating and the 19'28' living room with fireplace and windows with a nice view of the Bay. Continuing on the main level you pass through a formal dining room 10'x14' and then into a shag-rug family room (also with a fireplace). Still on the main level there is a carpeted den, two piece bathroom and laundry unit, and modern functional kitchen. Upstairs, there are four carpeted bedrooms, with two four-piece bathrooms and loads of closets. An enclosed heated breezeway joint the double garage to this gorgeous home and has double patio doors leading to a patio. All this on a lot 126'x850' with lots of trees, nice landscaping and a beautiful view. Inspections by appointment only. Price $85,000 and worth it! See for yourself.

PARKDALE — $22,900.

This nice new listing won't last long. 1½ storey 4 bedroom home, with a large lot, patio, and garden. Close to the Quinte Mall. Color lock siding eliminates painting maintenance. Spotlessly clean throughout. High ceiling full basement. Call quickly on this one.

PERSONAL

A recent amendment to The Ontario Human Rights Code now prohibits "classifications and advertising which indicate directly or indirectly that" sex, creed, age, sex, marital status, nationality, ancestry or place of origin may be a qualification, preference, limitation, specification or requirement for any position or employment."

In the future, The Intelligencer by law is prohibited from running Help Wanted Male or Help Wanted Female headings.

For your convenience the following classifications will be available to your advertisers. Please consult General Help Wanted Office . . . Help Wanted Trades.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League — Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: On our trip west this summer we want to include a visit to the Yukon. Can you supply details of some of the sights we should take in?

ANSWER: Taking its name from the Indian word Yukon meaning clear water, the Yukon Territory is a region of mountains and valleys. Comprising the northwestern part of Canada, the Yukon is bordered by the Arctic Ocean, Alaska, British Columbia and the Northwest Territories.

Originally a district of the Northwest Territories, the Yukon was a far-reaching area of the Hudson Bay Company during the mid-1800s. In the 1800s adventurous prospectors went to the Yukon in search of gold.

Answering the call of gold, fortune seekers traveled over 500 miles by water from Lake Bennett to Dawson City; 460 miles of this was on the Yukon River. The trip was hazardous. Hundreds of boats capsized in the swift currents of Miles Canyon. The whirlpools and submerged rocks at White Horse Rapids claimed so many lives that licensed guides were required to take the boats through. Once reaching their destination the "sourdoughs" staked claims on all available hillsides and creeks.

To some the gold rush brought fortunes; to many more it brought grim disappointment.

Center of the excitement caused by one of the world's biggest gold strikes was Dawson. On August 17, 1896, George W. Carmack and two Indian companions, "Skookum Jim" and "Tagish" Charlie, made the first strike on Bonanza Creek, a tributary to the Klondike River; five months later the news reached Circle City. In the summer of 1897, miners from Dawson, who arrived in Portland and San Francisco with a total of nearly $2-million carried the word of discovery to the United States, then in the midst of a depression. The news ended the depression and in the next spring approximately 60,000 men had passed through Seattle on their way to the Klondike.

The Dawson settlement sprang up at the confluence of the Yukon and Klondike Rivers. By the end of the summer of 1898, the city boasted two hospitals, three churches, schools, banks, theatres and scores of saloons and dancehalls, serving a population of more than 30,000. At the turn of the century, Rex Beach, Jack London, Robert W. Service and others chronicled colorful tales of their personal experiences.

By the spring of 1899, all the creeks in the area had been staked. Hillside and bench claims were made, some yielding rich White Channel gravels. Between 1896 and 1904, Klondike creeks gave up over $100 million in gold.

Several historic buildings, many still in use surviving from gold rush days. The Red Feather Saloon, Madame Tremblay's, the Flora Dora and the cabin occupied by Robert Service conjure up reminiscences of a lively past.

The Palace Grand Theatre, on King Street, presents "Gaslight Follies" with entertainment popular during gold rush days. Opened in 1899, this served as a popular festimate theatre for 6 years, then fell into disuse until 1960. Now restored, it is a national historic site. Shows are presented nightly at 8 except Monday in summer. Tickets are $2.25 to $3; children under 16, 75 cents.

An excellent view of the town, the rivers and the gold field is afforded from the 1,-700-foot summit of Midnight Dome, where visitors gather each June 21 to observe the midnight sun.

Annually on August 17, the Yukon Order of Pioneers sponsors a Discovery Day celebration. Fancy dress and wide-open, oldtime gambling are features of Klondike Nights.

The storybook Yukon still lingers in the picturesque city of Whitehorse which lies on a wide bend of the Yukon River. Whitehorse came into being with the Klondike gold rush when thousands of prospectors journeyed by boat to Skagway, then climbed the rugged mountain passes to the beginning of a natural waterway. Here they constructed rude crafts, canoes, rough plank boats and nearly anything floatable for the more than 500-mile trip to Dawson via Whitehorse. The prospectors faced dangerous Whitehorse Rapids, where many lost their lives. When sternwheeler steamer service to Dawson became available, the trip from Whitehorse to Dawson took 1½ - 2 days; the return trip, against the current, took 5 days. The first rails of the White Pass and Yukon Railway were laid at Skagway in May, 1898, and the line was open from Skagway to Whitehorse in July 1900.

Points of interest in and around Whitehorse include an Indian burial ground, north of the town, with many graves covered by small "spirit" houses; beached Yukon River sternwheelers; Lake Laberge, setting for Robert W. Service's The Cremation of Sam McGee; the Robert Lowe Suspension Bridge across the Miles Canyon; and Whitehorse Rapids.

M. V. Schwatka, docked 2 miles southeast just beyond the powerplant and dam, makes 3-hour excursions on the Yukon River through turbulent Miles Canyon. Now tamed by the dam the once treacherous current claimed many lives and wrecked scores of boats and rafts during the early days of the gold rush.

White Pass and Yukon Railway, a narrow gauge line, was built in 1898-1900 during the height of the Klondike gold rush.

It winds along the original White Pass Trail of '98, through some of the country's most awesome scenery. From Whitehorse, the route passes through historic Carcross and skirts the eastern shore of Lake Bennett, where sourdoughs built their rafts, crosses White Pass and descends to Skagway, its southern terminus. A complementary noon meal is served. Daily trains leave Whitehorse at 9 a.m., arrive at Skagway about 4:40 pm; leave Skagway at 10:45 a.m. reach Whitehorse at 4:20 p.m. Round trip fare is $42, one way $21; children 2 to 12 half fare, under 2 free. Family package plan, which includes transportation for car, husband and wife and meals, costs $79; vehicle not to exceed 20 feet (U.S. funds quoted for fares).

Test Fitness

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadians trying to improve their physical condition will soon find it easier to measure their progress. The health department's Recreation Canada is ordering about 20 bicycle ergometers from a Swedish manufacturer, which will test the effort on the heart of a measured amount of exercise. Such tests can lead to a warning that the person concerned is exercising beyond a desirable amount, a Recreation Canada spokesman said.

Hate to Walk

TORONTO (CP) — Have legs but won't walk—that seems to be the motto of most Torontonians. A computer study of Metro travel habits, sponsored by the federal government, shows that a dislike of walking is the greatest deterrent to people using public transit to go to work.

Cook's Continental Timetable Issues Its Centenary Edition

LONDON (CP) — As if to rub salt in the wounds of the benighted British rail commuter, plagued by chronic strikes and slowdowns, a new publication has appeared on railway bookstall groaning with paltry days of the iron road.

This is the silver-covered centenary edition of Thomas Cook's monthly Continental Timetable, first published by the famous travel firm in March, 1873. Not only does it list some 40,000 current schedules from Cork to Canton, but its introductory pages are full of vanished travel experiences, including a schedule for the horse-drawn "diligences" which used to haul travellers across the Alps before the St. Gothard railway tunnel was built in 1882.

The original Thomas Cook was a temperance crusader who organized his first tour—by railway—in 1841 from Loughborough to Leicester in the English Midlands. The all-in-one return fare of one shilling a head included free ham and bread and displays of cricket and dancing.

By 1871 the firm was established at 107 Fleet Street in a building shared with Professor and Mrs. Fowler's Phrenological Consulting Room. Cook still has a branch there today.

A guide to Europe's railway services already existed in Bradshaw's massive Continental Guide, first published in 1867, but it grew to be an unwieldy 1,000 pages trying to cover every branch line. By rigorous pruning, John Bredall, a Cook's employee who later became the company secretary, managed to produce one of 240 pages, for which he received £25, then about $125.

The first edition carried on its orange paper cover pictures of a steamship carrying full sail, an early "cow-catcher" locomotive, a camel with a kind of sedan chair perched on its back and a galloping post-chaise.

It was billed as a "cheap, concise and simple guide to all the principal lines of railways, steamers, diligences, etc., etc., on the Continent of Europe." It sold at one shilling and Bredall received a royalty of one penny on every copy sold.

As new railways mushroomed across Europe, the guide swelled to double its size in the next 20 years, with Bredall remaining as editor until his retirement in 1914.

The present editor, J. H. Price, has had the job since 1952 and is a transport buff who spends his holidays studying foreign railways.

The centenary guide was launched with a splash of nostalgia in the press and on television, garnished with pictures of plush Victorian railway carriages equipped with drinks, cabinets and potted plants.

The current edition, priced at £1 (£2.40), has its own blend of glamor, with the enticing names of such crack trans-Europe expresses as the Rheingold, running daily between the Hook of Holland and Munich; the Wiener Walzer (Vienna Waltz) replacing the Rosenkavalier on the Basle-Bucharest run; the Chopin, linking Warsaw and Vienna; the Palatino, Paris-Rome, and the Lusitania Express, Madrid-Lisbon.

The fabled Orient Express, traditional haunt of glamorous spies, still runs in truncated form, from Paris to Belgrade in Yugoslavia, where it links either with the Athens Express to the Greek capital or the Marmara Express to its original terminal point of Istanbul, Turkey.

At least one armchair traveller, a columnist on the Times Diary, beat the rail strike blues by planning a marathon journey from Penzance, near the southwest tip of Cornwall, to Pyongyang, capital of North Korea.

The anonymous reporter worked out that the 7,466-mile trip would take him 12 days, leaving Penzance for London on a Tuesday night, crossing by the Book of Holland and catching the North-West Express to Berlin and Moscow the following evening. Arriving at Moscow Friday, he would leave that night on the long Trans-Siberian Railway haul across Russia into China.

He would arrive in Pyongyang at 3:35 p.m. the following Friday, be celebrated, just in time for tea and needing it —the restaurant car would have been left at the Russian-Chinese border on Wednesday.

Donor Card For Organs Advocated

HALIFAX (CP) — Halifax businessman Peter Andrews would like every man in Nova Scotia to carry an organ donor card.

Mr. Andrews, chairman of the province's newly-formed organ donor program for the Kidney Foundation of Canada, has a special reason.

Recently his 31-year-old wife Diane, a mother of three young children, was the recipient of a kidney transplant at the Victoria General Hospital here. It was reported that death sentence imposed a dozen years ago.

Mrs. Andrews first learned of her kidney disease after running into trouble with her first pregnancy.

"At the time she was given from two to five years to live," Mr. Andrews said. "It was quite a blow to a new marriage.

"That was before the invention of the artificial kidney machine. It was new and moving so fast that it's hard to realize.

"But she drifted along for a number of years before she was sadly declining kidney function until January of this year when she finally had to go on dialysis."

Mrs. Andrews five-hour kidney transplant operation on the night of April 8-9 was one of three performed at the Victoria General in a 24-hour period.

Since the kidney transplant program began at the hospital four years ago the number of operations has increased dramatically. Originally about 10 transplants were done annually. In the first four months of this year seven have already been performed.

The survival rate of the transplants is up to 90 per cent when donors are related to the patient and up to 80 per cent in unrelated donor-recipient matchups.

Donors range from infants to the middle-aged. Only a number of involved medical considerations limit donors. The right Mrs. Andrews had her surgery the same donor provided a kidney for a six-foot, powerfully built farmer from Nova Scotia's Annapolis Valley earlier in the day. He was a Halifax businessman.

In fact, the only major limitation in the province's program is the number of available donors. Recent legislation adopted in the province allows people to tell specific organs in the event of their death.

That's why this program is so tremendously important," Mr. Andrews said of the foundation's efforts to increase the number of potential donors.

"Right (Mrs. Andrews) was extremely fortunate in having a transplant so quickly. There are people who have died as a result of kidney disease, the artificial kidney notwithstanding."

Oil Considered Man's Great Curse

By KATHERINE KENNEDY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

R. D. Symons considered oil mankind's "greatest curse." He called the transition to tractors from horses in farming "the big betrayal" and questioned today's standard of living.

But the former Saskatchewan cowboy's deepest regret, expressed in his book, Where the Wagon Led, was that machines and urbanization had separated man from his roots, from the natural earth where he belongs.

Mr. Symons tells of a time —an incredibly short 50 years ago—when people could get their bearings from the lay of the long matted grass and predict blizzards by "the duck egg green in the northwestern sky."

His book, subtitled One Man's Memories of the Cowboy's Life in the Old West, is an eloquent memorial to the days of the open range before the arrival of the homesteaders who "fenced it into tight little holdings."

The author came to Maple Creek, Sask., from England at the age of 16. Alex Gow, a Scottish rancher, saw that the boy (whom he called Charlie) had "an element of the cowboy in" eye—even if ye are green" and hired him as a ranch hand.

So Charlie began his practical education, which he shares in rich descriptions shares in rich descriptions and 70 original pen-and-ink sketches.

The boy learns to brand and wean cattle, to help with calving and roundups. He learns to break, train and unseat horses. Equally important, he learns the habits of horses and cattle.

He describes the wiles of old range mares and says when sleeping calves were disturbed they would bawl "until a troop 2t-cows came charging over the skyline like Arabs among the dunes, their horns curved like Scimitars against the bright sky."

The details of a cowboy's life are all included: what he had in his bedroll, how the grub wagon operated, why he sang while riding night herd, how his bunkhouse looked.

Natural justice was recognized on the Prairies. The long, hard "die by" winter of 1907 in which thousands of cattle died was "nature's revenge on the men who tried to cheat her by killing her buffalo."

The unspoiled prairies are described by Mr. Symons with an artist's sensitivity. "I look far away over swell over blue swell to the hazy lips of the Bear Paws. Meadowlarks fluting. Grey sage burgeoning to purple and gold. Green prairies merging into violet distance."

A chinook was heralded by "a great arch hanging over Eagle Butte." "There was a faint smell that reminded me of low tide at Winchelsea; then the wind would come with a rush and a roar, and every loose board on the barn roof would flap and squeak."

In the book's epilogue Mr. Symons says oil has done far more harm than good in the world. The use of tractors had not led to increased production per acre but only increased production per man.

"Tending the garden as Adam was set to do is very different from travelling back and forth in a cloud of dust while the tractor radio pours out the latest rubbish."

To men whose physical survival is a challenge, he says, "the sweet savor of comradeship is stronger than the smell of death."

Mr. Symons, whose last home was in Silton, Sask., died Feb. 1 at the age of 72. He wrote several books, including The Broken Snare, an account of his ranching years, and Birds and the Hours, a food description of prairie birds.

Bedouin Roam Desert In Robes and Shorts

WADI RUM, Jordan (AP) — They smoke filter tips and wear jockey shorts under their flowing robes, but the Bedouin of eastern Jordan are still as free as the desert wind.

Government attempts to settle the fiercely independent nomadic tribesmen have had minimal success. Spokesmen for the tribal council concede it may take two more generations.

Nowhere is this more apparent than on the desert highway passing Wadi Rum, a mile-wide avenue of sand between towering red and yellow. "I would sooner die than live Lawrence of Arabia once led camel charges against the TURKS.

As cars of holiday-makers whiz down the highway, two camel riders pause beside a sign proclaiming the "Al Mohammedlye Exemplary Settlement Project." Nothing is built yet except the sign.

Would they like to settle here?

"Never," said Beghit Awad. " Iwould sooner die than live in a house."

Where are they going?

Awad pointed vaguely. 100 miles, 200 miles into the shimmering heat haze. "We look for grazing. We look for water." The camels plodded off into the swirling sand.

Aly Abu Robaye is a modern Bedouin in a turtleneck and permanent press slacks.

"The Bedouin customs are good," he said. "But they must move with the 20th Century to gain equality with other Jordanians.

"Of course, it is sad to see the old ways go. But you cannot have illiterate and nomadic people in a modern Jordan."

Robaye forsook tradition to seek a university education in Turkey. He returned with a Turkish wife and a degree in geology and now works for the tribal council's settlement program.

"Water is the key," he says. "The Bedouin congregate around water. Once you sink a well you can get enough Bedouin together to give them other services—housing, medical care, transportation, electricity. Then you can try to persuade them to take up farming."

The tribal council hopes to build 45 settlements around wells within three years. So far only four have been completed.

Jafr, in southeastern Jordan, offers Bedouins a stone house with electricity for $1. Only one resident has taken up the offer, a non-Bedouin schoolmaster.

Tents are pitched beside nearly every house in Al Husseinlye, another settlement. Abdullah Salim, a young Bedouin army sergeant, lives in a tent and keeps his goats in the house.

"I like living near the highway," he says. "It makes it easy to visit my family when I am on leave. But the tent is cooler."

Only a few thousand Bedouin have moved into settlements and more than 50,000 still are classified as "wandering tent dwellers" by the government. They follow their flocks on seasonal migrations that cover 300 to 400 miles in a year, often ignoring the border formalities of Syria, Iraq and Saudi Arabia.

Camels are still the main mode of transportation, also providing work, food and leather. A Bedouin treats his camel better than his wife for, in the desert, if a camel lives its rider lives.

A large fat camel can hold up to 140 pints of water and serves as a portable distillery, converting the water into milk without cream.

The only government authority east of the desert highway is a small, elite camel corps of Bedouin police based in isolated outposts with tenuous radio links.

At a small stone fort in Wadi Rum, there are eight corpsmen to patrol 300 square miles of desert. The next outpost is 50 miles away.

"Lonely, yes, but it is a good life," said Sgt. Aly Dhaifan, a 13-year veteran of the Camel Corps. "Yesterday we rode 14 kilometres to settle an argument about grazing rights between two families. Today we rest. Tomorrow we may ride again."

"We try never to arrest anyone," he added. ""You cannot confine a Bedouin. He would die without seeing the sky."

Cheap Meat Source

HALIFAX (CP) — Dr. David E. Sergeant, an authority on marine mammals, recommends that whaling be encouraged to provide a source of cheap meat in Eastern Canada. Speaking to a meeting of biologists in Halifax, he said about 500 fin whales could be caught off eastern Canada for a yield of 5,000 tons of meat, while fully utilized, 100,000 young harp seals would produce about 2,500 tons of meat for human consumption.

Friday Is Worst Day For Toronto Murders

TORONTO (CP) — Three sociology students have concluded that if you live in Toronto you're more likely to get murdered on a Friday than any other day and your basement and living room are the most probable places.

Teresa Pittelli, Sophie Popadiuk and Brigida Cesta of Scarborough College came to these conclusions after viewing three years of microfilmed homicide papers. They displayed their findings with other sociology projects at the University of Toronto.

Three other students, Salvatore Merenda, Tony Strelzow and Fernando Ferrucci, did a study of panhandling. They played the roles of a vagrant, cripple and religious beggar.

The study showed men and students were most generous, of those asked for donations, 82 per cent gave to the handicapped man, 40 per cent to the vagrant and 16 per cent to the religious beggar.

Girls' Deaths Before UN

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Zambia told the United Nations Wednesday that a lone army sentry, fearing that a mission of sabotage against a vital water works was under way, shot and killed two Canadian and wounded an American May 15 at the Victoria Falls power station while they were swimming in Zambian waters.

The communique went into extensive detail backgrounding the various incidents that have led to a near-war between Zambia and Rhodesia, with their common border closed since last Jan. 9.

It was against that backdrop of growing tension in the region, especially on the Zambezi River, that 18-year-old Christine Sinclair of Guelph, Ont., and Marian Dreher, also of Rockwood, Ont., were killed.

"In assessing these events, it is important to take into consideration that:

"The Zambezi river is an area of tension.

"The area in which the incident took place is very exclusive and inaccessible to tourists and casual visitors. Ever since Zambian troops . . . started guard duties no people have ever been seen in this area of the gorge. The guardsman was therefore alarmed to see four persons making a sudden approach marching in single file towards the installation.

"This is not a normal area for tourists. In this connection, account should be taken of the depth of the gorge and the considerable distance from the bend through the gorge to the original base. In the view of the guardsmen (again more than one is mentioned), only persons with a concrete mission could have travelled all the way through difficult terrain to the bank opposite the Zambian power station.

"—Civilians would not normally be allowed by the Rhodesian security forces to wander around in this general area without being escorted."

The sentry's duty was to defend the power station, the communique said.

"The race, color or nationality of the persons involved did not count."

Nixon, Pompidou Confer in Iceland

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Evidence of the underlying discord in French-American relations was seen as President Nixon and President Georges Pompidou prepared to begin two days of summit talks today.

French officials reported there was not even advance agreement on what topic the two officials would discuss first.

Pompidou wanted to emphasize international monetary problems while Nixon's heart was set on laying down broad new principles and goals for the Atlantic community.

Some Icelanders were raising discordant notes for the visitors. Several leftist groups planned demonstrations against the continuance of American military operation in Indochina, French nuclear tests in the South Pacific and British fishing in the offshore waters claimed by Iceland.

Nixon arrived from Washington Wednesday evening at the Keflavik air base the United States operates 30 miles from Reykjavik. The North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) base has become a pawn in the cod war between Britain and Iceland over fishing rights beyond the 12 mile limit around the island.

Both Nixon and Pompidou were evidently determined to keep out of the bitter row between their two NATO allies.

Decision in June

Gasoline Control Now More Likely

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government should know by mid-June whether gasoline exports to the United States are threatening supplies enough to warrant restrictions, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Wednesday.

"If we find the outward flow continuing to increase . . . I think we're going to have to move in with controls," he told reporters after being pressed again in the Commons to set export limits.

He has said repeatedly the government sees no need at present for controls. But the tone of his remarks appeared to change Wednesday when he admitted making an error in export figures he quoted Monday.

Restrictions on crude oil exports were imposed by the government in February.

Mr. Macdonald said Monday gasoline exports had dropped to 10,000 barrels a day in April from about 12,000 in March.

However, he said Wednesday, he has been given additional information by the National Energy Board that shows the April rate was actually 17,000 barrels a day, 5,000 higher than March.

Interviewed later, he said the pressure for controls will grow if export trends continue and the government should have enough figures by mid-June to make a decision.

T. C. Douglas (NDP—Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands) said in the Commons that 4.1 million gallons were exported in April from Ontario alone, 11 times the amount the province exported for all of 1972.

The former NDP leader said supplies have dwindled to the point where some of the largest independent gasoline retailers in the country are bidding back expansion plans or closing their service stations.

Mr. Macdonald said independent dealers rely for the most part on cheap foreign supplies that have begun to dry up. Their situation did not indicate the extent of supplies available from Canadian refineries.

He repeated that the government will apply controls if the situation warrants.

Mr. Douglas said a real problem exists now because exports are climbing at an astonishing rate and imports have been cut to a virtual standstill by heavy world demand.

Asked whether the National Energy Board has intervened informally to ensure Canadian supplies, Mr. Macdonald said this has been done in a number of cases.

He did not elaborate but said later that Canadian refineries have been told domestic needs must be met first. He said independent dealers, who sell at rates below regular retailer are faced more with a price-squeeze situation that a supply situation.

Shell and Texaco Start Rationing Plans in U.S.

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Shell Oil Co. announced Wednesday it will limit the amount of gasoline it will sell its service stations starting Friday. Texaco said it would ration drivers to 10 gallons at its stations on toll roads.

The new restrictions fell into a growing industry pattern of allocating supplies as a result of the gas shortage in the United States. Exxon Co. U.S.A. and Gulf Oil Co. took similar steps Tuesday.

Nader Asks Nuclear Shutdown

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer advocate Ralph Nader and a United States environmentalists' group asked a federal court today to shut down 30 large nuclear power plants in 12 states, saying they threaten the lives of millions of Americans.

In a suit against the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC), Nader and the Friends of the Earth (FOE), which claims 20,000 members, said the AEC had violated the atomic energy act and its own power-plant safety regulations.

A loss of coolant accident could cause a nuclear reactor core to melt, possibly releasing lethal radiation.

In a statement distributed after the suit was filed in the U.S. district court for the District of Columbia, David Brower of San Francisco, president of the FOE, said:

"Overwhelming scientific evidence has shown that the lives of millions of people are being threatened by the operation of these plants. Each of these plants contains a quantity of radioactive material equivalent to the fallout from several thousand Hiroshima-size nuclear weapons.

"Yet the safety systems necessary to prevent release of this radioactive material into the environment are crude and untested."

Canadian Finds Disappointing

Expert Says U. S. Made Error In Depending on Arctic Oil

WASHINGTON (CP) — A high state department official, explaining increasing United States dependence on Arabian oil, said Wednesday the U.S. had erred in counting on vast new supplies from the Canadian Arctic.

James E. Atkins, director of the office of fuels and energy, said "We had assumed the Canadian Arctic would be exceedingly productive—we appear to have been wrong."

Atkins was testifying before the Senate foreign relations committee under Senator J. W. Fulbright (Dem.-Ark.). The committee is investigating the effect of the energy shortage on U.S. relations with other countries.

Atkins, under questioning, said that the overestimate of Canadian Arctic oil potential was coupled with the fact that "Production in the prairie provinces is declining" and that Canada "has her own growing oil needs."

With the little likelihood of increased imports from Canada, he said, "in the short haul—five to 10 years," the U.S. has no alternative but to turn increasingly to the Persian Gulf countries to supplement its oil imports, while working to develop domestic resources and alternative fuels.

The U.S. is the world's foremost consumer of oil and Canada—behind Venezuela—is her second largest supplier.

Earlier, an influential energy expert described the U.S. government's handling of the Alaska pipeline controversy as "one of the 10 great blunders" of recent times and said the U.S. should have "sat down with the government of Canada to negotiate a pipeline through that country."

David Freeman, head of a massive energy policy study being financed by the Ford Foundation, described the proposed supertanker-pipeline route to Japan's north slope oil south to the U.S. mainland as "environmentally hazardous."

The U.S. should "set up an energy corridor down through Canada which could also open up Canada's northern oil potential," he said.

"If we fail to make an arrangement with Canada, we are making a big mistake. I have never understood our strategy on this."

The disturbance is moving away from the lower Great Lakes and a weak region of high pressure following it is to make gives promise of at least a partly sunny day for southern and central Ontario. But a large area of cloud and showers blanketing the north will make its way into the southern half of the province later tonight and will linger on Friday.

Hijacked Plane Leaves For Peru

ORANJESTAD, Aruba (CP) — A hijacked Colombian airliner with more than 60 people aboard took off from this Dutch Caribbean island today to fly to Lima, Peru.

The Dutch news agency ANP reported that the Lockheed Electra, hijacked by two masked men yesterday would stop over at Maracaibo, Venezuela, Barranco, Call and Benavaiura before reaching Lima.

The hijackers armed with sub-machine-guns, allowed eight women to leave the plane overnight. So far they have released 32 passengers since the plane landed here last night.

The plane took off from Aruba's airport after refuelling. The hijackers ordered 120 sandwiches,

Squadron Rendezvous At Picton

PICTON — The annual Quinte District Rendezvous of the Canadian Power Squadron this year will find headquarters at Prince Edward Yacht Club.

The rendezvous is sponsored here by the Prince Edward Power Squadron and will be held Saturday, June 23 and Sunday, June 24. Several trophies will be awarded in boating competitions.

Charge Follows Rear-ender

TWEED — A Verona area man has been charged with careless driving following a rear-end collision on county road 13, at the Hungerford township farms, 2.3 miles east of Highway 37, at 5 p.m. Tuesday.

Donald Leslie Crawford, 19 of Verona received $400 damage to his car when it came into collision with another driven by Patricia Anne Courneyer of the Tweed area. The latter's conveyance received $60 damage to its rear.

A dump truck and the metal lathe it was carrying was extensively damaged Tuesday on Highway 62, five miles north of Millbridge in Tudor township when it went out of control, took out four guideposts and rolled over.

The truck was owned by Cooney Brothers of Gilmour and was driven by Perry Cooney of Gilmour. The truck was damaged to the extent of $900 but extent of the damage to the $5,000 lathe is not yet determined.

From Phones to Forests

After more than 20 years in Simpsons-Sears mail order department, Mrs. Lorraine Rutan (right) has decided to trade a telephone for a tent. Now that she's retired, she and her husband, a guard at Kingston Penitentiary, plan to do a lot of camping. Her fellow workers gave her a send-off dinner last night at Sun Luck Gardens with Mrs. Nina Huffman presenting her with a Royal Doulton figurine.

White Chapel 164 Years Old

PICTON — Prince Edward County's "church in the wildwood" The White Chapel, this Sunday will celebrate its 164th anniversary with special services conducted by Rev. James Cassidy minister of Prince Edward north pastoral charge. He will be assisted by Rev. Robert Sherwin of Picton United Church, who is in charge of the commemorative service.

Erected in 1809, the small frame chapel with its carved wooden pews, oil lamps and towering pulpit has been maintained as a place of worship longer than any other church of Methodist origin in Ontario.

Once known as The Old Chapel, the church was built on land donated by Stephen Cooper, with his wife and family settled in Hallowell in 1787.

Each year on the first Sunday in June, an anniversary service open to persons of all denominations is held at the chapel.

The White Chapel is a historical site and is marked by a plaque erected by the Ontario department of public records and archives.

At the rear of the chapel is a burying ground where many of Prince Edward's early settlers lie in family plots.

Visitors to the old chapel each year enjoy browsing through church records which show marriages solemnized by the ministers. Ministers' remarks often are scribbled beside records of the union and denote in one case parental opposition to the wedding.

Music for Sunday's service to be held at 2 p.m. will be provided by members of the United Church choir and its organist, Andrew Bevins.

Breeders To Tour

PICTON — A group of Lansark County breeders will go on a bus tour of Prince Edward will visit several dairy farms here on June 5.

Accompanied by Gerry Nelson, Feldenan for this area the farmers will see the herds of Charles Dykstra and Son, Graham Farms, Rova Parks, Gordon Parks and Netherbay Farms.

No Decision On Inquest

TRENTON — No word has yet been received on whether or not an inquest will be held into the death of the Royal Hotel's night caretaker two weekends ago.

Police this week revealed that Clifford McCammon, approximately 52, was found at the bottom of a set of stairs in the hotel. At this time they are treating his death as an accident.

He died in Kingston General Hospital of a fractured skull.

A coroner's report must be delivered to police here before an inquest decision can be made.

HAVE YOU WRITTEN A BOOK?

The executive editor of a well-known New York subsidy publishing firm will be in Peterborough in July. He will be interviewing local authors in a quest for finished manuscripts suitable for book publication. Subjects will be considered, including fiction and non-fiction, poetry, juveniles, religious books, etc.

If you have completed a book-length manuscript (or nearly so) on any subject, and would like a professional appraisal (without cost or obligation), please write immediately describing your work and stating which part of the day (a.m. or p.m.) you would prefer for an appointment. Please mention your phone number. You will promptly receive confirmation for a definite time and place.

Authors with completed manuscripts unable to appear may send them directly to us for a free reading and evaluation. We will also be glad to hear from those whose literary works are still in progress. Please address:

IN MEMORIAM

BOONSHOWER — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather Lorne Boonshower who passed away May 31, 1960.
When he passed away May 31, 1960,
His name we will always keep,
His memory is a treasure
That we will always treasure.
There is nothing left to answer,
But a heart that's full of pain,
Sadly missed by son Doug, daughter-in-law Shirley and grandchildren Lorne and Jeffrey.

BOONSHOWER — In loving memory of a dear father, Gerald William Boonshower who passed away May 31, 1969.
We think of him in silence,
We speak of him in love,
But still within our aching hearts,
He lives and reigns above.
Always remembered by daughter Barbara Eagleson and Bob and Jean McIntosh.

BOONSHOWER — In loving memory of a dear father Oscar, who passed away May 31, 1969.
Dad left us the hearts that are sad to-day,
It's the lonesome tears in the after hours,
When our dad's dear name is spoken of,
Deeply sadly missed by son-in-law and daughter-in-law Florence.

BOONSHOWER — In loving memory of a dear father Oscar Boonshower, who passed away on this date two years ago May 31, 1969.
Dad left us your memory lingers,
Always tender and true,
There's not a day, dear father,
We do not think of you.
—Lovingly remembered by son Anthony, wife Alma and family.

BOONSHOWER — In loving memory of a dear father, Oscar, who passed away May 31, 1969.
We the dad you passed away,
Left us memories to remember,
And although you're gone from us,
We are waiting till we meet.
—Sadly missed by son Ralph, daughter-in-law Betty, grandchildren Todd and Sean.

BOONSHOWER — In loving memory of a dear friend Oscar Boonshower who passed away May 31, 1969.
Just the thought of sweet remembrance,
Is a memory sad and true,
Just the love of sweet devotion,
We will cherish for you,
Sincerely forgotten by friends George Dinnible.

BOONSHOWER — In loving memory of a dear father,
We have memories, we have nothing,
That the hills were hard to climb,
He closed his weary eyes and rested,
And whispered "Peace be thine."
He bowed his head and died for God,
In the valley of rest, we know not when,
We will meet our loved one there.
—Sadly missed by son Ted and daughter-in-law Pearl and grandchildren Sandy, Shepherd and Heather.

BOONSHOWER — In ever loving memory of a dear father, Oscar, who passed away May 31, 1969.
Dad you have gone and left us,
Your work is done and well,
But we loved you so much,
It was hard to say farewell,
God took you home so very fast,
We did not know he would,
He must have needed another angel,
In heaven dad so good,
But we loved you so much,
You will never be forgot,
A memory of you we have,
And a picture in our thoughts,
Sadly missed by daughter Kay, son-in-law Bill and grandchildren Cathy, Steven, Jerry Jr.

BOONSHOWER — In loving memory of a dear son and brother, Norman Wesley Boonshower who passed away May 30, 1970.
Every hour we dearly miss him,
Sadly do we feel his loss,
Lonely is our home without him,
Since he left us by the cross,
Deeply mourned and lovingly remembered by dad, sister Ruth, brother Marie, Morgan and Jean.

CARDS OF THANKS

I wish to thank my pupils, friends and neighbours for the cards, flowers and gifts which I received while in Belleville General Hospital. Also to Dr. Harris, Dr. Macdonald and Dr. Ahern for the kindness and care given to me.
—Mrs. Ida Thompson

The Tweedsmuir Senior Citizens Council and all participants thank sincerely, entered in the Bazaar and Tea held on May 19, that made it a success with an abundance of baked goods and articles for sale.

Distinguished Service Award

Master Corporal Jeremy C. Gander, son of Mrs. Joan E. Gander, 17 Fourth St., Belleville, received the Canadian Forces Decoration from Lieut.-Col. A. R. Abercrombie, commanding officer of the Semi-Automatic Ground Environment Support Unit. The award is in recognition of 12 years' service in the Canadian Forces. M. Cpl. Gander is a radar test technician in the unit, located in a three-storey building 600 feet underground.

Ability Fund Marchers Hit the Streets Monday

Quinte area walkers will hit the streets Monday night, but they'll be marching to a different beat than in previous years.

The occasion is the annual Ability Fund blitz — once known as the March of Dimes — and 600 distaff canvassers in and around Belleville will be trying to top last year's record total of $8,500 in donations for the disabled.

The name change actually took place five years ago but the familiar March of Dimes tag is still used to help familiarize people with the Fund's work.

"We have been operating with an identity crisis for a number of years," fund chairman Bill Oaks said at a pre-campaign meeting Wednesday night at Sun Luck Gardens.

A full-time worker for two years, Mr. Oaks arrived in the Ontario association three years after the name had been changed to Ability Fund.

"But that implied that the handicapped were unable to be rehabilitated," he said.

As a result, he conceived what has now become a common symbol for the Ability Fund — a picture showing a wheelchair-bound man drawing an X through the letters Dis in front of the word Ability.

Belleville chairman Vera Morphy said a new aspect of the Fund's work in this area will be its co-operation with the Cheshire Home for the handicapped scheduled to open shortly in Belleville.

"It needs a chair lift and grab bars," she said, mentioning just two of many devices required to facilitate adequate mobility for the home's disabled residents.

Another welcome addition would be a transportation bus that Mrs. Morphy said she is trying to arrange.

"This would not only be for people in the Cheshire Home but also for others in the community," she added.

Mr. Oaks, whose head office is in Toronto, said the fund's board of directors "indicated they will lend support" to the home when they were approached recently about the possibility of financial aid.

A last-minute cry for volunteers for Monday night's drive was sounded at Wednesday's meeting, particularly in Rawdon Township where the distance between homes is great.

In Belleville, canvassers will be able to deposit returns at the downtown Toronto-Dominion Bank where tellers have agreed to come in after 8 p.m.

Mr. Oaks also asked Quinte organizers to consider forming an area association covering campaigns in Hastings, Prince Edward and part of Lennox and Addington county.

"The idea is to get the people raising the money to left our provincial organization how the money can be best spent in their area," he said.

Describing current fund projects around Ontario, he said multi - functional workshops were proving popular with four different types of handicapped persons.

Included are programs for disabled who hope to return to normal society, recreational groups that fulfil the need for socializing, others that invite unhandicapped persons to mix with those less fortunate, and projects for home-bound patients who are restricted to piecemeal activities.

The Fund also has a thriving canoeing program for disabled adults, purchases orthopedic appliances and arranges assessment and counselling services.

BCI First In Math

BCI has scored a first in the Ontario Senior Mathematics Problem Competition sponsored by the University of Waterloo.

As well as being first in its district, the BCI team came 18th in the province in the competition.

Paul Leer, a grade 13 student, scored 32 to take first place in the district and win a $25 prize. Second in the district was Peter Tam with a score of 47. The grade 13 student, a native of Hong Kong, won a $15 prize. Third was David Fong, also of Hong Kong, with a score of 44.

Motorcyclist Injured

TWEED (Special) — Mark H. Pesloski, 17, of RR 2, Campbellford, suffered minor cuts when the motorcycle he was driving hit a dog on the Stirling to Campbellford Road, went out of control and into a ditch. The dog was killed instantly. The accident occurred about 4 p.m. Wednesday 1.5 miles east of Hoard's Station.

Principal To Be Honored

PICTON — Sophiasburgh Central school principal, Arthur Jackson, will be honored this Saturday, June 2, by fellow staff members at a reception at the Elks Hall, Picton.

The party will mark Mr. Jackson's service in the field of education.

On Saturday, June 9, retiring Wellington school principal Miller Selder will be recognized for his work during a social evening beginning at 8 p.m.

School Fees Reduced

School fees in Hastings county have gone down this year in a new schedule passed by the county board Monday night.

The fees are charged non-residents of the county who sent their children to county schools and are levied in lieu of residential property taxes. The board gets government grants for the pupils from the ministry of education amounting to about 73 per cent of the total per-pupil cost.

The monthly fee for half-day kindergarten is $5, down by $1 from last year. Grades 1 through 8 cost $10 a month, down $2.

Other fees, with the 1972 cost in brackets are: primary opportunity class $25 ($30); junior and intermediate opportunity class $18.75 ($21.50); senior opportunity class $15 ($18) and grades 9 through 13, $33 ($36).

Half-day attendance at the school for the retarded is $33 monthly, down $2.

Non - residents of Ontario, who do not pay property taxes, are charged higher fees. Those for kindergarten and elementary grades have gone up to $59 from $57 a month.

Secondary school fees have gone down by $4 to $119 and the basic fee for schools for the retarded has dropped from $228 a month to $220.

Business administrator Kenneth Wormald said the fees have decreased because costs are calculated on 1972 figures and that was the year the ministry of education increased its contribution.

Traffic Committee Defers Decisions

Provision of police protection and the erection of the necessary traffic detour signs for this summer's downtown sidewalk sale will cost just over $750.

This was the cost figure presented to the city traffic committee at its regular meeting Wednesday.

Still to be determined, however, is the question of whether the above costs will be absorbed by the downtown merchants staging the sidewalk sale or whether the city as a whole will pick up the tab.

Committee member Alderman Roger Foster suggested the traffic committee had no jurisdiction in who should pay the cost and recommended the matter be referred to city council.

Also tabled for discussion at a later meeting were recommendations from Police Chief Douglas T. Crosbie calling for erection of signs restricting parking within 30 feet of all intersections on Front and Second Street east of Belleville General Hospital.

The recommendation was tabled after City Engineer Wilbur Purcell noted that the no-parking restriction within 30 feet of corners applied in all sections of the city.

He said that eight signs at a cost of $20 each would be required for the intersections in question.

A second recommendation from the police chief calling for a no-parking restriction on Pine Street in the Ontario Housing Corporation housing development was also tabled.

Members noted that although there was ample off-street parking for the housing development, visitors would still have to park on the street.

11:50 a.m. . . . 36 Plum Sq.: motor shorted in washing machine.

3:58 p.m. . . . 298 Bleecker Ave.: furnace blowback sending smoke through house, slight damage.

4:50 p.m. . . . 38 Greet St. James: short in light fixture, no damage.

Two Remain In Hospital

TRENTON — Two Trenton men remain in hospital, one in Kingston and the other in recovering from leg injuries received when they were struck by a car Monday.

Charles Edward Miron, 58, of RR1, Trenton, and Peter Davis, 62, of 88 Queen Street were crossing the intersection of Dundas Street West and struck by a car driven by Wayne J. Baxter of RR2 Carrying Place.

He has been charged with careless driving.

Investigating officer is Const. John Collins.

Medicare in Perspective

Anyone would be a fool who denied there are abuses, both on the part of patient and doctor, in such schemes as Ontario's medical plan.

But what is too often overlooked are the benefits accrued the average man-on-the-street by even having access to such plans in the first place.

For as little as $20 monthly — in some cases less, depending on employer contributions to group plans — the head of an Ontario household can insure his entire family against any medical costs they may incur.

Some argue that monthly premiums are misleading, since it is really tax dollars that pay the medicare shot.

The fact remains that many OHIP subscribers, for example, could never afford to be sick without such plans, not at $80 a hospital day. Keep that in mind, paying "hidden" medical taxes to federal and provincial levels of government really shouldn't be lamented any more than paying gasoline tax for building new highways.

Were we to take government-supported and operated health insurance for granted, it should be borne in mind that it is still in its formative stages in as sophisticated a nation as the United States.

Only eight million Americans are enrolled in new Health Maintenance Organizations, which offer pre-paid health insurance beginning at around $45 monthly "under one roof", with affiliated medical personnel and hospitals.

With an emphasis on preventative care and early treatment, the HMOs offer all the medical care a typical family needs — routine and emergency, 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Participating doctors appear delighted with the concept, since they can earn about the same income as their counterparts in private practice, while working regular hours and seeing about the same number of patients.

The alternative for most Americans is indemnity insurance, which, in almost all instances, is more expensive than participation in the new HMOs.

Backers of the increasingly-popular plans claim there is solid evidence that care in their units is equal to, and possibly superior to that provided by the traditional system of fee-for-service medicine.

Washington apparently agrees, particularly in the light of such studies as one which showed federal employees belonging to the new group-practice plans spending less than half as many days in hospital as those covered by indemnity insurance.

Foreseeing an even more staggering doctor bill than the $30 billion Americans will pay this year, federal financial and technical assistance has been forthcoming since 1971, and government spokesmen have gone on record as hoping to see 90 per cent of the population having access to HMOs by the end of the decade.

The American Medical Association balks a bit at the idea of federal funds, in effect, supporting its opposition.

But, as back here in Ontario, the voice of the people will demand, and ultimately get, their medical money's worth.

Not Much 'C'

Headliner: for the grandstand show at this year's CANADIAN National Exhibition?

Well, they include The Soviet Red Army Song and Dance Festival; a Scottish pipe Tattoo; German jazzman James Last; Welsh wiggler Tom Jones; black country and western balladeer Charley Pride; the Osmonds, idols of the United States' teeny-bopper music set; and Sonny and Cher, a leading American duet consisting of Italian-descended Sonny Buono and his American Indian-blood spouse.

Somehow the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Musical Ride and a couple of home-brew rock groups managed to slip into bookings, but the CNE has managed to keep its "C" to the consistently mundane.

Small wonder so many of this country's performing artists become emigrants. How else would they ever stand a chance at national recognition?

Belt-tightenings Backfire

National Library's Turn to Be Caught Too Deep in Black

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Remember when Prime Minister Pearson, in a moment of amazing candour, held a press conference how the senior Civil Service conned the Treasury Board?

Well, there have been so many since.

But first, back to Mr. Pearson and the con-job he revealed.

He was talking at the time of the need for economy in government spending — another of those belt-tightenings was in the works.

And while the Prime Minister was all in favor of the taxpayer getting the full bang out of his tax buck, Mr. Pearson seemed rather skeptical that it would come about.

Recalling his days as a deputy minister in the External Affairs Department, the Prime Minister chuckled publicly over how easy it was for the mandarins to pull the wool over cabinet eyes in the Treasury Board.

"Every year, he reminded his press conference, Treasury Board prepares itself to sit on the big Civil Service spenders and hold down the ever-climbing rate of government expenditure and usually increasing tax rates.

And every year, he recalled, Treasury Board was outsmarted, with spending increasing and taxes routinely climbing.

But how could it happen, he was asked when the minister had veto power over the spending ambitions of the senior Civil Service.

EASY, grinned the Prime Minister.

Deputies, he recalled, simply "packed" the estimates they took to Treasury Board.

The mandarins knew the ministers in the name of economy would cross some of the spending estimates for each department.

So each deputy, chuckled the Prime Minister, as a matter of bargaining procedure loaded in and consequently expendable items in their estimates.

The Treasury Board minister gleefully pounced on these to the estimates and congratulated themselves they were doing a great job for the taxpayers.

When all the time they were being had by the smart operators in the Civil Service executive suites.

The new refinement — although perhaps it isn't all that new — is to make sure, as a deputy or one of the many departmental pro-consuls that you spend every last nickel of your current budget.

Leave a few bucks unspent and you run the risk of Treasury Board telling you that you do not really need all that dough and maybe next year you could get along with a little less.

Well, you get caught this last fiscal year — ending in April — with money still in the departmental kitty?

The Secretary of State, or to be specific, the department's National Library.

The staff whisperers that some weeks before the end of the fiscal year, an internal audit showed the Library was too deeply in the black.

What to do?

But how?

Call in a good part of the staff for overtime, of course. Work them seven Saturdays in succession, including bank holidays.

They straggle in taking their own sweet time, but the majority of them tell it, address themselves industriously to the indexing of "easy" books, take long and relaxing tea breaks and leave early.

Seven Saturdays in a row up to and including April 7 at overtime used up the spare and unspent money in the Budget so when the Library goes to Treasury Board this year for next year's spending allowance, well of course, it can justify the need for more money.

It used up all it had last year, didn't it.

While the staff chuckles over the story, Dr. J. Lunn, the Library's director of cataloguing, is not amused.

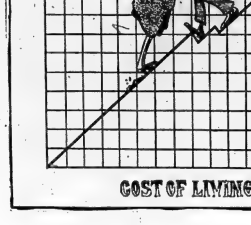
There was the overtime, it is admitted, but it was required for what officially is described as "a variety of reasons".

Like what?

"An internal matter," is the answer, and beyond that, of course, there is the usual "no comment".

But there were those seven Saturdays of overtime conveniently cowered, laugh some of the staff, by those embarrassing unspent budget dollars.

The Library's budget? A mere $6,320,000, peanuts when it comes to real government spending.



COST OF LIVING INDEX

Wars Put Spotlight on Third World

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Many Third World countries, some of them large, populous and important in their own right, come to the attention of the world at large only during times of crisis.

Nigeria the largest country in the African continent with a population nudging 40 millions, twice our own, is a case in point. It now remembers the cruel Biafran civil war.

Vietnam in Asia is the most obvious example of the effects of the spotlight of world attention. We know more about Vietnamese social problems, the aftermath of war and civil war than about any other Third World country.

The fact that about 500,000 people have been killed or murdered during bitter and continuous civil war in the Sudan, is still an event few know about.

Rather the huge East African Sudanese state came into the news recently because of the murder in Khartoum that country's capital, of the newly-arrived U.S. Ambassador and other diplomats by Palestinian guerrillas.

The Sudan at eyrel in world news, not in its own right as a state of mixed Arab and black populations warring harshly against each other, but because Sudanese military president Major General Gaafar Numeiry said the guilty Palestinian guerrillas would not die—that their trial had also been delayed.

That kind of bad news at least told us this 239,000 square mile republic also had its own official game to play relative to the fate of Palestinian guerrilla killers. And we found out that the Sudan, as well as Lebanon and Syria, had been an "approved" country of refuge for them, and presumably too for their clandestine activities.

A map of Africa readily reveals the huge size of the Sudan, stretching from the southern border of Egypt to Kenya, Uganda and the Belgian Congo and Ethiopia. Like most modern African states, this one too is a product of the colonial era. In exact 25 the 1936 Anglo-Egyptian Treaty which formalized the so-called "condominium" of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.

It was to be jointly ruled by Britain and Egypt. But since the latter country was under clear and strong British influence, the red color which once marked the British Empire on world maps was always shown beginning with Egypt going into the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan and south to the former crown colonies of Kenya, Uganda and the Rhodesians.

Sudan like so many Third World countries has tried to survive with waiting and differing sizes making up its population. Its 15 million people are divided between 11 million Moslem administrators, small businessmen and military officials in the North and the natural ruling elite and four million blacks in the south—typically more depressed than the North.

Since peace, the personal triumph of President Numeiry, was the result of a bitter civil war which terminated in the national life and contained the country's slim budgetary resources during the late 1960s era to 7%. No one will ever know the complete death toll. A figure of half a million has been suggested by the United Nations.

As in the equally bloody Nigerian civil war of 1968-69, world powers interested on either side, the Arab nations on behalf of the Islamic north, Israel as silent arms supplier on behalf of the black and beleaguered south.

Typically the Sudan into negotiations heavily on World Bank and private loans to start its genuine economic and social development. Numeiry, all the while hoping his personal handshoke style of agreement with southern military leader General Joseph Lagu, is really going to stick.

Mining Needs Support

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The current excitement in the international bullion market has pushed the price of gold up to unprecedented levels. At the same time, it has brought a new wave of optimism to Canada's long-suffering producers of precious metals.

But Canada's mining industry continues to face an uncertain future. The good old days, when the world clamored to buy whatever Canadian mines could produce, are gone.

Other countries have been elbowing their way into the world's metal markets and are providing stiff new competition for our sales teams (who may not find much comfort in the fact that Canada's foreign-aid programs helped to create mining industries in some of those countries).

The future of Canadian mining has given an intensive going-over at mid-April conference of federal and provincial mining ministers. One result of that meeting was the publication, the other day, of a document called mineral policy objectives for Canada.

In it, the ministers came down firmly in favor of a great many socially desirable goals to be met by the industry—such as creating jobs (especially in the areas of high unemployment), maintaining high standards of environmental conservation, increasing our domestic production, selling more minerals abroad, and the like.

Who could quarrel with those aims? No one except, perhaps, the most extreme of the 20th century laissez-faire capitalist.

It is easy enough to agree with ringing "motherhood" proclamations. Many remote northern parts of the mining industry need to be prodded regularly about their responsibility to protect the quality of the air, water and land.

While doing that, however, let's not lose sight of the importance of mining in Canada's economic life, nor of the intensity of the competition on world markets.

Our mining industry employs 230,000 Canadians (or about three per cent of the labor force) and accounts directly for four per cent of all goods and services produced in Canada—and indirectly for a good eight per cent. Exports of minerals and metals account for 17 per cent of the foreign sales of all Canadian products.

We lead the world in production of nickel, zinc and asbestos. We're important producers of silver and potash, third in aluminum and lead, fifth in copper, sixth in iron ore. Last year's production of these and other minerals was worth $18,533,33, for every man, woman and child in Canada.

So much for statistics. Behind those figures, though, lies a tough story. The financing of the mining industry is fundamental to the Canadian economy.

The federal and provincial mining authorities must put first things first—and that means supporting Canadian producers and exporters effectively as they fight for a place in a notably and highly competitive world market.

Number of Frowned-on Films on Rise

Cornwall Standard - Freeholder

One of the most interesting annual reports out of Queen's Park is that of the theatres branch of the ministry of consumer and commercial relations.

The report discloses that 711 feature films were reviewed by the board of censors. Of these, 213 were designated restricted, 15 were recommended as adult entertainment and 195 were approved for general exhibition. Eleven features were rejected, and the elimination of material was requested in 86 others.

The number of films NOT APPROVED is the highest in several years," the report states. This is to some extent these were films portraying sick sensuality and undue violence. Approval of these films would have been consumate arrogance on our part and a complete disregard for the feelings of the people of this province."

Similarly, 230 items of advertising were turned down out of a total of 4,138 examined and changes were ordered in another 184 cases. The report stated in part: "Unfortunately some exhibitors become overzealous and show a complete disregard for good taste."

It is shocking when one considers that only 195 out of 711 films were recommended for general showing, which we presume means a recommended for family viewing. This is only 27 percent of all the films reviewed. In contrast 30 percent were classified as restricted and 40 percent adult entertainment.

As in past years, the United States was the major source of films, producing 254 of the total reviewed. Italy produced 94, France 64, Great Britain 64, China 105, France 25, Germany 17 and Japan 16. The rest of Sweden is a main source of racy films was shut down since the report of the films reviewed originated in that country.

In fact, many British films appear to have been in the latter category. Thirteen were designated restrictive, eight as adult entertainment and only one was approved for general exhibition.

In a concluding paragraph, the report states: In a society whose standards are changing constantly, an institution such as our board needs to be extremely flexible. It takes a great deal of experience and skill to balance the tightrope between extremes and at the same time protect the rights of all shades of opinion in between."

On the one hand the board is being castigated for its permissiveness and on the other damned for its lack of liberality.

Over the past year we have viewed some excellent films, but some which were shallow and sexless as well. It is obvious that there is no easy answer for the board of inspection. But we would hope that such boards, along with the public, keep insisting on artistic excellence and good taste, Only in this way will the film industry be prevented from degenerating completely as it chases the easy entertainment dollar.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Ten BCIVS students, who had been taking driver training lessons, will receive their certificates on June 5 when a representative of the Ontario Motor League will be in the city.

In preparation for another season of swimming such as was enjoyed by the local kiddies last year, members of the local Kinsmen Club have been putting in a few hours of overtime recently to get the Kinsmen Swimming Pool on Dundas St. ready for opening for another season.

One thousand Ontario servicemen will travel to Ottawa beginning this weekend on three special CNR trains and extra coaches to take part in Decoration ceremonies there Tuesday.

30 YEARS AGO

May 31, 1943

A capacity crowd was in attendance at Bell Auditorium to witness the graduation exercises of the 1943 nursing class. It was a great moment and a highlight in the lives of each and every one of the 23 young women who, on reaching the stepping stone of their careers, solemnly took the Florence Nightingale Pledge and were presented with their graduation diplomas and pins. Mrs. G. A. Morton, vice-president of the Women's Christian Association, who own and operate the hospital, presided by Ruth Thompson, director of nursing, presented the graduation pins to be nurses. Mr. Burton Lee presented the diplomas. Dr. E. McDonald, president of the medical staff expressed the pleasure, on behalf of the medical staff of congratulating the nursing class of 1943 for their success.

40 YEARS AGO

May 31, 1933

Building permits issued by the office of the city engineer failed to rally during the past month in any appreciable degree and still lag far behind in number and amount of those issued in the spring months of other years. During the month of May just ending, a total of six permits was issued, all for small alterations and private garages, the estimated value of all permits being $1,725. During the month of May last year the estimated value of all permits was $18,800.

50 YEARS AGO

May 31, 1923

R. J. Cooke, the popular ex-MPP for North Hastings, was unanimously chosen at the Liberal Conservative convention in Madoc, to be the candidate at the approaching provincial elections. The Hon. G. Howard Ferguson addressed the meeting.

At a convention of the United Farmers of Ontario party held at Plainfield, H. K. Denyes, ex-MPP, was chosen to be the candidate at the coming provincial elections.

Legislature Gaining In Stature

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau

The Globe and Mail had an editorial a while ago in which it said that private members of the legislature had steadily been losing stature for the past 30 years while government and civil servants had been taking it over.

Insofar as the reference to private members is concerned this is propagating a popular fallacy.

Even the members themselves today have the idea that powers and rights have been taken away from them.

Backbenchers feel they have been downgraded and often don't hesitate to say so.

But actually the private members of the house have been before had the strength or the privileges they now enjoy.

Thirty years ago the private member at this seat of government was a man of very little consequence.

He had little to do except run errands for his riding and make perhaps one speech a year which hardly anybody listened to).

He had no office or stenographer. The only facilities available to him were his desk in the chamber and the use of a phone in the lobby.

He might be a member of a committee. But except for Private Bills, the committee had actually met sat only for a day or two.

Today the member has his own office, phone and stenographer.

And he has a lot of opportunity to participate.

Committees over the years committee work has become increasingly important.

Once the session is into stride committees are meeting constantly. And these are a by-day for the private member, his playground.

There he can ask questions, make suggestions and generally be a man of importance.

He also is more important in the caucus than he was not so long ago. And riding work, of course, has grown tremendously.

From a man of little consequence he has grown to a position where there is the opportunity for considerable status, respect and dignity.

Ideally, perhaps, he still doesn't have the position he should have. And it is true that the power of government, and particularly of the civil service, has been increasing. But at least he is much more of a person than he used to be, and his position which has been steadily enlarging presumably will continue tegrow.

Ann Landers

Her 'Idiot' Husband Loves Ann

Dear Ann Landers: I'm writing to you because you are the problem. I've been married to this man for 18 years. He is a good person and I trust him completely. But the idiot has a crush on you. He has at least ten pictures of you pasted here and there in the house—small ones that he has cut out of your column.

He collects them from various papers and each one is different. He keeps buying out-of-town papers in search of a new picture of Ann Landers. When he finds it he chortles with glee and taped it to his bathroom mirror, the refrigerator door or some other ridiculous place.

When he ea3 in the paper that you wee going to be on the Dinah Shore Show he stayed home from work half a day to see it. At first I thought it was very funny but I am not laughing anymore. Any advice for a darned fool in Ohio?—

Dear J: A man who has been married 18 years is a little old to be playing with paper dolls. And that's exactly what he's doing. But cheer up, honey, and be thankful it's me. You have nothing to worry about.

Dear Ann Landers: Regarding the menopausal woman who asked you to help her find the words to tell friend husband she is no longer interested in sex: Perhaps her problem is more psychological than physical. If it's true, as she says, that her husband has "no respect or her judgement," then perhaps her inability to respond to him sexually might be an expression of her resentment rather than the tired excuse that Mother Nature has decreed her sex life is over.

If my husband let me know he had no respect for my judgment, I wouldn't be very affectionate either. If this is the lady's problem, I suggest that she see a counselor on the way home from the gynecologist.—A Pragmatist

Dear Prag: There are many effective medicines that can help replenish the waning supply of estrogen—if that's the problem. If it's another problem, there's help for that, too, and a competent gynecologist should suggest it. Ask him.

Dear Ann Landers: My new neighbor was born in Europe and came to this country as a bride 10 years ago. She has lovely taste in clothes and is really quite elegant. But one thing about her bothers me because it spoils her appearance. She has more hair on her legs than my husband.

I've heard some unkind remarks about this and I feel guilty because I haven't had the nerve to set her straight on the way It's done in America. Should I or shouldn't I?—The G.W

Dear G.W: You didn't say your friend was blind so I assume her vision is all right. If she's been here 10 years, it's long enough to have noticed the difference between her legs and the legs of other women in this country. It's safe to assume that what is considered vital to good grooming to most women others but the real lest is what you are going to do about it.

MISS BARBARA ANN JOUDWA, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Joudwa, Belleville, graduated from McMaster University, Hamilton with a BA degree in sociology. Miss Joudwa, a graduate of Peterborough Teachers' College, Nicholson College and St. Michael's Academy will continue teaching at Christ the King School, Hamilton.

RECORD TOPPLED

CRANBROOK, B.C. (CP)—Six young people, ranging in age from 15 to 20, are claiming a world canasta playing record — a total of 151 hours, two minutes. The former record was an even 150 hours, set on the island of Cyprus in 1969.

NEW MURAL

CASTELVE. V.I. (AP) — The Holy Family Roman Catholic Church has a new 1,500 square foot mural in which the Holy Family is surrounded by Virgin Islanders dancing, fishing and playing musical instruments.

Buy Your Groceries on A Bus

VICTORIA (CP) — An old bus, manned by volunteers and welfare recipients, has been set up as a low-cost grocery store to serve elderly people and shut-ins who have difficulty getting out to shop.

It began last year on an Opportunities for Youth grant and now is operating on the five-per-cent markup it puts on its products.

Ita operators applied for a Local Initiatives Program (LIP) grant, but were told local merchants had complained that it competes with them.

The word from LIP was: "It appears there was considerable opposition from local grocers about the setting up of this service and, as you know, projects whose sole function would necessarily place them in direct competition with existing businesses are discouraged as possible recipients of LIP fund."

The bus workers prefer it be known only by their first names and Sharon Jenkins the bus representa composition to customers.

"We go to people only on referral from anyone agencies and only to people who cannot get around."

One stop is a low-cost housing unit where the nearest grocery is two blocks away up a steep hill. All of the 30 residents are past 65.

The caretaker, Gertrude Williams, said: "Practically everyone here shops at the bus.

"One lady here is 93 and she can't get out of her rooms at all. The bus people come and pick up her order, get the goods, return with them and even put them in the fridge for her."

Sharon said: "If only a representative of the merchants could come and see that these are people they couldn't possibly serve."

Sharon said they buy locally for the bus and sell at cost plus five per cent. Any gifts of food are passed on free.

DATSUN 1200 carries on the tradition of the classic 2-door coupe.

The 2-door coupe has made automotive history. It's tough. It's quick. And traditionally, it looks a lot sportier than its bigger brothers. When Datsun set out to design the best 2-door coupe around, we stuck to the principles that made the coupe a classic.

The '37 Ford Coupe (centre right) gave you maximum comfort in its day. For its time, the '39 Packard Opera Coupe (centre left) handled like a dream. Our own 1932 Datsun coupe (that's it in the background) was one of the toughest, most dependable cars built that year.

In the Datsun 1200, we've simply updated these features with a large dollop of modern technology and the feel for good, solid auto building that's been our trademark over the last 40 years. So when you want tough, quick, sporty transportation, we think our Datsun 1200 is all you really need.

Successful Living

Canadians Short of 'Innards'

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Many people want to contribute to mankind in every way possible. There is a chronic shortage of kidneys for transplants. If Canadians are interested in donating their kidneys so more people can live, they should carry donor cards and spread the word to others.

Organs for transplant are obtained at the time of death. There are hundreds of people waiting for transplants. Can you think of anything more gratifying than giving the gift of life?

For a donor card, people can write to Kidney Foundation of Canada, P. O. Box 422, Montreal 379, Quebec. — Organs For Transplant.

Dear Organs: I'm told we are away behind in making our innards available when we don't need them any more. Just haven't thought enough about it, that's all. And you have to think about it while you still have some say in the matter.

Meanwhile lives are being lost because folks otherwise good for many more years on this old earth lack healthy kidneys, and corneas; and the number of human organs which can be transplanted successfully is growing. Join the organ donor program, folks!

Dear Doris: As the mother of teen-agers, I am asking a few questions that concern me a lot:

(1) If a girl has her own apartment, does she entertain her lover there?

(2) Is it proper for a girl to visit her boy friend in his apartment, or at his home when the family is all out?

(3) Is it good for a couple to see each other every night of the week?

I'm not sure of the rules in this country. — Newcomer.

Dear Newcomer:

(1) She may...but not if she cares what people will be thinking.

(2) No.

(3) If engaged, yes; as a hardly stop them; otherwise, not good.

The rules are pretty much the same everywhere. If a girl spends a lot of time alone with her boy friend, everyone assumes that she has low moral values. If her reputation is important to her, she will exercise a little discretion and self-control.

Confidential to F. G.: The drug you mention is not listed in the 1973 compendium of pharmaceuticals, put out by the Canadian Pharmaceutical Association. It takes a while for the Canadian experts to put their stamp of approval on new discoveries - which is a comfort to all of us.

You see, our Canadian conservatism, especially regarding new drugs for which extravagant claims may have been made, have repeatedly saved us some of the disappointments and indeed tragedies which our less conservative American public has suffered.

My medical consultant says you may rest assured that if the drug is good it is being tested and researched here and will be duly released.

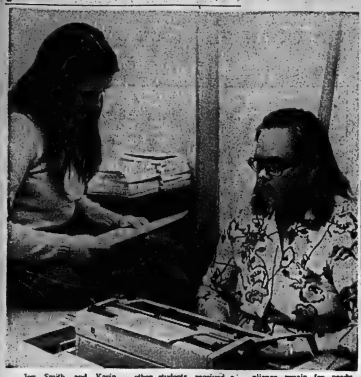
Northern Electric COMPANY LIMITED



Joy Smith and Karin Nappenpan plan their summer's efforts under an Opportunities for Youth Grant. The girls, along with seven other students, received a grant to operate Belleville's Central Volunteer Bureau during summer months. Furniture sharing, appliance repair for needy families and special services for the elderly will be undertaken.

Open for Business All Summer

Belleville's Central Volunteer Bureau will remain in operation for the summer thanks to two groups of young people who made successful applications for Opportunities For Youth grants.

The government combined the applications into one Student Services group.

With $8,630 in federal funds, nine high school and post-secondary students will carry out services normally performed by the volunteer bureau and its director Ruth Burrows.

Karin Nappenpan, a Loyalist social services student, Joy Smith, also a Loyalist student, and Jon Wills, who attends George Brown College in Toronto, make up one of the original groups. The students plan to continue the bureau's furniture sharing program and other services and add a new appliance service for needy families.

Jon Wills will perform repairs with no charge for labor. Parts will be supplied at cost.

Debra Boylan, Janet Meagher, Carol Rogers, Jo-Anne Bowes, Barbara Rae and Kathryn McDonald are Quinte Secondary School students involved in Student Services.

Debbie Boylan and several other members of the group were involved in the bureau's Christmas Sharing program and wanted to continue with a program with special emphasis on services for the elderly.

The six girls will spend the summer providing housekeeping services and miscellaneous help for 50 elderly Belleville residents.

One of their aims is to provide a liaison between the elderly and the teenagers of the community.

Referrals of elderly persons in need of assistance - they'll be visited for half-days once a week - will come from programs like Meals on Wheels, Belleville General Hospital and the public.

(Phone Debbie Boylan from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m at 392-5760)

The girls hope their project will continue after the Opportunities For Youth grant runs out at the end of August. One possible source of support is the Belleville Physicians organization, Debbie says.

Under OFY terms of reference, high school students receive $70 per week and post-secondary students receive $90 per week.

The Central Volunteer Bureau number is 962 9531.

Medical Secretaries' Convention

Quinte Medical Secretaries were rated second among Ontario's medical secretaries' associations in competition for the Physicians Services Incorporated Shield presented at the group's annual convention held in Toronto recently.

The shield is awarded to the association with the most outstanding educational program. It was awarded to Belleville's group in 1970.

This year's award went to Kingston Medical Secretaries. At the convention, attended by 15 local medical secretaries, Rev. Frank Morgan of Kitchener, told the group medical secretaries have a responsibility beyond secretarial skills.

As part of the healing team, he said, the medical secretary must strive to be a warm and human person and give confidence, sympathy and hope.

Other speakers addressed the secretaries on cystic fibrosis, alcoholism, hip disease, hypnotherapy, eye donations, kidney disease, and Ontario's coroner's system.

Marriage

The marriage of Marcelle Marie Therese, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bruneau, of Toronto, to Clarence David, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence D. Fuzzen, of Belleville, took place in Forest Hill United Church, Toronto, May 12.

POISONOUS

The Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs warns that lead glazes on ceramic ware can poison if the ceramics are used to store citrus fruit juices, soft drinks, pickles or the like. It warns hobbyists not to make dinnerware articles and to be sure they have proper ventilation in work areas to prevent risk of lead poisoning from fumes.

Hastings North W.I.

Mrs. George Empey of Marmora was elected president of Hastings North Women's Institute at the annual meet held recently in Madoc.

Provincial Board Director, Mrs. Clifford Bircher addressed the morning session at Trinity United Church. Fourteen branches attended the meeting.

Officers elected for the new term are: Mrs. Glen Barker, McArthur's Mills past president; Mrs. George Williams, RR 4 Marmora, 1st vice president; Mrs. Max Burnside, Madoc, 2nd vice-president; Mrs. Rex Rollins, RR 3 Madoc, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Russell Sills, RR 2 Stirling, assistant secretary-treasurer and Mrs. Ken Cooke, RR 2 Stirling, public relations.

Afternoon guest speaker was Mrs. Everett Small of Essex, past president of Federation of Women's Institute of Ontario.

Gourmet's Corner: Chicken A La Kiev

Jody Schnell's Chicken A La Kiev is truly a gourmet's treat. Unfortunately the first time we published her recipe, there were typographical errors. So you won't miss out, here it is again.

Two whole chicken breasts, split and boned
Salt
Monosodium glutamate
White pepper
¾ tbsp. minced shallots
¾ tbsp. chopped chives
one-third cup firm butter
Flour seasoned with salt and pepper
2 slightly beaten eggs
¾ cup bread crumbs
1½ cups clarified sweet butter
¾ tbsp. oil

Pound chicken breasts with a mallet until thin, being careful not to split the flesh. (DIP the mallet in ice water before each pounding.) Sprinkle the insides of each ½ breast with salt, monosodium glutamate and white pepper. Combine shallots and chives. Cut butter lengthwise into 4 sticks. Place 1 tsp. of the shallot-chive mixture and 1 stick of butter on the long edge of each ½ chicken breast. Starting at the buttered edge, tightly roll each portion, sealing the butter and rolling securely. Dip each portion lightly with seasoned flour, dip into beaten eggs and coat with bread crumbs. Heat clarified butter and oil and brown chicken breast quickly on all sides. Transfer browned portions to a shallow, oblong baking dish. Bake in a 250 deg. oven for about 25-30 min. or until chicken is tender. Drain on absorbent paper. Arrange on a heated platter and keep warm. Serve with Sultane sauce.

SULTANE SAUCE

One-third cup sour cream
¾ cup whipping cream
⅓ cup condensed chicken broth
one-third cup finely chopped onions
2 tbsps. sweet butter
2 tbsps. flour
½ tsp. salt
Dash of cayenne pepper
2 tbsps. dry white wine

Combine sour cream, whipping cream and broth, in saucepan and simmer over low heat. Do not allow to boil. Stir occasionally. Separately saute onions in butter until transparent. Blend in flour, salt, and cayenne. Add gradually, hot cream - chicken broth mixture, stirring continuously. Add wine and pour into sauceboat or serve directly over chicken.

MR. AND MRS. DAVID REX LAYNE

Layne — Sheppard

Delia Marie Sheppard and David Rex Layne exchanged wedding vows May 25 at Church of Jesus Christ.

President J. R. Brady, North Bay Branch, Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, officiated at the afternoon ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Sheppard, of Point Anne. The groom is the son of Mrs. and Mrs. John Howard Layne, of Belleville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a lace over crepe gown with a tulle illusion veil caught in a lace tiara. She carried a cascade of yellow roses with white stephanotis and ivy.

Matron of honor Mrs. Gary Bonus wore a full length gown of lavender on white with purple velvet sash with matching flowers in her hair.

The attendants carried carnations to match their gowns.

Bryon Vial, groomsman, was assisted by ushers Gary Bonus, Elder Daniel John Foye and Elder Larry A. Jones.

A reception was held at the Trenton Chapel, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

After a wedding trip to the thousand islands, the couple will reside in Point Anne.

Cross Canada Survey

You're Paying 50 Cents More for Some Grocery Products

By ROBERT BENTLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Monthly price fluctuations of up to 50 cents on individual food items in the shopping basket and a continuing upward trend in the price of meat are revealed in a shopping survey of nine major Canadian cities.

The prices of 17 food items common to most family shopping lists were checked in two cross-Canada surveys by The Canadian Press conducted four weeks apart.

The survey showed considerable increases in beef, pork, chicken, potatoes and tomatoes during the month but stable prices for such basic foods as milk and sugar. There were few decreases in prices.

The first survey was carried out April 30 and the second May 28, both Mondays, with the aim of determining price fluctuations in each city. The surveys are not intended to compare prices from city to city.

Certain items were unavailable in some cities on the dates checked, and brands sometimes varied from region to region.

Occasionally the quantities bought could not be found in all cities. In such cases the amounts usually offered for sale were checked.

In the first survey the lowest price for each item was noted. In the second survey the same brand was checked for comparison, whether or not it remained the cheapest on offer.

The surveys were conducted where possible in large supermarkets, and covered the following foods: One pound each of sirloin-tip beef, all-beef wieners, centre-cut loin of pork, first-grade chicken, ground chuck, frozen cod fillets, first-grade butter, tomatoes, frozen green peas, apples, and drip coffee.

Also checked were the prices of one dozen white, medium eggs, a quart of homogenized milk, one 24-ounce loaf of sliced, white bread, 10 pounds of first-grade potatoes, a 24-ounce can of first-grade halved pears, and five pounds of white granulated sugar.

Some of the findings:

MONTREAL — Seven items increased in price and none decreased. Biggest jump was 50 cents (to $1.59 from $1.09) for pork. Other increases showed frozen cod fillets up to $1.14 from 86 cents, potatoes up 18 cents to 95 cents, and ground chuck up 11 cents to $1.07. Chicken, wieners and apples had two-to six-cent increases. Beef was constant at $1.73.

William Taylor, an official of the supermarket checked, said the meat price increases resulted primarily from the cost of the slaughter animals and increased feed costs.

Ground chuck, he said, was a good example of the trend to increased meat prices. The price had been held back "as long as possible."

He said that despite the higher prices his company was making the same profits as before on pork, chicken and ground chuck.

Cod fillets he said are "rare" in Montreal at this time of year, and he attributed the 18-cent increase for 19 pounds to bad weather resulting in a poor harvest.

He said this factor was also expected to push up costs of other vegetables within the next two months.

TORONTO—The city registered six price increases, the highest 16 cents on one pound of tomatoes, and the others ranging from two to six cents on pork, beef, wieners, apples and canned pears.

Potatoes went down six cents to 23 cents, cod fillets three cents to 95 cents, milk by two cents and eggs by one cent. On other items remained stable.

Prices were available for all the items in both surveys, although 28-ounce cans of pears were used for comparison, instead of 24 o cans.

Total shopping bill the first check: $12.21; One month later: $12.68.

QUEBEC — Biggest mark-up was on cod fillets, a 33-cents increase raising the price to $1.18. Ten other items also went up.

Twenty-one cents went on potatoes, to 98 cents; 10 cents on beef, to $1.72; nine cents on drip coffee, to $1.08; and eight cents on apples, six cents on chicken and tomatoes, five cents on frozen peas and butter, four on pork and three on milk.

Ground chuck went down seven cents to 89 cents and wieners showed a two-cent drop.

HALIFAX—There was a 25 cent rise on tomatoes, to 79 cents; 10 cents on potatoes, to $1.29, and pork, to $1.39; five cents on chicken and two cents on eggs.

Frozen peas dropped four cents to 22 cents but other prices remained constant. Beef and apples were not available in the first survey.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld.—Neither beef nor pork was available at both checks in St. John's. A spokesman said they generally were not available Monday, the slowest shopping day of the week. Tomatoes, frozen peas and apples were unavailable during the second survey.

But 27 cents went on drip coffee, to $1.39; 22 cents on sugar, to 81 cents, and five cents on butter, to 82 cents.

Potatoes came down 29 cents to 98 cents, cod fillets five cents to 74 cents, with one cent each off chicken, to 67 cents, and ground chuck, to $1.18. Wieners, milk, bread and canned pears remained constant.

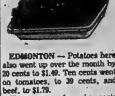
OTTAWA — Short-rib beef, which provided the best comparison here, increased 11 cents to $1.09. Ten cents also went on ground chuck, raising it to 96 cents, and three cents on sugar, to 79 cents.

But 10 cents came off both tomatoes, to 87 cents, and frozen peas, to 34 cents.

WINNIPEG — Ten cents came off wieners and cod fillets, both to 89 cents, while 30 cents went on potatoes, to 99 cents, and 13 cents on bread, to 32 cents.

Apples, tomatoes and eggs had increases ranging from two to four cents but eight cents came off chicken, to 64 cents, and two cents off milk, to 32 cents.

Food bill at the first check: $12.97, Second check: $13.18. These included comparisons for 19-ounce cans of pears.



EDMONTON — Potatoes here also went up over the month by 20 cents to $1.69. Ten cents went on tomatoes, to 39 cents, and beef, to $1.79.

There was also six cents added on ground chuck, five cents on butter and sugar and smaller increases on drip coffee, beers and eggs.

Chicken and wieners were each down four cents.

VANCOUVER—The food bill here rose 17 cents over the month, to $13.54 from $13.37.

Pilot, 87 Retires

WOODSTOCK, Ont. (CP) — The world's oldest active pilot will never know another dogfight, except when in his dreams he twists and turns in vain attempts to elude the Red Baron.

T. F. (Tom) Williams, of nearby Sweaburg, Ont., has at 87 finally turned in his wings.

"It seems the proper thing to do," said the veteran pilot who logged more than 800,000 miles in the air, and who still vividly recalls the day he was shot down in the First World War by the Red Baron, Germany's ace pilot.

He said that he was involved in about 500 dogfights during the First World War.

Too old for active service in the Second World War, he helped out by testing new parachutes.

Over the years, he flew his own biplane, often from a dirt landing strip near his home.

Although he sold his biplane last year, he flew alone in a borrowed plane only two weeks ago.

But in many cases farmers also held back their products.

Canoe Loans

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada loaned the African nation of Senegal $2.7 million "for the modernization of dugout canoes," the Commons was advised Wednesday by John Reid, parliamentary secretary for external affairs.

Part of the loan was used to buy 1,650 outboard motors worth $690,254 from Outboard Marine Corp. of Canada Ltd. in Peterborough, Ont.

Rainfall About Average

Dull, damp and downright wet it may have seemed, but the month of May now ending has set no record for rainfall.

In fact, it likely will end as just another average May for rain — despite a prolonged overcast which has fitfully splattered fallout on the Quinte area throughout the month.

Appearances aside, to Wednesday night, 3.05 inches of rain had been recorded during the month by the Canadian Forces Base Trenton weather office.

Further showers and drizzle today and tonight could push the month's fallout to the May average of 3.21.

At that, it's a long way from the record. Precipitation totalling five inches or more has not been uncommon in the Belleville - Trenton areas since the base began keeping statistics nearly 40 years ago. One of the wettest was May 1942, when 5.92 inches fell.

Nonetheless, the season could still end as one of the wetter springs in years. The gloomy month of April took a red two months of above-normal precipitation. Only 0.79 inches was recorded in March and April. Average for the two months is 3.22 inches.

Name Changed

As of June 8, the Belleville-Trenton Branch of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association will officially become the Prince Edward-Hastings Section.

The name change, proposed by the local section executive, has been approved by the Central Ontario Division and the Administrative Council of the IAPA.

It was felt the old name "Belleville - Trenton" did not properly include the whole of the territory served by the section.

Horse Show Next Month

PICTON — The thirteenth annual Prince Edward Spring Horse show will open at the County Centre on Friday June 15 through Sunday, June 17.

Billed as Ontario's premier indoor show, this three-day program will feature saddle and harness classes for horses and ponies as well as musical and comedy entertainment.

The show is headlined by the Goode Family, The Acousticats and Bob Wood who will act as master of ceremonies.

Mrs. John Sorensen of Denco Kennels will present an exhibition of various dog breeds during the program.

The horse show will open Friday, June 15 at 7:45 p.m. and on Saturday, June 16 at 7:30 p.m. On Sunday, June 17 western events, hunter and jumper classes and chariot races will be held beginning at 1 p.m.

The horse show is sponsored by the Prince Edward Agricultural Society and the Picton Kiwanis Club. Tickets can be obtained from show secretary Douglas Baker, Box 1181, Picton.

Proceeds from this event are used for community projects.

Belleville Men At Conference

Bob Cook, president of Belleville Local 907 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, and Archie McMillan, shop steward, returned Monday morning from a three-day CUPE conference at Niagara Falls.

Mr. Cook said a bus from the convention had joined Quinte District and Labor Council members and union reps from across Ontario in Sunday's mass rally at Kitchener in support of striking Dare Food Corporation Workers there. "The convention also got together a $1,200 donation for the Dare workers," he said.

Mr. Cook is on the CUPE resolutions committee which met Thursday. Among the resolutions passed, he said, were ones in favor of lowering Canada Pension Plan and Ontario Municipal Employment Retirement pension qualifying rates to 60 and full coverage of all medical expenses for everyone over 65.

There had been several resolutions dealing with regional government, said Mr. Cook, the executive being that the CUPE Locals involved should have a say on the effect of regionalization on public employees.

Business Blooming, But . . .

Coming of spring flowers marked trade upswing for Bill and Erma Marcenko's West Bridge Street store. Now, they claim, they've more to lose to street-widening plan than store front display area. Fearing serious business decline, they're among property owners who plan protesting project to Ontario Municipal Board.

Bridge West Widening Protested by Residents

By HARRY MULHALL

A funny thing happened when Bill and Erma Marcenko arrived summer flowers outside their neighborhood grocery store on West Bridge st.

After nearly a year, business blossomed.

Whether or not the flowers were a beacon for business, the Marcenkos can't be sure, Neither are they sure they'll have the display out another summer. They, in fact, voice uncertainty about their future in business.

The Marcenkos probably marshal the most urgent case. But misgivings seem common along Bridge West these days. Petitions have been circulated.

The feelings of the neighborhood will have a chance for public airing next week when the Ontario Municipal Board holds a public hearing into a city proposal to rebuild and widen West Bridge — one of the city's oldest street-cars from Highland Ave.

If private opinions are any indication, the public protest could be prolific.

It may come from the bluntness of one longtime resident who sees in the "street ridiculous" project yet, to the reasonableness of a neighbor hoping for a "reasonable alternative".

The old tree-lined street needs rebuilding, says city engineer Wilbur Purcell. It's a bus route; it collects traffic to and from a fast-developing area. Bill residential area and several industries — including Northern Electric, the city's biggest employer. Someday it also will be a direct line to Loyalist College.

Surveys have left "no question" that West Bridge is in need of rebuilding here, says the city official, and a fourth lane is proposed from Yeomans west to Sidney.

Land acquisition isn't necessary. The existing city right-of-way is wide enough to absorb the proposed new lane and flanking boulevards for utilities' service poles on each sidewalk.

But — as is customary on older streets — the actual right-of-way has long been blended into private property. It's a tradition that home owners extend lawns across the city line. Rights of way have become obscured — until recently.

The West Bridge way now is needed by the city. The reconstruction could push shade trees closer to the front doors of many homeowners. Swaths of lawn would be shorn and towering old trees toppled.

Residents are disapproval in different ways. But a petition in Bill Marcenko's store articulates most of the common protests.

It was drawn up by Mrs. Helen Brightwell, an adequate dealer who came to the street three years ago when she and her family moved from Ottawa.

Among points protested by the petition: The street would become a "three-lane speedway", a hazard to children and older people. The trees character would be lost. So would privacy, with traffic closer to the houses. Property values would deteriorate while taxes would go up to pay for the street's share of rebuilding the road.

Mrs. Brightwell has been the most active in urging protest in the neighborhood. She organized a petition in February which caused next week's OMB hearing. She plans to circulate a reminder of the hearing to property owners.

But these are only the roots of "a rational approach to a rational problem".

Mrs. Brightwell says any suggestion is not for her own sake. The same criterion is another's progress.

"There's no program out there really," she says. "Why not make the city street a nice city street?

"I just think they could come up with an alternative."

The Brightwell's 106-year-old home is one of the city's most distinguished residence — 114 Bridge West. The stone house has housed the family of writer Susannah Moodie in the 19th century.

Part of the lawn around the historic old home will be lost in the reconstruction. John Cody, high school science teacher who now lives there, says he'd like to see West Bridge kept to four lanes — and its present traffic flow.

He ponders why West Bridge residents should pay taxes for what may become a major traffic artery facilitating motorists from developing area suburbs.

Cost of the three lane sector of the project is estimated at $163,700. The widening, new storm sewers and sidewalks is charged to the general tax rate. West Bridge residents are assessed the regular 60 per cent of normal residential rate which costs. This is projected at $1.83 on each foot of frontage over 19 years. On a 50-foot frontage tax would be about $91 a year.

Gordon Emerson MacDonald, who has lived on the street more than 30 years, sees no reason for the project or its costs.

In fact he calls it "the most ridiculous" municipal proposal yet.

Much of the traffic now on the street actually is bound for Highway 2 and should be rerouted accordingly, he says.

Parking now is permitted on the street's south side. But if this facility were abolished, need for a third line would be cancelled, Mr. MacDonald believes.

But abolition of parking with the three-lane widening is just what Bill and Erma Marcenko fear for their business.

The neighborhood store they bought only last summer is also a post office serving a wide area, says Mr. Marcenko. Parking, now permitted outside his store, facilitates people with mail who must travel some distance. The bulk of his business is tied to the automobile.

A survey he ran revealed 65-70 per cent of the store trade arrives by automobile.

Senior citizens and children won't be able to cross a three-lane roadway, says Mr. Marcenko.

And that's what also makes a corner store as a service," he adds. "The youngsters and the elderly."

Prospect of higher taxes — added to hydro cost increases — are not welcome to any small businessmen, he says.

"I don't want to stand in the way of progress. But — let a guy survive . . ."

Teahouse Performance Is Simple Enjoyment

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Amateur theatre can do and get away with doing a lot of things, but it is seldom an amateur company is able to perform the way Belleville Theatre Guild did last night.

The guild opened Teahouse of the August Moon with such integrity and spunk, it is a shame the play marks the end of the season until next fall.

With no false bravado, strange sounding stage voices or corny make up, the cast came out and did a job. For a moment you could forget it was a play.

Bill Culp, playing the male lead of Sakini, sparked that magic.

The play revolved about the exploits of the U. S. army while it tries to bring democracy to Okinawa following the war. Sakini is the interpreter because more than half the cast speak only Okinawan, including the female lead, the geisha girl Lotus Blossom, played by Irene Proulx.

There's a sparkle that never leaves Sakini's voice, a sparkle that gives Sakini and the play life.

Sakini takes tongue - in - cheek pride in announcing Col. Wainwright Purdy III. Taking particular notice that the colonel has a number following his name, Sakini aptly puts it, "he's the son of a son of a son."

While Steve Forrester and Mike Hanley, two U. S. army captains, work to bring democracy to the village, Sakini and his village followers work equally hard in bringing the priest to the army — including a paid up member of the geisha girl union, Lotus Blossom.

With a flicker of romance in the air once Captain Fisby (Forrester) understands girls shas are not what his father told him they were, the play has nearly unravelled, but not without Fisby being threaten ed with a court martial for his escapades and heartbreak between Lotus Blossom and himself.

Still the warmth of the play continues. The pace never slackening as before the eyes of the audience, the teahouse, demolished earlier on the colonel's orders, is completedly reconstructed.

The sets are beautiful, as are the costumes. The male up is authentic and Proulx's look like it was applied with an oversized paint brush.

Teahouse is not the kind of play that will get you all worked up, but it will make you feel good and it will entertain you.

The production, directed by Ted Bairstow, will continue through this weekend and begins again next Wednesday night for another four nights. Ticket and reservation information is available by calling the Pinnacle Playhouse, 968-1442.

Arsenic Level 'Acceptable'

The arsenic content of the Moira River south of Deloro has dropped to an acceptable level below 65 parts per million, Moira Lake cottagers have learned.

At the April meeting of the Moira Cottagers for Clean Water, a recent report on arsenic contamination of the river at Deloro was read, outlining the results of testing done over the past two years.

The report indicated the arsenic content had dropped below the acceptable level during the last part of 1972, and also outlined the work of O'Brian Mines in an effort to contain any arsenic flow from the old mine site.

Last Touches Before Opening

Kelly Patterson, Vivian Beverley and Anne Smart place the last dab of makeup in preparation for the opening curtain of Teahouse of the August Moon. The play opened last night under the direction of Ted Bairstow. The nearly full house laughed and applauded throughout the light comedy, the final production of the season. The play continues for next three nights and four nights next week, beginning Wednesday.

The Walls of City Hall Art Gallery Goes to Museum

The walls of the city hall council chambers took on a sudden barren appearance Wednesday as many of the paintings which had graced the walls for several years were taken away.

The paintings were part of the City Hall Art Gallery and will be queathed to the city as part of the Saleman estate and which has been shunted at city hall.

But with Glanmore House on East Bridge Street the new city-county museum, being readied for summer opening, there is now room to hang more paintings of the Coulery collection.

But the paintings were merely loan to city hall.

"We were just storing them," commented City Manager J. B. Reynolds.

Belleville OPP Tests Lights

The Ontario Provincial Police are using Belleville detachment as a testing ground for new lighting systems aboard the force's highway cruisers.

Two cars equipped with interchangeable systems were given trials Wednesday and today on Highway 401 near Shannonville — one of the flattest stretches of road in the province.

OPP are experimenting with twin revolving red lights — similar to those atop Belleville Police Department cruisers — and alternating red and white lights such as those found on ambulances.

At present, the black and white cruisers carry a single revolving red light mounted in the centre of the roof.

Participation Invited To Mark Canada Week

Active participation in the celebration of Canada Week from June 25 to July 1 is being invited by Belleville citizens from all walks of life.

City council at its regular meeting May 22 void to have meeting May 28 voted to have Canada Week officially proclaimed and Mayor Robert Jeffrey has invited all citizens to participate in observance of the week.

Local businessmen, association, fraternal, service clubs, the Chamber of Commerce, the Canadian Legion, boy scouts and girl guides are all being asked to prepare activities to be in with observance of Canada's birthday.

Suggested outdoor activities could include parades, a brief day or picnic with sports competitions. Indoor activities might include an amateur night with local singers and musicians featuring music with a Canadian theme, the wearing of clothes of Canadian way of life or a masquerade commemorating Canadian heroes.

Purpose of the observance of Canada Week is to stimulate national pride, to emphasize the advantages nationality and to encourage greater dialogue and understanding among Canadians.

Spreading It Thick

The Gilbert Hotel in downtown Trenton has been receiving a facelift in recent weeks. New wood panelling over shuttered windows, interior redecorating and as a paint-splattered Ron Shepherd will readily admit — a complete exterior repaint job, in yellow. Ladders are all right for the high-level jobs but for street work, he's using a broom handle attachment to his roller.

Fork-lift Contest Entries 'Fantastic'

On June 9, 22 fork-lift truck drivers from 11 area industries will compete for a number of prizes in the First Annual Fork-lift Truck Competition, organized by the Belleville - Trenton Section of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association.

"To encourage operators to develop their skills in correct driving procedures," the competition will emphasize safety, said Helen Nerski, Belleville - Trenton Section secretary.

"This has been a very well-received program," she said. "We didn't even set a limit to the number of entries we have on hand. Entries are now closed, to start at 10 a.m. at Corby Distilleries Ltd. the competition will qualify the two winning entrants for entry into provincial finals at Sarnia, June 16.

Co-ordinator Jim Dunlop of Corby Distilleries Ltd. said the competition would be open to the public. The response in the form of entries, he said, had been "fantastic".

"It's our first one and we've had to limit entrants because we couldn't accommodate them," he said. "Kingston's competition drew only about 10 entrants usually from two major companies. We have 22 from 14 companies."

12 Straight All-star Selections for Hull

SANTA ANA, Calif. (CP) — Bobby Hull's string of selections to make the pro-rated hockey All-Star teams has reached a total of 12 straight with his unanimous choice to the World-Hockey Association's first team.

The left winger's unbroken string, starting in 1962, includes nine selections to the National Hockey League first all-star team and two in 1963 and 1971—to the NHL second team.

The former Golden Jet of Chicago Black Hawks in the NHL, now player-coach with Winnipeg Jets in the WHA, also had an NHL first-team selection in 1960.

By comparison, right-winger Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings had an unbroken string of 15 selections to either the first or second NHL teams from 1956 to 1970 when he retired after 25 years in the NHL.

1953 related streak

Had he not missed being selected in 1955, Howe would have had an unbroken string of 21 selections beginning in 1948.

Joining Hull on the WHA first team announced Wednesday are centre Andre Lacroix and right winger Danny Larose of Philadelphia Blazers, defencemen J. C. Tremblay of Quebec Nordiques and Paul Schmyr of Cleveland Crusaders and goaltender Gerry Cheevers of Cleveland.

The WHA, in a poll of sports writers and broadcasters, also named a third All-Star team made up of left wing Wayne Carleton, Ottawa Nationals; centre Chris Bordeleau, Winnipeg; right wing Norm Beaudin, Winnipeg; defencemen Rick Ley and Ted Green, New England, and goaltender Al Smith, New England.

Hull played in 63 games of the WHA's first season, scoring 51 goals and 52 assists. He had scored 604 goals and 560 assists in 15 seasons with the Black Hawks.

Lacroix and Ward, who finished the season 1-2 in scoring, changed clubs Wednesday.

The Blazers, newcomers to Vancouver, sent Lacroix and forward Don Herriman to New York, since renamed the Golden Blade, in a trade for Ward and goalie Peter Donnelly.

Lacroix won the first league scoring title with 56 goals and 74 assists while Ward was runner-up with 51 goals and 67 assists.

The WHA first team players all played in the NHL in 1971-72. Lacroix was last with Chicago Black Hawks, Lawson with Buffalo Sabres, Tremblay with Montreal Canadiens, Shmyr with California Golden Seals and Cheevers with Boston Bruins.

Besides Hull, only Tremblay and Green appeared on NHL all-Star teams. Tremblay was selected once to the NHL first team and once to the second team while Green was selected once to the second team.

Blades, Blazers Complete Deal

NEW YORK (CP) — Minutes after the new owners of New York's Golden Blades, formerly the Raiders, made their debut in public, the World Hockey Association club announced Wednesday it had completed a trade involving four players and possibly five with Vancouver Blazers involving their top scorers.

The Golden Blades, now owned by more than a dozen businessmen and centre Ron Ward and goalie Pete Donnelly to the Blazers for centre Andre Lacroix, the WHA top scorer with 134 points, and his left-wing linemate Don Herriman.

Lee Mailson, vice-president and treasurer of the Golden Blades, said the club also had acquired the negotiation rights to the contract of Bernie Parent, the goalie who jumped from the National Hockey League and played with the Blazers before they moved from Philadelphia to Vancouver in a switch of ownership earlier this month.

Mafison said that just before the news conference the WHA with president Gary Davidson attending, had agreed to allow Parent to make the change from the blazers to the Golden Blades. The big question now is whether the Golden Blades, who have vowed to give New York a winning team, can meet parent's terms.

As far as the WHA is concerned, Parent has four more years of a five-year contract with the Blazers to fulfil at a salary reported in excess of $125,000 a year.

There have been reports that Parent, who has just moved into a new home in Cherry Hill, BL olvend play with the Flyers. However, there is a possibility of court action if Parent does not fulfil his contract, a WHA spokesman said.

Coach Camille Henry of the Golden Blades said he "hated to lose a player like W a r d, who led the Raiders with 118 points and was the No. 2 scorer in the league.

But he noted that the 28-year-old centre from Cornwall, Ont., suffers from a pinched nerve in his lower neck and played a major part of last season in pain. Ward may have an operation this summer.

But Lacroix, a native of Lasuon, Que., who will be 28 next Tuesday, "is the kind of player I always hated when he played against us," Henry said.

"He always was tough against us. He's a super playmaker and two-way skater and he's not afraid to throw a check or be checked."

Lacroix, 5-8 and 175 pounds, waged a four-month battle with Ward last season for the scoring title and soared past t h e New York centre with a nine-goal, seven-assist blitz in the final six games of the season.

Johncock Wins After 133 Laps

More Tragedy and Rain As 500 Ends

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The 57th Indianapolis 500-mile race ended, Wednesday as it began: in tragedy and in the rain.

Gordon Johncock was awarded the victory Wednesday, two weeks after Art Pollard was killed in a crash during practice, two days after David (Salt) Walther was burned badly in an aborted start of the race, and two hours after driver Swede Savage was critically injured and a crew member killed.

The triumph by the small and dapper Johncock was witnessed by an estimated 30,000 spectators surrounded by more than 200,000 empty seats at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

"I have been running races for 18 years, a lot of them very frustrating, but this has made it all worth it," said Johncock.

The race was red-flagged to a halt after 133 laps (332½ miles) because of rain. When asked if he was happy the rain came, Johncock replied: "No, I'd like to have seen it go 500 miles."

LANES OPEN UP

He said the only really anxious moment for him in the race was in one of the early laps when another car almost pressed him against the wall in the third turn.

"The traffic eased up in the latter part of the race and it was very comfortable riding those last laps."

A record crowd of more than 300,000 swarmed into the Speedway Monday when rain washed out the race about 30 minutes after the multiple-car crash in which Walther was seriously injured.

About 175,000 showed up Tuesday, only to watch the rain come again. And gloom and dampness also were the order of the day Wednesday. But, after a five-hour, 10 minute wait, the race got started without incident.

Johncock averaged 150.614 miles an hour for the shortest race in the event's long history. The race was over in two hours, five minutes and 27.66 seconds.

The shortest previous Indy was in 1950 when Johnny Parsons was given the victory after 138 laps, also because of rain.

The 36-year-old Johncock is expected to get more than $200,000 in prize money from the $1.25 million Indy purse of more than $1 million.

Johncock beat Billy Vukovich, whose father was a two-time winner of the classic, by a minute, 25 seconds, while third place went frantically to Bobby McCluskey. Mel Kenyon placed fourth and Gary Betenbough was fifth.

Savage, 26, of Santa Ana, Calif., was involved in the second serious accident in his career. He was critically injured in Speedway's first race at Ontario, Calif., in 1971.

He was reported in critical condition at Methodist Hospital in Indianapolis with fractured legs, burns on his face, arms and right hand.

Armando Teran, a 22-year-old mechanic from Culver City, Calif., died about one hour after he was struck by a fire truck driving the wrong way on the pit road while it hurried toward Savage's accident. He was fired about 150 feet by the impact.

Five former Indy champs, three of them in one race since the 1920s, were out on the track at the end of the race.

Three-time winner A. J. Foyt Jr. lost out with two car breaking assemblies in his No 14 Coyote, then hopping a team-mate George Snider's 94 and running the race in mechanical trouble.

Defending champ Mark Donohue, 1970 and 1971 champ Al Unser, 1969 champ Mario Andretti and Bobby Unser, who won in 1968, all met the same fate Foleuiller Johnny Rutherford, never really in the running was only one of 11 drivers still around when the final re flag came.

Bobby Unser led the first 9 laps of the race, Johncock the next three. Savage the next 12 and Al Unser the next 18 and Johncock the rest.

Indy Casualty List

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — An Indianapolis man was in serious condition in Methodist Hospital today with injuries suffered in an accident during the Indianapolis 500-mile race Wednesday.

Hospital spokesmen said William J. Olsen, 53, was in intensive care unit with a concussion and facial cuts apparently suffered when he was hit by flying debris from the crash of Swede Savage's race car.

Speedway officials said earlier Savage was the only person injured in the accident which involved only his car.

Pit crew member Armondo Teran, 22, of Culver City, Calif., died after he was struck by a fire truck driving the wrong way through the pit area on the way to Savage's accident.

The 26-year-old Savage, whose Eagle-Offy smashed and exploded against the inside and then the outside retaining walls, remained in critical condition with fractured legs and burns on his face, arms and right hand.

David (Salt) Walther, injured when his car crashed and burned on the first lap of the rain-delayed race Monday, was listed in serious condition by Methodist officials.

A spokesman for the Dayton-Walther racing team said the Dayton, Ohio, driver was awake and ily improving and was optimistic that he would retain full use of his fractured left wrist. Walther also suffered burns over 40 per cent of his body.

Three Wingate, Ind., women, burned when fuel from Walther's car sprayed over the crowd, remained in satisfactory Sue Rankin, 15, and Dana Dailey, 14, were in the intensive care unit in serious condition and Dorothy West, 56, was listed in fair condition.

6 Month Schedule

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Hockey Association Junior A league opens its earliest and longest season on record Sept. 27, with Peterborough Petes and London Knights launching the 70-game campaign that ends almost six months later March 24.

Officials fromthe league's 11 clubs held an 11-hour meeting Wednesday before the 1973-74 schedule was formulated. It has still to be ratified by both the league and teams.

The league will increase to 12 teams from 10 with the addition of Kingston Canadians. A Kingston group purchased Montreal Junior Canadiens' franchise after the Habs opted to play in the Quebec Junior A league last season.

Toronto WHA Entry After Apps, Sittler

TORONTO (CP) — Lawyer clubs and flirting with offers Alan Eagleson says Toronto's Wertic Hockey Association entry is more concerned about signing Darryl Sittler and Syl Apps than it is in getting junior players on contracts.

The two established National Hockey League centres, with the Maple Leafs and Pittsburgh Penguins respectively, are currently negotiating with the NHL to complete the signings.

"At the moment their prime interest lies with Sittler and Apps," Eagleson said of the Toronto, WHA franchise, formerly Ottawa Nationals. "Both Toronto teams, the Leafs and the WHA people, are very hungry

Retta Herrington Back at Raceway

Retta Herrington, leading driver at the Quinte Exhibition Raceway over five years ago, will be making a return appearance to the Belleville oval after coming off three wins in three starts at Kawartha Downs Saturday.

The Ballsboro owner-driver, an old hand of 10 years in the sulky, is back from winter racing at the Greenwood and Mohawk plants. She will be guiding her own 6 - year - old mare Retta Lu in the seventh race and Lady Barbwire in the second quinella.

Two of the three wins Retta pegged in Peterborough were behind Cape Breton and Cape Breton Huth. Both horses are owned by Torpido's Good Pearson, originally a Cape Breton resident, who has had coolest made for the horses from the tartan of the east coast Island.

Star Parker took the five-eighth mile Kawartha oval for the win in the third race in complete Retta's outing Saturday.

However, the lady driver does not expect to be as successful against Brian Wann in the second at the Raceway Friday. "Lady Barbwire is a 4-year-old green mare with few starts this year," said Retta, "she's a fast mare, but I don't think her chances are that good against Brian Wann. I don't know about the other pacers in the field."

Lady Barbwire is down from Kawartha Downs after her three Port Hope owners thought they'd like to race her on a half-mile track, according to Retta.

One of her own five horses, Retta Lu, will be pacing in the seventh exactor in the mare's second year of racing. In her first season, the 5-year - old was clocked at 2:09 in Peterborough.

Part owner - driver Tom Riley will again be taking up the Ken's Tuxedo reins in an attempt to extend the 4-year - old pacer's win record at the Belleville oval to three.

Another pacer to watch will be Quinte Worthy in the third of the nine race card. The 3-year-old qualified on the four turn Belleville oval in 2:19 last year.

Going Up to Block

Parsons' Peter Koutsoubis goes up to block a Bata Braves' indirect free kick while Brian Preston (centre) and Phil McSherry form part of the wall. Belleville Parsons defeated the Batawa club 2-0 in Bay of Quinte Soccer Association action Wednesday at Zwick's Island.

Parsons Defeat Braves 2-0

By AL ZARAS
Staff Sportswriter

At half time, the score stood 1-0 in Parsons' favor. At the end of the game, the score had increased to 2-0 as the Bata Braves tumbled on the soggy pitch to their third defeat of the Bay of Quinte Soccer Association (BQSA) Wednesday season.

However, the final result might have been different had not Belleville Parsons' goaltender Al McNeil been assisted by the condition of the sky over the past few days as well as the Zwick's Island field.

Braves forward Ted Abrams fired the ball at the Parsons' defender in the second half, but it caught in the ankle deep mud hole in the goalmouth and died. The kick would have decided to make the Bata loss more respectable against the younger Parsons' club.

In the first half however, McNeil earned a save and a bruised knee as Ed Hartnick came out of the wing and collided with the goaltender coming out to make the stop.

The bespectacled goaltender allowed Eric Johnson netminding duties while he tended his knee on the sidelines for part of the half, but then went in to complete the game. "It's cracked knees in the fall," said McNeil.

Brave's Tom Aquino suffered no such bodily bruises during the first half. Then n ud caked goalkeeper, who at one point called to the sidelines for a towel to dry himself, did suffer a two goal blow to his pride.

Peter Hiller, who was selected for play on the Peterborough - Belleville Selects under - 21 - year - old team, scored the first Parsons' goal on a penalty kick. A Baja defender had stopped the ball from going into the net with his hand resulting in the kick awarded by referee Peter Crowle.

Though most of the play in the second half was concentrated in mid field, Nick Del Grosso penetrated the Bata defensive alignment for the second Parsons' goal.

Bantams Overpower Shorthanded Visitors

The Belleville bantams overpowered a shorthanded East York club 14-3 in South Central Lacrosse Association play the midgets had an easy night of it as well. The East York midgets did not appear at Dick Ellis Arena for their first meeting of the season.

After waiting for the East York bantams for 45 minutes, the Belleville club went out into the arena and pummelled the eight visitors by the wide goal margin.

Wally Inwood scoring four goals, Jeff Runciman with three, Mark Frenette and Jamie Kennedy with a pair led the Belleville scorers. Geff Gow tallied a single as well as earning four helpers.

The Belleville juveniles weren't nearly as successful as the bantam. More precisely, the final score was turned around with Belleville losing 16-4.

Early Shower For Whitey

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Whitey Herzog thought he finally had Gaylord Perry's number—a sticky baseball.

But all the Texas manager had was an early shower. It didn't matter because the Rangers beat Cleveland Indians 3-2 Wednesday night.

Herzog got the thumb from umpire Art Frantz in the seventh inning for yelling too loud and too long over Perry's alleged wet one.

Elsewhere in the American League, New York Yankees nipped Oakland A's 4-3, Boston Red Sox edged California Angels 2-1, Baltimore Orioles topped Kansas City Royals 5-4, Milwaukee Brewers shut out Minnesota Twins 4-0 and Detroit Tigers defeated Chicago White Sox 8-3.

"Perry pitches that way all the time and never goes to his mouth," said the umpire. "I examined the ball on six different occasions and didn't find anything."

Herzog just shook his head.

"There it is," he said, displaying a greasy ball as evidence.

"The umpires in this league just want to stay out of trouble," he stormed. "I don't blame Perry for doing it. He's made him a very good pitcher."

Dwight Evans socked a tie-breaking home run in the seventh inning and then robbed Mike Epstein of a two-run homer with a leaping catch in the ninth to help Boston win its small war with California.

Bob Dupuis and Bullpenn emptied in the seventh inning when California's Al Gallagher and catcher Carlton Fisk of the Red Sox, who had collided in a play at the plate two innings earlier, began bumping. Rico Petrocelli of Boston and Californ nia's Jeff Torborg exchanged punches before order was restored.

Dodgers Produce In May

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Los Angeles Dodgers had their merriest May in many summers with a sensational .313 team batting average, including an 18-hit performance Wednesday night that buried Steve Carlton and Philadelphia Phillies 9-4.

"That club isn't just hitting," said Philadelphia manager Danny Ozark. "They're hitting aggressively. They're swinging-and they don't care who's pitching."

"To be honest, I never expected us to hit like this," said manager Walt Alston, whose Dodgers averaged 11.7 runs a game in May and had a 9-8 record.

In the other National League games, Houston Astros defeated Chicago Cubs 4-1, San Francisco Giants trimmed New York Mets 3-2, Pittsburgh Pirates turned back Atlanta Braves 4-2, St. Louis Cardinals beat Cincinnati Reds 5-2 and Montreal Expos split a doubleheader with San Diego Padres, winning the first game 5-3 and losing the second, 3-2.

Fergusn Jenkins will be going after his sixth victory of the year at Chicago this afternoon where the Cubs were host to Houston. The Canadian native is gunning for his seventh straight 20-game season.

At night, Atlanta visits Pittsburgh and Cincinnati is in St. Louis.

Bill Russell doubled, singled three times and drove in four runs to lead Los Angeles' explosive attack. Claude Osteen scattered nine hits for the Dodgers as he outpitched Carlton.

Ozark was hard-put trying to explain Carlton's poor 5-7 start after his 27-10 season last year.

"He's been throwing good enough to win 25," said the Phillies' manager. "His stuff and velocity are still the same."

Argos in Trade With Hamilton

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts said Wednesday they have traded the rights to halfback Dave Cranmer and running back Lou Clair to Hamilton Tiger-Cats for the rights to linebacker Mike Blum and defensive back Gerry Sternberg.

None of the players have signed 1973 contracts in the Canadian Football League.

Cranmer, 29, who has also played with Calgary Stampeders of the Western Football Conference, overcame major abdominal surgery one month prior to Toronto's training camp last year to become an important part of the team's backfield.

The Sarnia, Ont., native caught 27 passes for 506 yards with the Eastern Football Conference squad in 1971.

Clair, from Toronto, is attending University of Minnesota.

Sternberg, 30, graduate of the University of Toronto, is getting another chance with the Argos. He played for Montreal Alouettes in 1966 and 1967 before taking a year off from professional football for his studies. He joined Toronto in 1969 and went to Hamilton in 1971.

Blum, 29, left the Argos last year when, he was traded for veteran tackle Ellison Kelly. He was also been with Ottawa Rough Riders and the Stampeders.

SPORTS BRIEFS

BOSTON (AP) — Veteran defenseman Don Awrey of Boston Bruins signed a multi-year contract with the National Hockey League club Wednesday.

Denmark in Final

JAKARTA (CP) — Denmark pushed aside Canada 9-0 Wednesday and qualified to meet defending champions Indonesia in the final of Thomas Cup badminton tournament.

The great rivals of Europe and Asia will meet this week-end to battle for the Cup, played for every three years and regarded as the symbol of world badminton supremacy.

LEAFS BUY BROSSART

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs announced Wednesday they have acquired defenceman Willie Brossart from Philadelphia Flyers for an undisclosed amount of cash.

CNR Gets 4th Win Post Office Falls 11-3

CNR chalked up its fourth win of the season against one defeat by topping Post Office 11-3 in Industrial Softball League play Wednesday. In the other game played, Quinte Mall Lenders squeezed out a 8-4 win over Constellation.

An eight-run burst in the fourth inning highlighted the CNR attack. That rally brought the club from behind. Post Office held a 3-3 lead after two innings of play.

Perry Decker went the distance on a six-hitter to post the win. He struck out four and walked three. Gerry Genereaux and Ken Williams split the pitching for Post Office. Nicked for nine hits, they fanned none and walked five, two home runs to lead the CNR attack. Zone Plumbo checked in with a double and a single while Bob Lloyd had two singles.

Gerry Genereaux tripled and Ron Post connected for two singles to pace the losers.

Terry Murphy was the winning pitcher for Lenders who got a half battle from Constellation right down the line.

A bit report in on a game played Monday shows the Ulils-kies handed Canadian Tire its first loss of the season by a 9-4 score.

Plane's Tops Read

The difference between the win and the loss in Wednesday's South Hastings Baseball League (SHBL) game was in the pitching.

Plane's Corvette hurler Bob Robb allowed one run on six hits with no walks issued to give the Canuffton based team their third victory of the SHBL season 3-1 over Read.

On the other hand, Larry Coffey allowed only three hits but the Read pitcher walked seven batters. However, he did strike out nine as opposed to Robb's eight.

Marmora and Belleville Schools Win

MARMORA — Teams representing Marmora and Belleville captured top honors in a junior softball tournament held here on the weekend. The event was sponsored by the Hastings - Prince Edward Separate School Board.

Sacred Heart School of Marmora took the boys' title while Belleville's Georges Vanier School won the girls' section.

The Marmora team defeated Belleville St. Joseph's in the final. Georges Vanier girls won their championship with a win over host Sacred Heart School.

PLANS CELEBRATIONS

Cosy Grill, BYBF in Hitting Mood

Cosy Grill and Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund teams were in a run scoring mood Wednesday night at Alemite Park, accounting for 46 runs between them in a pair of Belleville and District Ladies' Softball League games.

Rattling out a total of 26 hits, Cosy Grill posted a 21-1 win over Bob Bland - Red Barn. The BYBF team connected for 24 hits on the way to downing Belleville Broadloom 25-2.

Cathy Brown led the Cosy Grill hit parade with a homer and five singles. Sharon Francis and Judy Pultz each contributed a homer, double and two singles while Anna Van-Bleek supplied two singles.

Tops for the losers was Marg Scanlan with three singles. Suzanne Fobert, Cheryl Kelly and Judy Scanlan had two each.

Winning pitcher Sandra Claus went all the way, allowing 11 hits while striking out eight and walking two. Suzanne Fobert and Liz Reid shared the pitching for the losers.

Donna Preston, Judy Rappel and Penny Hughes each collected four hits for BYBF. Charlene Wemlaff and Brenda Wade each slammed a double for Broadloom.

Sue Morton got the win on a 5-hitter. She struck out 11 and walked three. Mary Anne Sills took the loss.

WILSON OUT THREE WEEKS

They're Coming Home

Canadians' Reaction Varies From Dismay to Exuberance

SAIGON (CP) — They came to observe a peace they had no part in making. They found instead a war they couldn't control.

They arrived convinced of their value as peacekeepers but they discovered a country far more intent on fighting. Still, they say, they have learned valuable lessons.

The 280 members of the Canadian contingent to the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS), after four months of few rewards and many frustrations, are getting ready to go home.

Their reactions range from disappointment to exuberance.

Maybe a young officer from Saskatchewan was typical of many when he said: "It wasn't much, I guess, but it sure as hell beats being officer cadet in Moose Jaw."

They say their efforts to make the ICCS work will not diminish in the coming weeks. But even the most enthusiastic admit it's going to be more difficult to keep from thinking of home or looking ahead to the next posting.

What have the Canadians accomplished and what effects will their departure have? The question probably will occupy commentators for months before clear answers emerge.

Unless a replacement is found before the July 31 withdrawal deadline, control over ICCS air services will fall to a Polish infantry officer who once asked why jet aircraft have no propellers and Hungarian and Indonesian officers of similar qualifications.

About 150 foreign journalists who follow ICCS proceedings will be left without their major source of news and information.

"Bloody Canucks; they managed to get away front home for the winter and now they leave us in the lurch," remarked one news agency veteran.

For the military, Maj.-Gen. Duncan McAlpine, Canada's commanding officer, contends that his men have gained an immense amount of knowledge and expertise, not only about peacekeeping operations but also about troop deployment, support activities and other related movements.

The general says the government's decision was the right one. But like his officers, he prefers life in the field to life behind a desk and there is a clear hint of disappointment in his voice.

Observers here agree, many of them reluctantly, that perhaps the clearest lesson to emerge from Canada's four months in Vietnam is that it should never again get involved in a peacekeeping mission unless it is given a strong voice in the formulation of the peace agreement itself.

Unanimous Consent Refused Congratulations to Princess

OTTAWA (CP) — A suggestion to send congratulations to Princess Anne on her engagement was brushed aside in the Commons Wednesday.

Tom Cossitt (PC—Leeds) moved that the House convey congratulations to the 23-year-old princess, who was betrothed Tuesday to Lieut. Mark Phillips, a British soldier.

The motion failed when it did not receive the unanimous consent required when the motion was put, but it could not be determined from which members they came.

Gentlemen...start your campfires.

Each year in early June, thousands of racing fans converge deep into the Ontario countryside to take part in what has become one of the major events of spring.

Tents pitched, the grass and air covered with transistor radio an instant city. By morning the crowd has doubled. The sun and nature rise to the occasion as the sweet smell of bacon and eggs sizzling over open fires take the chill off the country air.

Sudden ear-splitting screams of 1000 HP engines and flashes of brilliant color bring campers scampering to trackside. In seconds all that remains is the acrid scent of racing fuel and a distant hollow blare. Qualifying has begun. Welcome to auto racing. To Mosport. Home of the fifth consecutive Labatt's Blue Can-Am.

These first two days are devoted to establishing drivers positions for the start of the race. Or whether they qualify at all. For driver and car must meet a stringent time limit for the right to participate.

Spectators crowd into the pit area where mechanics constantly prepare, perfect and polish these intricate machines. You can rub shoulders with the superstar drivers, Kibitz with mechanics, get a country tan and look at the girls.

Race day arrives (JUNE 10TH) as last minute preparations are made to assure each team of their best chance at the Labatt's Blue Trophy and the $75,000 prize money.

At ten a.m. two preliminary races consisting of formula Fords and sedans precede the Labatt's Blue Drivers Parade and main event.

At 2:30, the countdown begins. After a rolling start in which the cars circle the track, the flag drops in front of the pit area and the race is on. The result will be first hand history. We at Labatt's heartily invite you to attend this year's Can-Am. Come for the day (start out early) or take advantage of the three day super ticket of special interest to campers.

This is car racing in its most impressive form and a genuinely entertaining experience you're not likely to forget...We hope to see you there.

Film Maker Turns to Opera

By PAUL MAJENDIE

PARIS (Reuter) — One of France's most revered film makers, Rene Clair, has turned his considerable talents to directing opera—a new experience for him at the age of 76 and one which he hugely enjoyed.

The work in question was Gluck's Orphee and Eurydice which has played to packed houses at the ornate Paris Opera House since it opened in April.

As one critic rapturously wrote: "Visually and dramatically it was a feast for the eyes . . . A spectacle of absorbing visual theatrical strokes mixed with some superb singing and dancing."

Rene Clair was also pleased with the results of the performance himself.

Resting in his villa at Saint Tropez, southern France, after Tropez, southern France, after a strenuous round of rehearsals he said: "It was something so completely different for me and that's a very important thing when you are my age.

"I never encountered any difficulties with any of the singers and the whole thing is a great success judging by the full houses every night."

Clair, who has written or at least collaborated on every film he has directed since his first 50 years ago—including A Nous la Liberte and Sous les Toits de Paris—found that he relished the complete contrast with the cinema world.

"It was absolutely the opposite for me. When I was shooting a picture it was always me who was the author. But this time I certainly couldn't say I had written the music."

Clair, never one for gazing nostalgically back at his past achievements, plans a brief stay at his villa but then has another project afoot.

"I am not planning a film at the moment. However I have just written a play which might be produced in Paris next year. But nothing is definite," he said.

He once said: "I always have projects but I need 10 lives to do everything I want to do."

Asked which of his films gave him most pleasure he said: "I have no firm favorite but I was glad to have made A Nous la Liberte. It's all about the unrest of young people and I'm very pleased to have made a hippy picture over 40 years ago."

Entertainment Shorts

OSLO (AP) — Norwegian newspapers are unhappy about what they call special court treatment for actress Liv Ullmann.

The blonde star, who was Henry Kissinger's date at the Academy Awards ceremony in March, was spared Norway's mandatory jail term for a drunken driving conviction.

Newspapers this week reported the conviction of Miss Ullmann, an Oscar nominee for her role in The Emigrants. They also recalled that a housewife got the mandatory 21 days in jail and a $2,725 fine for the same conviction in February.

Miss Ullmann was fined $2,469 but her jail term was suspended.

In 1972, the actress stopped at a police roadblock while driving home from a party, and a policeman asked her to take a blood test to determine the amount of alcohol in her system. She failed and was convicted of drunken driving and sentenced to the jail term.

In an appeal case, two doctors, both close friends of the actress, testified that Miss Ullmann was "deeply depressed" and added that a jail term would cause "irreparable damage" to her health.

The Norwegian Supreme Court suspended the lower court jail sentence and turned down an appeal May 18 by the state prosecutor.

EILAT, Israel (AP) — Actor Burt Lancaster and his son are going to star in a television movie about Moses.

Art director Luigi Rastle, here to check location sites, said shooting is scheduled to begin in August in Jericho, and to move to Eilat in September. The film will be entitled The Lawmaker.

Burt Lancaster Jr., will play Moses as a young man, and his father will fill the role of the older Moses.

LARCHMONT, N.Y. (AP) — Harold Hastings, 54, one of Broadway's leading orchestra conductors, died in his sleep Wednesday, apparently of a heart attack.

He conducted the Broadway hit A Little Night Music as usual Tuesday night.

Hastings had conducted Broadway musicals presented by Hal Prince since 1954, including Pajama Game, Damn Yankees, Fiorello!, and Cabaret.

DORCHESTER, England (AP) — Author and broadcaster Kenneth Allsop died last week from a massive overdose of barbiturates, an inquest was told Wednesday, but the coroner returned an open verdict because he said there was no indication of how the overdose was taken.

Allsop, a television news commentator, lost a leg in the Second World War and his doctor testified that he had been in acute pain ever since. He was accustomed to taking a mixture of barbiturates and aspirin to relieve the pain, the physician said.

An autopsy showed the 53-year-old Allsop had four times the lethal dose of barbiturates in his blood at the time of his death.

A book, the collected works of Dorothy Parker, was found open on his bed when his body was discovered, the inquest was told. Two passages in the American journalist's book had been underlined.

The first read: "There is nothing good in life that will not be taken away." The second said: "Mrs. Parker says she can find no other means of dealing with the pain of being."

CHICAGO (AP) — Playboy, the men's magazine, has filed suit against Playgirl, a new publication for women, charging infringement of trademarks.

The United States district court suit asks an injunction against further publication and award of treble damages in an amount yet to be determined.

No date has been set for a hearing.

Her Majesty Regrets

WINDSOR, England (CP) — The Queen has been invited to a pop festival almost in her own backyard, in Windsor Great Park. Hippies are planning the event for August on the public land which adjoins Windsor Castle. But a palace official said the Queen is always at Balmoral in Scotland at that time of year.

"One of Broadway's funniest . . ."

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Friday, June 1

Aries (March 21-April 19): The shifting kaleidoscope of today's conditions provides many views of yourself—learn your own potentialities. Confusion clears suddenly.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Changes come easy now. You need thorough self-discipline for best results. Complaints are not useful. Competition can be enjoyable.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Get people together, persuade rather than direct. Any sort of diversion leads to work not rather profitably.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Put in your proposal for better conditions. You have sound friends backing you.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Weekend approaches and finds you unprepared. Relationships include a problem. Useful agreements follow sensible consultations.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Friendships just forming settle into stronger ties. Events in distant places affect you, escape your control.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Surprises, mostly favorable, are indicated. All depends on how well you're prepared. Later, short things out.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Earning power is erratic though generally higher. Trying to correct an old error is useless. Acknowledge things as they are and go ahead.

Sagittarius, (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21): Even chance encounters generate lengthy comments. Business contacts stir endless debate. Eye your own welfare. You have good prospects.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): New ventures are part of your environment. It's up to you how you approach them. Take your pick.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Others bring stress into your life. In anything you do, your love is expressed only vaguely, needs more emphasis.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Decide early what is most important. Here's many a neglected detail to pick up in passing.

Ehrlichman Can't Remember Asking for CIA Assistance

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Ehrlichman blames a former deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) for his role in the Watergate cover-up.

The former White House adviser also says he can't recall asking for CIA assistance that Howard Hunt used in the Ellsberg burglary.

Ehrlichman's testimony conflicts with that of present and former CIA officials. The Senate appropriations subcommittee investigating reports that mail intended for two Democratic presidential candidates last year was tampered with by the post office.

George Gould, an aide to Wilson, said he has learned that some mail of Senator Edmund Muskie was read and copied in the Washington post office during Muskie's New Hampshire campaign, and that letters intended for Senator George McGovern were tampered with while he was campaigning in Florida.

A tentative Sept. 11 trial date was set in Orrin's case for former attorney-general John Mitchell, former commerce secretary Maurice Stans, financier Robert Vesco and New Jersey Republican leader Harry Sears in connection with a secret donation to President Nixon's 1972 campaign. U.S. District Court Judge Lee Gagliardi said the trial could come even earlier.

The four are charged with obstruction of justice and conspiracy.

On the Ellsberg matter, Ehrlichman said he hasn't changed his opinion of making a telephone call which [illegible] CIA deputy director Robert [illegible] said he received July 7, 1971.

Ehrlichman said it is possible someone else called Cushman and used his name.

Vernon Walters had stated flatly that there was no danger of uncovering secret CIA operations in Mexico.

But instead, Ehrlichman said, Walters gave an "equivocal response" during a meeting in late 1972, shortly after the Watergate raid. Haldeman and former CIA director Richard Helms also were at the meeting.

In other Watergate-related developments:

—Representative Charles Wilson, chairman of a House of Representatives post office subcommittee, asked Postmaster General E. T. Klassen to investigate reports that mail intended for two Democratic presidential candidates last year was tampered with by the post office.

CBC Budget Pared Gently By Commons

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons' broadcasting committee rapped the CBC lightly on the knuckles Wednesday when it voted to cut the public corporation's 1973-74 operating budget by a token $1,000.

Quebec MP Harold Herbert (Argenteuil), sponsor of the motion, described the cut as a symbolic attempt to register general dissatisfaction with the CBC, "particularly with regard to the handling of separatist French programming in the province of Quebec."

The motion was intended to indicate the power of the taxpayers elected representatives over the life of the CBC. Outside the committee, Mr. Herbert said the cut was primarily aimed at the corporation's French-language news and documentary.

"The majority of Quebecers feel that there is far too much attention paid to the separatist element in Radio Canada news broadcasts," he said.

He argued that the CBC is supported by taxpayers and has no right to present a one-sided view of news events—a minority view that most viewers do not share.

The motion carried by a narrow margin, with one New Democrat and five Liberals supporting it and three Conservatives and two Liberals voting against it.

Bill Jarvis PC—Perth-Wilmot proposed an amendment which would cut the operation budget by an additional $134,000—the amount of money the CBC had to pay out of the public kitty to the American government for income tax owing by a number of CBC employees working in the U.S. The committee defeated his amendment.

Cover-ups Encourage Misuse of Alcohol

EDMONTON (CP) — Emphasis is allowed to continue until there is no alternative but dismissal and until there is greatly reduced hope for the recovery of the person's health."

He was addressing the annual meeting of the Canada Safety Council.

"The number of employees affected by this complex behavioural-health disability is of epidemic proportion and the number appears to be increasing."

More than half of the 600,000 alcoholics in Canada are employed, and it is up to management to intervene when the use of alcohol damages ability to perform, he said.

Sharp Thinks Some Canadian Offices 'Bugged'

OTTAWA (CP) — There is evidence that Canadian government offices in other countries have been bugged but External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Wednesday it is not in the national interest to go into detail.

Tom Cossitt (PC—Leeds) asked in the Commons whether, since 1958, "listening devices of any kind" have been found in Canadian embassies, consulates or other offices in foreign countries. He also asked for specific examples.

Mr. Sharp, in a written reply, said:

"We have had evidence of such activities directed against some of our missions abroad. . . . "It would not be in the national interest, however, to go into detail on this evidence or how or where we obtained it."

He said members of the foreign service, "due to the way with which telephone conversations can be monitored . . . exercise caution and discipline in the use of telephones."

Plan Loans

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — Claude Bennett, minister of industry and tourism, said Wednesday he will announce June 8 a new provincial government policy on loans to sportsmen's, tourist operators and those in similar fields.

But he promised the new loan program will be attractive, appealing to those in the industry.

GM Makes Plea

WASHINGTON (AP) — General Motors asked Congress Wednesday to delay and relax 1976 auto emission standards and systematically monitor the company's efforts to curb pollution.

GM President Edward N. Cole said if Congress doubts the firm's good-faith efforts to reduce pollading emissions, it should establish a watchdog over GM.

CN Fund

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian National Railways pension fund had total mortgage investments of $255.-million at the end of 1972, at least 95 per cent of it in Canadian-controlled companies, Transport Minister Jean Marchand said Wednesday.

PM on Trade

OTTAWA (CP) — As long as Canadians benefit from the Commonwealth preferential trade system in dealing with South Africa there is no reason to abolish it, Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons Wednesday.

And if it is not favorable, he added, it should be abolished whether South Africa is in the Commonwealth or not.

Skeptical

OTTAWA: (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp dismissed Wednesday a request that President Nixon's widespread plans for national security operations in 1970 included a proposal to break into the Canadian embassy in Washington.

"I have no information of that kind or any evidence to suggest there is any substance to the allegation," Mr. Sharp said when questioned in the Commons.

Talks Held

TORONTO (CP) A three-man board appointed to arbitrate the dispute among five elevator companies and the International Union of Elevator Constructors continued closed-door sessions here Wednesday.

Two Escape

LONDON (Reuter) — Armed police scoured London Wednesday for two prisoners, described as dangerous, still at large after a 6-mass breakout, from a high-security prison and a bloody street fight.

The two fugitives, awaiting trial for rape and one burglary, ran from Brixton remand prison in south London with some 15 to 20 others and engaged in hand-to-hand fighting with prison guards in a busy shopping street.

The two who got away fled in a stolen car, after dragging its middle-aged driver out while he waited at a crossing.

All the other prisoners were quickly recaptured.

Helicopter Upsets Rescuing Fisherman

WAWA, Ont. (CP) — The Canadian research ship Martin Carlson picked up a survivor Wednesday from a helicopter accident which occurred on Lake Superior during a search for missing businessman Acmee Breton of Wawa.

The survivor was identified as Victor Solomatenko, pilot of the helicopter which spotted Breton in his boat.

The helicopter landed beside the boat and authorities said a passenger in the helicopter, Carl Jorensen, went out on a pontoon to guide Mr. Breton aboard.

However, the helicopter tipped over and both Mr. Jorensen and Mr. Breton were believed to have drowned.

Another aircraft engaged in the search for Mr. Breton also was forced down in the water day.

Col. A. A. Kennedy Recalls Mention of Moog-Davis Ties

TORONTO (CP) — A legislature committee inquiring into the contract for a new $44-million Ontario Hydro Commission headquarters heard brief and inconclusive evidence Wednesday of a friendship between Premier William Davis and the successful bidder for the job.

A written statement read into the record from Lt.-Col. A. A. Kennedy, former commission member, said he had a "vague recollection" of hearing mention of the friendship, but thought it was after the signing of the contract last fall.

Col. Kennedy said he did not know who made the statement or whether it was made at a commission meeting.

The premier's friend is Gerhard Moog, president of Canada Square Corp., and the select committee is inquiring into whether political influence was involved in the awarding of Hydro's first contract on a lease-purchase deal.

Committee members also questioned Hydro Chairman George Gathercole on the Davis-Moog relationship, and Mr. Gathercole repeated previous testimony that he had a "nebulous" recollection of hearing about it "somewhere along the line."

While the first five days of evidence has been confined to Hydro personnel and documents, the committee was told Wednesday by lawyer R. E. Shibley that he plans to call a witness who wrote to a commissioner complaining about the way his proposal for erecting the building was dealt with.

Mr. Gathercole testified that commission member Roger Seguin of Ottawa had told him of receiving a letter from the unnamed contractor expressing "some unhappiness" about the way he had been treated.

Mr. Shibley said he has the letter, but is holding it back until the writer appears because "it makes a lot of statements that could be unfairly dealt with if introduced now."

In testimony before the committee Wednesday, Mr. Gathercole repeated his previously expressed view that all competitors had been treated alike.

He was being questioned by Ian Deans (NDP—Wentworth), who suggested that the trend of evidence indicated that Hydro did not use "exactly the same ground rules" for all.

"As far as I am advised," Mr. Gathercole said, "all the developers had the opportunity to discuss the proposals, and Hydro's objectives, in an even way."

"They are all good developers," he said, "How do you rate them? It has to be judgment."

During his evidence it transpired that one of the unsuccessful contractors, appearing the low bidder at the time the contract was awarded, was not found on Hydro's later calculations to be above the price quoted by Canada Square.

The committee was to get more precise information on this later, Mr. Gathercole indicated that Hydro analysts had underestimated by between 30 and 36 cents the annual rental per square foot offered by Section Development and Management Ltd. of Toronto.

Kidnapping Attempted

TORONTO (CP) — Police said Wednesday they did not make public an extortion attempt last month on Richard Murray Thomson, president of the Toronto Dominion Bank, for fear the publicity might spawn similar attempts on other bank officials.

Staff Supt. Adolphus Payne of the Metropolitan Toronto Police said Mr. Thomson's wife, Heather, and their two-year-old son were tied to chairs at their home April 15 for more than 15 minutes.

But Supt. Payne said the armed man's attempt to get money from the bank was frustrated because Mr. Thomson was in Winnipeg on business. He said that after the man left, Mrs. Thomson dialled the telephone with her tongue for help although she was blindfolded.
